Interest in the voting contest for the most popular dance at the Kirmess continued unabated last night and ballots poured in by hundreds. A total of 3,633 were cast and with those tallied Tuesday night, 7,397 is the grand aggregate, each one representing a nickel for Muhlenberg Hospital.

The Steeplechase dance, which took the lead at the beginning of the contest, polled another large batch, last night, and now remains at the head of the list with 1,790. The participants in this number are splendid campaigners and are hustling for votes before and after their appearance on the stage. The White Hussars were not on last night and consequently remained in second position without any increase but the Sailors Hornpipe, which made its first appearance, startled the other contestants by starting off with 802. The Rustic dance and the Pantomime both made great gains and the former will undoubtedly be crowding the leaders by tomorrow.

The French Dolls, the Dutch boys and girls and the Indian Braves all remained standing in their original positions as they were not included in last night's program. The little Rosebuds, the Harlequin and the New Year's dances all made their first appearance last night and jumped into the race with a good batch of votes.

A "Richmond" will be in the field tonight when the Rainbow dancers start out in quest of ballots. This dance has not been on at all as yet but the personnel includes a "raft" of pretty young misses against whom resistance would be useless and it is an absolute certainity that they will jump to the front at the first try.

Theft of a Bicycle Wheel.

A thief entered a shed on the rear of F. S. Cutter's property at 36 Sandford avenue, one night this week and stole the front wheel of Mrs. Cutter's bicycle, leaving the rest of the machine undisturbed. There is little chance of recovering the wheel as it would be an easy matter to change the color of the rim. The thief evidently wanted it to complete a bicycle, the other parts of which were probably obtained in the same way.

NEW DANCES APPLAUDED

AUDIENCE FILLS THE THEATRE.

Every Number Given Without a Hitch and Solos Are Well Executed.

With an attendance even larger than was noted at the initial performance, the Kirmess continued on its frolicsome way at the New Plainfield theatre, last night, and hundreds left the playhouse vowing it surpasses any amateur effort ever seen in the city. Every dance scored heavily and rounds of applause followed them all as they were brought to a conclusion. The affair already spells "success' with a large S and Muhlenberg Hospital will profit accordingly.

Last night's program varied somewhat from the opening and served to introduce several new dances. These are the Rosebuds, the New Year's, the Sailor's Hornpipe and the Harlequin, all of which were given without the slightest hitch and which afforded the French dolls, the Dutch, the Indian Braves and the White Hussars a chance to rest on their laurels. The Rosebuds, who are just about as sweet as the flower they are named after, induced a series of "Ohs" and "Ahs" when they tripped out and as they finished thier pretty steps the verdict that they were "just too cute for anything" was unanimous. It is rather unfortunate that they can't be on every night but the only way for the audience to overcome the difficulty is to buy more tickets.

Another dance not seen Tuesday night, and which is clever as well as artistic, is the New Year's. It is given by twelve young women. As they make their appearance they seem to be sober and sedate Quaker maids with the most lugubrious of faces. The audience is trying to figure out what makes the expressions so set when there is a sudden reverse movement and the spectators find they have been gazing at "dummy" countenances. The dancers then appear as themselves while the costume changes to light summer gowns, directly in contrast to the sombre raiment showed before. The effect was striking and made the number stand out in a class by itself.

The Sailor's Hornpipe is another "winner." It comprises about three ship's crews of jolly juvenile navigators and they jig and reel in a style that would make Father Neptune chortle with glee. The dance recalls "Tom Bowline," "Dick Deadeye," and all the other old salts and before the young folks get away the audience imagines it hears the "swishy-swash" of the waves. The dance deserves to be a "headliner." the Harlequin number is given by young men and women and shows a lot of careful drilling and conscien-

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Divorce is a favorite topic with the playwright. Scores of plays have been written around marital disturbances, a number of which have achieved real success. Grace George comes to the New Plainfield theatre Memorial Day, afternoon nad night, in one. Sardou wrote "Divorcons" over twenty-five years ago and Rejane played it for several seasons. A number of leading German, English and American actresses have also appeared in it. Miss George has the newest version, one prepared by Margaret Mayo. Sardou in this play was really the first writer to give divorce a vogue on the stage. Last season Mrs. Fiske appeared in "The New York Idea" by Langdon Mitchell. It was a play that concerned itself wholly about divorce and in some aspects was modelled after "Divorcons." Threatened separation or divorce light up the pages of "The Walls of Jericho," in which James K. Hackett appeared last year. When Jack Frobisher, the ranchman from Australia, finds that life in London is not what it has been painted, and that it has been painted too much, he delivers the "big" speech of the play, in which he calls down maledictions upon those dwellers in Mayfair that have made divorce a fashionable pastime. Not until last year has the subject of divorce been used as the main idea in a musical comedy. Marie Cahill has so used it in "Marrying Mary," in which musical comedy she plays the part of a young woman who has been married three times, and three times divorced and who is in love for the fourth time.

The Berkley Heights baseball team has organized for the season of 1908 as follows: Charles Burgmiller, manager; W. Burgmiller, captain; Robert Rogers, treasurer. William Jeffrey, the pioneer bungalowman, has offered to provide grounds and grandstands for the team and the club would like to schedule games with any amateur team in this vicinity.

The following will be the lineup of the teams in the Clinton Avenue-Elizabeth A. C. at Crescent Oval, Saturday afternoon: Clinton Avenue—Moffett, c; Randolph, p; Barnes, 1b; Brit. Martin, 2b; James Emery, 3b; Jack Martin, ss; Schott, Giles, Gilman and O'Loughlin, out-field. Elizabeth A. C.—Kling, 1b; Odell, 2b; McVicker, ss; Fine, 3b; Boyd, lf; Lloyd, cf; Burns, rf; Singer or Griffin, c; Smith, p.

Boyd, who will play with Elizabeth A. C., at Crescent Oval, Saturday, is considered one of the fastest out-fielders in the semi-professional ranks. It is rumored that Smith, who will pitch for the county seat boys, is Plainfield's own "Phil."

The State Y. M. C. A. League season will open here on Saturday, May 23, when the local association will meet Summit. Scott, Russell and Conover are the slab artists, while Ralph Schoonmaker will do the backstop work. Manager Listman is rapidly getting a strong team together, and it is possible that he may have Jack Peacock as a twirler. He is at Princeton, where he has been making a fine record in pitching.

Trenton and Newark will be dangerous opponents in the State Y. M. C. A. League. They both give promise of having fast teams and will doubtless make the other clubs hustle.

Missing a train is considered a serious infraction of rules of the New York National League Club by Manager McGraw. Crandall, who was slated to pitch for the Giants against Pittsburg, in the latter city, Monday, failed to catch the train at Jersey City on Sunday night and as a result the twirler did not arrive in Pittsburg until late Monday. After the defeat McGraw and Crandall had a warm argument, which resulted in the Giants' leader inflicting a fine on Crandall for the latter's carelessness.

The placing of Jimmy Mullen at the top of the Newark batting list is having good results. Jimmy is getting in timely licks almost every day and Monday he added two more bingles to his credit.

Ducky Drake is getting his eye on the ball. In the game against Baltimore last Sunday and in the one against Rochester the previous Sunday, he displayed good sticking qualities, and Monday he came to the front again, when he laced out a single, batting in Pardee's place in the eighth inning.

Ned Hanlon, of Baltimore, is negotiating with the Cincinnati club for the purchase of Tozer, the former Buffalo twirler, and Spade, who pitched for Atlanta last season.

GOLF.

In all probability the rules committee will not report on the code revisions to the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews until the autumn meeting. This means that the playing rules will not be altered before January 1, or about one year from the sending of the American suggestions regarding revisions to Scotland.

The Scottish-American and Forest Park golf clubs will meet in a friendly match at Forest Park on Sunday. These clubs are to play two team matches during the year, but the play next Sunday is apart from these.

Five golfers from this side will play in the championship of the Ladies' Golf Union of Great Britain at St. Andrews, Scotland, next week, beginning on Monday. Four of the entries are from the Boston golfing district: Miss Mary B. Adams, Miss Anita Phipps, Miss M. W. Phelps and Miss M. F. Phelps, and the other, Miss Frances C. Griscom, is from Philadelphia.

In folder form of pocket size the Massachusetts Golf Association prints the places and dates of twenty-six open tournaments for men and of five for women.

The marriage is reported at St. Andrews, Scotland, of Norman Hunter, who made many friends in this country when here with the Oxford and Cambridge Golfing Society's team, to Miss Elizabeth Birrell, younger daughter of the late Prof. Birrell of St. Andrews University.

A handicap driving contest is a novelty on the season's schedule of the Arsdale Golf Club. Another is a "worst ball" foursome, a radical departure from the customary best ball four handed contests.

The Deal Golf and Country Club became a member of the New Jersey State Golf Association's committee last Thursday at a meeting which was attended by Messrs. Baker, Calkins, Keep, Thurson and Palmer. The treasurer reported a balance of $349.

B. T. Allen, after winning by default for the second place in the Fox Hills Dozen Club from Frank Sears, defeated after a very hard match E. C. Johnson by 1 up for the first place, and Frank Sears defeated E. C. Johnston for the second place, also by 1 up. George E. Fawcett challenged W. G. Hoople for his place and was defeated by being 1 down at the finish. W. E. Heim, who is number 4, played E. C. Johnston on Saturday both afternoon and morning and was defeated on both occasions by being 1 down and 3 down and 1 to play.

ASTRONOMICAL EVENTS.

Sun sets 7:05, rises 4:39; moon sets 4:24 a. m

It is quite evident that, notwithstanding his great experience in the field of education, Rev. Dr. Reed, president of Dickinson College, has a rather unwarranted impression of the poor student in the average American college. The doctor has a deep rooted conviction that the lad, whose parents are making sacrifices to send him through college, is as a rule an envious sort of creature and that his life is made miserable because he can not afford the luxuries that a spoiled son of a rich sire may indulge in.

At the General Conference of the M. E. church, the other day, Dr. Reed is reported as saying: "Can you imagine, or can you picture to yourself, a more miserable and more unhappy being than the high-spirited youth whose parents are making sacrifices at home that he may be educated, whose allowance is necessarily small, as he sees half a dozen of his fellow-students flash by him in an automobile? Is not that boy miserable who sees another boy mounted on a thoroughbred? What must be the thoughts of the poor boy as he enters the luxurious room of a wealthy student, whi is permitted to have such a room, and more frequently a suite, and there gaze upon the rich tapestry, the works of art adorning the walls, the thick carpets and rugs, noiseless to the tread, the divans and lounges, and, yes, alas! too often, the photographs of half-nude actresses and of prize-fighters?"

As the Elizabeth Journal very rightly says: "Would the normal boy unused to indulging himself in the luxuries and injurious extravagances be cast down at all this show? It is difficult to form any such opinion. He is too well informed by the time he reaches the university concerning the impariment of health and future success to sacrifice himself to dissipation or to envy others who take that course. Somehow the picture of 'the boy who falls a victim of the snares of the gilded youth' which Dr. Reed presents fails to bring tears."

CONVENT PAYS ITS TAXES.

College of St. Elizabeth Turns Over $1,025 to the Morris Township Committee.

Morristown, May 14.—At the meeting of the Morris Township Committee yesterday Edward K. Mills, counsel for the College of St. Elizabeth, the convent at Convent Station, presented a check for $1,025 in settlement of the taxes on the convent property in the township for which a recent decision of the courts has declared the convent is liable.

Measures were taken to stop Sunday baseball games in the township limits. J. Paul Jamison was appointed a special officer to regulate automobile speed on Mt. Kemble avenue. There was a lengthy discussion on the erection of electric light poles on Mt. Kemble avenue, it being conceded that when a majority of property owners demand lights and agree to the erection of poles they may have them. Arthur H. Lynch, representing the Public Service Corporation, explained why the wires could not go upon the telephone poles.

DEATH OF "THE" ALLEN, A NEW YORK CHARACTER.

New York, May 14.—Theodore Allen, known as "The" Allen, died suddenly Tuesday night at the home of his son-in-law, Clarence E. Owen, in West Eighth street. Two hours later the coroner interrupted preparation for the embalming of the body. He ordered that an autopsy be performed today. Members of the family were summoned by the coroner and examined. Allen's physician, Dr. Hermann Boeker, reported that "The" died of locomotor ataxia, but one of the dead man's brothers, Martin Van Buren Allen, declared it his belief that "The" had died as the result of foul play. Allen was seventy-seven years of age and had a notable and spectacular career. He was best known as a promoter of poolrooms and as a bookmaker. In connection with poolroom operations he was arrested no less than eight times, but managed to escape penal sentence.

CIVIL SERVICE BANQUET

State Senator Ackerman a Speaker at Reform Association's Dinner in New York

EXPLAINS JERSEY'S STATUTE.

Plainfielder Declares that All Parties Admit that Merit and Fitness Have Come Stay.

The Civil Service Reform Association, at its annual dinner last night at the Hotel Astor, New York, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of the passage by Congress of the first Civil Service bill. This bill was introduced by Senator Pendleton, of Ohio, father of Francis K. Pendleton, corporation counsel of the city, who was one of the speakers last night.

Everett P. Wheeler, vice-president of the association and one of the first exponents of Civil Service in New York State, described the passage of the first Civil Service bill at Albany, during the Governorship of Grover Cleveland. He was followed by State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, who introduced the New Jersey Civil Service bill which became a law on April 10 of this year. Speaking of this bill he said:

I consider myself honored, Mr. Toastmaster for having been invited to represent in part the State of New Jersey on this occasion of the 25th Anniversary of the passage of the Civil Service law by the National Congress. I regret exceedingly however, that previous engagements of his Excellency, Governor Fort, made it impossible for him to be present and tell you in his own forceful way of the events leading up to the enactment of the law in New Jersey, now a little over a month ago.

"It would seem to me to be appropriate for a representative of a State just having enacted legislation along this line, and being thus in the infantile class, to remember the couplet of our school days that "children should be seen and not heard." It would have been much appreciated if your humble servant could have observed this proper injunction and have permitted to sit at the feet of Gamaliel to drink in the wise utterances of those who have spoken and will speak upon this subject. However, as Mr. Goodwin, the specialist pronounces the new law 'a lusty infant,' having only lesser qualifications than the law of the Empire State and one other, I take courage and with your kind permission will say a few words, keeping well within the time alloted to me.

"No one will dispute the fact that anniversaries of this character should be fitting ly celebrated. They recall to mind the struggles and final triumph of great movements and the rehearsal of their achievements is an inspiration to others who are fighting similar battles for other principles of good government.

"'One soweth and another reapeth' may truthfully be said of my relation to this great movement of Civil Service Reform in New Jersey. I make this statement frankly lest the bill which has recently been enacted may give too much praise to one who has entered the struggle at the eleventh hour. Too much credit cannot be given to those who have done wheel horse duty during the heat of the day their efforts making possible what has been accomplished.

"At first blush there would seem to be no connection possible between the subject of capital punishment and that of civil service reform, but yet that seems to be the only reason I can give why I became connected with the question.

"About a year ago the New Jersey Legislature enacted a law to substitute electrocution for the barbarous method of hanging in the event of the law demanding that the death penalty be carried out, but the citizens of Mercer county, in which the death chamber was to be situated, objected. In order to allay the rising storm of protest, a committee was appointed by the New Jersey Senate, in accordance with a resolution of that body, to investigate the subject of capital punishment in this and other countries. With others I was appointed on that committee and directed to take up the European end of the inquiry.

"The official journal of your organization having regretfully related how in the past civil service bills in New Jersey were killed, some of which bills came to their untimely end by strangling in committee, which in effect was legislative capital punishment, it so happened upon my return from Europe the Senators may have thought that preliminary experience having been enjoyed by me in investigating physical capital punishment that it would be a good thing to put me to work to investigate the killing of civil service bills. I strenuously protested against any further labor in this connection and if I 'rose to the accasion' it was simply 'up in the air' in the words of a popular phrase. I was promptly informed in the words of Tennyson that 'mine was not to reason why, mine was but to do or die' and that the Senate would remain in session until a suitable civil service bill was prepared. Bowing to the inevitable the committee proceeded to consider the subject. You have doubtless read from time to time in the pews-papers the minutia connected with the enactment of the New Jersey law and it therefore, will not be necessary for me to burden you with the details of a fight which was finally brought to a successful conclusion.

"Merit and fitness in the public service has come to stay which fact is appreciated by both Democrats and Republicans for both voted for this bill. The old spoils system is passing away and I feel confident that before long the other States of the Union will follow the lead of New York, Massachusetts, Illinois, Wisconsin, Colorado and New Jersey. It is glorious to place the name of patriotic New Jersey on that list of progressixe States—it adds to the fame of men like Governors Stokes and Fort, Senators Colby, Minch, Hillery, Frelinghuysen, and Gebhart, Assemblymen Martin and Pierce to Mr. Goodwin the National Expert, who was ever ready to help, and did give valuable aid, to Mr. Summerwell and to all those who voted for the bill.

"The spoils system of Jackson's day will not work now—it would be ruinous to the country. Imagine the 200,000 positions in the competitive classified civil service of the Federal Government and the payroll of between $175,000,000 and $200,000,000 being worked for all they are forth at political primaries, caucuses and conventions! The growth of the country and the good sense of the American people had doomed the spoils system and it cannot be pilloried in terms too severe for American political life should have no place for office-trading combinations.

"I cannot say too much in approval and admiration of the originators and defenders of civil service laws, such men as Senator Pendleton, the Hon. Grover Cleveland, President Roosevelt, and others too numerous to mention in the short time alloted. I feel certain that the people will fight for and maintain the principle that ability and faithfulness are to be rewarded and that merit and fitness are to be the standards for all time in the public service to the great advantage of all taxpayers and citizens. Civil service laws mean a square deal to the man without a pull.

"Some object to civil service on the ground that it creates as they say, an institution for the 'aged and infirm' and others object because they think the examination system gives the best chance to the young man who has just graduated from school. How are these different views to be harmonized? All civil service rules provide that,

"Examinations are to be practical in their character and shall relate to the matters which fairly test the relative capacity of the persons examined.

"The question of physical ability is always considered as one of the requisites of the applicant.

"An employee is to retain office as long as he is faithful and can properly perform the duties for which he is paid by the taxpayers and the public.

"The system of civil service reform gives an equal opportunity to all without respect to age, but within reasonable limitations.

"I have heard it stated by those occupying positions of influential leadership that civil service reform is not as effective as it should be because some of those appointed under the provisions of civil service laws have been sent to jail. Has there not been much demand for prison sentences for other crimes? The fact that the guilty are punished is evidence of the fact that the laws are being watchfully enforced and besides examinattions cannot always reveal criminal tendencies in the mind of the applicant.

"Provisions are made in civil service laws that no one can be appointed who is a drunkard, who has been guilty of crime, who has been guilty of notoriously disgraceful conduct or who has been previously dismissed from the public service for misconduct or delinquincy. Do the advocates of the 'spoils system' and the bosses always take these things into account when appointments are being made?

"Examinations which are pertinent to the positions to be filled are a great relief to the appointing power and give an equal chance to the thousands of applicants as illustrated in a dispatch to the "Newark Morning Star" of last Christmas Day, showing that Mayor Wittpen of Jersey City had 1800 applications for 93 places. Perhaps, however, this was a Yuletide way of making the Mayor happy!

"Merit and fitness mean good service and good service means economy: Political parties will be stronger without the evils of patronage, and even Tammany seems to survive the ordeal of civil service. Political parties should stand for policies and principles and if an organization cannot survive the operations of a civil service law it is because it has not principles of sufficient strength to appeal to the intelligence of the people.

"Garfield who was sacrificed on the altar of the spoils system, said 'Ideas are the great warriors of the world and a war that has no ideas behind it is simple brutality.' And so it is with politicl parties, if you have no ideas it is simply a case in the words of George William Curtis 'of being very hungry and very thirsty for public office.'

"The merit and fitness tests for public service are fair to all political parties and it will not be necessary for any political parties to be dissatisfied because all the public positions are held by one party and to feel as did Thomas Jefferson when he saw that all the jobs were being held down by the Federalists, and exclaim 'None die and few resign.'

"But our country is constantly growing better and eternal vigilance being the price of liberty, civil service reform means still better government. The people of this country are getting more for their money today than ever before and all because of organizations like the civil service reform league. It is a great thing for New Jersey that one of your members, Dr. Johnson, is to be the President of the New Jersey Civil Service Commission.

"It it not reasonable to assume that the framers of the Constitution of the United States anticipated the oppression which would come from permitting partisanship to control the judges that they therefore wisely arranged in part for civil service regulations to control the Federal Judiciary by declaring in the Constitution—'The Judges, both of the Supreme and Inferior courts, shall hold their offices during good behavior'—to this extent civil service reform had its inception at the birth of the Constitution of the United Staes.

"What would become of a President if it were not for civil service laws? As far back as Jackson's time the pressure for office was a terrible strain upon the President. Hasting's history says, 'Men were there, women were there to sustain the applications of their husbands, fathers, brothers, cousins, and other relatives. The crowd was so turbulent, enormous, and persistent that an order was issued not to admit any persons to any of the departments until a late hour in the day.' If this was the situation at a time in the country's history when it was not possible to reach Washington by modern railroad methods and when parlor cars were unknown, what would it be now? Repeal the civil service laws and what would be the result today?

"The advance and corrections made in the civil service are some of the indications—yes, evidence, that as a people we are marching onward and upward. A quarter of our population is now living under the new regime.

"A free press is the lighthouse of our liberties. I feel that it is largely due to their vigilance that much of our progress has been secured. The press too has advanced in its style and tone and is a credit to the American people. Our leading journals today are the pride of the American people for it is through their watchfulness that the 'lid' is being held down securely in a great many places. I believe that our country will continue to advance and that our institutions will continue to be as they have been in the past, an inspiration to the world.

"The San Francisco earthquake put the citizens of that place on a common footing in a single moment—rich and poor stood before that appalling calamity with only an equal chance. Let us not forget that in many other matters we are all on a common footing. It is a pleasure to say that this is recognized by many who endow schools, libraries, colleges and hospitals.

"The future is bright and those who seem to be far apart will, I'm sure, get together for the common good of all.

As a country we will stand united and lead the world.

"As we are welcomed tonight for the first time into this League, we are grateful and delighted, but we understand full well the scriptural admonition 'Let not him that girdeth on his armor boast himself as he that putteth it off.' The first trenches only are taken and we need the assistance of all interested in making this system an ornament to New Jersey laws.

FIRE WRECKS A SCHOOL.

Interior of South Amboy Institution Practically Destroyed by Flames of Unknown Origin.

South Amboy, May 14.—Fire of an unknown origin was discovered yesterday in Public School No. 2, known as Raritan School, and before it could be controlled damage to the extent of $6,000 had ben done. The building is an old one, and has been in use more than twenty-five years.

The brick walls are practically uninjured and it will not take long to repair the interior. The loss covers the interior trimming and fitting of the building and the furniture. There were four rooms in the schol, and for the rest of the present fiscal year the pupils will be cared for in School No. 1, known as Park School.

So far as an investigation by the school and police authorities can determine, the fire smoldered all night, but there is absolutely no clue to its start. The enrolment of the school was about two hundred.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Christian church is making preparations to hold a bazaar the latter part of the month, beginning May 26, including a supper on Wednesday night, May 27, and closing Thursday night with an auction. Booths will be open each night for the sale of fancy articles, fruit and refreshments.

ALBERTA GALLATIN HEADS PLAINFIELD STOCK CO.

Manager Counihan, of the New Plainfield theatre, on Monday evening, May 18, introduces a new policy by presenting his patrons with a stock company of unusual merit. The undertaking is entirely new to our theatregoers but has been a great success in nearly every city of any population when properly equipped. The production of high class plays used only before at $2 a seat to be given by a first class company of New York actors and with special and appropriate scenery and light effects, is at once unique and interesting.

The public will readily see its significance and the pleasure derived during the summer months. The Plainfield company is headed by Miss Alberta Gallatin who is pleasantly remembered here for her excellent performances as the star of "Cousin Kate" and "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall." Miss Gallatin is an actress of marked ability having a charming personality unusual ability and an unlimited experience. She has been a leading lady of Henry Miller, Otis Skinner, and many other well known actors; Ophelia in "Hamlet," Rosilind in "As You Like it," Carmen in "Sapho," "Nell Gwynn," etc.. She has excelled in, and bids fair to become an artistic and social success during her weeks in this city.

Mr. Maurice Wilkinson, the leading man with Robert Mantell, Rosina Proctor Stock of New York, where he played many of the big successes. He has also appeared as leading man in stock companies at Philadelphia, Chicago, Buffalo, etc. He was leading man with Robet. Mantell, Rosina Vokes, Felix Morris, Mrs. Langtry, and for the past fourteen years has devoted himself to stock directing.

Mr. Norman Wendell, a good looking young man who has played many fine engagements, has been secured for the forthcoming engagements, as has Miss Evelyn Ralston, whi is considered one of the daintiest of ingenues. She is remarkably pretty, very vivacious and has just closed a road tour with Miss Viola Allen. Royal Thayer, the comedian of the company, is considered as droll and unctious a comedian as there is on the stage. He has been with many New York productions and will surely become a prime favorite at the theatre here. Miss Margaret Thayer has been engaged as the exponent of character parts. Her range of character is remarkable, and she is past mistress of dialects of all nations. Miss Thayer was for several years a member of the famous Castle Square theatre company of Boston.

LOVE MOCKED AT OBSTACLES.

Twice Denied Marriage Rites in Bayonne Couple Finally Wedded by Recorder.

Bayonne, May 14.—The troubles of Miss Agatha Jacobus and Vincent Williams, who were unable to induce a Polish priest and a justice of the peace to marry them yesterday, because of disapproval of William's socialistic ideas, were ended happily last night, when the couple were married by Recorder Lazarus, in his courtroom.

Miss Jacobus, who left town yesterday, returned last night, and with her sweetheart visited the recorder, who decided they were entitled to thir request for their persistence in the fact of difficulties. With Detective Sergeant Edward Griffin and Councilman Michael O'Keefe as witnesses, he married the couple and gave them his blessing.

Aaron A. Melniker, who is majority leader in Common Council, James H. Dougherty, a lawyer; Chief of Police John Yore, Detective-Sergeant Griffin and the recorder made up a purse and delegated one of their number to purchase a fine bouquet at a florist's shop nearby, which was presented to the bride. The couple departed on a trip to Washington, D. C., after receiving congratulations from the others in the courtroom.

"HOODO" BRIDGE AGAIN CAUSES CONTRACTOR TROUBLE.

The contract for grading the approaches to the Osborn avenue bridge in Westfield is likely to be abandoned by the contractor as a losing proposition. For nineteen years the governing body of Westfield tried to get the railroad to agree to build the bridge. Finally the bridge and abutments were erected two years ago. The bridge contractor claimed he lost money on it. The man who contracted for the abutments narrowly escaped a receivership and while it was being built three men were severely injured on the work. Now George Faulkner, who contracted to grade the approaches, has lost all of his horses, six in number, from a strange disease, and the work stands uncompleted, a wagon never having been driven over it.

Woman Breaks Ground for Building.

Mrs. Lydia H. Burnett, chairman of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Bayonne Hospital, yesterday afternoon turned the first shovelful of earth when ground was broken for a $40,000 addition to the hospital. She was cheered by the spectators, who included city and hospital officials.

Burglars Carry off Heavy Safe.

MONTCLAIR AUTOISTS PLAN A NOVEL CARNIVAL.

Arrangements are being completed for the Montclair Automobile Carnival to be held June 13, 3 to 9 o'clock, for the benefit of the gymnasium fund of Pilgrim church, the New England Society; district nurse fund and Y. M. C. A. circuit of about five miles has been selected, between Llewellyn and Wathchung, embracing many of the most attractive avenues and estates in Montclair. Five of the latter will be decorated to represent cities and a number of others will fly American flags. At night all will be handsomely illuminated with Japanese lanterns.

It is proposed to carry several thousand passengers around this course in automobiles, charging fifty cents for the round trip. The cars will stop at each of the five stations and change passengers, as sufficient attractions will be furnished at each to make a visit worth while. About 125 cars will be required to carry out this program, each carrying a Carnival number for identification. The out of town owners will be entertained at dinner at the Montclair Club, at 6 o'clock in the evening; chauffeurs elsewhere at the same time. Further particulars can be obtained from Charles C. West, 100 Upper Mountain avenue; William G. Frost, 80 Upper Mountain avenue, Montclair, and Emerson Brooks, manager, 2 Clinton avenue and 21 Division street, Newark.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning May 17, 1903.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Being a Christian—II. At home and in school.—I Chron. xlii, 12-14. Isa. liv, 13. (Union meeting with the Juniors.)

In the subject of the home and the school we probably come more directly in touch with the lives of Endeavorers, especially the Junior Endeavorers, than in the discussion of any other practical topic. The duties of their lives revolve very largely around the home life and the school life, and here their characters are being formed for the future for contact with a larger world, where they will not be surrounded by the prayers of parents and the instruction of teachers. It is the formative period of life, and no period is more important, for few characters change after they have been definitely formed.

1. Being a Christian in the home. This subject needs to be discussed more than it usually is. In no place should our religion manifest itself to better advantage than in the home. A real Christian home is the sweetest foretaste of heaven to be found upon earth. God in the home is one of its greatest blessings. When the ark of God was in the household of Obed-edom, God blessed his house because it was there. In the home where God dwells the family altar is erected and the spirit of Christ prevails; there the blessing of God abides in large, rich measure. But do we always manifest the Christian spirit in the home in our relations with those nearest and dearest to us? Sad to say, all Christians do not. They can put forth a fair front before the world or before their friends, but when at home they feel at liberty to give free reign to their complaints, murmurings and even to anger. How polite we are to strangers and how often impolite to the members of our own family! We carry flowers to the sick stranger and none to the sick at home. We speak kind, gentle words to our friends and companions and cross and angry ones to fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters. How many children are disobedient at home who would willingly run an errand for a neighbor! But such should not be the case. We love our dear ones. No doubt about it. What we need to do is to manifest that love not in quarrels and harsh words, but in kindness, in forbearance and in the gentle spirit of the Master.

2. Being a Christian at school. This seems easier of accomplishment, yet is it always so? Are our lessons always prepared? Do we always show proper respect to our teachers? Do we never speak ill of our fellow pupils? Have we never cheated in daily recitations or in examinations by copying from a classmate or by using a help especially prepared for the assistance of those who are dishonorable enough to use them? If we have not refrained from these things, are we Christians at school? Is disrespect for superiors Christian? Is false witness against our schoolmates Christian? Is dishonesty Christian? None of these characteristics makes for a Christian life. We may have given no serious thought to the subject. If not, let us do so now and carry the spirit of Christ into the schoolroom. If so, many a weary teacher's burden will be much lighter and many a school fellow's life will be made sweeter and happier. And this is really one of our missions as Christians—to make happier and better the lives of others.

BIBLE READINGS.

Deut. vi, 6-9; xi, 19; Ex. xx, 12; Gen. xviii, 16-19; vi, 15, 16; Prov. i, 7, 10-19; vi, 20-22; Eccl. xii, 1; Eph. vi, 1-9; Luke xxiv, 13-31; John xiv, 1-3.

A Unique Badge.

The New York union held a state tri-convention lately at Malone, Cortland and Batavia. The motto of the convention was Dr. Clark's epigram, "What must be can be." The badge

NEW YORK STATE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR UNION

Francis E. Clark.

MALONE, CORTLAND, BATAVIA } OCTOBER 21-26 1907

Tribute to Secretary Shaw.

[The following veracious verses were used in introducing Mr. William Shaw, the general secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavorers, at the recent Chicago Christian Endeavor rally. Two great churches filled with 2,300 Endeavorers thoroughly enjoyed them.]

Who is fleet of foot and speech,
Who the hidebound purse can reach,
Who to saints and sinners preach?
William Shaw.

Who can make Endeavor hum,
Who can animate the numb,
Who can re-create the bum?
William Shaw.

Who can root up every weed,
Who can make the poky speed,
Who enjoy a rally "feed?"
William Shaw.

Who shall raise Endeavor means
By these bright Chicago scenes
And go back to Boston beans?
William Shaw.

CHAPTER VII.

Sweet Simplicity.

And so that's how they begun to live the Natural Life, what Van called the "accept-no-imitations" kind. I says "they," but I ought to have said "we" for I was in it. I was in it over head and hands from that time on. I didn't mean to be. When I said I wouldn't emigrate to Horsefoot Ozone and be cook and general roustabout for the Heavenly Twins I was just as certain I meant what I said as a body could be.

"No," says I.

"Yes," says Van.

"How can I leave the Old Home folks?" I says.

"How can you leave us?" he says.

"But you've got James."

"Yes but James hasn't got us."

"But I can't afford to come," says I.

"You can't afford to do anything else," says he. And that's about what it amounted to—I couldn't afford to do nothing else. The wages kept jumping like summer folks' bids at one of them auction sales of "antiques." I seemed to be as valuable as grandmother's busted hair cloth sofa. If I'd hung out long enough I cal'late the Heavenlies would have fixed me so I'd have begun to feel 'twas a crime to die rich. I give in first; I want everybody to understand that.

"All right," says I. "That'll do; I'll come. But I hope you'll pay me in a dark room. I'll be ashamed to look you in the face and take that much money."

They said they was satisfied if I was. I was satisfied, all but my conscience. Made me wish I could swop consciences with Scudder.

Nate's conscience wasn't worrying him any; you can bet on that. I wan'n't around when he made the deal for renting 'em the island, but, from what I heard afterwards, the price would have been high if he'd been selling it to 'em by the pound to scour knives with. He agreed to get bedding for 'em and tin things, and a pig, and crockery, and hens, and groceries, and boards to tinker up the barn with, and anything else that might come in handy. Likewise he was to fetch and carry for 'em between the village and the island; so much to fetch and twice that to carry. And Huldy Ann was to do the washing.

When the Twins told me about it you'd think they'd just pulled through one of them stock "deals" of theirs, and come out on top.

"Isn't it great?" crows Van, happy as a clam at high water. "We've arranged it all. Everything is provided for and will be done."

I could see two things that was going to be done—brown; but I didn't say nothing.

"It's mighty good of Scudder to accommodate us this way," says Hartley. "He's a gem, a rough diamond."

"Scudder," says Van, "is one of Nature's noblemen."

Of course 'twa'n't none of my funeral; I couldn't interfere. But I'm a democrat myself, so the nobility don't appeal to me much, and if Nate Scudder's a diamond I'm glad I can't afford jewelry.

The next day was a busy one for all hands, each in his own particular line. Nate commenced running "accommodation" trains, so to speak, between his house and the village and the head mourner; this kind of work jarred his dignity.

"Look a'-ere, Pratt," says he to me. "'Ow long do you think we're going to stay 'ere?"

"Where?" says I, sliding a trunk and a coal hod off my shoulders, and mopping my forehead with my shirt sleeve.

"Why 'ere, on this 'orrible sand 'eap."

"You want to be careful," says I, "how you call names. This is Ozone Horsefoot island, and it's a branch station of Paradise. Didn't you hear the boss say so?"

"But 'ow long are we going to stay 'ere? 'he says again.

"Well," says I, "when a feller gets to Paradise it's the general idea that he's there for keeps. What are you growling about? Such a nice restful spot, too. Don't you like to be restful?"

He looked at his hands, they was all over blisters from the broom.

"Restful!" he groans. "Good 'eavens!"

"Come, James," says Hartley, loafing around the corner, with his hands in his pockets. "Get a move on. We must have this house in order by tonight."

The Twins was awful busy, too. They done the heavy superintending. Hartley superintended the house and piazza and Van Brunt bossed the unloading and trucking of the dunnage from the dory. As for me, I was the truck. After the first day was over I could see that all the natural living I'd done in my time wa'n't the real thing at all. Not a circumstance to it.

I carted dunnage all the forenoon. Then I cooked dinner and washed dishes. James was going to help me wipe 'em, but Van's clothes had got wet when he was adrift in the Dora Bassett and they had to be pressed. So I wiped and cleaned up and carted more dunnage, including stove pipe and blankets and flour and quilts and nails and pork and pillows and a rake and sugar, and the land knows what. Then I cooked supper. And how them Paradise tenants did eat!

"By gad, you know!" busts out Van Brunt, with his mouth full; "this is what we've been looking for, Martin. This is getting back to nature."

Hartley grunted, being too busy with a fried mackerel to talk with comfort. But it was easy to see he was satisfied.

They went on, bragging about how good it was to cut loose from the fight and worry of the Street. At last, according to Van, they realized that life was worth living.

"No more speculation for me," he says, joyful. "No more fretting about margins. I don't give a continental if the bottom drops out of the market and carries the sides with it. I hereby solemnly swear for the fifth time never to buy another share of stock."

Then he reaches after another half-acre slab of my johnny-cake.

Lord James was upstairs in the sleeping vaults sorting out bed clothes. The sheets and blankets and things was more or less mixed up with the hardware and groceries. I was out in the kitchen getting ready a second relay of mackerel. The dining room door was open, so I could see and hear everything.

"By the way, Martin," says Van, buttering the johnny-cake, "how did Agnes look? Well?"

"Yes," says Hartley, short.

"She must have been surprised to see you. Did you tell her we were naturalized citizens, or on the road to it?"

"No."

"No? Why not? She probably thinks that we're down here organizing another syndicate. For a girl whose mother is of the world worldly, Agnes has developed queer ideas. I suppose I ought to go over and see her," he went on. "You said she had another girl with her. Who it is?"

"Margaret Talford."

"Talford—Talford? One of the Newport Talfords? Oh, I know. Pretty little girl, dark hair and brown eyes, and—and a way with her?"

"I guess so. Very likely. I haven't seen her."

Van seemed to be thinking. "I'll go over to-morrow," he says.

Then he commenced to whoop for more mackerel and 'twas time for me to load up the platter I thought I'd cooked supper enough for six men, but when the Twins got through I had to fry another ration for me and Lord James. Eat! I never see such sharks in my life.

When they'd finished everything on the table, except the knives and forks and the dishes, the Heavenlies went outside to smoke cigars and promenade up and down the beach. His lordship and I set down to have a bite ourselves.

"Say," says I, "that Page girl is a good looker, ain't she?"

He was horrified, same as he always was when you mentioned the New York big bugs without getting up and bowing.

"Miss Page," says he, "is a member of one of our first families."

"Want to know," says I. "First in what?"

"First in everything," he says. "Her father was one of our oldest residents."

"So?" says I. "Oldest inhabitant, hey? I suppose he could remember way back afore the town hall was built, and about the hard winter of '38, and how his ma's cousin used to do chores for George Washington."

I knew pretty well what he meant, but, you see, I liked to stir him up. He was such an innocent critter; always swallowed hook, line and sinker. It done me good to see him stare at me after I said things like this.

All he said now though was "'Orrors!"

"How about your boss, this Van Brunt?" says I. "He's another first rater, hey?"

The Van Brunts was even more "first families" than the Pages, so the valet said. They'd been there ever since New York was built. 'Twas their ancestors that got up the first barn-raising, or words to that effect.

"And Hartley?" says I.

That was different. The Hartleys was another breed of cats. Martin's dad was born in Chicago or somewheres outside of New York. He'd repented of it, of course, and tried to live it down, but he never had been quite the big apples on the top layer, like the Van Brunts. He was dead now, old man Hartley was; been dead three or four years.

"How about ma?" says I.

She was dead, too; died a year or more ago. Martin was an orphan.

And then I cal'lated it was about time to heave out the question that I'd been leading up to all along.

"What made the Page girl cut loose from him and take up with Van?" I says. "She don't look like the kind that would be too hard on a chap just because his dad made the mistake of being born out of township limits."

Lord James fidgeted some over that. First he said he didn't know.

"Well," says I, "let's guess then. Guessing's a good Yankee trick and you'd ought to have picked it up by this time. You guess first."

He didn't want to guess, but I kept at him, throwing out all sorts of foolish maybes and perhapses. Finally he got tired of saying "No."

"Oh, I don't know," says he. "I 'eard as 'ow 'twas because 'e was too mercenary. 'E was an awful chap in the Street after 'is old man died. 'E was there night and day. 'Ardly came 'ome at all."

"Humph!" says I. "I'd never suspicioned it to look at him. Wa'n't he doing well at his job?"

Lord James said it wa'n't that. Said he was doing mighty well. Folks was calling him a "born financier" and all sorts of names.

"So?" says I. "Then I don't see that Miss Page had any complaints. 'Tain't usual for a young woman to kick because her steady company is making too much money. There's something else. Out with it. I'll keep my mouth shut."

So then he told me a little—much as he knew, I guess likely. Seems that he was acquainted with the feller they call the butler—sort of a steward, I judged he was—over at the Page girl's house. And this butler was sweet on the "maid"—the young woman valet who took care of Agnes' duds and spare rigging. And one night this maid happened to be in the "conservatory"—which I presumed likely was the high-toned name for the preserve closet—and Miss Page and Hartley was in the setting room. And Agnes was laying into Martin for staying downtown and neglecting her.

The maid said she could hear only part of the talk, but 'twas more than average sharp and vinegary. Agnes told Martin he was getting more mercenary every day he lived. That all he thought of was the office and making money. She detested a mercenary, hard, money-grasping man. Said money-loving was the worst vice there was, and she thanked God she had none of it, meaning vice, of course—she had money enough to sink a ship.

Then Martin he speaks up proud and short and says he has been working hard and had been trying to make money. Said he had a good reason for it, and some day he would tell her what it was. She said he could tell her now or hang his May-baskets on somebody else's door—or words to that effect. He says "Very well," and she says something else, but the maid didn't hear it because just then old lady Page come in and give her her walking papers for listening.

"And so," says Lord James, "the engagement was broke off. And a good thing, too, I say. W'at's the use of 'er lowering 'erself to marry a man whose father got 'is money in trade?"

"How did Van's dad get his money?" I asks.

THESPIANS AT THE GAME

Miss Alberta Gallatin and Her Company See N. P. H. S. Defeated by P.H.S.

SHE REWARDS THE WINNERS.

With the score 12 to 10 in favor of the North Plainfield High School team in the last half of the ninth inning, the Plainfield High School boys went in and turned the tables, winning the game by a score of 13 to 12, at Crescent Oval, yesterday afternoon. It had previously been announced that the winning team would be allowed to occupy all the boxes at the New Plainfield theatre, Monday night, when Miss Alberta Gallatin and her company will open here. Miss Gallatin and her company occupied seats in the grand stand at the oval and divided their applause between the two teams, afterwards congratulating the winners.

When P. H. S. went to the bat for the last time, most of the crowd believed that the borough boys had the game cinched and they began to leave the grounds. Day pitched a remarkably good game and every member of the team played steady ball. He had retired two men, after two men had reached bases, one at first and the other on second, and Doane the next man up had two strikes on him, when he drove the ball at the pitcher.

Day lost no time in throwing it, but unfortunately the ball went a foot over the first baseman's head and was lost in the tall grass. In the meantime Murphey and Snyder, who were on the bases scampered home and by clever work Doane reached the "rubber" with the winning tally. The crowd flocked over the diamond and confused the borough boys to such an extent that they did not know where to throw the ball.

North Plainfield was considerably crippled by the absence of Smith, their regular pitcher, and Overton. For P. H. S. Doane, Dodwell and Dey were the star performers, while Percy Bailey and Conroy were the brilliant stars for N. P. H. S. Several times the city boys had men on bases, but they lacked the necessary hit to bring them home. Thes core:

BODY OF WELL-DRESSED WOMAN FOUND IN RIVER.

Camden, May 14.—The body of a young, well-dressed woman was picked up by a dredger in the Delaware River yesterday. The head had been sticking in the mud. Beyond the clothing there is nothing to identify the body. The woman appears to have been about twenty-five years old.

The body had been in the water about three days. It was clothed in a plaid tailor-made skirt and jacket, long black gloves, high-heeled patent leather shoes and a black silk underskirt. On an upper set of artificial teeth was one of gold.

tious work. In the course of the steps, a sudden halt is called for a striking posture while Miss Elsie Goddard executes a solo part. She is the acme of grace in the intricate movements and there is something delightful about the "tinkle, tinkle" of tiny bells on her costume as she glides about. The dance received one of the most enthusiastic encores of the evening.

Mrs. Lemuel W. Serrell, who contributed the feature solo, "The Sun," at the opening, gave way last night to Miss Florence Stevens, who appeared in a caprice. She is an adept in this dance and was frequently applauded. The lighting effects while the dance proceeds adds greatly to the effect. The Rustic, the Swiss, the Tarentella, the Marsovian and the Steeplechase dances, all of which were on Tuesday night, again scored heavily. In the Steeplechase, Miss Annie G. Fisk gives a hunting solo that will remain as one of the best things in the Kirmess.

New Year's dance—Mrs. Henry L. Hall, chaperone, assisted by Miss May Faber; the Misses Anna Garrigues, Marion Hall, Frances Hyde, Helen Moody, Gabriel McQuaide, Helen Stephens, Eudora Sullivant, Alice Titus, Catherine Sullivant, Alice Wharton, Seline Zinkeisen.

THE FORUM.

A. Kane's Proclamation.

Editor, The Daily Press:

I will not join any lumber association, as a well-known lumber representative has stated that I was a contractor and they would not buy of drummers, on account of selling me new lumber when I was asked by the drummer and other dealers why I wouldn't my answer was that I had cut the prices on new lumber and my profits suited me. I can get all the lumber I want and I will not be connected with any such association. I am no more a contractor than any other lumber dealer in this city. I build houses and so do the others. I am glad to know that they feel the effects of a second-hand yard.

FIRE AT KENILWORTH CAUSES $20,000 LOSS.

Kenilworth, May 14.—The galvanizing plant of the American Circular Loom Company, was destroyed by fire early Tuesday evening. The building, a large one-story wooden structure, and filled with insulating conduits for electric wires, burned to the ground. The loss is estimated at between $15,000 and $20,000. An automobile left in the building was also destroyed. Just how the fire started is a mystery. The blaze illuminated the heavens for many miles around. Only the factory fire department fought the flames. The main plant escaped injury and the fire will not cause a lay-off. Work will be started immediately to clear up the ruins with a view to rebuilding.

The blaze was a spectacular one, and attracted many automobile parties. Great clouds of dense smoke ascended from the burning building. The flames were noticed by residents of the southeastern section of Westfield, and an alarm was turned in for the Westfield firemen, who ran as far as Garwood, and when they learned where the fire was turned back.

District Court Cases.

There was as mall list of cases at the weekly session of the district court, this morning, and they were adjourned for one week. Those cited were as follows: Joseph Kingston against the Union County Board of Freeholders on contract; John Galloway against William Bohl, in tort. Judgment was given the plaintiff in the case of Mrs. Rowley, of New York, against William A. Shoemaker, for a $200 loan.

BETTING AT RACE TRACK

Prominent Bookmakers Say You Can't Beat the Races at Any Time.

BETTOR'S CHANCE IS SLIM.

May Win for a Time Through Sheer Luck, but Will Be Loser in the Long Run—Track Owners Sure Winners.

So eminent an authority as Bookmaker Sol Lichtenstein says you can't beat the races.

He ought to know, for in his twenty years as a bookmaker, a plunger and a general all around votary of the great game of chance he has been in at the financial death of thousands and thousands of would be "Pittsburg Phils." When questioned recently as to what chance the public had to beat the races, he said:

"Well, to begin with, there never lived a man who could beat the races year in and year out on what he calls handicaps, paddock information and betting ring 'angels.' Get the very best information under these heads and then boil it down and utilize the net compound. What would it lead to? You may beat them today, but you would lose tomorrow. The men who make large incomes in a systematic way on the turf must have some extraordinary advantage over the game. They are generally the dealers and the public the players. Then, again, the public is so wise as to form and prices nowadays and the paddock factions 'cook up' so much that the rank and file of bettors are completely lost in the muddle.

"They have so much chance as a a rabbit would enjoy with a boa constrictor. My advice to the average man is to give up any idea of beating the races. It is not in human skill to overcome the uncertainties of a horse race so that playing the races may be made a settled and definite business. Yes; bookmaking is the better end of the proposition, and it is a fine, lucrative trade until the layer commences to gamble. The bookmaker today, as he always was and always should be, a commission merchant. He should handle the money of the different betting factions, depending upon his trading of that money in the open market for his revenue. Let the owners gamble. The bookmaker should never do so himself.

"The dollar which is hardest earned is the one wormed out of the betting ring. When you hear of a man saying he purposes beating the races put him down as a fool. The turf and its betting are nothing more than sources of pleasure. The track owners are the serious factors in the thing, for they are the real money makers. They get it all eventually."

ST. JOHN'S LODGE, F. & A. M. NOW 147 YEARS OLD.

St. John's Lodge, No. 1, F. and A. M., of Newark, the oldest Masonic organization in this State, last night celebrated the 147th anniversary of its institution. It so happened that the night for the regular communication fell on the same day of the month as that of the organization of the lodge.

The Rev. Louis Shreve Osborne, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, Newark, one of the chaplains of the lodge, and other prominent Masons addressed last night's communication. It was recalled that from a little handful of men who met on May 13, 1761, and under a charter granted by the Grand Lodge of New York instituted a lodge, the membership had increased to about 400, and the influence and fame of old St. John's had spread over a wide territory.

SWEDISH SECT REJOICES

Rev. Theodore Englund and Rev. O. G. Norseen Speak at Anniversary Services.

REV. GOODRICH ALSO TALKS.

Musical Program a Feature of Celebration, Which Continues for Several Nights.

The tenth anniversary celebration of the Swedish Pilgrim church began last night and will continue until Sunday night in the church on West Sixth street. Last night there was an anniversary festival. The attendance was large and an interesting program was rendered. A historical sketch was read by the pastor, Rev. Theodore Englund, and Rev. O. G.

Rev. Theodore Englund.

Norseen, of Worcester, Mass., who was one of the first pastors of the church, delivered the anniversary address, recalling many interesting incidents in the early days of the Swedish mission here.

Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, also spoke congratulating the members upon the success attained. There was also a greeting from the Congregational church and a contribution for the Swedish church. There were greetings from the first pastor of the church, Rev. O. G. Tinglof, of Sweden, and from Rev. C. G. Ellstrom, of Brooklyn, who with Rev. O. G. Norseen, started the Swedish mission here ten years ago this spring.

Rev. L. J. Lindholm, of Woodstock, Conn., also a former pastor, sent a letter of congratulation. Rev. C. G. Ellstrom is expected to be present at the services on Sunday. When he began preaching here he found only a few Swedish people who would come to hear him and now there are about two hundred people in the congregation. It is largely due to the efforts of Rev. O. G. Norseen that the congregation now owns a house of worship and church property valued at $5,000. Mr. Norseen was greatly aided in his work by Rev. C. L. Goodrich and found the benevolent people of Plainfield ready to help them financially. Mr. Ellstrom said that it was a wonder to him when he compared the early days with those of the present of the Swedish work here. He said the members and friends should be thankful first of all to God, who has led them to victory and also to the good people of Plainfield who have so greatly aided them in their work during the past years.

During the evening there was a musical program, Thure Johnson, a baritone of New York, and the Young People's Orchestra taking part. A special anniversary offering was received in which many outside of the church contributed. The festivities will be continued over Sunday. There will be services every night at 8 o'clock and three services on Sunday, including interesting addresses. Gospel sermons and special music. A cordial invitation is extended to all Scandinavian people to attend.

K. R. C. Entertained.

The K. R. C., a social organization in the West End, held a business meeting at the home of Morris Hunter on West Fourth street, last night, followed by an informal social time. The attendance was small on account of the weather, those present being W. Morris Hunter, Frank M. Rimmer, Allen Sinclair Snyder, Donald C. Mortimer, Peter C. Sweeney, Jas. S. Kenny and Robert L. M'GINNISS' PAL CAUGHT

HELD ON LOCAL COMPLAINT.

Will Be Brought to Plainfield as Soon as Necessary Extradition Papers Are Signed.

Acting on information furnished them by Chief Kiely after his operations in Plainfield several months ago, the New York police yesterday arrested Charles C. Curtis, the pal of "Kid" McGinness, now serving a year in Trenton prison for his part in check forgeries in this city. Detectives have been on the lookout for him and he was "spotted" by Assistant Superintendent Fowler, of one of the bureaus. He is considered one of the biggest "catches" of recent years.

Chief Kiely was notified of his arrest and immediately had the prisoner identified. The police officer then secured a certified copy of Curtis' indictment by the Union county grand jury and had him remanded pending the arrival of extradition papers. These will be signed at Albany today, after which the prisoner will be brought here.

Curtis' arrest is looked upon as one of great importance and will probably break up a gang of check raisers and forgers that has been operating in this section for the past two years. According to the detectives, Curtis, who has a long record of convictions and sentences, has been the penman for the others. Their plan was to secure the signatures of merchants and copy them to checks made out by themselves, afterward securing a boy to go to the bank and cash them. Another of the gang, Nathan P. Wolf, is serving time in a Massachusetts penitentiary and still another, Benjamin Greenberg, was sentenced in General Sessions, New York, a few days ago.

Curtis came to Plainfield with "Kid" McGinness, alias Charles Browning, alais Charles McCarthy, and selected W. F. Wilson, manager of the grocery store at Front street and Clinton avenue, as their victim. They induced him to write his name through a ruse and this was copied to a check for $90 on the First National Bank. John Galbraith, Jr., a small boy, was hailed on the street and was given twenty-five cents to act as messenger to get it cashed. Curtis and McGinness waiting for him at Third and Liberty streets. The money was paid over without the least suspicion that anything was wrong and emboldened by their success, the pair wrote out another check for $100 the next day. This was given to James Casey and again the money was secured but when he returned to the place where he was to meet the men they had disappeared. This was due to the fact that they had gotten frightened at something. The boy went home crying and after telling his story an older brother believed a crooked deal was being worked and telephoned the police. Detective-Sergeant John Flynn started for Third street and Central avenue, where the pair were to have waited, and just before reaching there, picked up McGinness on suspicion as he was hurrying up Madison avenue. Curtis could not be found and after a night in jail, McGinness made a confession.

Chief Kiely learned from his prisoner that he and Curtis had been operating in Philadelphia, Camden, Pasaic, Newark and New York. The amount of money they had secured inside of several months ran into thousands of dollars, while others in the gang were getting large sums elsewhere. When Curtis was caught yesterday, blank checks for banks in Trenton, Camden and Philadelphia were found in his pockets.

Growler Party Broken Up.

Patrolman Charles Flynn raided a "growler" party in session on the north bank of the race-way off Watchung avenue, yesterday afternoon, and arrested Mike Monohan, Mike Kane and Oscar Waldron. None of the men were intoxicated but social affairs of this kind have annoyed the East Front street flat dwellers overlooking the water course and the police have received numerous complaints. The prisoners were warned to remain away from the tabooed places and promised to do so. In addition, Monohan and Kane declared of their own volition that they would never drink beer or rum again as long as they lived.

Will Give a Spring Tea.

Mrs. John B. Dumont, president of the Needlework Guild, of Plainfield, has issued invitations to a Spring tea to be held at her residence, 503 Stelle avenue, Thursday afternoon, May 28, from 4 to 6 o'clock.

NEGRO KILLED AGED MAN

Coroner's Jury Blames Unknown Colored Man for the Death of John Bussi.

MURDERER STILL AT LARGE.

Both Coroner Hebberman and County Physician Long Conduct the Inquest at Mount Bethel.

The coroner's inquest to inquire into the circumstances of the death of John Bussi at Mount Bethel a week ago Tuesday night, was held all day yesterday. The jury, comprising John C. Cooper, foreman; Martin E. Blazier, Robert Zergeibel, Joel Codington, Adam Sachs and Rudolph Sachs, first met at the Bussi home and took the testimony of Mrs. Bussi, after which it adjourned to the hall at Mount Bethel to examine witnesses. The verdict returned at the conclusion of the taking of testimony was that of "murder caused by blows on the head dealt by an unknown negro."

County Physician W. A. Long, of Somerville, was present and the inquest was in charge of Coroner Joseph P. Hebberman. Dr. Theodore Bebout, of Stirling, who attended Mr. Bussi, was among those examined. Other witnesses heard included Jacob Thum, Mrs. William Mallett, Mrs. Catherine Voorhees, Geo. Zimmerman, Mrs. Nancy Mundy, Chris. Koechlein, George E. Giddes, I. V. Adams, David Codington, Andrew Hayes and John Gregory, all of whom testified to having seen a negro hanging about the place prior to the murderous assault; also Henry Canne, who testified to finding the aged couple in the house the day following the assault.

The description of the murderer as given at the inquest states that he is five feet ten inches in height, smooth face and trifle light. Some say that he wore a cap and others that he wore a hat, while in the opinion of some he carried a bundle and others say he did not.

It was also brought out at the inquest that County Detective Geo. Totten and Martin E. Blazier had tracked the negro from the Bound Brook mountains to the Bussi house, the day before, but there all trace of his was lost. There are now three suspects being held at the county jail in Somerville. It was stated yesterday that Prosecutor John Reger, of Somerville, would appear before the Somerset County Board of Freeholders with a view to persuading the members to supplement the reward of the Warren Township Commitee by an additional amount.

The annual graduation exercises of the Training School for Nurses of Muhlenberg Hospital will be held at the Casino on Thursday night, May 21, at 8 o'clock. They are Miss Missouria Findley Martin, of New York, and Miss Belle Simpson Lewis, of Millington.

The committee from the Board of Governors having charge of the exercises has not yet completed the arrangement, but it is expected that the name of the speaker for the occasion will be announced within a few days. There will be a program of music by an orchestra and the presentation of diplomas and other prizes. Following the graduation there will be a reception for the friends of the hospital and the public will be invited to attend. The reception will be in charge of the Alumni Association of the Training School. It is expected that many of the former graduates will be present.

Takes the Pledge for Life.

Joseph Doyle, of East Third street, was arraigned in the city court, this morning, on his wife's complaint that he came home drunk yesterday and upset the family's tranquility. Doyle owned up to drinking heavily yesterday and on several occasions but asserted he would take the pledge for life if he was given another chance. Sentence was suspended with this understanding and Mrs. Doyle took him home to sign the agreement.

HARTRIDGE SCHOOL GETS THE CASINO

The Hartridge School announces today that it has reached a decision in the matter of its recitation hall for the coming year and that the day school will occupy the property now known as the Casino and located at the corner of West Seventh street and Arlington avenue. The situation is ideal, as it is in the centre of Plainfield and can be reached by trolley from any section of the town.

The new school building will be constructed on the south side of the hall proper and work on it will be begun at once. The hall itself which for the past five years has been used at times by the school for a gymnasium will be retained giving an assembly room of exceptional size and beauty. The class rooms with southern exposure will be bright and sunny and protected from the noises of the street, as will the play grounds, lying between the building and the church. The architect's plans provide two rooms for the kindergarten, eight for the elementary, six for the academic with library, offices, studio, lunch room, dressing rooms and cloaks rooms, a generously exceeding the State requirements for space, light and ventilation. The boys of the fifth, sixth and seventh elementary will occupy separate rooms with a master in charge. There will be an indoor play ground for rainy days and a bowling alley. The building throughout will be constructed with close attention to safety in case of fire. It will be but two stories in height with many convenient exits.

Altogether it seems as if no more desirable location could have been found for the school than this property affords, and the building when completed should be a model of convenience.

In Somerset's Courts.

In the Somerset County Courts yesterday the jury in the case of Joseph Fioretti, an Italian living in the neighborhood of Griggstown, charged with stealing three game cocks from Mrs. Fanny Van Dyke, a neighbor, returned a verdict of guilty. The birds were marked by having their hind toes cut off. That finished the criminal cases, all the others indicted having been either found guilty, or having pleaded that way, with the exception of the case of Joseph Catelli, who is being tried this afternoon. He is charged with violating the liquor laws at Kingston.

MISS BARLOW WEDS ON WEDNESDAY, JUNE 3

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. William Barlow, of Prospect place, the borough, for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Sophronia Pierce Barlow, to Edward Humphrey Hobbie, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Hobbie, of Watchung avenue. The event will take place Wednesday evening, June 3, at the home of the bride's parents, but owing to the recent death of the bride's grandfather, only the intimate friends of the couple have been invited.

Yesterday afternoon, Miss May Murray, of West Fourth street, gave a heart party and kitchen shower for the bride-elect, there being about thirty guests. After the game of hearts it was announced that Miss Katharine Hartshorn had won first prize, Miss Norma Northrop second and Mrs. A. B. Laing third. Refreshments were served during a social hour.

Bridge Work About Completed.

Work has been started building the new railroad bridge at Grant avenue, this being the last one of several replacing the old structures. It is expected that within the next two weeks all of the bridge work will be completed in the city. The improvement together with other changes made here during the past year represent an expenditure of about a half million dollars.

Gift of Marble Tablet.

St. Stephen's church has received a gift of a marble tablet, to be placed in the wall of the front entrance hall, from John E. Townsend, it being his own handiwork. It declares the name of the house by which it was blessed by the Bishop and the date, the inscription being as follows: "S. Stephen's Parish House, All Saints Day, 1906. Arthur Searing Peck, rector."

A May Tea.

Invitations have been sent out by the Woman's Guild of the Church of the Holy Cross, for a tea to be given at the residence of Mrs. John Oscar Stevens, 140 Clinton avenue, on Tuesday, May 19th, from four to seven o'clock. A silver offering will be received at the door.

ANOTHER BIG AUDIENCE

Attendance at the Kirmess Packs Theatre Despite Unfavorable Weather.

THE RAINBOW DANCE APPEARS.

It the Last One to Be Included In the Program and Creates Enthusiasm.

Another entertaining program that included the introduction of the Rainbow dance, marked the third performance of the Kirmess at the New Plainfield theatre last night. The attendance was again of the S. R. O. variety despite the scandalous weather and the enthusiasm continued unabated. Everything is now moving with absolute smoothness and the young people taking part have reached the stage where neither footlights or a sea of faces have any terror for them.

The Rustic, Swiss, Steeplechase, Rosebud, and Sailors dances were not given last night but these taken off after Tuseday were put on in their places, together with the new Rainbow. The latter crowds the stage with young girls, the total number in it being thirty-two. They are divided into four colors of eight each, blues, yellows, lavenders and pinks, one group appearing after the other. When all are finally in position, the various hues are blended into a "rainbow" with striking effect. The number closed the program and was heartily encored.

The Pantomime again seemed to strike the fancy of the audience and the New Year's dance produced a hearty laugh. The grotesque costumes are absolutely a "scream" and the way the young Misses enter and then reverse is a really clever bit of work. The Dutch "kiddies" came back last night after a rest and the dance moved splendidly. The boys and girls step about in their wooden shoes as though they had worn them all their life and they seemed to enjoy every moment they were on the stage.

A solo that is attracting much attention is the dance given by Miss Helen Moody in connection with the Indian Braves number. She glides about with the lithe movements of the Indian maid in song and story and her gestures are in accord. The number is made especially striking by its picturesqueness, the "braves" reclining at full length all the while.

Frequent applause greeted the Japanese dancers as they went through their turn and they are now looked upon as among the most adept of all. The characteristic little steps are very hard but the young women taking part seem to have no

THE CANDIDACY OF EX-GOVERNOR MURPHY.

Washington, May 15.—President Roosevelt is not at all pleased with Governor Fort's announcement that he was not a candidate for Vice-President. While it has not been much talked of by the President and his friends, it has been an open secret here that for the last two months the President of the Taft boomers generally have felt very friendly disposed toward the idea of having New Jersey's Governor for second place on the ticket.

After dining at the White House Tuesday night, Governor Fort told friends that the President had raked him over the coals for taking himself out of the race.

With the announcement of Governor Hughes, of New York, that he cannot be considered as available for the Vice-Presidency nomination, and the general assumption that in the event of Taft's nomination a candidate for Vice-President will be taken from an Eastern State, the Taft men say that had Fort stayed in the fight there would have been little in the way of his nomination.

Whether former Governor Franklin Murphy, of New Jersey, can be boosted into the same place in the affections of the President and the Taft men that Fort occupied, remains to be seen. While New Jersey Republicans seen here are unanimously for the former Governor and present national committeeman from the State, there is little interest being manifested in the Vice-Presidential matter.

Asked about the Vice-Presidency last night, Governor Fort said that he had not heard the subject mentioned at the White House or anywhere else since he had come to Washington.

The three big figures in Washington just now are Governor Hughes, Governor John J. Johnson, of Minnesota, and William J. Bryan. Johnson, especially, is attracting much attention, as heretofore he has been practically unknown outside his own State. On the street and in the hotels he is constantly surrounded by handshakers and interviewers. And he has made a good impression. Most of the Governors present wear silk hats, Prince Albert coats and white vests. Johnson, a tall straight, homely man, who looks like his pictures, only more so, wears a green business sack suit, a green necktie and a soft hat. His movements are quick and aggressive, and his general appearance is that of an active, up-to-date business man.

THINK DROWNED MAN KILLED SELF, THEY SAY.

Police Captain O'Leary and J. S. Stiner, the morgue-keeper at Elizabethport, say that they believe that the unidentified man whose body was found Wednesday afternoon in Staten Island Sound at the foot of Pine street, Elizabethport, committed suicide. There was a rope fastened tightly around his feet and made fast at the ankles. There were hanging from the rope a couple of ship irons and also a flatiron which weighed altogether about sixty pounds.

The body was unrecognizable, owing to the length of time it had been in the water, supposedly three months. It was removed to Stiner's morgue at Elizabethport.

A pair of gloves were on the dead man's hands, which would indicate that the body had been in the water since last winter. The body was found by a boatman on barge No. 15 of the New Haven Railroad, who said that it looked like that of a riverman by the dress.

There are no marks of violence discernible and it is believed that if the man was murdered he must have been first drugged, then tied, weighted and thrown overboard.

There was a report down town that about three months ago, a deck hand on a barge that was tied up at one of the docks near the spot where the body was found, had mysteriously disappeared.

Making Feathers.

Few women who wear ostrich feathers in their hats know how they are made or that they are made at all.

Most folks believe that the beautiful plumes, like Topsy, "just grow."

Well, they do. But before they assume anything like the beautiful forms and colorings they take on before they are put on hats, they must undergo processes and manipulation that will be a revelation to most people—and an education.

We are going to show all phases of feather making in our Millinery Store this week, and for this purpose we have set up a full-fledged feather factory wherein we will show just how the feathers are brought to such beauty and perfection.

Washing, dyeing, shading, drying, parrying, sewing and curling will all be done right here in the store.

Jerome D. Travers, the National champion, and a number of other local golfers are in Philadelphia this week to compete in the three-day tournament beginning yesterday for the Lynnewood cup on the links of the Huntingdon Valley Golf Club.

Miss Julia R. Mix, who is Captain of the women's golf team of the Englewood Golf Club, has arranged with the other members of the committee, Mrs. S. V. Beckwith, Mrs. Frank Enos, Mrs. B. F. Reimmund and Mrs. E. F. Sanford, a long series of competitions for the women members this season. The first match play round for the Mackey cup will be played on Wednesday in addition to a handicap for a prize presented by Mrs. Frank Enos. The women's club championship will start June 23.

The East Jersey Golf League, which will start its series of competitions tomorrow at the Canoe Brook Country Club, Summit, will hold its annual championship on October 2 and 3, probably on the Deal Beach links. The annual Spring tournament will be played on June 19 and 20 at the Forest Hill Club near Newark.

Tomorrow the golfing members of the New York Stock Exchange will hold their sixteenth annual golfing tournament at the grounds of the Knollwood Country Club. The tournament is to be handicap, with first, second and third prizes for the lowest net scores and a gold medal for the lowest gross score.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

William A. Brady will probably be in this city to witness the presentation of "Divorcons" at the New Plainfield theatre Memorial Day, afternoon and night. Sardou's comedy, for its brilliancy, was selected by Grace George, who desired to appear in it for a two weeks' engagement in New York early last spring. New Yorkers liked the piece so well that the two weeks lengthened into eight, and the play would probably have remained all through the summer except that arrangements had previously been made for her London appearance. English audiences also took most kindly to the revival of the famous French comedy and Miss George achieved as well as a personal triumph far above that ordinarily accorded theatrical stars. In speaking about Miss George's plans, Mr. Brady said: "Grace George will be seen in two plays, one by Clyde Fitch and the other by Jerome K. Jerome, and two revivals, one of which will be 'Much Ado About Nothing.'" Mr. Fitch's play is as yet only a rough scenario, designed to give Miss George a wider range. The Jerome play, "Sylvia of the Letters," is a comedy of character, with the scene in New York. Her other revival will be either "Sheridan Knowles," "The Love Chase," or Mrs. Hannah Cowley's "The Belle's Stratagem." The selection of the former will depend on geting a certain English actress for the part of Widow Green. "Divorcons," the French comedy in which Grace George made such a remarkable success both in New York and in London and which comes to tells the story of a pretty child-wife who complains to her elderly spouse that she has not seen enough of life to judge whether she is getting her just share of happiness or not. She tells him that he has had experience of all sorts of men, women and conditions, and tired of all the really interesting part of existence before he married her. Yet he expects her to show no more concern about all the things than he does. She declares his attitude to be unfair and unreasonable, and frankly confesses that she finds his young cousin, Adhemar, far more romantic and diverting than himself. When the husband brings his wife to task about the too bold attentions of this same cousin, Adhemar, she impudently declares her wish for a divorce, and her intention of uniting with Adhemar. The husband is far too wise to openly oppose the whims of his spoiled child-wife, and pretends to be in hearty sympathy with her wish to marry the cousin. He sets about planning how to grant his wife the coveted divorce, and gives her to Adhemar so frankly and freely that the jealousies of the young wife and the misgivings of the young lover are equally aroused. Finding the positions of the two men suddenly reversed, the wife, Cyprienne, begins to look upon the cousin with the same ennui which she formerly felt for the husband, whereas the romantic possibilities of the husband are greatly enhanced in her eyes, now that she no longer feels herself a permanent part of his life. So rapidly does her new interest in her husband develop, that she is soon planning secret escapades with him, and stealing away to the private room of a little cafe, where she and the husband may dine undisturbed by the intrusion of her now despised Adhemar. In the implications which ensue she comes to understand that "the husband's only fault was in being the husband, whereas the lover's only virtue was in being the lover," and the curtain falls upon the cheery reconciliation of the husband and wife, and the ludicrous discomfort of the foolish young lover.

Clinton Avenue against Elizabeth A. C. at Crescent Oval tomorrow will furnish the fans with a lively game. The county seat boys are exceptionally fast this year and they will be here to win.

The Juniors will play the Scotch Plains team at the later place tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, and will be accompanied by a large crowd of rooters. Go along boys and help the locals boys to win.

"Lou" Wiltse is not getting much work in the box for the Jersey City team. He is in the pink of condition and is capable of pitching regularly and often.

N. P. H. S. and P. H. S. will meet again next Saturday and there will be something doing. The borough boys will have Smith in the box and they declrae that they will take the scalps of the city players.

Spectators at the game between P. H. S. and N. P. H. S. on Crescent Oval Wednesday say that the rooters for the city team overstepped the bounds in their enthusiasm to help their club win by crowding the diamond and thereby preventing the borough boys from properly fielding the ball.

The State Y. M. C. A. League season opens here the same day Ringling Brothers' Circus appears in town, Saturday, May 23, and the association expects to draw a big crowd at the opening contest.

Thus far George Allen has not secured a regular position with any team. He has been playing with the Scotch Plains club and will probably remain there, unless he should receive a better offer from outside.

It is said that "Phil" Smith will pitch for the E. A. C., against Clinton Avenue, tomorrow and if this is true it will be a battle royal, for Randolph has always been anxious to oppose Smith.

GOLF.

The women's club championship will begin at Englewood on June 23 and continue on the three following days. There will be an eighteen-hole medal play qualifying round, the best sixteen to continue on at the match game. Bogie competitions, handicaps and best ball foursomes also appear on the schedule. The tournament committee consists of Miss Julia R. Mix, captain; Mrs. S. Vilas Beckwith, Mrs. Frank Enos, Mrs. B. F. Reinmund and Mrs. E. F. Sanford.

The Eastern Trades Golf Association will hold its annual spring tournament at Fox Hills today. There will be a thirty-six-hole medal play handicap, for which several prizes have been offered, and during the afternoon an approaching and putting competition will also be decided.

Among the men this is an off week in the metropolitan district, but there will be no need for the amateurs to remain idle unless they prefer to take a rest, for tomorrow the annual open tournament of the Huntingdon Valley Country Club, near Philadelphia, will be in progress. Last year this tournament attracted a good entry from this section. Fred Herreshoff, the far-driving Garden City player, and Jerome D. Travers, of Montclair, the national champion, both competed and the former won the chief trophy, known as the Lynwood Hall cup. Travers won it in 1906. It must be

CURTIS BATES' FUNERAL WAS LARGELY ATTENDED.

The funeral of Curtis Bates, of East Sixth street, whose unexpected death at the Hospital of the Good Samaritan, in Portland, Oregon, on Tuesday of last week, was such a shock to his friends in this city, was held yesterday afternoon at his late residence. The service was in charge of Rev. Charles Lyman Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, of which Mr. Bates was a member, and consisted of prayer, scripture selections, the reading of a poem, "He is not dead, he is just away," and a solo, "Lead, Kindly Light," by Elmer E. Runyon. It was largely attended, and the floral tributes were of unusual beauty. The burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Mr. Bates leaves a widow and two sons, Charles Lynn Bates, of Port Arthur, Ontario, and Stanley E Bates, a student in engineering at Columbia. He had lived in this city about four years, and had many warm friends here. He was a member of the Official Board of the Conbenevolent disposition. He was born of fine charaeter, warm heart, and benevolent disposition. Te was born in 1853, in Sauk City, Wisconsin. For more than thirty years he was connected with the book and stationery business; was with the American house of A. W. Faber for a long time, but at the time of his death held a position with the C. R. Gibson Company. He died during a business trip to the Pacific coast, of an unsuspected kidney disease, and his body was accompanied in the long journey across the continent by warm friends with whom he had been associated in business.

Big Entry List.

Judging by the way the entries are being received for the annual exhibit of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club, they will far exceed those of last year. One exhibitor from Pittsburg will bring a string of twenty-five horses to Plainfield. There is some doubt as to whether the Avondale Farm will have a full string of horses here, but it is believed that entries will be sent here to defend the Thomas W. Lawson Challenge cup, won last year by "Lord Burleigh" and "Lord Brook." Reginald C. Vanderbilt has also promised to return.

Episcopal Convocation.

Out of deference to the rector of St. Stephen's church to enable him to enjoy a vacation abroad this summer, Bishop Scarborough has deferred the entertainment of the Convocation until fall. The spring meeting instead, will be held at St. Paul's church, Bound Brook. During the absence of the rector the usual services, with the exception of the midweek evensong, will be maintained.

STEEPLECHASE LEADS IN VOTING CONTEST

Standing of the Vote.

Steeplechase	1830
White Hussars	1463
Marsovian	1290
French Dolls	1159
Pantomime	1028
Sailor's Hornpipe	802
Tarantelle	774
Rustic	771
Harlequin	623
Dutch	475
New Year's	465
Japanese	449
Rainbow	442
Indian Braves	387
Swiss	329
Total	12,390

Politicians who have grown gray in waging campaign battles and corralling ballots for candidates, have been outclassed in strategic moves by the young folks who are striving to win the contest for the most popular dance at the Kirmess. Irresistible smiles from pretty girls and unanswerable arguments by the boys are the chief weapons used in the nightly struggle that is being waged at the New Plainfield theatre to extract the nickle votes from the audiences and the sum total for Muhlenberg is mounting upward by leaps and bounds. The money now in hand from this source is $169.50 and there is doubt but what the $1,000 mark will be passed after this evening's performance.

The Steeplechase dancers still hold the lead although they were not on last night's program. They had lieutenants at work, however, and 100 points were added to their previous figures. The White Hussars jumped from 860 to 1,463 while the Marsovians took a flying leap and changed from eighth position to third. Their vote is now 1,290.

The cute little French dolls continue to hand up money to the tabulators and have 1,159 five cent pieces to their credit. There are only eight of these "daneuses" and it's a good thing for some of the other contestants that they are not more in numbers. The man, or woman, either, who could refuse them a vote or two would put a button on the contribution plate. The pantomime has crept up to 1,028 and the Sailors remain at 802, having been off the boards last night. The Dutch "kiddies" doubled their standing and all the other dances that were included in the program made splendid gains. The Rainbows, who appeared last evening for the first, started off with 442 and the tipsters assert they will be among the leaders by tomorrow.

Mayor Fisk has announced that any dance securing 4,000 votes, equivalent to $200, will be accorded the privilege of endowing a bed for one year at Muhlenberg Hospital and having it named after the number. This is proving a great incentive to the young folks who are devoting their time to the cause so don't say "No," Mr. and Mrs. Audience, no matter how many times you are asked to cast a ballot.

"Vote early and often."

J. T. SPROULL SPEAKS AT ENDEAVOR CONGRESS

The regular bi-monthly meeting of the Congress of the Plainfield Local Christian Endeavor Union was held last night at the Park Avenue Baptist church. Rev. A. E. Finn opened the meeting with prayer. Among the maters of routine business was the adoption of an amendment to the constitution creating the office of assistant secretary. This action was made necessary because of the increase of the work connected with secretary's office.

A vote of thanks was extended to Senator Ernest A. Ackerman for the lecture delivered to the Christian Endeavorers and their friends upon his travels about the world.

State President John T. Sproull, of Arlington, in a brief and interesting address explained in detail the manner of conducting a state convention. Mr. Sproull spoke from a knowledge acquired by many years of experience. He said that the first state convention he attended was in Plainfield.

After the address an informal discussion was held and it was the sentiment of the meeting that the local union extend an invitation to the state committee to hold the convention here in 1909. It was thought best, however, to defer formal action until the mass meeting on May 28. Mr. Sproull will be present at that time.

Announcement was made that the Somerset County Union desires to cooperate with the Plainfield Union in working for the state convention in 1909.

After extending a vote of thanks to Mr. Sproull the meeting adjourned.

DR MILLER ADDRESSES THE COLORED Y. M. C. A.

At the regular monthly business meeting of the colored Y. M. C. A., which was held at Bethel chapel on Tuesday, Dr. S. G. Miller spoke on the Chatauqua idea and the many benefits that our present society would derive by uniting with his and working together under the one name the "Bible Educational Society." The idea was heartily indorsed by many of the members and especially the President Rev. F. S. Tildon, who took up the discussion and said in part: "Inasmuch as the Young Men's Bible Class Association had not met with the desired success he could see no reason why it should hesitate to adopt any measures which would be a help to the young colored men along moral, religious and educational lines."

It was finally decided to adopt the new idea characterized by the name of "Bible Educational Society" and thereby solicit the hearty co-operation of the ladies both young and old. Now that there will be ladies at all of the future meetings it is hoped that the attendance and membership will grow larger and larger each week. There will be another business meeting at Bethel chapel next Tuesday evening at 9 p. m., for the purpose of settling up all the old business and electing officers for the new society. The ladies especially are asked to be present at this meeting.

Among the prize winners at the large bridge party given Wednesday afternoon, by Mrs. George Cronen Savery of Jersey City, were Mrs. David Collins, of Westfield, and Mrs. Hobart Beardsly of Fanwood.

MISS ALBERTA GALLATIN ANNOUNCES REPERTOIRE.

Warren Rogers and Paul Webster, who have been members of Miss Alberta Gallatin's starring companies for years, are members of her troupe which appears for the first time at the New Plainfield theatre on Monday night. Others in her company include Miss Edith Ralston as an exponent of eccentric characters is unique. Her personality is comedy in every look and movement, while Miss Pearson the "Gibson girl," of the organization is a show girl hard to equal; with such an organization Plainfield should weel feel proud.

"The Cowboy and the Lady" will be the opening bill. It was Nat Goodwin's great success. At the New Plainfield it will be played and staged in a perfect manner, and is bound to excite the admiration of all classes of theatregoers. Wm. Gillettes' "Held by the Enemy," Viola Allen's "The Christian," Olga Nethersole's "Carmen," "The Three of Us," "Charleys Aunt," "Nell Gwynn," "Niobe," "The Belle of Richmond," "The Chariay Ball," "In the Bishop's Carriage," and "Aristocracy" are some of the plays that will be presented. A special scenic artist has been engaged, and there is no doubt in the minds of those who have heard the arrangements but what a prosperous and renumerative season is in store for Manager Counihan, Miss Gallatin and their brilliant company.

Two matinees will be given each week Wednesdays and Saturdays, at special prices. Any doubt that might dwell in the minds of theatregoers as to the general excellence of this stock company will quickly be dispelled after they visit its first performance.

A Beautiful Little Actress.

Miss Evelyn Ralston, who was much spoken of while sitting in a box at the Kirmiss last night, is the ingenue of the New Plainfiled Theatre Stock Company, which opens in "The Cowboy and the Lady" next Monday evening, giving Plainfield its first real stock company. Miss Ralston is one of the prettiest of the exponents of young girls on the American stage and Miss Gallatin had some difficulty in securing her services as she was much in demand. Her part in the opening play is that of "Midge" (played in the original production with Mr. Nat Goodwin by Miss Minnie Dupree).

IN THE SPRING

The thoughts of a house-owner naturally turn toward painting. If you are going to paint your house, use

MOORE'S HOUSE COLORS

because it is a strictly pure linseed oil paint and therefore, can be relied upon to give the best satisfaction. When used according to directions, it will cover more surface and cover it better, with less labor, than other paints. These are facts that have been demonstrated right in your own locality, and it will pay you, as it has others, to buy Moore's House Colors this spring from our representative,

In the course of the Rainbow dance, an incident that came near being an accident took place. As a group of girls were swinging about in a circle, the line went too fast for Miss Grace Beeching, who was on the end, and it suddenly assumed a "snap the whip" form. The young woman was hurled headlong and landed with great force on the stage. She quickly regained her feet, however, and was able to contine the dance. She suffered a bruise or two but otherwise was unhurt.

The program for tonight will be as follows: Part 1—Pantomime; Part 2.—Introduction by Amore Pinto; Rustic dance, the Rosebuds dance, the Sailor's Hornpipe, the New Year's dance, the Indian Braves, the Harlequin dance, the Steeplechase, the Swiss dance, the Rainbow dance, solo, "The Sun," Mrs. L. W. Serrell; The White Hussars; voting for the most popular dance; grand march and tableaux.

PARENT-TEACHER ASS'NS

Officers are Chosen at Meetings Held at Two School Houses.

MRS. E. C. GRICE SPEAKS.

R. L. Burns to Make Address Tuesday Night— H. C. Krebs Also Interested.

The first of a series of meetings in the interest of the organization of a parent-teacher association was held yesterday afternoon at the Stillman School, it being attended by more than one hundred mothers and teachers of children in that school. Mrs. E. C. Grice, of Philadelphia, honorary president of the New Jersey State Congress of Mothers and corresponding secretary of the National Congress of Mothers, as well as chairman of the National Committee on Parent-Teacher Association gave a highly interesting talk concerning the objects of the movement.

She explained the purpose to be that of bringing the parents of children in each school in closer relation with the teachers with a view to studying parenthood and bringing the mothers to a greater sense of responsibility in the home care and training of the child. In this way it is believed that the teacher will be aided largely in her efforts to teach children. There was much enthusiasm shown at the meeting and about sixty mothers joined the association.

Mrs. George B. Wean was in charge of the meeting and these officers were elected: President, Mrs. F. T. Ostrom; vice-president, Miss Anna Day, principal of the school; secretary, Mrs. Charles Dubois; treasurer, Mrs. Joseph C. Allen.

A similar meeting was held last night at the Franklin School, which was attended by fully one hundred mothers and fathers of children in that school in addition to the teachers. The association was formed with about sixty members. Mrs. G. Stuart Simmons was in charge and Mrs. Grice again reviewed the objects practically repeating her story of the afternoon. The parents were greatly interested and there are assurances that many more will unite with the association.

These officers were elected: President, Mrs. Stephen H. Voorhees; first vice-president, Miss Noel J. Bullock; second vice-president, Mrs. Arthur E. Crone; secretary, Mrs. Charles L. Langdon; treasurer, Mrs. W. H. P. Veysey.

Mrs. William M. Sandford, Jr., who with several other women has interested themselves in the formation of these associations in the different schools, have arranged for other meetings. This afternoon at 2:30 o'clock the parents and teachers met at the Bryant School, and were addressed by Mrs. Alexander Marcy, of Riverton, President of the State Congress of Mothers, after which an organization was formed.

Next Tuesday night a meeting will be held at the High School, at which time Robert L. Burns, assistant superintendent of the Philadelphia Public Schools will make an address and the following Thursday afternoon a meeting will be held at the Irving School at 3 o'clock, to be addressed by H. C. Krebs, superintendent of the North Plainfield Schools. This will be the last meeting for this year, but in the fall others will be held in the remaining schools and organizations formed. It has not yet been decided what name will be chosen, but upon the completion of the various organizations a general meeting will be held when this and other important things will be determined.

Mrs. John C. Dilts Injured.

Mrs. John C. Dilts, wife of the well-known liveryman at Dunellen, fell down the cellar-stairs at her home on Front street, that place, this morning, receiving painful cuts and bruises about the head and body, with possible internal injuries. She lay at the foot of the stairs in an unconscious condition for nearly a half-hour, and when she regained her senses succeeded in crawling up the stairs to the kitchen, where she called her neighbors for assistance. A physician was summoned and while the woman's condition is not considered serious, she will be detained at home for a long time. Recently, her husband figured in a runaway accident, receiving severe injuries from which he is just recovering.

Absent, Freeholder Swain, 1.

The Director stated that Mr. Daniel B. McGovern, heretofore appointed by the City Council of the city of Elizabeth as a member of this Board, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Freeholder John A. Donahue, had filed his oath of office as required by law.

Freeholder Pierson thereupon moved that Freeholder McGovern be permitted to take his seat which was so ordered and Freeholder McGovern thereupon took his seat.

Director King stated the object of the meeting to be to consider plans and specifications as submitted by County Engineer Bauer for the improvement of North Broad street in the city of Elizabeth and the township of Union, and of West Grand street in the city of Elizabeth, and First avenue in the borough of Roselle, under the State aid act, and also to act on the report of the committee of the whole on the Terrill road.

It was ordered that the report of the committee of the whole on the Terrill road be first taken up.

Several addresses in favor of said road were made by citizens of Plainfield and Fanwood, including the Honorable James E. Martine and Judge W. A. Coddington.

The following communication, James T. McMurray, City Clerk, Plainfield, and certified to by him, was presented and read:

Whereas, Terrill road is on the boundary line between the city of Plainfield, the borough of Fanwood and the township of Fanwood, and although a very important road, it has never been macadamized, and

Whereas, it is believed that the adoption and improvement of this road as a county road would be a great public benefit.

Resolved, that the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union county be and they are hereby requested to adopt Terrill road as a county road and cause said road to be macadamized under the provisions of the State aid act.

Resolved, that a certified copy of this resolution be sent by the clerk to the Board of Chosen Freeholders.

Approved by the Mayor Tpril 6, 1908.

CHARLES J. FISK,
Mayor.

Attest:
J. T. MacMURRAY,
City Clerk.

By Committee of the Whole, in Terrill road.

Whereas, a Committee of the Whole hertofore appointed to inspect the road known as Terrill road, commencing at the bridge over Glen Brook, being the dividing line between the counties of Union and Somerset, and extending southeasterly to Two Bridges, said road being partly within the township of Fanwood, and partly on the dividing line between the township of Fanwood and the city of Plainfield, with a view of permanently improving the same in accordance with the provisions of an act entitled "An Act to provide for thep ermanent improvement of public roads in this State" (Revision of 1905), and the supplements and amendments therto; and the said committee of the whole having inspected said road throughout, and having been advised that it would practically be impossible to have the whole of said road improved under said act during the year 1908; and having been further advised that it will be necessary to have the eastern portion of said road straightened before the same would be acceptable to the State Roard Commissioner; and being of the opinion that it would be desirable and advisable to have the westerly section of said road to wit, beginning at the bridge over Green Brook on Terrill road, being the dividing line between the counties of Union and Somerset and extending southeasterly therefrom along Terrill road to the intersection of South avenue, improved to accordance with the provision of the act aforesaid;

Therefore be it Resolved, by this Board, that that portion of Terrill road, to wit, beginning at the bridge over Green Brook on Terrill road, being the dividing line between the counties of Union and Somerset and extending southeasterly therefrom along Terrill road to the intersection of South avenue, the entire length thereof being upwards of one mile in length and the width thereof throughout being sixty-six feet, be macadamized and improved in accordance with the provisions of an act entitled, "An Act to provide for the permanent improvement of public roads in this State" (Revision of 1905), and the supplements and amendments thereto, and

Be it further Resolved, that upon receipt of the approval of the State Commissioner of Public Roads, the County Road Committee be, and are hereby authorized and directed to cause a survey of sair road, so to be improved, to be made; and plans, cross sections and specifications of the work to be done on the same be prepared; and that the same be submitted to this Board for its approval or rejection; and if approved by this Board, the same then be submitted to the State Commissioner of Public Roads for his approval or rejection, and

Be it further Resolved, that the Clerk of this Board forward to the State Commissioner of Public Roads a copy hereof.

WOMAN SUES FOR $20,000.

Mrs. E. A. Crooper, of Asbury Park, Asks Damages for Case of Mistaken Identity.

Asbury Park, May 15.—As the result of a case of mistaken identity over a year ago, when Police Justice John A. Borden, of this place, mistook Mrs. Edith A. Crooper, proprietor of the Maryland Hotel, for a woman who was wanted by the police for child desertion, papers in an action for $20,000 damages have been served upon Mr. Borden by John A. Howland, special deputy for Sheriff Francis, in a suit brought by the woman.

The mistake that brought about the suit occurred in the main depot in June of last year. Borden was armed with a warrant and a photograph of the woman wanted by the police. Mrs. Crooper so closely resembled the photograph that Borden, in fear that she would escpae him by boarding a train acted accordingly. Prison Superintendent Samuel W. Kirkbride was with Borden at the time.

Goes Insane, Tries Suicide.

New Brunswick, May 15.—Caspar Kibufa, employed at the Whitehead docks, South River, for several years, became suddenly insane yesterday and cut his throat at his boarding-house, using a razor. His brother George had his hand badly cut in securing the razor. George finally overpowered his brother and tied him in bed. Dr. Selover dressed the injured man's wounds. He was placed in a straitjacket and brought in an ambulance to Wells Hospital, in this city. He will recover.

Married but three weeks, Joseph Walaiski, twenty-three years old, of 724 Cedar street, Camden, became involved in a quarrel with one of his wife's relatives and the couple separated. Yesterday he collopsed while at work for the city and several stab wounds were found in the region of his heart. At Cooper Hospital the man said he was stabbed by two colored men, but it was stated later by the police that he had made an effort to kill himself while considering how his married life had been so rudely jarred. He is not in a serious condition.

HEROISM OF JERSEYMEN

Tales of Brave Deeds Performed in the Civil War as Told by Gen. Drake.

SOME PATRIOTIC SENTIMENTS.

"Don't Mind Me, Boys," Said Col. Tucker as He Fell—Many Heroic Deeds.

More than forty-three years have rolled by on the cycle of time since the battle days of the greatest war recorded in history—a war of surpassing importance among all human travail and struggle because of its influence upon the maintenance and growth of popular government throughout the world. In this brief sketch I shall relate strange incidents and tell how some of the bravest and noblest young men representing New Jersey in the field during the great conflict suffered and died that the Nation, blessed above all others, might live—that their deeds and glorious deaths may be a greater inspiration to the present and coming generations than lands covered with harvests, or gold piled to the skies above us.

Colonel Isaac M. Tucker, Second Regiment, when borne, mortally wounded, from the gory field of Gaines's Mill, said with his dying breath: "Don't mind me, boys, but go ahead and give it to them."

Captain Frank S. Knight, Third Regiment, being surrounded, offered to surrender, when a Confederate, with more zeal than humanity, knocked the captain down with the butt of his musket. This so enraged Knight that he drew his revolver and shot the ruffan dead, and in the resulting confusion effected his escape.

Lieutenant Thomas Howell, Third Regiment, after the battle, while the command was forming to cross a bridge on its return to camp, was killed by a nearly spent cannon ball which passed through his body. He was but 17 years old.

A shell exploded in the midst of a squad of five men belonging to the Third New Jersey, killing the whole group.

Mitchell Mulvey, of the Fifteenth Regiment, noted for expertness with a rifle, was the first of that command killed. At the time shots were being exchanged with the Confederate pickets, and Mulvey, exposing himself, was cautioned by his colonel. "Don't ask me to keep back, colonel, when the enemy is in sight. There's good shooting here," saying which he fixed his attention on a Confederate sharpshooter, who fired from behind a tree. Mulvey kept his blazing eyes in that direction, and when, at length, the "Johnny" exposed a portion of his person to fire again, he was felled by Mulvey's unerring shot. At the same instant, however, Mulvey fell back dead, a bullet from another sharpshooter having passed through his head. After sunset, Mulvey was buried in a shallow grave on the hillside, with his blanket as his winding sheet. No monument marks the spot where he lies.

Private James Mangan, of the Fifteenth Regiment, fell at Spottsylvania, riddled with bullets, and a comrade, with a ghastly wound in his leg, lay beside him. He could load his rifle, but was unable to reach his cap pouch. Mangan, weltering in his fast ebbing blood, capped his gun for him, thus enabling him to continue firing until a bullet through his head put a stop to his deadly work. Managan, in his helpless condition was taken prisoner, and shortly after had his right arm amputated, after which he was left on the field ten day and nights without shelter, and with but little to eat or drink. Before he was removed to Libby he secured the arm which had been amputated from his body, and buried it as best he could.

It was on the third day of the battle of Spottsylvania, while Lieutenant-Colonel John Schoonover (still living in Warren county) and Lieutenant Joseph C. Baldwin, his acting adjutant, were sitting side by side, leaning against a transverse and subjected to a heavy artillery fire from the enemy's artillery, that a shell forced its way through the rude fortification, crushing Lieutenant Baldwin's head, killing him instantly. Colonel Schoonover, covered with blood and pieces of his friend's body, although stunned escaped serious injury.

Thomas McBride, of the Eighth Regiment, an orderly for Colonel McAllister, exempt from duty in the ranks, met with a heroic death on the Boynton plank road. He volunteered to carry ammunition to the skirmish line, and while in that advance position, joined a charging party, and when in the act of entering the enemy's works, was stricken down.

"Tell my mother I died for my country," whispered Corporal Joseph H. Frazer, of the Eleventh Regiment, to Colonel McAllister, as his spirit took its flight to a brighter and better world.

First Sergeant Martin Van Gilder, of the Fifteenth Regiment, mortally wounded in the Wilderness, while being borne to the rear, recognizing the chaplain said: "Chaplain, I am going! Tell my wife I die happy!"

On May 9, 1864, a Confederate marksman, posted advantageously in the thick foliage of a convenient tree, killed 27 of the Fifteenth Regiment—one after another. As the regiment was being relieved the death-dealing Confederate caught sight of the colors, and firing, sent the color-bearer, Sergeant Samuel Rabadon, into the presence of his Maker. A few minutes later Major-General Sedgwick ("Uncle John," as all the men of the Sixth Corps affectionately called him) came forward to examine the position and was instantly killed by the same relentles marksman, whose unerring bullet crashed through the general's head.

"Chaplain, I am not afraid to die, for I feel my peace is made with God," exclaimed the mortally wounded William C. E. Gillick, of the Fifteenth Regiment, as he passed to a brighter sphere.

At Mount Jackson a Confederate shell exploded under the horse ridden by Lieutenant-Colonel Alexander, throwing horse and rider into the air. The animal was torn to pices, but the rider came down unhurt, emerging from the great cloud of smoke without a scratch.

While the First Cavalry was in the Shenandoah Valley it was suddenly shelled by the enemy. Among the wounded was Alonson Austin, a mere boy, almost a child in looks, whose thigh had been almost severed at the body. He was removed to the field hospital some distance in the rear. While lying upon the improvised operating table, with his hands grasped loveinly by the chaplain, the lad, with the faint gaspings of a dying man, whispered: "Oh, chaplain, if I could only pray!" "Shall I pray for you?" asked the chaplain. "Oh do." Austin's lips moved as if he were following the words of the petition to the very end. The sponge of chloroform was then applied, and the ghastly work of amputation performed. His mind wandered to the scene of action, and in fitful moments he uttered words as of command. At last, with a feeble motion of his hand, as if waving a flag, he ejaculated: "Star-Spangled Banner," the last words he ever uttered. He was buried in Culpepper, where nature has thrown her pall of richest green over the soil that holds his mortality.

MARSHALL & BALL

Announce A Sale of 990

Men's $16 to $30 Spring Suits at 13.75

Made for This Season's Selling

Here's another Grand Saving Event at the Marshall & Ball Store. This time it's Spring Suits, and it comes just at a time when a lot of men and young men are anticipating a new suit for Decoration Day.

This is truly an extraordinary opportunity to save on a Smart Spring Suit. It is accounted for by the fact that one of the foremost manufacturers of fine clothing in the country was caught with a lot of cancelled orders on his hands. He then made such a ridiculously low price on the entire lot that we were tempted to take them. We stand back of everyone of them to the same extent as garments of our own make.

We have added to this lot many suits of our own make, including our popular London cut for young men, taken from a number of lines in which the sizes were incomplete, making in all 990 suits.

There are models for conservative as well as radical tastes, in all this season's new shades of brown, tan and gray; also blues and blacks. Every garment was made this season to sell at prices ranging from $16 to $30.

This Suit Sale represents a saving that is indeed unusual, particularly when the high character, pronounced style and excellent finish of the garments are taken into consideration.

It won't take long to clean up only 990 suits. Wisdom suggests that you get in line early tomorrow if you want a share of these fat plums.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Former Governor Stokes will leave tomorrow for a trip to California, where he will remain several days.

While fishing in Maurice River, below Pea Landing, yesterday, Harry Camp caught a rock fish weighing twenty-one pounds and five ounces.

While chopping wood yesterday, Michael Cutch twenty-four years old, of 328 Cherry street, Camden, badly cut his foot. He was taken to the Homeopathic Hospital.

A mad dog was shot by E. E. W. Carter, at Glassboro, yesterday, after it had bitten a large number of dogs. The head of the animal was sent to Trenton for analysis.

Prominent members of the F. O. Eagles from New Jersey and Philadelphia attended the annual banquet and eighth anniversary of the Atlantic City organization at the Hotel Islesworth last night.

Upsetting a pan of boiling starch, George E. Stoddard, two years old, of 201 Senate street, Camden, was badly scalded about the face, hands and body yesterday. The little sufferer was taken to the Homeopathic Hospital.

The old Billingsport Hotel, which Jesse M. Thompson had arranged to tear down to make room for improvements, may be preserved. It has been a public house for 200 years and the Gloucester County Historical Society may come into possession of it.

Members of the Exempt Firemen's Association in Paterson last evening expressed their thanks to Senator Hinchcliffe and the assembly delegation from Passaic County for the friendly consideration shown for the vamps during the recent session of the Legislature.

When the support of a ladder gave way, Lee Scott, a painter, of 815 North Second street, Camden, escaped serious injury because a shed and clothesline broke the force of his tumble. After being examined by Dr. Bentley, the painter said he expected to resume work in a few days.

President George E. Layton, of the Business Men's Association of Paterson, has called a meeting for this afternoon for the purpose of disbanding the organization and turning the money, about $150, in the treasury over to the proposed board of trade, which Mayor McBride expects to organize shortly.

In line with the spirit of progression which they have displayed since they organized the Paterson Pharmaceutical Society a few months ago, the drug clerks of the city who belong to the society are making arrangements to issue a monthly periodical which will be devoted to the interests of the profession in that city.

Harry Hall, a young negro of Burlington, made the experiment yesterday of forcing a rusty cartridge into a still more rusty revolver preparatory to a cat-hunting expedition. The shell stuck in the chamber, and Hall hit it with a tackhammer. There was a loud explosion and Hall's mother found him lying unconscious in the doorway with a gaping hole in his forehead, where the cap of the shell had entered. Dr. Blair extracted the jagged piece of brass and says the young cat-hunter may live.

BARRED OUT DR. BUCKLEY.

Didn't Have Ticket to Baltimore Conference and Guard Held Him up.

Rev. Dr. James Munroe Buckley, chairman of the episcopal committee, came very near being excluded from the meeting over which he presided Wednesday afternoon, at Madison Avenue Methodist Episcopal church. Immediately after being elected chairman of the committee on May 6, Dr. Buckley offered a resolution for executive session of the committee. The resolution was passed and cards and badges were issued to the members of the committee. To obtain entrance to the meeting it is necessary to present a card to the outside guard and after entering the committeeman must be identified by two members of the committee who are stationed at the entrance.

Dr. Buckley misplaced his ticket of admission yesterday, and a few minutes before the meeting was due he entered the vestibule and attempted to open the door leading to the church. "Hold on," said the outside guard, "where is your card?" The guard did not know Dr. Buckley and refused to let him enter. For several minutes Dr. Buckley was held at the door, but finally he was permitted to enter after his identification had been vouched for by a dozen delegates.

There will be initiation at the meeting of Plainfield Council, No. 294, Jr. O. U. A. M., Monday night.

YEAR'S RECORD DAY IN STOCKS.

Prices Rise Sharply on Sales of More Than 1,200,000 Shares.

Yesterday was another "million share day" on the New York Stock Exchange, and the total of 1,205,790 shares sold, as recorded by the tape, is the record for this year. Prices went up sharply in the market leaders during the heavy trading, and at the close gains of from 1½ to 4 oints were common.

The advance began with the opening of the market, and in the first few minutes of trading there had been some sharp gains in many of the low-priced stocks. Before noon, additional small advances in the railroad stocks were followed by a lull until Reading advanced under heavy trading. Later the Hill and Harriman stocks shared in the movement.

The total stocks, including American Smelting and Refining and Amalgamated, also shared in the rise.

BULLDOG ATTACKS CHILD.

Tears Her Flesh in Many Places and She May Not Live.

While 7-year-old Annie Heisler, daughter of Frederick Heisler, of Paterson, was passing the car barns in that city yesterday morning a bulldog belonging to Patrick Duffy, night watchman at the barns, sprang on her. The dog tore the child's legs, neck, face, and arms fearfully, before he was beten off.

Annie was carried to the General Hospital, where she did not regain consciousness for three hours. Her condition is critical. The child's father lodged a complaint against the owner of the dog.

DOG IS HIS LEGAL PARTNER.

Real Estate Man Says the Terrier Is the Only Friend He Can Trust.

Frank M. Weiler, of Weiler & Co., Newark, was arrested yesterday in that city on a body execution issued on a judgment obtained against him by Isaac Berger. The "company" part of the firm, although equally liable, was not arrested because he was burying a bone in a near-by yard and could not be found.

Tassels, Weiler's terrier, is a legal member of the firm, being duly registered with the Essex county authorities as a business partner in the real estate firm. Weiler said he was the only sort of a business associate he could trust.

Weiler was arrested in connection with a note given to Berger in payment for some painting done on houses owned by the former. Tassels signed his name to the note, through the senior member of the firm, a rubber stamp specially made for the dog being used. It is expected that before morning the other member of the firm will give himself up at the prison. He was around yesterday afternoon, looking for his partner and friend.

ORGANIZE TO HELP PRINCETON STUDENTS

Students working their way through Princeton University have found the facilities for obtaining employment greatly facilitated by the employment bureau run by the college Y. M. C. A. This bureau not only supplies steady work during term time, but also finds summer work for needy students. At the same time it meets the sudden demands that continually arise in Princeton for active, intelligent workers of one sort or another.

The recent formation of a "business association" to co-operate with the employment bureau will increase still further the oportunities afforded to students working their way through college. One of the most profitable sources of financial assistance is the ownership of an agency at Princeton for firms dealing in men's supplies, such as clothing, hats, shoes, tobacco, etc. Such firms, for instance, send representatives to Princeton every two or three weeks with full lines to display. Orders are taken and the goods are then shipped to the local undergraduate agent, who delivers to the purchaser, draws his commission and also has the chance to secure fresh orders, with further commissions.

The new association is to oversee the distribution of these local agencies, with the idea of eventually controlling their allotment to students who need assistance, thus avoiding the duplication and confusion that have sometimes occurred.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Easter offering at St. Stephen's church amounted to $119.79.

St. Mary's Guild, of St. Stephen's church is planning to give a dramatic entertainment in the parish house soon.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Church of the Heavenly Rest is preparing for a Spring sale to be held this month.

The Raritan Ministerial Association will meet next Monday morning in the chapel of the First Reformed church at Somerville. Ministers from all over Hunterdon, Somerset and Union counties will attend. Hugh B. MacCauley of Trenton will address the association on "Inter-Church Federation in Town and Country."

SONS OF VETERANS IN ANNUAL SESSION.

Montclair was alive yesterday with delegates from many towns all over New Jersey representing the Sons of Veterans and the woman's auxiliary of the same organization. The first named met in Arcanum Hall and the women's society met in Times Hall.

The deliberations yesterday were presided over by Division Commander Harry E. Pennell, of Atlantic City. The following division officers were also present: Senior Vice-Commander Theodore M. Jones, of Montclair; Junior Vice-Commander Charles Schmidt, of West Hoboken; members of division council: J. William Hopper, Paterson; William H. Good, Trenton; Charles P. Ahrens, Hoboken; Division Secretary George H. Bailey, Atlantic City, and Division Treasurer Dahlgren Albertson, Atlantic City. The reports show that there are thirty-one camps in the New Jersey division with 1,388 members, a gain of eight camps and 310 members over last year.

The auxiliary opened its sixth annual session in Times Hall. The following officers were present; Mrs Elizabeth C. Hausen, of Hoboken, president; Mrs. Annie Zimmerman, of Weehawken, secretary; Mrs. Georgianna Werner, of Hoboken, vice-president; Mrs. Annie Hofmeister, of Newark, treasurer; Mrs. Agnes Jones, of Montclair, chief of staff; members of division council, Mrs. Philena M. Pennell, of Atlantic City; Miss Mollie Donaldson, of Paterson; Mrs. Mary Crawford, of Hoboken; Mrs. Nettie Low, chaplan; Mrs. Gertrude Joy, of Montclair, inspector; Mrs. Nellie Mann, M. and I. officer. At the session of the Sons of Veterans yesterday afternoon Ralph C. Sheldon, commander in chief, of Rochester, spoke.

The auxiliary discussed proposed changes in the constitution.

MR. PRATT

By

Joseph C. Lincoln

Author of "Cap'n Eri," "Partners of the Tide," Etc.

Illustrations by T. D. Melvill

Copyright, 1907, A. S. Barnes & Company.

"By inheritance," says he. "Of course Mr. Edward dabbles in shares, but, Lord love you, only for the fun of it."

"How was the inheritance come by in the first place?" says I. He didn't know, but I found out afterwards. Grandpa Van Brunt was an alderman.

The Twins come back into the house then. They come in slapping and jawing. I judged that the mosquitoes was living the Natural Life too. The Heavenlies set down on each side of the fireplace—I had a wood fire going, just for sociableness—and smoked and talked.

By and by Van rummages out that Natural book and spreads it open.

"Martin," says he, "hark to the voice of the oracle. Come in here, skipper, and improve your mind."

But me and his lordship was improving the dishes just then, and, when that was done, he had beds to make and I had bread to mix and fires to lay and wood to chop and a couple of million other chores to do. The Twins read and talked until they got sleepy, which was about half past nine or so; earlier than usual, but neither of 'em had rested well the night afore, I guess. Anyhow, they went upstairs to turn in and I kept on with my work. Lord James turned in too. He had the Lord James had been brought up tender.

Pretty soon I went to the back door to throw out some fish bones and things and then I heard somebody tramping through the sand up to the house. Neighbors are scarcer than snake's finger-nails 'round Horsefoot Ozone and I couldn't think who was coming at this time of night. I ain't a nervous chap, generally speaking, but I remember how old Marcellus had died in this very house all sole alone, and the short hairs at the back of my neck begun to bristle up. I cal'lated if anything would fetch a sot old codger like Marcellus out of his grave, the doings of the Heavenlies was that thing.

But in a minute more the walker got into the light from the door and I could see him. And I was 'most as much surprised as if he had been Marcellus himself. 'Twas Nate Scudder, with his arms full of bundles.

"What in the nation?" says I.

"Hello, Sol," says he. "Where's the folks?"

"Turned in," says I. "What's up?"

He seemed real disappointed. Set the bundles down on the kitchen table and puffed. That sand is hard walking, and nobody knows it better than do.

"Turned in so early, have they?" he says. "That's too bad. I wanted to see 'em."

"Want me to roust 'em out?" I asks.

"No, I guess not. But they're nice folks as ever I see and I've fetched 'em a few presents."

I flopped into a chair. I was getting used to surprises, but Nate's giving anybody a present was the biggest wonder yet. I figured that lunacy was catching and we was all going crazy together.

"Wat's the Use of 'Er Lowering 'Erself to Marry a Man Whose Father Got 'Is Money in Trade?'"

"Yes," says he. "Me and Huldy Ann's been talking it over. They've hired this house and—and—all the rest of it and we want 'em to like it. Don't want 'em to get tired and leave, you see."

I see all right. When the melon's getting ripe that's the time to watch it.

"Yes," he says. "I like them young fellers well's anybody I ever see, and so does Huldy. We got to thinking of 'em over here in this big house and we wanted 'em to feel at home; just as if 'twas home. Now there's nothing like pictures and such on the walls to make a place homey. So Huldy and me has sent 'em these few things to hang up 'round."

He commenced to undo the bundles.

"'Twas Huldy Ann's notion," he went on. "When she bought this place at auction there was the furniture and fixings in it that belonged to Marcellus. Some of 'em we left here, beds and chairs and the like of that, and some we took over to our house. There was more than we needed and these is some we had in the attic."

He'd got the newspapers and strings off by this time and he spread the presents out on the floor. There was a wax wreath from old Mrs. Berry's funeral, in a round case; and a crayon enlargement of a daguerreotype of Marcellus when he was 30 or so; he had a fancy vest on and a choker and a fringed-end necktie, and looked like he was freezing to death fast and knew it. Likewise there was a shell work-basket in a shell frame with about a third of the shells missing; and two silver coffin plates on black velvet; and a worsted motto thing with "What Is Home Without a Mother?" on it.

"There!" says Nate, happy and generous. "We'll give 'em them things, Huldy and me. Leastways they can have 'em to look at while they're here. Have 'em strung around on the setting room walls and it kind of takes off the bare look. Gives 'em something to think about, too, don't it?"

"Yes," says I; "I should think 'twould. I wouldn't think of much else, seems to me."

"Yes," says he. "Well, I hoped they could have 'em to-night afore they went to bed. But you explain about 'em in the morning. Tell 'em they're from me and Huldy. I'll be around after breakfast anyhow to fetch some more things from the store and see if there ain't something else I can do. Good-night."

"Good-night," says I, absent-minded. I couldn't get my mind off them coffin plates.

He kind of hesitated.

"Oh say," he says. "Did you eat all of them mackerel you had? If you didn't, and they're likely to spoil, why, I'll take a couple along home with me. Huldy's dreadful fond of mackerel."

"There ain't but one left," says I, "and—"

"Oh, well," he says; "one'll be enough for us. We're awful small eaters."

So I trotted out the mackerel and he done it up in a piece of the newspaper and went away to his dory. I lugged in the presents and laid 'em away in the old chest of drawers in the dining room. Felt like an undertaker, too, I did, all the time I was doing it. I didn't want the Heavenlies to see them relics till they'd ate a good breakfast—they was too much for an empty stomach. Then I locked up and took the lamp and went to my room.

After I got undressed I opened the window and leaned on the sill and thought. I thought about my new job and what I could see was coming to me in the way of work, and about Lord James and Nate and all. And then I thought of Hartley and that Page girl. Martin didn't act to me like a money-grabber. I couldn't understand it. One thing I was sure of, them two was meant for each other and it seemed to me that they still liked each other. But there was Van Brunt. I liked him too.

Just then a thundering great greenhead bit me on the back of the neck and I slammed down the sash and turned in on my bale of corncobs. Tired! don't talk!

CHAPTER VIII.

Mr. Scudder's Presents.

I was up the next morning about five and pitched in making biscuit and lugging water and so on. Lord James comes poking down after a while. He looked pretty well used up.

"See 'ere, Pratt," says he. "W'at they got in them blooming beds—bricks?"

"Why?" says I. "Was yours hard?"

"'Ard? Upon me word I'm all full of 'oles like a grater. My back is that sore you wouldn't believe it. And w'at makes 'em so noisy?"

"That's the husks," says I. "They do rustle when a feller ain't used to 'em."

"Rustle! When I'd roll over, upon me word the sounds was 'orrifying. Like the water washing around that boat of yours, it was. I dreamed about being adrift in that awful boat all night. About that and ghosts."

"Ghosts, hey? Did you dream of ghosts?"

"That I did. I could 'ear 'em groaning."

"'Twas yourself that was groaning," says I. "A feller that took aboard the cargo of supper that you did hadn't ought to sleep on cornhusks."

"I didn't sleep; not a 'ealthy Christian sleep, I didn't. I say, Pratt, did you ever 'ear that this old 'ouse was 'aunted?"

"Well," says I, "I don't know as I ever heard that exactly. But old Mrs. Berry died in it and then Marcellus lived here alone till he died. Seems to me he died in that room of yours, come to think of it," says I, cheering him up.

He turned pale, instead of the yellow he'd been lately.

"'Oly Moses!" says he. "You can't mean it."

"I can mean more than that without half trying," I says. "Yes, I remember now. He did die there and they say he died hard. Maybe that was on account of the bed, though."

He was mighty upset. Commenced to tell about a friend of his over in "the old country" who had been butler at a place that was haunted. I asked if his friend had ever seen any of the spooks.

"No," says he, "'e never saw 'em 'imself, but it was a tradition in the family. Everybody knew it. It was a white lady, and she used to trip about the 'ouse and over the lawns nights," he says.

"White, was she?" says I. "Well, I suppose if she'd been black they wouldn't have been able to see her in the night. Never heard of a colored ghost anyway, did you?"

"I mean she was all dressed in white," he says, scornful. "And they say 'twas 'orrid to see her a-gliding around over the grass."

"Want to know!" says I. "Well, if you see old Marcellus gliding around the hummocks outside call me, will you? I'd like to see how he manages to navigate through the sand. That's a job for a strong, healthy man, let alone a dead one."

I guess he see I didn't take much stock in his ghost yarns, so he quit and went to getting the things on the breakfast table. But he was nervous and broke a dish and sprinkled forks and spoons over the floor like he was sowing 'em. Pretty soon he had to stop and hustle upstairs, for the Twins was shouting for their duds. For grown men they was the most helpless critters; his lordship was a sort of nurse to 'em, as you might say.

After a while he had 'em dressed and ready and they come down to breakfast. Nate had brought over feather beds for them, so they slept pretty well. Van Brunt was rigged up special because he was going to Eastwich that forenoon to see his girl.

I'd cooked a whopping big breakfast, but 'twas only just enough. Van was a regular famine breeder and Hartley wa'n't far astern of him. The Natural Life was agreeing with both of 'em fine so far. Martin's cheeks was filling out and him and his chum was sunburned to brick red.

After breakfast they went out for their usual promenade. By and by I heard 'em hailing me from the back of the house. When I reached 'em they was standing by the barn, with their hands in their pockets, and looking as happy and proud as if they'd discovered America.

"Come here, skipper," says Van. "Do you see this?"

He was pointing at a kind of flat place in the lee of the pig sties. 'Twas a sort of small desert, as you might say; A bunch or two of beachgrass in the middle of it and the rest poverty grass and sand.

"I don't see much," says I. "What do you mean?"

"I mean the location," says he. "Here's where we'll have our garden."

I looked at him to see if he was joking. But it appeared he wa'n't.

"Garden?" says I.

"Sure," he says. "It's an ideal spot. Sun all day long."

"You could make a garden here, couldn't you, Sol?" asks Hartley.

"Maybe I could," says I, "if I dug through to Chiny and hit loam on t'other side. Otherwise you couldn't raise nothing in this sand but blisters."

"Scudder could bring us loam," says Van. "We've thought of that."

JUDGE HAS TO SENTENCE FAMILY OF OLD FRIEND.

Salem, May 15.—Declaring that in all his twelve years' experience on the bench he had never had a more painful duty to perform, Judge Clement H. Sinnickson, in Court of Special Sessions, yesterday sentenced Mrs. Mary Yourinson, sixty-two years old, and her daughter Sarah, thirty-five years old, to six months each in jail, for shoplifting. Another daughter, nineteen years old, was placed in charge of the probation officer.

The trio were arrested after committing thefts in the principal stores in this town.

The Yourisons come of a very respectable family and had hertofore been held in high esteem in the county, and their arrest was a big surprise. The judge, in imposing sentence, said that he had known the husband and father for years, and knew his father before him, and they all had an excellent reputation. Although counsel, he said, had made a plea for light sentence, claiming that the arrest alone had crazed them with grief, he had a duty to perform and he must impose a sentence to protect society.

SEES CRIME, GOES INSANE.

Mt. Holly, May 15.—The sight of a man attempting to kill a woman so terrified and preyed upon her mind as to dethrone the reason of Mrs. Ida Clayton, of Hartford, who became a nervous and insane wreck last night. "Oh that shovel, that shovel," is her constant cry, "he will kill her."

This is the statement of Dr. Elmer D. Prickett, who says the patient must be taken to ap lace where she cannot look on the spot of the assault or its perpetrattor. The condition of Mrs. Clayton was brought about when she saw Thomas Carey attack Mrs. Arnold with a shovel, for which crime he was tried last week.

Mrs. Arnold ran to Mrs. Clayton to stanch the flow of blood from her wounds.

Mistook Constable for Prisoner.

Newton, May 15.—The prospects for a somewhat lengthened term of Criminal Court in Newton were made less likely Monday, when several of the accused Hungarians, held under assault and battery charges, changed their pleas from not guilty to non vult. During the taking of the pleas Prosecutor Huston provoked considerable laughter in the courtroom by mistaking Constable Shaw, who was standing guard over a batch of prisoners who were being arraigned, for one of the accused men, and inquiring of him what he desired to plead. The constable was surprised and didn't know. County Clerk Hopkins came to the constable's assistance by explaining to the prosecutor the official position of Shaw, whereupon the laugh arose, in which the court joind. Mr. Huston said afterward that the light in the courtroom was poor and he had failed to recognize Shaw, who was standing in line with the others.

Physician Not Privileged Witness.

Camden, May 15.—It was decided by Vice-Chancellor Leaming yesterday that a physician is not exempt from testifying in a court as to the nature of a disease of a patient. It was contended that the relationship of a physician to his patient was regarded as "privileged." The vice-chancellor decided the physician in a court case has no more privileges than any other witness. The physician was a witness in habeas corpus proceedings brought by George Carter, of Bridgeton, against his wife, from whom he is separated, for the custody of their daughter. The vice-chancellor decided the mother was the proper person to have the custody of the girl.

Arrested Negro and White Girl.

New Brunswick, May 15.—Bertha Miller, white, fifteen years old, and James Williams, a negro, were arrested at the Pennsylvania Railroad station in this city yesterday while they were eloping after stealing, it is alleged, a horse and carriage, the property of John Scromp, who lives near Belle Mead. The girl, who was formerly an inmate of the Elizabeth Orphan Asylum, has been working as a domestic in the home of T. B. Hoagland, a farmer, where Williams was also employed.

Gift at Farewell Banquet.

Captain James Parker, of Perth Amboy, who will sail on Saturday for England, to attend the Pan-Anglican convention of missions of the Protestant Episcopal church, as a representative of the diocese of New Jersey, was tendered a farewell banquet by his fellow-members of the bar in Perth Amboy, at the Parker House Tuesday. On behalf of his associates Judge Adrain Lyon presented a gold watch and chain, suitably inscribed, to Captain Parker.

Preacher Upholds Union.

The Rev. D. Stuart Hamilton, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Paterson, selected by the master painters and the painters' union to arbitarte a question of labor on the Young Men's Christian Association building in course of construction in Ellison street, in that city, decided Wednesday in favor of the union. The union men quit when non-union carpenters were employed to take the places of the striking union carpenters.

KIRMESS NEARING END

All Seats Sold for Last Two Performances of the Great Spectacle.

PRINCETON TRIANGLES TONIGHT

Elizabeth People to Join in the Superb Entertainment at the Matinee—The Last Program.

Just two more performances, one this afternoon and the other tonight, and Plainfield's great Kirmess will be a thing of the past. Everybody in it, no matter how large or small the part, has helped to make it the big success that it has been and all they and their friends can say to those who haven't seen it is: "Don't or you'll always regret it." The sale of seats has practically reached its limit but there's always room for one more so drop around to the theatre and swell the fund.

The attendance last night was the biggest yet and everything went with a dash and spirit from Mayor Fisk's opening address until the grand march was concluded. Applause was the order of the evening and the people were kept busy giving it until their hands fairly ached. And flowers? Why, bless your heart, they came in bunches, boquets, basket loads and arms full until Lew Timpson almost resigned the job of carrying them to the stage. If what he did was any criterion, tonight he will have to hire a couple of husky expressman to help him out.

The passing of the Kirmess will leave many regrets with those who have seen the numbers more than once, especially the Pantomime, which seems to move better every time it is given. One man asserted last night that he would be willing to pay $2 a seat to see it alone. In the first place, the dance given by the shop girls, the Misses Curtis and Miss Gabriel McQuaide, and the messenger boys, Amore Pinto, Charles Wentz, George Schoonmaker and James Dodd, is perfectly stunning and the other good things follow in such rapid succession that it is hard to keep track of them. Harry Hall, as "Mr. Schwartz," the keeper of the toy shop, has a difficult part but he gets away with it in much the same manner as does "Billy" Sleed, who is supposed to be the king of panomimists. And then there's Kenneth Runyon and Alverda Holland, as "Mr. and Mrs. Noah;" Adelaide Parker, the mechanical doll; Master Henry Zook, the funny "Jack in the Box;" Bruce Beaton, the musical clown; Donald Grieson as "Sambo," the cake-walking darky, and all the funny animals to say nothing of "Pete" Phillips and Elsa Schwed, who represent the mischievous "Buster" and "Dottie Dimple." They are all capital and the wonder is how on earth Miss Florance ever managed to pick out such a fine lot of talent.

The program of dances last night was again very good and all of the numbers increased the favorable impressions created before. The Rustic number was the first on and the young men and women in it have become so familiar with their steps the people simply murmured "wonderful, wonderful." The "colleens" in it would take first prize if Mayor Fisk could induce the committee to award pennants for youth, charm and freshness. In the slang of the day, "everyone's a peach." If you don't believe it, see how they have held their ground in the voting contest.

The cute little Rosebuds with Miss Adelaide Parker's, solo, produced smiles and handclapping both at the same time and the Sailor's Hornpipe went on and off twenty knots ahead of all competitors. The stunning white duck suits in this dance will doubtless set a fashion for the fond Mammas in town that will exceed the demand for the M. W. hat. The Indian braves, the Harlequin, the New Year's, Rainbow, Swiss and Steeplechase all received encores and the stately White Hussars brought the finale amid exceptional enthusiasm.

At the performance this afternoon, two numbers, "My Dancing Class" people from Elizabeth will be given and tonight the Triangle Club of Princeton University will contribute two numbers, "My Dancing Class' and "A Lesson in French." The program tonight in addition to these has been arranged as follows: Part 1—Pantomime; Part 2—Rustic dance, French Dolls, Swiss dance, New Year's dance, Marsovian dance, The White Hussars, Dutch dance, Tarantella, Rainbow dance; solo, "The Sun," Mrs. Lemuel W. Serrell; Harlequin dance, steeplechase; voting for the most popular dance; grand march and tableaux.

The Christian and Missionary Alliance will hold a special service on Monday. Rev. L. A. Harriman, of Bridgeport, Conn, and Rev. H. V. Andrews, for twelve years a missionary in India, will speak. Sessions 2:30 and 7:30 p. m. All are cordially invited.

"PETER" PHILLIPS MAKES AN UNEXPECTED HIT

During the progress of the Kirmess this week there have been many so-called "hits" made by the participants, but none of them equalled the furore created last night by Master Philip Phillips, who is known to his friends as "Peter." This young man is the "Buster Buyit" in the pantomime and as such is supposed to get into all sorts of trouble at "Mr. Schwartz's" toy shop. It was while he was cutting capers that the unexpected happened but it brought him one prolonged round of applause.

Master "Peter" jumped about in glee when the animals came out of Noah's ark and in his enthusiasm he turned a somersault alongside of a jack-rabbit. It proved his undoing for his blonde wig failed to appreciate "getting floored" and came plumb off. From a flaxan-haired youth he was suddenly transformed to a decided "brunette" and the transition was too much for the risibles of the audience. There was one burst of "Ha, Has" and "Ho, Hos," and then a whirlwind of handclapping that almost lifted the hirsute covering back in place.

"Peter" took the incident as a joke the same as the rest and withdrew amid the plaudits to get it put to rights. It is needless to state somersaults are no longer in his repertoire during the pantomime.

SONS OF VETERANS END THEIR ANNUAL SESSIONS

Sons of Veterans of New Jersey, who concluded their annual convention at Montclair last night, chose Rahway as the place for next year's convention, and elected these officers: Theodore E. Mrs. Elizabeth Hansen, retiring president of the auxiliary, was presented with a diamond brooch. The proceeds of a competition for a pillow presented by Mrs. Hansen, amounting to $30, will be danoted to the aid of the Sons of Veterans' College, at Mason City, Iowa.

Had a Great War Record.

Mr. and Mrs. Everitt Gordon, of Dunellen, will take a trip to Columbus, Ohio, next week, Mr. Gordon being a delegate from Division 337, of Railroad Employees, to the convention to be held there. He has been in the employ of the New Jersey Central for forty-three years, thirty-six as a locomotive engineer, at present running a passenger train from Dunellen to Jersey City. He was a member of the Eighth N. J. Vols., in the Civil War, having enlisted in September, 1861, and mustered out in July, 1865. He was a color sergeant in the last campaign. The flag he carried was the first that was placed on the breastworks at Petersburg, the morning of April 2, 1865. After the grand review at Washington he had charge of his company until discharged at Trenton.

TENTH ANNIVERSARY OF SWEDISH PILGRIMS

The tenth anniversary services were continued last night at the Swedish Pilgrim church. This was a service especially for the members of the church and was well attended. The members were pleased to listen again to their former pastor, Rev. O. G. Norseen, who has done so much for this church and still loves to come here to see his friends and co-workers in the church. He spoke from the Epistle to the Philippians, fourth chapter, and fourth verse: "Rejoice in the Lord alway."

The services will be continued tonight at 8 o'clock with public preaching by Rev. A. E. Elmquist, from Perth Amboy. Tomorrow there will be services at 11 o'clock in the morning, 4 in the afternoon and 7:30 at night. Rev. C. G. Ellstrom of Brooklyn, Rev. O. G. Norseen, of Worcester, Mass., and M. J. Mettberg, of Bridgefield, N. J., will be the speakers at these meetings and special music will be a feature of the several services.

All Scandinavian people and others are most cordially invited to attend.

PARENT-TEACHERS' ASS'N AT BRYANT SCHOOL

A largely attended and enthusiastic meeting of parents and teachers was held at the Bryant School, yesterday afternoon, when another parent-teacher association was formed. Mrs. W. M. Sandford, Jr., who has taken the initiative in the movement, was present and took charge of the meeting. There were addresses by Mrs. E. C. Grice, who also spoke at similar meetings earlier in the week, and Mrs. Alexander Marcy, of Riverton, President of the State Congress of Mothers. They explained in detail the objects of the association and as a result forty-five parents and teachers identified themselves as charter members.

These officers were elected: President, Mrs. J. F. Hansen; vice-president, Miss Flora Griffin; secretary, Mrs. Charles L. Dayton; treasurer, Mrs. Edgar Williams.

On Tuesday night at the High School another meeting will be held for the parents and teachers of children in that school. It has been arranged to have William D. Murray, who is a charter member of the Mothers' Association, preside and he will make a few remarks. There will also be an address by Robert L. Burns, assistant superintendent of the Public Schools of Philadelphia, while Principal I. W. Travell will speak. The last meeting for this year will be held Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Irving school, at which Superintendent H. C. Krebs, of the North Plainfield High Schools, will speak.

"The Cowboy and the Lady."

Everything is in readiness for the New Plainfield Theatre Stock Co. to open on Monday night in Clyde Fitch's "Cowboy and the Lady." Judging from the sensational printing used to advertise the company and the scale of prices there has been a mistaken idea regarding the character of the company. The printing misleads the public. Nat Goodwin's name alone should guarantee that the play is refined and of the better class, which will be the policy of the engagement. "Held by the Enemy," "The Christian," "Violie," etc., will follow. Miss Gallatin will play "Jessica Weston," the part created by Maxine Elliott. Mr. Wilkinson will play Mr. Goodwin's part of "Teddy North." Royal Player "Yoe," created by Ben Macintosh, and Evelyn Watson "Midge," played by Minnie Dupree.

General Howard Retired.

General Oliver Otis Howard, the last living general who commanded an army corps during the Civil War, has been placed upon the retired list of the army as a lieutenant-general by a vote of the Senate, on the recommendation of President Roosevelt. General Howard was retired from active service as a major-general on his sixty-fourth birthday, which occurred on November 8, 1894. Gen. Howard is an uncle of Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of Hope chapel.

Ingersoll Co. Buys a Watch Factory.

The old Trenton watch factory at Trenton has been bought by the Ingersoll Watch Company of Waterbury, Conn., for $50,000, and the company will open it with 500 hands at once. Watchmakers in Trenton who worked at the Trenton watch factory will be employed, and the company will also bring some employes from Waterbury.

Hackensack to Have Dog Show.

The second show of the North Jersey Kennel Club will be held on the Oritani grounds at Hackensack, on June 6. Senator Johnson, Dr. St. John, ex-Sheriff Mercer and the local banks have offered cups as prizes.

MISS GALLATIN OF A DISTINGUISHED FAMILY

Probably there is no woman on the American stage more highly connected than Miss Alberta Gallatin the star of the New Plainfield Theatre Stock Company which opens its summer season Monday, May 18th. On her maternal side Miss Gallatin is a near relative of the late Samuel L. Southard, at one time Governor of New Jersey.

Her grandfather, Judge James B. Bowlin, for many years a member of Congress and Minister to Paraguay and Bogota, where his services were of great value to his country. She is the daughter of Brigadier-General Albert Gallatin Jenkins, of Virginia, who had the proud distinction of being the youngest member ever elected to United States Congress.

Miss Gallatin has considerable claim to literary ability also, having written several successful plays among them being "Carmen" which has successfully been produced in the leading cities of the United States, and which will be elaborately produced by the stock company later in the season.

The latest work from her pen is a dramatization of Sir Walter Scotts' famous novel "Ivanhoe," which is booked for an early opening at a Broadway theatre in New York.

The author of the new book "The Ancient Law," Miss Ellen Glasgow, is cousin of Miss Gallatin.

On her tours through the South and West Miss Gallatin has been the receipent of many social favors—the high standing of her family and her own personal charm and worth making her a welcome guest in the most exclusive circles.

Among the many tributes to Miss Gallatin's ability the one she prizes most highly is a letter from Mrs. Henry George, the wife of the famous "single tax" man, in which she writes "we saw a charming Rosalind today and predict for you a more than successful career. Since the days of Adelaide Neilson I have not seen Shakespeare's lovely character better portrayed, etc." This was on witnessing Miss Gallatin's debut in New York city at the Madison Square theatre.

Miss Davis' Wedding.

Miss Anna Elizabeth Davis, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Davis, of Park avenue, and Richard Rene Muser, of New York, will be married at Grace Episcopal church Thursday afternoon. The bridesmaids will be Miss Lillian M. Emerson, Ansonia, Conn.; Miss Gwendolin P. Gillen, Jamaica, L. I.; Miss Margery Gillespie, Woodhaven, L. I.; Miss Marion E. Niven, New York; Miss Anna M. Garrigues, Plainfield. Miss Helen R. Davis, sister of the bride, will be the maid of honor, and Ralph E. Muser, New York, brother of groom, the best man. The ushers will be George L. Frost, Richard Alder, Schuyler Lestrade, Edward Schmidt, New York; Ralph E. Gill, Pittsburg; Dr. Charles G. Davis, Plainfield, brother of the bride. Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, the rector, will officiate. A small reception will be held at the home of the bride's parents on Park avenue.

Editorial Association Outing.

The fifty-second annual meeting of the New Jersey Editorial Association will be held on June 26-30, at Lake George, one of the most picturesque resorts in America. The committee in charge comprises John W. Clift, George C. Gunn, W. B. R. Mason and H. B. Rollinson. The party will leave New York on Friday morning, June 26, at 8.40 o'clock by the Albany Day Line for Albany, and while at Lake George will stop at the Hotel Sagamore. The start for home will be made morning, June 28, at 11 o'clock, reaching home the following morning. The business meeting of the association will be held Saturday afternoon and the banquet will be held that evening. Applications for tickets should be made to W. B. R. Mason, treasurer, Bound Brook.

Will Speak on McAll Work.

Rev. George T. Berry, field secretary of the American McAll Rssociation, will speak at the Congregational church, tomorrow morning, on the subject, "The Dawn of Religious Democracy in France," and in the evening in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. He will deliver an illustrated lecture on "Social and Religious Conditions in France as Seen With a Camera."

Business College Anniversary.

Arrangements are being made to hold an entertainment, in the form of an illustrated lecture, at the Plainfield Business College, on May 25, in honor of the first anniversary in the new College Quarters, in the Woodhull and Martin building.

The Holy Cross third team defeated the Jackson A. C., this morning by a score of 13 to 12, Mantz pitching for the winning club and fanning fifteen batsmen. LaPorte opposed him, but was not so effective.

SOMERSET COUNCIL ENTERTAINS WOMEN

Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., gave a pleasant "ladies' night" affair in Junior Hall, last night, which was attended by more than two hundred members of the order, their wives and sisters. The program comprised vocal solos by Mrs. James Gilbert, readings by Mrs. W. B. Grannatt, and several selections on the dulcimer by Musical Stewart. Miss Mary Radford was at the piano. Each number was well received and the artists were obliged to respond to many encores.

A feature of the entertainment was the appearance of the minstrel troupe from Franklin Council, No. 31, Jr. O. U. A. M., the members of which sang popular songs. After the program the good and welfare committee, comprising George Watts, chairman; William Stewart, Warren Stewart, J. W. Goff and Louis Mulford served refreshments. Dancing was then enjoyed until an early hour this morning. P. H. Latourette was in charge of the program.

JUNIOR ENDEAVORERS HAVE A GOOD TIME

Under the auspices of the Junior Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church an excellent entertainment was given in the lecture room of the church, last night, the proceeds received from a silver offering amounting to $8 being given to the cause of missions. The affair, which was largely attended was under the direction of Miss Mabel Wilson, acting superintendent, while Miss Edna Dilts assisted by Miss Elsie Tier drilled the children for their parts.

The program was well rendered throughout, and included recitations, vocal and instrumental selections and dialogues. It was as follows:

Duet, mandolin, Millard MacAffee: piano, Harold Storr; dialogue, "A slight misunderstanding," "Old Lady," Maude MacAffee; "Tramp," Lawrence French; recitation, "The Donation Party," Marjorie Storr; piano solo, Harold Storr; recitation, "Anxious Mother," Helen MacAffee; drill, "Tin-pan Brigade," Harold Woolley, Cecil MacAffee, Donold Willett, Alfred Willett, Howard Willett; exercise, "Good Morning, Merry Sunshine," Harold Woolley and Donold Willett; dialogue, "Recipe for Potato Pudding," "Mrs. Philemon," Alice Auten; "Mrs. Darling," Adelaide Cole; "Mrs. Mudlaw," Helen Smith; "Mr. Philemon," Elmer French; piano duet, Lawrence and Elmer French; recitation, "Dead Dolly," Marian Woolley; exercise, "Days of the Week," "Monday," Ella Porter; "Tuesday," Ella Van Arsdale; "Wednesday," Elizabeth Chickering; "Thursday," Elizabeth Higgins; "Friday," Emily Pilger; "Sunday," Madalyn Layton; piano solo, Elsie Tier; piano medley, Elsie Tier; dialogue, "Train tomorrow," "Mrs. Buttermilk," Beatrice Tier; "Johnnie Buttermilk," Howard Willett; "Mr. Bright," Lawrence French, closing song, "Our Junior Band," by the Junior Society. In Somerset's Courts.

Judge Schenck sat in the Somerset county courts yesterday at Somerville and heard the last case of those indicted by the April grand jury. John and Joseph Catelli, brothers, conduct a bottling establishment in Middlesex county, just over the line from Rocky Hill, in Somerset, and were in the habit of selling some of their goods in Somerset, with the result that they were indicted for illegal selling. The defense was that they sold nothing in Somerset but what was ordered from their establishment in Middlesex and that their lawyer had told them that they could deliver orders in Somerset, if they wanted to without making themselves liable to arrest. John A. Frech, of Somerville, and Fred. Weigel, of New Brunswick, were counsel for the defense. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

Choir to Rehearse Music.

CURTIS TAKES STEPS TO FIGHT EXTRADITION

Charles G. Curtis, the clever forger and check swindler captured in New York on Chief Kiely's complaint, has taken steps to fight extradition to New Jersey. He was no sooner incarcerated than he engaged the law firm of Slade & Slade, of Manhattan, and they will oppose every step taken by the officials. They have demanded a hearing for their client and it will be given him in the Tombs court Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

Chief Kiely stated today that he has sufficient evidence to bring Curtis to this state as soon as the necessary legal papers are signed. He will be in attendance at the hearing with two witnesses who, he declares, will furnish sufficient evidence to warrant the authorities turning Curtis over to him. McGinness, the other swindler, who made the confession after his capture here, is serving a year in the Trenton prison and for that reason cannot be taken to New York to aid in the identification.

Although news of Curtis' arrest was made public only yesterday, the local police received a batch of letters this morning, seeking information about him. A dozen or more came from Massachusetts where it is apparent the gang has been operating extensively while nearly every city of any importance in this state was also heard from.

Voting in the contest for the popular dance at the Kirmess assumed whirlwind proportions last night, and the sudden rush of ballots had a batch of markers going through the time of their lives. The favorites were heavily backed by their friends and the figures went upward in one grand rush. The total vote cast was 13,710, of which 2,040 were handed in by the Steeplechasers, who still hold the lead. The White Hussars came forward with an additional 1,344 five cent pieces and the jolly little sailor lads and lassies carried so many nickles and dimes to the stage they were utterly fatigued when the polls closed. They moved up from sixth to third place.

All the other contestants made good gains and those who have followed the campaign closely assert there will be "something doing" tonight. Dancers who have seemingly been working in a medicore way have in reality been building up a reserve supply of "mazuma" and when it is passed over to Mayor Fisk tonight somebody will surely be swamped. The wise ones say that there are no safe bets; it's a case of pick your favorite but look out for the dark horse.

Mayor Fisk announced last night that in view of the great interest taken in the contest and the way the dancers have sought to make it a success, the participants have been divided into two classes. The children's dances will form one and they will be rewarded with pennants this afternoon while awards of a various nature will be made to the young men and women tonight. The winners of the big race will have a pennant presented to their chaperon and each dancer will be given a badge.

The home stretch is now in sight so don't fail to be at the theatre tonight and be ready to pass over every cent you've got, even to your carfare.

CLEANER CONCERN FAILS

Vacuum Company's Extravagance After Kenney Withdraws Proves Fatal to It.

HE LEFT IT SOUND

Plainfielder Now Heads New Jersey Company Which Is In Prosperous Condition.

Judge Ward of the United States Circuit Court in New York, has appointed Charles W. Gould, a lawyer of 2 Wall street, New York, receiver for the Vacuum Cleaner Company, a New Jersey corporation, with offices at 425 Fifth avenue, and branches in various cities, on application of Ewing & Ewing, creditors for $2,500. Mr. Gould's bond was fixed at $100,000.

David T. Kenney, the inventor of its patents and until recently president of the concern, expressed some surprise today when told by The Daily Press man here that the Vacuum Cleaner Company had gone into the hands of a receiver. He admitted that he had somewhat expected that the life of the concern under its present management would not be long, but this information by The Daily Press man was the first he had obtained of the failure.

"I do not hold a single share of stock in that company," said Mr. Kenney, "for I disposed of all my interests some time ago. William C. Resler, another stockholder, also got rid of his stock except a few shares and he joined me in forming the New Jersey Vacuum Cleaner Company under the terms of withdrawal made by me, I being given the State rights for New Jersey in the patent. We are doing a big business now in our own company despite the hard times. When I withdrew from the presidency of the big company, which has just failed, that concern did not owe a single dollar."

Mr. Kenney would neither deny nor confirm the report that the bankrupt concern had been run on extravagant lines and that his protest being ignored he withdrew from the company.

The company was incorporated Jan. 31, 1905, with a capital stock of $1,060,000, to manufacture vacuum cleaning apparatus and machinery and to work the same. The entire capital stock was employed in the acquisition of patents and the business formerly conducted by David T. Kenney, who became president of the company. He resigned on Nov. 11, and was succeeded by William L. Dechant. The Directors include William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and Henry B. Hollins.

Heretofore the company has done a large business, but for some time past the earnings have been insufficient to pay operating expenses, many obligations are past due, creditors have been pressing for payment, and the officers could not raise any more money to meet its obligations. The company has forty contracts on hand, which it is thought ought to realize $25,000 profit if the business is kept going. The company has portable cleaning apparatus in Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Chicago and St. Louis.

On Dec. 23 the company gave notes to various persons for money loaned to the amount of $152,290, payable Dec. 23, 1908, and were secured by a mortgage on the real and personal property of the company to the New York Trust Company as trustee.

The total liabilities of the company are $290,315, of which $210,00 are on notes and $80,315 to 230 creditors for work, labor, and materials. The total assets are $400,000, of which $200,000 are in New York.

Despite a report to the contrary, none of the patents have expired but have enarly sixteen years yet to run.

AN AMERICAN AND CANADIAN FIGHTING FOR THE SICHE.

Yesterday S. R. Arnett, at present a resident of Toronto, Canada, but at one time general manager of the Siche Gas Co., of Plainfield, came into town for the purpose of removing the plant of the old Siche Company to some point outside of New Jersey. Before Mr. Arnett could get away with the goods, George H. Maurer, representing a syndicate of Plainfield gentlemen, interposed an objection to such proceedings on the ground of claiming to hold the property under a contract with the present owner and being prepared to carry out his part of theagreement.

In the event of Arnett succeeding in this matter the plant will be taken out of the State.

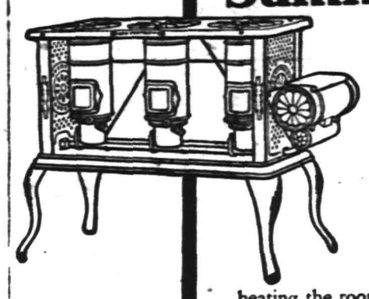
Have You a Summer Stove?



The stifling air of a close kitchen is changed to comfortable coolness by installing a New Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove to do the family cooking.

No kitchen furnishing is so convenient as this stove. Gives a working heat at once, and maintains it until turned out—that too, without overheating the room. If you examine the

NEW PERFECTION

you will see why this is so. The heat from the chimney of the "New Perfection" is concentrated under the kettle and not dissipated through the room by radiation. Thus it does the work of the coal range without its discomfort. Ask your dealer about this stove—if not with him, write our nearest agency.

The Rayo Lamp is a very handsome piece of housefurnishing and gives a clear, powerful light more agreeable than gas or electricity. Safe everywhere and always. Made of brass finely nickel plated—just the thing for the living-room. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

seen in this city on Saturday afternoon and evening, May 30, in talking about the costuming of plays expressed the opinion that "silk was not only the most useful of all the fabrics that enter into the economy of staging plays, but I venture to predict that the time is near when a specialized branch of the industry of silk making will have to do solely and wholly with stage silks." And she told an interesting story of Sir Henry Irving and his stage experience of silk. "I was taken behind the scenes to meet him on a night when he was acting his dual role in 'The Lyons Mail.' He was in the rags and tatters of the scoundrel who robs the mail-coach. 'How delightfull old!' I exclaimed, as I looked at the perfect character of the clothes he wore. 'Isn't it?' he responded. 'Tonight is my first wearing 'em and I'm delighted.' I protested that the clothes must date from the first time he ever acted the role, and that even they must have been cast-offs. 'Fresh from the costumers today,' he declared laughingly. 'It is the silk.' It would take a perfect type of the perfect tramp ten years to age a suit to look as well as this. If the lesson will be of any use to you bear it in mind. You can do anything with silk under the lights of the theatre. It is my intention some day in the near future to try an experiment that makes a stronger appeal to me the more I think of it—to paint all my scenery on silk. But the textile men must help me out by hitting upon a weave that will lend itself to the paint and fire-proofing. If they do not do it for me they will do it for somebody someday."

Sir Henry did not live to make another production of any kind; and so never carried out his cherished experiment of silk scenery but it will be done, as he predicted, by somebody some day, and that day at no great distance in the future.

NOISE IN CONVENTIONS.

One in Which Comanches and Panthers Were Outdone.

The noisiest, the jolliest, the most exciting, and perhaps least logical campaign was that of 1840. William Henry Harrison, hero of an Indian victory at Tippecanoe, a plain old man, who had lived, his opponents sneeringly said, in a log cabin decorated with coon skins and had drunk hard cider, was selected by Thurlow Weed as a better candidate than Henry Clay. The issues between Van Buren, the Democratic candidate, and Harrison were not clearly drawn, but the adventitious circumstances of Harrison's early life were skilfully utilized for theatrical effects. Processions, miles long, with log cabins, cider barrels and coonskin caps on poles, stretched from State to State. Glee clubs were a feature of the campaign, and the Indian fighter was fairly sung into office.

In the convention of 1860 began the modern custom of cheering and counter cheering. The Seward contingent gave a parade the day of the convention. While they were marching Lincoln supporters filled the wigwam. With the naming of the candidates began the cheering. Murrat Halstead says that when Seward was nominated and seconded "the shouting was absolutely frantic, shrill and wild. Comanches or panthers never struck a higher note nor gave screams with more infernal intensity. Looking from the stage over the vast amphitheatre, nothing was to be seen below but thousands of hats—a black, mighty swarm of hats—flying with the velocity of hornets, over a mass of human heads, most of the mouths of which were open."

But when Lincoln's nomination was seconded the West was heard from. "I thought the Seward yell could not be surpassed," says Halstead, "but the Lincoln boys were clearly ahead, and, feeling their victory, as there was a lull in the storm, took deep breaths all around, and gave a scream that was positively awful, and accompanied it with stamping that made every plank and pillar in the building quiver."

On the third ballot Lincoln was nominated. The shouting was so deafening that the cannon which was discharged on the roof of the building could not be heard inside.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Sexton Who Dug 1,800 Graves Dead.

John Davis, the oldest church sexton in the country, was buried in Brainerd Cemetery at Cranbury, yesterday afternoon. He had been sexton of the First Presbyterian church for forty-nine years, and had dug 1,800 graves in the cemetery in which he was laid at rest. He was 79 years old. It had been his oft-expressed hope that he be permitted to live to serve fifty years as sexton.

Weather permitting there will be a game at Crescent Oval this afternoon between Clinton Avenue and the Elizabeth A. C. Clifford Randolph will occupy the slab for the home team, and it is said that "Phil" Smith will oppose him.

There are no less than a dozen amateur teams playing baseball in and about Plainfield and every one has its host of admirers. It is unusual for Plainfield to have so many aggregations, but the absence of professional ball here is responsible for the organization of numerous amateur clubs.

With four candidates for the outfield, Manager Dorflinger of the Clinton Avenues, is having a hard time trying to select regular men for the positions. However, there is no doubt but that the outfield and infield, as well as the battery will be strong enough for all comers.

Charles Loizeaux will probably be seen in the lineup of the Y. M. C. A. team this season. He is a clever player and proved to be a fine catcher for the P. H. S. last year.

After having a triple steal worked on them by the Philadelphia Athletics last week in the Quaker City, the Washington Americans turned the trick on Connie Mack's team Monday in Washington. The play was executed in the third inning, when Milan started off with a single. Ganley hit a liner to Oldring, which the latter dropped. Pickering fanned, and Altizer placed a Texas Leaguer in left scoring Milan. Freeman walked to first base on balls. These three players, headed by Captain Ganley, carried out the play in the same manner as Captain Harry Davis engineered the play for the Athletics. The play was responsible for Washington's victory, the score being 3 to 2.

Hughey Jennings, manager of Detroit American League champions, is not holding out any hard luck tales, and there is nothing to stall the fans, giving this and that reason for the poor showing of the Tigers so far this season. "We started in our battle confident of winning, but it seems like the other fellows just manage to shove a couple more over the pan than we do," said Jennings in St. Louis one day this week. "I guess you blame the cold weather for the poor start of the boys" "No, sir," was Jennings' quick reply; "good ball players can perform in any kind of weather. Of course we feel the loss of Donovan. I expect Bill to come around shortly."

"If you want real baseball spirit you want to get down into Florida and watch the waiters play," said Matty McIntyre, of the Detroit Americans, the other day. "Those colored chaps are out for blood and if there isn't a victory, nine husky young men want to know the reason why. Heaven help the umpire who makes a mistake, for immediately nine men leave their positions on the diamond to follow one man, who begins a cross-country stunt. The game stops while they chase the umpire. If they catch him he is pummeled until he is not fit for ordinary existence for several weeks. Then they go on with their game."

Jimmy Archer, the Buffalo catcher, and Tom Hughes, the Indian pitcher, played ball together in Atlanta not so very long ago. Although Archer knows the mysteries connected with Hughes assortment of curves, his former battery partner struck him out three times in Monday's game.

THE "FAULTLESS" MEN'S PAJAMAS AND NIGHT GOWNS AT 60c ON THE DOLLAR

Last Saturday we told you about this well known house having their stock damaged by fire and sold at auction. Though the boxes were scarcely damaged and the goods are really perfectly fresh, we bought two lots that were made up for Stern Bros. on 23rd street, New York, and Webber & Heilbroner, men's furnishers. Both these houses are known to carry only high class merchandise. Their labels are on these garments as well as that of the makers, the "Faultless."

Here is the Two-Lock Trunk at $7.50

And its the best trunk that $7.50 ever bought. Of course there are better looking trunks made, but they cost much more than this one. No matter what you pay for a trunk you won't get one that will give you better service. But don't get the idea because this trunk is built strictly for the strenuous life, with more thought for strength than for beauty, that it is not good enough looking too. But it's the good looks of solidity and strength rather than of grace and elegance. The sole leather strap around the centre, in addition to the two-lock feature, makes it doubly secure; sizes 30-23, 34 and 36 inches, at..... $7.50

The thoughts of a house-owner naturally turn toward painting. If you are going to paint your house, use because it is a strictly pure linseed oil paint and therefore, can be relied upon to give the best satisfaction. When used according to directions, it will cover more surface and cover it better, with less labor, than other paints. These are facts that have been demonstrated right in your own locality, and it will pay you, as it has others, to buy Moore's House Colors this spring from our representative,

GOLF.

Amateurs are reminded that entries for the Metropolitan Golf Association championship tournament, to be held at Baltusrol next week, close today with Leighton Calkins, secretary of the association, at No. 25 Broad street. All entries must be made by club secretaries, and cannot be made by the players themselves. No entry can be accepted unless it is accompanied by the fee of $2.

Arrangements have been made for the twelfth annual golf tournament of the New York Stock Exchange, to be held at the Knollwood Country Club today. It will consist of a medal play handicap, with first, second and third net prizes, and a gold medal for the player returning the lowest gross score. Close to one hundred entries have already been received.

Members of the Dyker Meadow Golf Club are competing for a prize known as the Captain's cup, presented by James L. Taylor. Those who return the sixteen lowest net scores in monthly handicaps for the season will be drawn to compete at handicap match play in October.

Several well known players competed in the one-day tournament open to members of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association on the links of the Englewood Golf Club Thursday. The chief attraction was an eighteen hole medal play handicap, and Mrs. L. W. Callan, of the home club, made the best gross and net score, with 98—4—94. She decided to take the gross score prize. Mrs. E. F. Sandford, who belongs to both the Essex County Country Club and Englewood, earned the net score prize, with a card of 107—6—101.

Although it is generally understood nowadays that 6,300 odd yards is quite long enough for any eighteen-hole course, news is occasionally received of clubs which persist in stretching out their links. For instance the Town and Gown Golf Club, of Colorado Springs, is to have a new course of 6,500 yards. A fifteen-years lease on the property has been obtained.

John Waters, a native of St. Andrews, Scotland, is now connected with the Arsdale Golf Club in the capacity of caddie master and assistant to Dave Honeyman, the professional. Waters plays a strong game, and has the reputation of being a long driver. Honeyman has made the course in seventy twice during the last week.

It is said that so many New Yorkers have decided to use the Dunwoodie Country Club as a summer residence that the governors will install an encampment of tents on the grounds to accommodate the overflow. Jack Mackie, formerly connected with the defunct Roseville Golf Club, is the "pro" at Dunwoodie.

Many improvements are under way at the Deal Golf and Country Club. Members who have lately been over the golf links say that never before has the course been in such fine shape. Additional bunkers have been placed around the first and second green, and at the second hole there have also been changes made. Sand traps have been added to the eleventh green and placed half surrounding the third, fourth, eight and ninth greens. New boxes have been placed at the sixteenth hole and all the tees have been enlarged and changed. The lay of the course has been changed slightly by the addition of long grass hazards between the twelfth, fourteenth, fifteenth and sixteenth holes. None of these changes have effected the length of the course, however. A number of Newarkers play golf on the course.

CIRCUS GROWTH.

Ringling Brothers World's Leaders.

The American idea of energy and entertainment is better illustrated in the big circus than in any other form of popular amusement. The proof of this proposition is best exemplified in a consideration of Ringling Brothers' mammoth shows. They own and use $5 cars in transporting their huge aggregation and employ 1,280 people. The big tent will seat 12,000, and they require twelve acres of ground for the circus settlement. The menagerie tent contains 108 cages and dens and 40 elephants. The draft and performing horses number 650, all told. To move and set up each day this stupendous institution, give a three-mile-long parade and two performances, without delay or confusion, is one of the great marvels of this wonderful age of system. Military chiefs at home and from abroad have diligently studied the perfect discipline that pervades the Ringling Brothers' shows and pronounced it the best governed amusement institution in the world.

Ringling Brothers' Wonderful Shows will exhibit at Plainfield Saturday, May 23. The magnificent street parade will leave the show grounds promptly at 10 o'clock on the morning of show day. Numbered reserved seats, at the same prices charged at the ticket wagons, can be reserved on the date of exhibition at T. S. Armstrong's drug store.

John Van Pelt, of Millstone, has been visiting relatives in town for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Canfield, of Somerville, who have been visiting relatives here, have returned.

NEWARK TO ADOPT THE ACKERMAN LAW

The Democratic members of the Newark Common Council, in conference have decided to adopt the Ackerman civil service law as a local party measure in that city. City Counsel Nugent was authorized to draw up an ordinance for presentation at the June meeting of the council to acomplish the application of the law to all the public departments of the city government, or as far as the scope of the law permits.

Mr. Nugent was present at the conference and explained to the aldermen the scope of the new law in so far as it would affect the various departments. He stated as his opinion that the act could be applied to the positions held under the jurisdiction of the council, Board of Works and other co-ordinate branches of the city government. His opinion did not effect the status of the employes of the police and fire departments, who are now under the regulations of the civil service law passed several years ago and relating specially to those departments. He announced that he would take up that phase of the subject later.

The city counsel went into details as to the scope of the law in its effect in perpetuating the tenure of the present city employes and his view of the provisions of the law was that practically all the employes of the city, except heads of departments and laborers of certain classes will come under the protection of the law. These, he said, would include employes in the exempt class described by the law.

The conferenee took no action to justify recent rumors that a movement was on foot to oust certain Republican subordinates who have been retained in office under the Democratic administration. The position taken by the party leaders in the administration is against any interference with the working force of any department that might affect its efficiency.

The conference was not fully attended, owing to a misunderstanding. The session was a continuation of one held two weeks ago, which adjourned to Thursday night. Alderman Michael J. McGowan, secretary of the caucus, took it for granted that the aldermen would remember the time of the adjourned sitting and sent no notices of it. Mr. McGowan, it appears, placed too much faith in the memories of his associates, several of whom stayed away because they were not notified to attend.

Mrs. W. S. Nelson, of Watchung avenue, has been called to Kenoza Lake, N. Y., on account of the serious illness of her mother.

Mrs. John Meirs, of Ames, Iowa, has taken up her residence in this city at the home of her daughter, Mrs. I. C. Cubberly, of Pearl street.

BOY BRANDED WITH A POKER.

Superintendent of Newark Negro Children's Home Accused of Cruelty.

Inmates of the Home Trainers' Christian Association, a "refuge" for colored boys in Newark, testified in a police court yesterday regarding the alleged practices of Wesley H. Whittington, the Superintendent, who was being examined on charges of cruelty. One boy told Judge Howell that Whittington had seared him across the forehead with a red hot poker, showing the scar to bear out his testimony, which was corroborated by other children.

Other testimony yesterday was to the effect that Whittington frequently beat children in the institution with the butt end of a horsewhip and with a strap and buckle, and had used a stove lifter to beat one child into submission. That the food was inadequate and improper was charged. One child, Zachariah Jones, testified that he was sent every night to the Newark Centre Market to gather chicken legs, fish heads, and cast off vegetables from which food for the children was made.

Judge Howell, in adjourning the case for further hearing, said that it did not appear to him to be a police court affair, but was something that should be placed before the Grand Jury without delay.

WALTER A. WYCKOFF DEAD.

Princeton Professor Who Worked His Way Across Continent.

Princeton, Maq 16.—Walter Augustus Wyckoff, A. M., 43 years old, assistant professor of political economy, died at his home here last night. Professor Wyckoff was the author of "The Workers" and other sociological works.

He was born in India, graduated at Princeton in 1888 and took a course of study in Europe, whence he returned in 1891. His health being poor and desiring to find out how the mass of men earn their daily bread, he started out in a laborer's suit and with little money. He got his first job at West Point, where he helped pull down a building, and found, after a day of grinding work, that he could sleep, which was something that he hadn't been able to do well when he started.

He worked his way by day's labor across the States, along the Southern line of the Great Lakes, and finally reached Chicago, where he had harrowing experiences. He came back East with his health fully restored. Several years later he wrote two books known as "The Workers of the East" and "The Workers of the West," in which he described his experience and his observations on that trip. The books were widely read. He published in 1900 a book known as "A Day With a Tramp and Other Days."

Two Bitten by Mad Dog.

Cranford, May 16.—A mad dog bit Mary Russo, seven years old, on the leg, and Andrew McFadden, nine years old, on the arm on Union avenue Thursday night. Frank Cigale chased the animal and narrowly escaped being bitten on the hand when the dog sprang at him. Policeman Herman Redrup shot and killed the dog. Dr. J. L. Perkins cauterized the children's wounds.

CAN HOLD UP CERTIFIED CHECK

Bank That Stopped Payment Upheld by Court in First Case of Kind.

First suit of its kind in the State was the Times Square Automobile Company's action yesterday to recover from the Rutherford National Bank in the Bergen County Circuit Court at Hackensack.

John Purdy bought an auto from the plaintiff last August and gave a check on the Rutherford bank for $650. A representative of the company went to Rutherford the next day and had the check certified, but Purdy stopped payment because the auto, he alleged, was not what was represented. The company declared the bank could not stop payment on a certified check, but the verdict upheld the bank.

ASBURY PARK GETS READY FOR SEASON

Cottagers and tourists are flocking to Asbury Park, and a period of seasonable weather will find the famous resort teeming with life. A number of cottagers arrived this week and several smaller hotels opened for the season. Many of the hotels have been enlarged and improved since last summer, and several new ones have been erected in North Asbury Park.

Two new public pavilions have been erected on the shore front since last summer. The one at Sixth avenue, the finest structure of its kind on the Jersey coast, cost the city nearly $30,000, and is for the use of the cottagers and hotel guests in North Asbury Park.

A dozen or more conventions have been boked for the summer. The first one of importance is that of the General Synod of the Dutch Reformed church in America, which will convene in the Casino, on the shore front, for a ten days' session early in June.

Asbury Park will expend $20,000 for music on the beach this summer. Arthur Pryor and his band have been re-engaged for a season of ten weeks, beginning on June 28. The Royal Vienna Band has also been engaged for a preliminary season. This organization will give its first concert on Sunday afternoon.

Better railroad and boat service between Asbury Park and New York have been promised for the summer. The boats on the Sandy Hook route of the Ceneral Railroad of New Jersey will begin running on Sunday, and aditional trains on the Pennsylvania Railroad will be put on. The new $1,000,000 bridge over the Raritan river, which was completed last month, will shorten the distance between the shore and the metropolis, and also facilitate the moving of trains at that congested point. The Patten Line boats, which run between New York and Long Branch, where they conect with the trolley traversing the shore, are now in service.

SCHOONER LOST; CREW SAVED.

Life Guards Rescue Five Off the William McGee at Sea Isle City.

Atlantic City, May 16.—The three-masted schooner William McGee, Captain Persel, from West Point, Va., for New York with a cargo of pine boards, was sighted off Sea Isle City about 5 o'clock yesterday morning flying her flag union down as a signal of distress.

There was a heavy northeast storm along the coast last night, and the sea was so rough this morning that the Sea Isle City life savers were for a time unable to launch their boats to go to the rescue. Later when the sea had subsided the life savers put out and rescued the captain and crew of four men. The schooner afterward went to pieces at Camden Inlet.

The William McGee was built in Maryland in 1865. Her hailing port was New York. The schooner became waterlogged three days ago and was in comparative safety until yesterday's storm broke. The vessel then began leaking badly, and the crew were set to work at the pumps. Hundreds of dwellers along the beach witnessed the rescue.

GIRL LIBRARIAN MISSING.

Feared She Fell Into Feeder of Carnegie Lake, Princeton.

Princeton, May 16.—Rigid search for Miss Bertha Vanderbilt, 21 years old, an assistant in the Princeton University Library, who has been missing since Wednesday, was instituted here yesterday, but at nightfall no clew as to the whereabouts of the girl had been discovered.

Miss Vanderbilt is a graduate of Syracuse University. She left her boarding place at 5 p. m. Wednesday, presumably to take a walk. When last seen she was in the vicinity of the acqueduct at Carnegie Lake, and it is supposed that she was drowned in an attempt to cross the river on a narrow log, which is the only means of saving a long and circuitous walk. The missing girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Vanderbilt, of Amsterdam, N. Y., were notified yesterday morning and are expected here today.

No Typhoid in Jersey Oysters.

Trenton, May 16.—The State Bureau of Shell Fisheries has decided that there is no foundation for the story that the death of three members of the Bendt family from typhoid fever in Newark in April was due to eating oysters carrying germs of the disease. The investigation showed that the New Jersey oysters which reach the markets are above suspicion of disease.

AMUSEMENTS.

After an absence of three weeks from New York, Mr. E. H. Sothern will return to the Academy of Music on Monday night, May 18th, in order to play a supplementary Spring and Summer engagement before the distinguished actor-manager leaves for Europe to take the first vacation which he has had in five years. The bill for the first week of the Academy engagement will be "Lord Dundreary," in which character he appeared with great success during his engagement at the Lyric Theatre earlier in the season. The charm and satire of "Lord Dundreary" lie in the fact that his audience laughs not only at him but with him, that his drollery is of that peculiar nature that few can resist it, and the idiosyncracies of the heavy swell, as enacted by the present Mr. Sothern, are specially correct, clever and comic.

Mr. Sothern will bring with him the same competent, studious cast of players who aided him in achieving so glorious a success in the earlier part of the season. Mr. Sothern will play Wednesday and Saturday matinees during this engagement at the Academy. The bill for the second week will be "If I Were King." During the third week the repertoire will consist of "Hamlet," "If I were King," and "Don Quixote."

Great is too tame an adjective to use to describe the program arranged for the week of May 18th at Proctor's Newark Theatre. Among the better known vaudevillians to appear are Thos. J. Ryan and Mary Ritchfield in their newest "Mag Haggerty" eketch without doubt Mr. Ryan's best delineation of the old Irishman. Suddenly endowed with a superabundance of this worlds luxuries through the wealthy marriage of his daughter, is one of the cleanest and best character studies in the dramatic world. Shean and Warren's mammoth production "Shipwrecked" will have its initial appearance. This miniature musical comedy is brimful of tuneful songs and laughable comedy.

The hold that the western drama has taken on the public induced the management to offer the newest of these. "The Placerville Stage" is the title of the skit of the gold mining camps. Special scenic environments are used. The greatest of all female impersonators Julian Eltinge will play a return engagement. Mr. Eltinge's portrayal of a "Gibson Girl" is a rare treat. Kelly and Rose two sweet voiced singers, will be heard in some of the latest ballads. Farrell-Taylor Trio appear in a lively blackface singing and dancing turn. The Aerial Smith's defy the laws of gravity in midair. Fred Bupez a newcomer here will find favor in a bright and witty monologue. New Animated Pictures will complete this lengthy bill.

It has fallen to the lot of Wagenhals and Kemper, managers of the Astor Theatre, New York, to produce the dramatic sensation of the season, "Paid in Full," a play of contemporaneous life in America, in four acts, by Eugene Walter. The play by reason of its daring, its virility and its originality has captured the fancy of New York playgoers to such a degree that it will remain in New York until after the Christmas holidays. A specially organized company of carefully chosen players, under the direction of Wagenhals and Kemper, inaugurated an engagement on last Sunday night at the Grand Opera House, Chicago, in Eugene Walter's sensational play, "Paid in Full," and in every particular duplicated the triumph the original cast scored at the Astor Theatre, New York. Every critic in the Western metropolis was as a unit in declaring the play one of the marvels of the age and arrangements were made to maintain the play in Chicago until September, after which time it will be sent on a tour of the principal cities.

Geo. M. Cohan supported by his royal family in Mr. Cohan's latest musical play entitled "The Yankee Prince" is as solid a success at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York as has been scored in that city for several seasons. Mr. Cohan supported by his father, mother and sister and a splendid cast of principals together with a bewitchingly convincing chorus are just entering on the fifth week at this playhouse and capacity audiences have ruled all the way. "The Yankee Prince" is beyond question the classiest composition that has yet emanated from the pen of George M. Cohan. It contains a plot that critics agree is strong enough to be visible to even the causual observer and its strength in the musical way is absolutely convincing. Young Mr. Cohan has given us many a delightful evening's entertainment in the past but none that can be endorsed with the genuine heartiness that is evidenced by the constant laughter and applause which permeates an evening spent with the four Cohans and the charming company that surround and assist them so adequately.

Walter Hampden, of the Henry Miller Associate Players, who is now the talk of New York because of his impersonation at the Savoy Theatre of Manson in "The Servant in The House," a character made up to resemble the accepted ideal portraits of Christ and supposed to be the Christ spirit reincarante, is a young American actor whose work up to the present season was confined to England. He is an intimate friend of Charles Rann Kennedy, author of the play, who wrote the drama for Hampden and, when it was published recently by Harper & Brothers, dedicated it to him.

Hampden's handling of the difficult and delicate task of impersonating a character supposed to be the Nazarene has been declared by New York critics and preachers to be a triump of devotion and art. To his work is largely due the deep influence "The Servant in The House" is exerting in New York and also the extraordinary success of the play from a popular standpoint. While it is never asserted in the play that Manson is the Christ, the inference is plain. The influence exerted by Manson is to bring harmony out of discord, to reconcile warring brothers, to bring a clergyman to a sense of his sacred obligations, to reunite a father and a daughter, and to show a wife her real duty to her husband.

Yet "The Servant in The House" is not one of the so-called "religious plays." It is intense drama—a series of incidents cut from the heart of every day modern life.

A bad back is always bad.
Bad at night when bedtime comes,
Just as bad in the morning.
Every try Doan's Kidney Pills for it?
Know they cure backache—cure every kidney ill?
If you don't some Plainfield people do.
Read a case of it.

Charles H. Lippencott, painter, of 107 Somerset street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "The statement made by me some years ago regarding what Doan's Kidney Pills had done for me was not only true at that time but now. I am glad to confirm it. I had dull heavy pains around my groins, dreadful backache, dizzy spells and in damp weather or when I caught cold the trouble was so bad I could not get about. I tried my best to find some prescription or remedy to cure me, but without success. I was suffering intensely when I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's Pharmacy, but it only required a few doses to convince me that had the right remedy. In a short time I was cured. I have used your remedy since then and with the same satisfactory results. I am glad to say anything in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills."

Suit was to recover damages for injuries received by being struck by an express train while near Cologne. The plaintiff was riding in a wagon with James L. DONKEY PERPLEXES POLICE.

Summit, May 16.—The night squad of the local police force made an arrest yesterday morning which does not appear on the official police records, and will not be recorded until Police-Sergeant John P. Murphy can decide to which of the policemen the capture should really be credited.

As he was patrolling Springfield avenue about 4 o'clock yesterday morning Policeman Frederick Ziegler was attracted by an unusual noise in the rear of a residence near by. Making his way to the house the policeman discovered a donkey on the broad veranda. The policeman led the beast from the porch and all went well until Springfield avenue was reached, when the donkey balked.

Policeman Zeigler pulled, pushed and finally tapped the donkey with his club. The animal took flight over the lawn of a nearby residence, with the policeman tangled up in the rope attached to its halter. Ziegler blew his whistle and officers Sheridan, Sullivan and Smith responded, and the beast was finally corralled. Policeman Sullivan volunteered to ride the animal to Martin's livery stable, but the donkey laid down and rolled over. Then policeman Smith mounted his motorcycle and ran it half speed into the donkey, whereupon the animal got up and ran down Springfield avenue, where it was again captured, and finally led to the livery stable.

Roy Woodhull, of West Front street, who has been detained at home several days by illness, is able to be out again.

Superintendent H. C. Krebs, of the North Plainfield public schools, spent yesterday visiting the schools in Somerset county.

The Memorial Detail of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will meet tonight.

Starting a garden in July!" says I. "What do you cal'late to raise—Christmas trees?"

"Late vegetables, of course," says Van. "Martin and I intend to stay all through September. Think of it, Martin; green corn from our own plantation. And cucumbers in the morning, with the dew on 'em."

"And tomatters already baked in the sun," I says, disgusted. "You take my advice and buy your green stuff off Scudder."

But they wouldn't hear of it. Called me a Jeremiah and so on.

"All right," says I, finally. "Have it your own way. But who's going to work this cucumbers and dew farm?"

"Why, we are, of course," says Van. "That's part of the game, isn't it, Martin? Nothing so healthful as outdoor work for caged birds like us. Maybe we'll have two gardens, one apiece. Then we'll see who raises the first crop."

I could see 'em doing it! But there was no use arguing then. I put my trust in Scudder's not being able to fetch the loam.

Pretty soon Nate heaves in sight in the dory with a cargo of skim milk and store eggs and butter. Van Brunt and I went down to meet him. Van didn't give him a chance to talk; just as soon as the stuff was put on shore he announces that Scudder must go right back and drive him over to Eastwich. Nate backed and filled, as usual, telling how busy he was, and how he hadn't ought to leave, and so on. But Van corks him right up with a five-dollar bill and off they went.

I lugged the milk and butter and the rest of the truck up to the house and started in on another stretch of work. I'd had a vacation of ten minutes or so; now 'twas time to begin again. After I'd cleared up 'round the kitchen and the like of that, I went off down to the Dora Bassett and tackled her. Van Brunt had cut away about everything but the mast, and I had to rig new halliards and sheets and downhauls and land knows what. Drat that Heavenly! 'twas a two days' job.

While I was making a start on it Hartley comes loafing down from the house.

"Skipper," he says, "let's have another one of your chowders for lunch, will you? They're the real thing."

"Well, I tell you, Mr. Hartley," says I, "if we have chowder I'd ought to go and dig the clams right now, on account of the tide. And, honest, I hate to leave this work I'm on. Still, of course, if you say so, why—"

"What's the matter with my digging 'em?" he says.

I grinned. "Why, nothing," I says, "so far as I know, except that it's something of a job."

"Job!" he says. "It'll be fun. Tell me where to go—and what to dig 'em with, and—and how to do it."

I told him to take the skiff and a clam hoe and a couple of buckets and row across to the mainland. There was clams all alongshore there, I knew.

"You go along till you see a lot of little holes in the sand," I says, "then you dig. Want to look out that they ain't sand-worm holes, nor razor fish. And when you begin to dig," I says, "you want to lay right into it, 'cause the clams are likely to be 'run-downs' and they get under fast. So—"

"Hold on a minute," says he. "How am I going to tell a worm-hole from a clam-hole,or a clam-hole from a—what was it?—barber fish hole?"

"Razor fish," says I. "Not barber. Well, I don't know how to tell you, exactly. If it's a sand-hole there's likely to be a little tiny hole alongside the regular one; that is, there is sometimes and sometimes there ain't. And if it's a razor fish—well, I can tell 'em, but I cal'late you'll have to use your own judgment."

He said all right, he guessed he'd get along. So off he went, and pretty soon him and Lord James comes down and gets aboard the skiff. His lordship was loaded with no less than four buckets, besides a clam hoe and the garden hoe and the stove shovel. 'Twas the most imposing clam hunt outfit ever I see. If I'd been a clam and see that battery coming my way I'd have took to tall timber.

"Sure you've got hoes and buckets enough?" I asks, sarcastic.

"I guess so," says he, looking around at the weapons. "We might need another pail, perhaps, but if we do I'll send James after it."

His lordship started rowing, taking strokes first with one hand and then with the other, and the fleet got under way and waltzed, as you might say, zigzag across to the main. 'Twas as calm as a millpond and they hit land up towards the point by the Neck Road. Then the clam slaughterers got out and disappeared 'round behind the point. I went on with my rigging.

It got to be 11 o'clock and no signs of 'em. Then 12; lunch time. Tide was coming in fast, you couldn't have got a clam now without a diving outfit. But still all quiet on the Potomac. I went up to the house and commenced to slice ham and fry potatoes. I had my doubts about that chowder.

Everything was ready by and by and I stepped to the door to take an observation. And then I see 'em coming, rowing more crab fashion than ever. I walked down to the inlet to meet 'em. And such sights as they was. Blessed if they didn't look like they'd been through the war—Lord James especial.

"Hi, Sol!" sings out Hartley, as the skiff floats in, broadside on. "My! but I'm glad to see you. Give James a lift with the clams and things, will you? I'm done up."

He looked it. He was barefoot and barearmed, with his trousers rolled up above his knees and his shirt sleeves above his elbows. And the valet was the same, and both of 'em soaking wet and just plastered with wet sand and clay.

I gave one glance at them bare legs and arms.

"For the land sakes!" I sings out. "Pull down your pants and your sleeves. You're burned to a blister already."

And so they was. Tender white skins like theirs, wet with salt water and out in that sun!

They pulled 'em down looking like they didn't know what for, and come hopping and groaning ashore. His lordship's back was so lame from bending over that he couldn't hardly straighten up without howling.

"Did you need the extra bucket?" I asks.

"Why, no, I believe not," says Hartley. "You see I dug for a while and then I went to look for better places, and James did the digging. We found holes enough, but they didn't seem to be the right kind. Worms, did you call those things? Sea serpents, you meant, I guess. I never saw such creatures. And there was one place where there were millions of holes, but chockful of crabs."

"Um-hum," says I. "Fiddlers. You must have gone plumb up into the march bank to run into them."

"They was 'orrid things," says Lord James, rolling his eyes. "And they 'ad claws and swarmed over my feet. I give you my word I was that—"

"That'll do, James," says Hartley. "Well, I was successful at last, skipper. Struck a place where clams were actually in layers just under the sand. We turned 'em over with the hoes like winking. I pointed 'em out and James picked 'em up. Just look at those buckets, will you?"

I looked at 'em. There was three buckets chock, frimming full.

"Good land of love!" says I. "Them ain't clams—they're quahaugs."

"There're clams in New York," he says.

"Maybe so," says I. "We call 'em quahaugs here. And there's no quahaugs in this part of the bay unless they've been bedded. Was there any marks around 'em?"

"There was a lot of sticks stuck up around," he says, "but we knocked those out of the way."

"You did?" says I. "Did you leave any of the—what you call clams?"

"You bet we didn't," says he. "We took the last one. Had too much trouble finding 'em to leave any."

"Humph!" says I. "That's nice. You've cleaned out somebody's private quahaug bed. Them quahaugs was all brought over by somebody and planted where you found 'em. The sticks was to mark the place."

"You don't mean it?" he says.

"Yes, I do," says I. "I cal'late we'll hear from them quahaugs afore long."

And sure enough we did, but that comes later.

On the way up to the house I turns to his lordship, who was limping barefoot over the beachgrass stubbles, and says I:

"Ain't clamming fun?" I says.

"My word!" says he, but it expressed his feelings all right.

All the afternoon the clam hunters kept getting lamer and lamer and sorer and sorer. Their sun-burnt legs and arms was hurting 'em scandalous. Hartley flopped into a piazza chair and stayed there, and Lord James crept around with his limbs spread out like windmill sails. And every time he'd bump into a chair or anything you could hear him whoop to glory.

Van Brunt got home about supper time. Scudder rowed him over. I had the quahaug chowder made and he ate enough for all hands. Hartley was feeling too used up to relish it much, and his lordship didn't eat nothing. I let him off on the dish washing and he went off to the tail end of the veranda and went to sleep in a chair.

After supper Van told about his trip to Eastwich. Agnes and the Talford girl was well, he said, and they and their bread. All tribe was coming to the island next day for a picnic.

"By the way, skipper," says Van; "Scudder says he brought some presents for us last night after we went to bed. Where are they?"

Thunderation! I'd forgot all about them "presents." I'd felt like an undertaker when I laid 'em away in that drawer, and now I felt like a grave robber as I dug 'em up again. I spread 'em out on the table, coffin plates in the middle and wreath on one end and "What Is Home Without a Mother" on t'other.

You'd ought to have heard them Heavenlies laugh! Nate's presents certainly made a hit. Van he just laid back and roared.

"Oh, by Jove!" he says, panting. "This is too good! This is lovely. Shades of Hannah Jane Purvis! Martin, how the widow of the man that didn't feel like beans would have appreciated these, hey? This—this would have been her idea of an art gallery."

"Pack 'em away again, Sol," says Hartley. "Now that the relatives have had an opportunity to view the remains, the funeral may go on. Bury 'em quick."

"Bury 'em?" says Van. "Not much. They're too dreamily beautiful. Martin, I'm surprised at you. What is home without a family vault, anyway. And yet— Hold on!" he says, holding up his hand. "I have an idea. We'll give them to James."

"To James?" says me and Martin together.

"Of course, to James. James is funereal and solemn and dignified. They ought to appeal to his taste. They're right in his line. We will decorate James' room with 'em. What is it they were warranted to do, skipper, when 'sfrung up around?' Oh, yes! to be sure. 'Take away the bare look.' James' room is bare, now that I think of it. Come and join the Memorial Day parade, Martin."

He was out in the kitchen getting the hammer and nails and string. Going to decorate the valet's bedroom right off. Hartley laughed and said: "Oh, let the poor devil alone, Van. He's had troubles enough for one day." But you couldn't stop that Van Brunt critter when he got started.

He makes me load the presents in my arms and takes the lamp and leads the way upstairs. And then he sets to work and hangs them presents round Lord James' room. He put the coffin plates over the washstand at the foot of the bed, and the wreath over the head, and hung the picture of Marcellus over the looking-glass and the shell work by the closet door.

"Now," says he, "for the motto—the crowning touch. Where? Where?"

Finally he hung it on top of the bureau.

"Perhaps," says he, "its influence may make James more motherly; who knows?"

Then we went downstairs and he made me promise to say nothing. Then he was for waking his lordship up and ordering him to bed right then, but his chum wouldn't hear of it. Martin said let the poor fellow have his nap out. He knew how he felt. So Van give in after awhile.

Pretty soon Hartley got tired of waiting and said he was going to turn in; he was played out, he said. Van wanted to wait longer, but he didn't. He went to bed, too. At half-past ten or so my round of chores was done and I sung out to Lord James to wake up and come in because I wanted to lock up. But he wouldn't.

"Let me alone," he says, pleading. "I'm 'appy for the first time in 'ours. I'll lock up, myself, by and by," he says. So I left him out on the piazza and went aloft and turned it. And it didn't take me long to get to sleep, I tell you.

What woke me up was a howl like an engyne tooting. I bounced out of bed like I had springs under me, instead of corncobs and ropes.

Then comes another screech. Then a smashity—bang—smash! Then more yells, and feet going down the hall and falling downstairs. Then a door banging and sounds like all the furniture on the island was being upset.

I lit a lamp and got out into the hall. There I met the Heavenly Twins just coming from their room. They was dressed light and gauzy, same as me, but Van had a revolver in his hand and Hartley was swinging a chair by the back.

"What on earth?" says Van.

"It's in the dining room, whatever it is," says I.

I grabbed up something to use for a club—it turned out later to be the littlest joint of Hartley's fish pole—and tip-toed downstairs to the dining room door. And that door was locked fast.

CHAPTER IX.

The "Fresh-Airers."

First I tried that door, then Hartley tried it, and then Van; each of us just as soft and quiet as possible. Then we listened. Not a sound.

Then Van catches me by the arm and begins to pull me and Martin back along the hall. When we got to the end, by the parlor door, he whispers, low and cautious:

"We must break the door down. It's locked on the inside. Better turn it lamp on the stairs. Better turn it down, too. A light gives the other man all the advantage if it comes to shooting. Now ready, when I say the word. All rush together. One—two—"

"Wait a minute," whispers Hartley —he was always cool-headed. "Where's James?"

"James?" repeats Van. "What? James?"

"James?" says I. And then I begun to get my senses back. Wake a feller up out of a sound sleep the way we was and it takes a few minutes for him to get on earth again.

"James!" says I. "I'll be—"

"Idiot!" says Van, speaking about himself, I judge. Then he walks down the hall and gives that door a kick.

"James," he sings out. "Is that you? Open this door."

For a second or two there wa'n't a sound. Then a voice says, weak and chattery: "O-o-h, my soul!"

"What's the matter with him?" says Van. "Is he hurt? Where's the key, skipper? Inside, of course. But—but where's the keyhole?"

Then I remembered. "There ain't any keyhole," I says. "There's no lock on the door."

"Then what—? Come on, Martin."

He set his shoulder to the door and commenced to shove. Me and Hartley helped, and the door begun to open. It opened slow, because the dining table and two or three chairs and the chest of drawers was braced against it. We got in finally.

"Bring the lamp," says Hartley. I done it. The room was empty.

"James!" hollers Van. "James!"

The closet door opens just a crack. Then it swung wide and his lordship, half dressed and white as an old clamshell, staggers into the room.

"Oh!" says he. "Oh, Mr. Van Brunt, sir!"

He was shaking like a palsy.

"What ails you, man?" says Hartley. "Speak up."

The valet rolls his eyes around to me.

"I seen it," he says. "I seen it plain. It's 'im!"

"Him? Who?" says I.

"The ghost. The old cove as owned this 'ouse. 'E was up in my room a-wait'ng for me."

"What are you talking about?" asks Van, impatient. I begun to see light, but the Heavenlies didn't—not yet.

"'E was up in my room, sir," said Lord James, wild like. "I 'ad me coat and waistcoat off, sir, and then I goes over to the mirror intending to see if me face looked as 'ot as it felt. And I lights my lamp and there 'e was a-glaring at me. 'E 'ad 'is 'ead through the mirror, sir. And there was coffins around, and wreaths. It's a warning to me, sir. I'm a dead man."

And then we began to laugh.

"The presents!" says Van, between roars. "Scudder's heirlooms. Ho! ho!"

His lordship stared at us like he thought we was crazy. I more than half pitied him. Martin did too, I guess, for he says:

"It's all right, James. Just one of Mr. Van Brunt's jokes. You see—"

"But I saw 'im, sir. 'E was there, and there was wreaths and coffins 'ung about, and—"

"It's all right," says I. "Here! come along and I'll show you."

But not one step would he stir. A derrick wouldn't have lifted him up them stairs. So I quit trying and went aloft and fetched down the crayon enlargement and the wreath. Then I set out to explain.

"Why, you imbecile!" says Van. "Where's your taste for art? We were beautifying your room. Taking off the bare look, as per Scudder."

James' color begun to come back. And when it come it come thick. He reddened up so you could see it even through the sun-burn.

"Mr. Van Brunt," he says, getting madder every minute, "I give you notice. I leave to-morrow morning."

"Don't be an idiot—" begins Van, but his lordship cut him short.

HE SENDS BACK MONEY HE STOLE YEARS AGO

Jacob Hahn, financial secretary of the Council, has turned nearly $700 in new bills into the treasury of Warren Council, No. 16, Junior O. U. A. M., of Washington, N. J.

Mr. Hahn received them in an unregistered letter a few days ago. An unsigned note accompanied the money. It was not dated nor was the postmark on the envelope legible. The contents of the note were substantially as follows:—

"Many years ago I was an officer of Warren Council, and during my term of office I appropriated funds of the lodge amounting to more than $600. Ever since then my conscience has bothered me, and I resolved to return the money. I have worked hard for years to save up the money, and at last I have accomplished my purpose, and I herewith take great satisfaction in returning to you the principal, with interest added at three per cent."

The bank notes are of Western banks and the letter is supposed to come from the West. No one seems to have known there was a defalcation, but the books are being gone over. It is reported that discrepancies have been found and that those making the investigation have a good idea as to who sent the money. It is declared the sender lives in Washington and not in the West, as was his apparent intent to make the lodge believe.

Warren Council is the strongest and second wealthiest Junior Mechanic lodge in the State. It has a surplus fund amounting to many thousands of dollars, and has nearly five hundred members. The lodge has just moved into new quarters, and the money so mysteriously received will be used in furnishing the new rooms.

GERM OF VANDERBILT RICHES.

Old New Brunswick Hotel Sold for $15 Back Taxes.

New Brunswick, May 16.—The Bellonia Hotel, at 9 to 13 Burnet street, this city, in which Commodore Vanderbilt laid the foundations of the Vanderbilt fortune, was sold at auction yesterday for $15. There are $15.66 back taxes due on the property, and the sale was subject to a dower right which would make the total cost of the property $45.99.

Commodore Vanderbilt was a boat-owner and hotel-keeper. While he ran his boat line from this city to New York, seventy-five years ago, his wife looked after the hotel. The Bellonia had many vicissitudes after the commodore dropped boating and went to railroading. He left New Brunswick about the right time, for since then the river trade here has declined, and with it the Bellonia, which stands near the steamboat dock. In late years the hotel has been used as a boarding house for foreigners.

THE COMING OF CHRIST

The Manner and Importance of it Discussed by Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring.

SEVENTH SERMON OF SERIES.

Large Congregation Hears the Discourse which Continues His Subjects on "The Apostle's Creed."

The manner and importance of the second coming of Christ was the basis for the seventh discourse on "The Apostles Creed," by Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring at the First Presbyterian church, last night. His theme was "From thence He shall come to judge the quick and the dead." The sermon was listened to by a large congregation and was full of interest. Dr. Herring spoke as follows:

"There is a time in the plan of God when our Lord who today is sitting at the right hand of the Father shall come again into the world. The manner of our Lord's Second coming will be outward and visible for the record is that this Jesus 'which was received up into heaven' shall so come as the disciples 'beheld Him going into heaven.' His coming shall not be in humiliation but in glory and every eye shall see Him.

"It is true that the disciples in the days of the Lord imagined His coming as not far distant. The Lord was picturing to them the destruction of Jerusalem and then, as not far behind it, the Second Coming and the Day of Judgment. When the disciples thought of it, they saw it all as one group of events. It was like looking at distant mountain peaks; they seem near together until you approach nearer, and then you see the distances between them.

"Scripture speaks of two kinds of comings of our Lord. Christ came on the Day of Pentecost. This is what our Lord meant when He said, 'I will not leave you desolate, I will come unto you.' Christ came at the destruction of Jerusalem, and in the great religious awakenings of history. It was said, that 'this generation shall not pass away until all these things be accomplished,' again we read of those who would not taste of death till they saw the Son of Man coming in His Kingdom. All such comings of Christ are typical and preliminary to the final coming. His final coming is represented as 'in the clouds of heaven with power and glory,' 'for the Lord shall descend from heaven with the voice of an archangel and with the trump of God.'

"As to the time of our Lord's coming, there is a variety of opinions. There is the doctrine of the Premillenial Coming of Christ. The principle points held by Premillenarians are these: Christ will come in the near future to establish His Kingdom on earth. Saints will then be raised from the dead aid govern the world with Christ. Jerusalem will be the centre of government, and then the Jews will be restored to their own land. The Millenium will begin after the coming of Christ, after which the powers of evil are to be loosed. There will then be a great battle between the forces of evil and the saints which will result in victory for the Lord's hosts; after which will follow the second Resurrection, that of the wicked, who will then be judged. This view is criticised because a double resurrection does not seem to be in the mind of our Lord or His apostles.

The great majority of Christians believe that the Millenium will come first and then Christ will appear; that this Millenium will be an indefinite period of time in which the cause of Christ will make great progress. The word Millenium means a period of a thousand years; one thousand is the cube of ten and is symbolical of holiness and blessedness. It may therefore, very naturally refer to an indefinite period of time in which holiness and blessedness are the great features.

They believe Christ is to reign during this period through the influences of the Holy Ghost. This theory interprets Revelation 20:1-10, symbolically instead of literary.

"Augustine in his 'City of God' thought of the Millenium as having been in progress since the presecution in the early days of Christianity. All these theories are fraught with difficulties.

"Yet this is true of the Second Coming, it is to be unexpected and sudden, 'in such an hour as ye think not.' Our Lord and His apostles spoke of it as coming as the lightning, as a flood, and as a thief in the night.

"Again the Scriptures make it clear that our Lord's Second Coming is conditioned on the zeal or faithfulness of His servants. We pray that that coming may be hastened.

COUNCILMEN PLEASED WITH DUST PREVENTATIVE

Councilmen Herbert Buxton, Charles C. Randolph and W. L. Gloak went to East Orange yesterday, where they inspected Munn avenue, which has been treated with a special preparation of asphalt, as a preventative against dust. The trip was made with a view to ascertaining whether it would be advisable to recommend the preparation for North avenue. The Councilmen were well pleased with what they saw.

The preparation has been on Munn avenue and seems to do all that is claimed for it. In addition to keeping the dust down, it also preserves the roadbed. It costs about five cents a yard to lay it on a pavement. It is possible that at the next meeting of the Common Council the committee will present a report on the subject with a view to having North avenue treated in accordance with a previous action of the Council, appropriating a stated sum for that purpose.

SEVENTH-DAY CHURCH MEN'S CLUB ANNIVERSARY

In connection with the annual meeting of the Men's Club of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, last night, features of a patriotic nature and appropriate to Memorial Day were enjoyed by a large audience. An orchestra comprising Nathan A. Wardner, clarionet; Starr A. Burdick, cornet; Clarence W. Spicer, soprano saxaphone; William Thomas, alto saxaphone; Dr. O. B. Whitford, baritone horn, and N. O. Moore, alto horn, rendered a number of patriotic selections during the evening.

A feature was the addresses by Dr. F. S. Wells, T. B. Titsworth, Lewis T. Clawson and Halsey Green, veterans of the Civil War, who related "War Stories," in which they each had a part. It was expected that Mrs. J. R. Truell, who was an army nurse, would also relate some of her experiences, but this was reserved to another meeting.

These officers were elected for the coming year:

President, William C. Hubbard; vice-president, J. B. Cottrell; secretary, N. O. Moore; treasurer, George M. Clark; executive committee, Dr. Marcus L. Clawson and Dr. O. B. Whitford.

The program was concluded with the serving of refreshments and a social hour.

ART PUBLICATION LAUDS LOCAL ARTIST.

In connection with the annual watercolor exhibit of the American Water Color Club Society, which opened to the public on Thursday, following the regular press view and reception on Wednesday in the Fine Arts Galleries in West Fifty-seventh street, New York, American Art News, under the caption "Places of Honor," has the following to say of Plainfield's well-known artist, George Wharton Edwards.

"It is difficult in a hasty review to do more than sketch the general outlines of the display and point out its salient features. The places of honor in the Vanderbilt Gallery, which by custom has come to be the centre of the north wall, are filled by two exceptionally charming works, that above by Ross Turner's southern river scene—a simple beautifully painted picture with a quiet river iridescent gray and blue in the foreground, with brownish green trees in the further distance, and overhead a quiet restful sky, and that below by a view of the famous terrace at Amalfi, Italy, by George Wharton Edwards. This charming work is brilliant and true in atmosphere, with a striking note of color in the crimson shawl of a young Italian peasant woman in the right foreground, walking towards the spectators. No more charming rendition of the beautiful Italian seacoast town which "sits bathing her feet in the tideless summer seas" could be desired. The picture will add largely to Mr. Edward's already high reputation."

MEMORIAL DAY PLANS

Winfield Scott Post Detail Completes Arrangements for Usual Observance.

EXERCISES IN REFORM HALL.

Counsellor S. S. Swackhamer to Be Orator of the Day—Parade Route Mapped Out.

The detail from Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., met Saturday night at Reform Hall to complete the arrangements for the observance of Memorial Day. It was decided that the veterans, as usual, will visit the public schools of the city and borough on Friday, May 29, and take part in appropriate exercises, and on Sunday night, May 24, the Post, Sons of Veterans and Women's Relief Corps will attend divine services at St. Stephen's church.

The Plainfield Band has been engaged for Memorial Day and will lead the Post and other organizations in the parade in the morning. As many of the veterans as possible will first go to Scotch Plains, where full Post services will be conducted at the cemetery there, under the direction of Commander J. F. Berg.

They will return to Plainfield in time for the parade. This will be shorter than usual, and the Plainfield Avenue Cemetery will not be visited owing to the fact that the line of march would be too long. Company K will, as usual, join the veterans in the parade.

The line will form on West Second street, the right resting on Central avenue, and will proceed to Front street to Watchung avenue, to Chatham street and the North Plainfield Cemetery, where appropriate services will be held. Afterward the parade will be continued through Chatham street to Somerset street to Park avenue to Second street and Central avenue, where the line will disband.

Public exercises will be held at Reform Hall in the afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, at which time S. S. Swackhamer will deliver the oration. There will be an interesting program, including varied exercises in which children will sing and the veterans will take part. Music will be furnished by the Plainfield Band. The public is invited to attend.

BOROUGH VOTERS FIX SCHOOL BUDGET TOMORROW.

The annual meeting of thel egal voters of the borough for the voting of appropriations for the public schools of that place for the year 1908-9, will be held at the Somerset street school tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. The amounts thought to be necessary, compared with the amounts voted last year, are as follows:

1907-8—Buildings and repairs, $1,500; current expenses, $21,500; manual training, $1,900; total, $24,900.

The decrease of $10,700 is made possible by the fact that the railroad tax for two years will become available after July 1 next. The first installment for the borough amounts to $6,400. In December the second installment of about $6,000 will be received. However, there has been a decrease of about $700,000 in the usual State appropriations, so that not all the railroad tax can be applied to a reduction of local taxes. After the coming year there will, of course, be only one railroad tax, which is expected to amount to between $6,000 and $7,000 annually.

Terrific Thunder Storm.

During the early part of last evening there was a terrific thunder storm in the vicinity of Lebanon, Hunterdon county, and at Lebanon, Sutton's general store was struck by lightning and the contents nearly ruined by the water which the neighbors used to extinguish the blaze. P. H. Latourette, of this city, who was visiting his brother at that place, was among those who rendered assistance. He described the thunder and lightning as being unusually severe.

Al. Sweet, Ringling Bandmaster.

Al C. Sweet, of Newark, who is well known to Plainfielders through his concert work here, is leader of the Ringling Brothers circus band. The organization numbers thirty-five men and the concert work is a feature of the big show.

MAYOR FISK SLATED FOR EXCISE APPOINTMENT

With the certainity that Gov. Fort will complete his appointments tomorrow there is considerable curiosity among politicans to know whom he will name for the members of the commission to examine into excise matters.

It was learned at Trenton today that the Governor has in mind United States Judge William M. Lanning as the head of this excise probe inquiry board, J. Kearny Rice, a former Judge of New Brunswick; Mayor Charles Fisk of this city, John Howe of Newark, and Counselor Michael T. Barrett, also of Newark.

The commission will be composed of seven members, and as yet no politician has mentioned any such men for the board. It is believed that the Governor will surely name some one from Atlantic City, and possibly some one from Camden. He may also not name Mr. Barrett of Newark and select a man from Morris County.

M'CALL SERVICES HELD IN TWO LOCAL CHURCHES

Services in the interest of the American Branch of the McAll Association were held at the Congregational church yesterday morning and at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church in the evening, when Rev. George T. Berry, field secretary of the American Association, told of the work being done in France.

In the morning Mr. Berry related many interesting incidents in connection with the work throughout France, his subject being "The Dawn of Religious Democracy in France." He spoke especially of the work at Limoges, where a mission is supported by the Plainfield Auxiliary of the association, giving all an excellent idea of the work being accomplished there by Mr. and Mrs. M. Canet, the missionaries.

In the chapel of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, last night, Mr. Berry gave an illustrated lecture on the topic: "Social and Religious Conditions in France as Seen with a Camera." The many views displayed by Mr. Berry showed the numerous mission stations in France supported by the association, and especially the one at Limgoes in which so many Plainfielders are interested. There were also views showing the children at the Limoges mission, together with pictures of Mr. and Mrs. M. Canet.

Perhaps, one of the most interesting features was the reference to the mission boats, two of which are maintained by the association in carrying the Gospel to people in the country districts of France. Thousands of Bibles are distributed in this way and the boats are so arranged that services can be held inside. Mr. Berry said that the missionaries never fail to have an audience. These boats are named "Le Bon Messager" and "Le Bon Nouvelle."

An encouraging part of the work as described by Mr. Berry was that in reference to the interest shown by Socialists, many of whom have been persuaded to attend the Gospel meetings and some of them have been converted. Mr. Berry explained that by the aid of a motor-cycle, furnished to Mr. Canet by a member of the Plainfield auxiliary, also a camera, he was greatly assisted in his work. Mr. Canet also has had great success in his efforts to advance the interest of the Anti-Alcoholic Association. Recently he was invited to speak in three public schools on this subject and as a result there had been many converts. Last year the Plainfield auxiliary contributed $1,150 toward the support of the McAll Auxiliary work in France, most of it going to the work at Limgoes.

Freeholders Offer $250 Reward.

The Somerset County Board of Freeholders has decided to supplement the $250 reward offered by the Warren Township Committee for the capture of the negro who murderously assaulted Mr. and Mrs. John Bussi at their home near Mt. Bethel, by an additional $250. The importance of this action was presented to the board by County Prosecutor John Reger. Every effort is being put forth to find the negro. The condition of Mrs. Bussi is such that today it was decided to remove her to the Somerset Hospital at Somerville. She has not recovered from the effects of the assault and the death of her husband.

HELD UP ON PARK AVENUE

Two Highwaymen Assault Edward Conway and Relieve Him of $60.

KNOCKED SENSELESS BY BLOW.

Crime Committed at the City Line and Local Police Are Working on the Case.

Returning home Saturday night from South Plainfield, where he had been making his weekly collections for the Prudential Insurance Company, Edward Conway, of 516 Arlington avenue, was held up by two strange men, who gave him a blow on the top of the head which made him unconscious, and then robbed him of $60. He was left lying alongside the road, and as near as he can judge must have remained in an unconscious condition for more than an hour. When he regained his senses he was just able to ride his wheel to town and he went directly to the home of Dr. H. H. Lowrie, who gave him treatment and then took him home, where he is still detained. He will recover.

The place of the attack was exactly at the county line on Park avenue, near the dense woods. Mr. Conway says that as he was approaching that point he noticed two men in the roadway, and they acted as though they were intoxicated. Afterward he decided that they must have been shamming. Just as he reached the strangers he heard a noise and for a second thought that one of the tires on his wheel exploded. It was the blow that he received on the top of the head.

That was the last he remembered until he came to more than an hour later in a dazed condition. The first thing he did was to go through his pockets to see if his money was safe. He discovered that all his cash, but ten cents had been taken. On account of the fact that it was about dusk when the assault was made Mr. Conway was unable to get a very good description of the men, in fact it is doubtful whether he could recognize them again.

Besides the severe blow on the head, Mr. Conway also received several scratches and bruises about the face and an injury to his right eye when he fell off his wheel. As soon as he reached Dr. Lowrie's house the police were notified of the hold-up and Chief Kiely has been working on the case. Thus far he has no clues and it seems to be doubtful whether the two men will be captured or not. It is the opinion that they made a hurried escape from this section after getting Mr. Conway's money. However, it is believed that they knew something concerning Mr. Conway, that he was an agent for an insurance company and was carrying collections made during the day.

Funeral Services of Woman Who Would Have Lived a Century by Next Month.

Somerville, May 18.—Mrs. Mary H. Cooper, whose funeral took place Saturday afternoon, would have rounded out a century had she lived until June 13. She was born in 1808 in the vicinity of Somerville, and had lived here ever since. Her maiden name was Smalley. Her ancestors came from England prior to the Revolution, and some of them were in Washington army.

Mrs. Cooper leave eight children, sixteen grandchildren and fifteen great-grandchildren. The children are Mrs. Marian H. Lanstaff and Peter Cooper, of Rahway; Mrs. Sarah E. Triangle Club Fooled 'Em.

Members of the Princeton Triangle Club, who apeared at the Kirmess Saturday night in the garb of young women, adjourned to the lobby of the theatre and to the alleyway, during the intermission, for a smoke. Inside of ten minutes afterward, compliments were pouring in from people not "wise," that girls were acting scandalous outside by puffing on cigarettes. The Kirmess committee was kept busy explaining that the "young women" had been doing the same thing for years and it was impossible to make them give up the weed.

$43,000 CLIPPED FROM SCHOOL MONEY ESTIMATE

The Board of School Estimate met Saturday afternoon in the office of Mayor C. J. Fisk to determine upon the amount of money to be raised by general tax this year for school purposes. C. F. Abbott, of the Board of Education; Councilmen Herbert, Buxton and Charles C. Randolph, representing the Common Council; Mayor Fisk and F. T. Woodhull were present. The last named is the secretary of the Board of Education, but not a member of the Board of School Estimate.

It was decided that the amount to be raised by general taxation this year for school purposes in Plainfield is $35,000, as against $78,00 last year. The difference is due to the amount to be received this year from the State railroad tax, and it is expected that it will be the means of lowering the tax rate a few points at least.

SAENGERBUND HOLDS POSTPONED MAY WALK

Starting at about five o'clock yesterday morning, the first and most ambitious detachment of May walkers, or the Saengerlund, went on foot to the Leopold Kuntz farm at the foot of the mountains near Sebring's Mills. The less strenously inclined majority made the trip by stage or by trolley, to Lincoln and on foot the balance of the distance.

At the farm were found ideal picnicking facilities and the Saengers and Turners with their families made the most of a delightful day. While no set program was followed, there were a variety of sports, from baseball for the young men, to blindfolded games of skill for the children.

All told, there were nearly 200 picnickers on hand to enjoy the annual outing to which all had been looking forward ever since the walk was postponed from the first Sunday in the month. A little anxiety was felt late in the afternoon when a black-looking shower showed up in the southwest, but it cleared shortly and it was after ten in the evening before the last of the crowd had completed the return trip.

SECOND BATTALION DRILLS AT WESTFIELD.

Company K took part in the battalion drill and instruction held at Westfield, Saturday afternoon, this being the second one held by the Second Brigade during the past year. The drill was pursuant to authority granted by General Collins, and Major W. B. Martin, formerly captain of Co. K, was in command. The blue uniform was worn and the soldier boys went through the drill in a highly commendable manner.

The Second Brigade consists of Companies I and C, of Elizabeth; K, of Plainfield, and M, of Somerville. The local company was in command of Captain H. B. Kitchell. The troops after arriveing immediately formed and marched to the tract of land on Mountain avenue, which runs back to Highland avenue and comprises about fifty acres. The work of the battalion was in extended order and advance guard and the exercises of the afternoon concluded with evening parade.

KIRMESS PROFITS $5,500

Record-Breaking Crowd at Last Performance Swells Grand Total.

STEEPLECHASE WINS CONTEST.

Proceeds from the Votes for Popular Dances Will Pay for Seventeen Beds at Hospital for One Year.

Plainfield's Kirmess for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital, the most successful affair of the kind ever given in the city, came to a close at an early hour yesterday morning amid scenes of the greatest enthusiasm. The New Plainfield theatre held a record-breaking audience and hundreds who came late were refused admission as a precautionary measure against accident. It has since been announced by Mayor Charles J. Fisk, the leading spirit in the enterprise, that the net profits will aggregate $5,500 at least and probably an even $6,000.

At the close of the customary program of dances, practically everybody in the theatre remained to see the finish of the voting contest for the most popular dance. This took up a great deal of time as the votes piled in with a new impetus when Mayor Fisk gave the preliminary warning that only a few more minutes remained to marshal the last stragglers. At about midnight the battle narrowed down to the Steeplechase, the White Hussars and the Pantomime, although the others continued to make an uphill struggle. Just as the bugler began sounding the final call, the White Hussars jumped to the lead by laying down 4,500 ballots but the tabulators had barely acknowledged the figures when E. S. Hooley, who stood back of the recording table, exclaimed:

"Five thousand more for the Steeplechase."

Almost the next instant the word "polls closed" was passed around and the Steeplechase was declared the winner with a total of 15,240 votes. Quite a few more were brought in afterward so that the total credited to this dance is an even 16,000. The White Hussars came second with 12,634 and the Pantomime third with 8,718. The total money aggregate from the contest is given as $3,325.20, which will pay for seventten beds at Muhlenberg for one year. The Steeplechase will have four named in its honor, the White Hussars three, the Pantomime two and the Rustic, French Dolls, Harlequin and Sailors will have one each. The others will be grouped for four beds. The complete vote, with the ballots turned in after the polls were declared closed, is announced as follows:

White Hussars	12,634
Rustic	4,015
French Dolls	4,000
Sailors Hornpipe	4,000
New Year's	2,307
Rainbow	2,192
Tarantella	2,092
Marsovian	1,936
Dutch	1,893
Indian Braves	1,844
Rosebuds	1,483
Swiss	1,283
Japanese	1,279

The attendance at the Saturday matinee was also very large and over a hundred people who could not purchase seats stood up in preference to going away. The program included two new dances, the Russian and White Dove, contributed by Elizabeth young people who are pupils of the Misses Florence. Both were prettily costumed and were accorded liberal applause.

At the evening performance, members of the Princeton Triangle Club gave two numbers, "My Dancing Class" and "A Lesson in French." They proved features of the program and were encored again and again. The make-up of the young men in girls' costumes was especially clever. The crush for seats at the closing can be better realized when it is stated that State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman and several friends paid full admission for a seat in the top gallery so anxious were they to see the final appearance of the dancers. They attracted as much attention from the regular patrons of "the lid" as the numbers on the stage.

In the aftermath of getting things put to rights after all the hustle and bustle of the past week, Mayor Fisk paused long enough this morning to say that he was highly gratified with the result and that he wished again to thank all the people who had helped to make the Kirmess a success.

"There were so many," he said, "it is almost impossible to individua-

ALL ROTHERHAM'S WAY.

Jersey City, May 18.—Harmony prevailed at the two Republican conventions held in this city Friday night. There was no chance for even a mild kick, for the handful of New Idea delegates elected at the primaries gailed to take part in the proceedings, and the followers of County Clerk John Rotherham had everything their own way. The conventions were for the Ninth and Tenth Congressional districts, and were for the purpose of electing delegates to the national convention.

Organization Leader Rotherham presided over the Tenth district convention. The delegates chosen were County Judge John A. Blair and Geo. Gonsales, a Hoboken saloon keeper. Henry Bell and Henry Frank, Jr., were chosen alternates.

David J. Allen was the chairman of the Ninth district convention. Joseph A. Dear, Sr., proprietor of the Evening Journal, and Prosecutor Pierre J. Garvin were elected delegates, with James Alerdice and Clarence T. Van Deren, of Harrison, alternates. Resulutions indorsing the Republican national and State administrations were adopted.

The delegates were not instructed, and Presidential possibilities were not discussed at either convention, though the resolutions expressed "the hope that New Jersey may have representation on the national ticket."

FLY-CASTING RECORDS BROKEN.

Dr. R. Johnson Held Surpasses Anything Ever Accomplished with Quarter-inch Bait..

New York, May 18.—Three world's records were claimed by the members of the Anglers' Club of New York in their third annual fly and bait casting tournament at the Harlem Mere in Central Park. The weather conditions were not at all conducive to unusual casting, variable winds affecting the flight of the lines, but this did not prevent Dr. R. Johnson Held from surpassing anything that has ever been done, so far as is known, in bait casting distance with a quarter-ounce bait.

At his first attempt he covered a distance of 141 feet, at his second 150 feet, and his last of the five tests netted him 161 feet. The previous American record for amateurs was 131 feet 6 inches, made outdoors, and 137 feet for professionals, made indoors. Dr. Held was not the only one to eclipse these records, E. B. Rice making a cast of 142 feet at his second attempt.

Ithaca, N. Y., May 18.—All records for seat sales for athletic events at Cornell were broken Saturday when Howard Cody, representing many wealthy fraternity men, on the campus, bought 200 seats for the observation train for the Cayuga Lake regatta on Memorial Day, at 9 o'clock Saturday morning. The boy had been in line for 100 hours, taking his stand outside of the ticket office at 5 o'colck Sunday morning and either staying there himself or being relieved by substitutes until the seat sale began this morning.

Twelve other messengers and newsboys who had been hired by Cornell fraternities to stand in line and who had been camping out all night for the few days, bought seats after him. They had erected bunks and seats, and stayed on the corner most of the time. Cody was paid $40 for his services, while the rest of the boys got from $5 to $10 a day.

JUST TOOK HORSE 'FOR A RIDE.'

Farm Hand So Declares When Cranford Man Accuses Him of Stealing Animal.

Cranford, May 18.—While Justice of the Peace and Mrs. Gideon E. Ludlow were attending a church supper in Westfield Friday night, Herbert Simmons, a farm hand, who had worked on his place for two weeks, took a saddle from his neighbor, Sylvester M. Scott, and taking one of Mr. Ludlow's horses, started for Newark. When Mr. Ludlow returned home he immediately started in pursuit of the missing animal.

Policeman Herman Redruf noticed a man riding a horse through town, and with Mr. Ludlow, started toward Roselle, where, at First avenue and Locust street, Simmons was overtaken, brought back to Cranford, and locked up.

Justice of the Peace W. W. Mendell arraigned the prisoner Saturday. He said he borrowed the horse to ride to eNwark for a visit to his relatives. The prisoner was commited to the county jail to await the action of the grand jury.

YOUTHFUL MURDERER GETS THIRTY YEARS.

Newark, May 18.—John Lukoszeviczius, 17 years old, was sentenced to thirty years in State prison by Judge Ten Eyck, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, Friday. Lukoszeviczius murdered Michatel Miszkunas, at St. eGorge's Luthuanian Hall, New York avenue, December 21 last.

The youthful murderer received his sentence calmly and smiled as he descended from the prisoner's platform. He was convicted of murder in the second degree by a jury Wednesday night.

Catchers are watching the bases, particularly first base, more closely this season than heretofore and making more putouts at the first bag.

The New York Americans are moving some in the bases—merely staying at one sack long enough to get ready to start for the next one.

"You will notice," says Jack Ryder, "that Johnny Kane's hits usually come with men on bases." That also is true of Al Bridwell.

"It is a shame for a player of Hofman's ability to be kept on the bench so much," says Billy Murray. Now, if there is anybody who has the right to make such use of Hofman's services as he sees fit it is Frank Chance. Other managers can get square by going out and digging up substitutes who are Hofman's equal.

The Cincinnatis have some fast men on the bases in Paskert, Huggins, Mitchell, Lobert and Kane, but a criticism made of the Reds' play is that not enough chances are taken on the bases.

Isn't Jimmy McAleer the facetious one? He says he wouldn't part with Tom Jones unless Griffith would trade Hal Chase even for him. But maybe Jimmy really would do that.

There are third base regulars in the big league ranks who haven't anything on Perring, Bill Bradley's Cleveland understudy.

Hank O'Day is benching players the moment they leave their position to start converse regarding a decision.

"Cobb," says a paragraph, "is the best man in the American League to stretch a hit an extra base and then get called out by the umpire." Nevertheless and notwithstanding, the National League would be better off with more base runers of Cobb's calibre.

Eddie Collins, the former Columbia University player, now with the Athletics, can reel off the hundred yards under eleven seconds.

One penalty of being such a good pitcher as Mathewson is that there is such an awful and prolonged gloating by the other side when you lose.

The Clevelands played to 25,000 persons in their three games, and one of the days was a bad one at that.

Among persons advanced by disgruntled ones as to why the New York Americans have been winning the real one, namely because they have been playing better ball than their opponents, is conspicuously missing.

Rabbit Slagle is to adorn the bench for a while and watch Artle Hofman attend to the wants of the midgarden.

President Murphy of the Cubs says he wouldn't protest a game no matter what happened. Good for Murph! There are protestors enough as it is.

GOLF.

The formal opening of the Park Golf Club was an event of interest on Saturday. Despite the recent hard rains which soaked the course it was in good condition and everything will be in readiness for the initial competitions next Saturday. There will be the usual weekly contests for the President's and club trophies, which were so popular last year. The tennis courts will also be opened next Saturday.

The New Jersey State Golf Association has issued an unusually attractive program for its ninth annual championship tournament, to be held over the links of the Englewood Golf Club, on June 4, 5 and 6. It will begin with a preliminary round at eighteen holes, medal play, the first sixteen to qualify for the succeeding rounds at match play for the title. The defeated eight of the first sixteen will continue for a gold medal, the second sixteen for a gold medal, and so on through four divisions.

There will also be a team match of four men from each club, medals and a banner to go to the winning combination. The qualfying scores will count for those engaged in the team competition. Match rounds will be at eighteen holes, save the finals, which will consist of thirty-six holes. Entries will close on June 1 with J. Whitney Baker.

This will make the association's third visit to Englewood. The tournament was first held there in 1901, when Allan N. Kennaday, of Montclair, won the title, and again in 1904. On that occasion Murray Olyphant, of Englewood, earned the chief honors. The present champion, Jerome D. Travis, of Montclair, won a year ago at Baltusrol.

The greens committee of the Morris County Golf Club has arranged for several holiday competitions. On Memorial Day, the Fourth of July, Labor Day and Election Day there will be eighteen-hole handicaps against bogie for two prizes presented by the club. The club championship, consisting of thirty-six holes, medal play, will also be played on July 4.

Members of the Eastern Trade Golf Association had to contend with a disagreeable rain while taking part in their annual spring tournament at the Fox Hills Golf Club last Friday, and the conditions were responsible for the limited field of starters. P. D. Garfield won the handicap with 177—8—169.

MRS. FITZHUGH LEE IN NEED.

Vain Appeal Made to the House for a Pension for Her.

An effective appeal was made in the House at Washington Saturday by Messrs. Richardson and Jones for a pension of $50 a month to Ellen Bernard Lee, widow of General Fitzhugh Lee. Mr. Richardson told the House that Mrs. Lee's sole support was out of the pay of her son, Capt. Fitzhugh Lee of the army.

Mr. Loudenslager said there were thousands of other widows of soldiers having the same claim on the Government who had no one to appeal for them. He was not opposed to an annuity to Mrs. Lee, but objected to a pension, as it would establish a precedent which would involve an expenditure of more than $200,000,000 a year.

KILLED BY A LIVE WIRE.

Employe of Copper Works Meets Instant Death by Electricity at Elizabeth.

Elizabeth, May 18.—Brite Betzonoeig, twenty-eight years old and single, was shocked to death Saturday morning by stepping on a live electric light wire in the southern part of this city.

An ambulance was summoned from the Alexian Hospital, but the man was dead when it reached the scene.

The body of the victim was removed to Stiner's morgue at Elizabethport.

He is said to have two brothers living somewhere in this city.

He was employed in the New Jersey Copper Works at Elizabethport.

ASKS TO BE LOCKED UP.

Tells Police He Fears He Will Hurt Himself or Others.

Trenton, May 18.—Claiming to be John Gibson, a Landsdown, Pa., real estate dealer, and declaring that his mind was giving away under business worries, a man walked into the Central police station here Saturday and asked to be locked up to prevent him from doing harm to himself or some one else. He was placed in a cell.

Later he told Chief of Police Hiner that he lived at 193 Owen street, Landsdown, and asked that his wife and business associates be communicated with. Then he sank back on a cot exhausted from excitement and went to sleep. His wife arrived at night and took him home.

Arthur Woodruff, of Westervelt avenue, has been detained at home by illness.

It can be hastened or hindered. It is therefore difficult to know the exact time of that coming when it is so conditioned.

"The Saviour confessed ignorance of the day and hour of His Second Coming; and if Jesus did not know the apostles certainly knew less. They did know the causes that would bring it about, and they saw the causes already working in the world.

"The Creed states that His coming will be for judgment of the living and the dead. That judgment day is not the day for determining destiny but the day for manifesting it. God's judgment is not an arbitrary thing. It is the lifting of the veil from our real selves. It is the time when we shall see ourselves as we are; when our consciences that have never been dead will be wakened; when we shall judge ourselves in the light of Christ's presence.

"Judgment then is 'the perfect manifestation of truth.' Single acts of sin are brought into judgment only as they reveal the sinful condition of the soul.

"But then that judgment is to be by man. Because He is the Son of Man, judgment is given to Him. Mark you then, the Judge of man is also man's Redeemer. It is not man's sin that is judged but his attitude towards it. Man is judged according to his motives; according to the current of his life; yes, judged according to the merit, love and mercy of Christ."

FOR A POSTOFFICE SITE.

Appropriation of $35,000 for Morristown Placed in Public Buildings Bill.

Morristown, May 18.—Word was receivde here Saturday than an appropriation of $35,000, for the purchase of a postoffice site in Morristown, hasc been placed in the public buildings bill to be introduced in the House of Representatives. If this passes an appropriation of from $70,000 to $100,000 will be asked for to erect a building.

The government demands when a building is erected that it shall not join or connect with any other building, and sites of that character are scarce here. One location for a public building that has been talked about is the Trimmer property, on South street. Other sites discussed are the Park house, the Dodge building opposite the Trimmer place, on South street, and the Sullivan building at the park and Market street.

Postmaster George L. Clarke is pleased by the prospect.

First Defeat for Clinton Avenue.

The Clinton Avenes met their first defeat of the season on Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon, when the Elizabeth A. C., triumphed over them by a score 6 to 5. The fact that Clifford Randolph, the regular pitcher, was unable to play, owing to an injury to his foot, was largely responsible for the defeat. However, Joseph Weaner, who was obtained on short notice, went in and pitched a good game. The fielding and batting of Barnes and Jack Martin were features of the contest. Errors at critical times on the part of the local team spoiled several chances to win out. The same teams will meet again on Saturday, June 6, when Manager Dorflinger hopes to turn the tables.

Several young members of a Philadelphia family that spent the past summer in the White Mountains were exchanging reminiscences of thier trip, when one of the girls exclaimed:

"Oh, Tom, do you remember that gorge in Jefferson?"

"Do I remember?" repeated Tom. "Sure! You mean the day we got there. It was the swellest dinner I ever had in my life. I was so hungry!"—Lippincott's.

Patience, Indeed.

"Have you much patience?" asked St. Peter.

"Patience?" echoed the Chicago man. "Why I have stood behind a woman in one if those umbrella hats while she fumbled for a nickel on the platform of a pay-as-you-enter car."

"Enough! Enter, my son."—Chicago News.

The New China.

There is no longer any doubt, our Shanghai correspondent tells us, that the old order of thought which has guided the lives of countless millions in the Chinese empire through a long succession of centuries is passing away forever. The movement in favor of western education has become irresistible.—London Times.

Literal Interpretation.

"So you don't believe in the story of Jonah and the whale?"

"No," answered Mr. Meekton thoughtfully.

"How do you suppose it originated?"

"Well, I suppose Jonah had been away from home for some time and had to tell his wife something."—Washington Star.

Never.

"Are there depths," moaned the pessimist, "to which human depravity will not sink."

"There are," responded the optimist firmly. "I never knew a man to root habitually against the home team."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Way For Two.

Though Love, they say, will find the way,
There's one thing may delay it:
The lover's mind is taxed to find
The wherewithal to pay it.

The Angler.

The angler angles all day long.
The fish bite mighty fast.
He grimly baits his hook until
He's up against the last.
Then, cursing, he reels in his line
And rises to his feet,
For of all the bites he's had today
There's not one bite to eat.
—Lippincott's Magazine.

Anything to Oblige.

Farmer—Have you seen my bull?

Golfer—Gracious me! No! Where is he?

Farmer—That's just it: he's got loose, and we want to find him. So if you meet him you might just keep on that there red coat 'o your'n and run this way!—London Opinion.

How He Got It.

"Had comp'ny fo' dinnah yisti'dy. Mah husban' stopped at Mr. Green's store Saturd'y ebenin' an' done got a fine Spring chicken."

"Yaas?" replied the jealous neighbor. "Dat Mistah Green sho' is de mos' keerless, onsuspectin' man!"—Philadelphia Press.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

One of the interesting figures of the New Plainfield Theatre Stock Company, opening with Miss Alberta Gallatin tonight, is Mr. Frank Young, an actor of wide experience. Mr. Young was one of the great "Earls of Dorrincourt," in "Little Lord Fauntleroy," playing the part over 500 times. He created Lige Monroe in "We-uns of Tennessee," Major Crofton in "Under Southern Skies." He has been on the stage some thirty years. Such an acquisition to a company should at once gain the respect of theatregoers, but the whole company is excellent.

Not speaking.

"That girl doesn't speak to me if she can avoid it," said the man with a grouch.

"You should have more pride than to resent it."

"I can't help resenting it. She's the telephone operator."—Washington Star.

SWEDISH CONGREGATION CONCLUDES ANNIVERSARY.

Yesterday was a day full of interest and encouragement for those present at all of the services to take part in the festivities attendant upon the observance of the tenth anniversary. Services were held morning, afternoon and evening with addresses and sermons by Rev. C. G. Ellstrom, of Brooklyn; Rev. O. G. Norseen, of Worcester, Mass., and J. Mettberg, of Ridgefield.

Special music was rendered at all of the services and the one last night was so interesting that it extended until long after 10 o'clock. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Englund, and his people feel much encouraged for the future success of the church.

Preached Able Discourses.

Rev. Mark A. Denman, of Springfield, Mass., who occupied the pulpit at Trinity Reformed church, yesterday morning and evening, in exchange with Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, acting pastor, preached well written sermons at both services. His morning topic was Christ's farewell words to His disciples, as uttered by Him in the "Comfort" chapter, John fourteen, his text being taken from the eighteenth verse: "I will not leave you comfortless; I will come to you." He dwelt on the fact of Christ as a Comforter, and described His personal relationship. He said that Christ is not a Comforter to sinners, but a fear. There is no comfort if you do not believe, were some of the strong points of Rev. Mr. Denman's discourse. At the evening service Mr. Denman's discourse was an able defense of Mary, who was accused of wasting her box of precious ointment when she annointed the Saviour's head. His text was Matt. 26-7.

SIRES AND SONS.

General James Evelyn Pilcher, editor of the Military Surgeon, is the new director general of the National Volunteer Emergency corps.

Jem Mace, who is seventy-six years old, is at present touring with a circus in England, where he is giving exhibitions of his skill at fisticuffs.

W. W. Thurman, of Atlanta, Ga., a blind cabinetmaker, has received as a present from a Sunday-school a Bible with raised letters weighing 150 pounds.

The thirteen-year-old son of Gilbert Schoppe, of Sprague Falls, Me., has a remarkable school record. This scholar, according to the teacher's reports, has been attending school since his fourth year and has never missed a day.

Nathaniel Whitman, a venerable New Yorker, who has been living for thirty-four years at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, New York city, was one of those compelled to move in consequence of the intended razing of the building. It is believed Mr. Whitman holds the record for long habitation in one hotel.

The famous English singer Sir Charles Santley is now in his seventies and working harder than ever. "I should be good for nothing," he said the other day, "if I had not work I am bound to do." He may yet rival the famous singer Garcia, who died lately at the age of 101. Singing when coupled with steady habits seems to favor longevity.

Henry Watterson, the famous Louisville editor and one time congressman, was born in Washington, passed his youth there and was a page in the house when ex-President John Quincy Adams served as a representative, and it is an interesting fact that the lad was at Mr. Adams' side when he was death stricken and assisted in caring for him.

THE GAMY TROUT.

It spawns on the reefs.
It is found on both continents.
It is now artifically propagated.
It belongs to the same genus as does the salmon.
When transported to warm waters it becomes fat and lazy.
Mr. Fisherman likes it because of its very sporty proclivities.
It is at its splendid best in cool, sparkling mountain streams.
There are many varieties in both western and eastern waters.
It is omnivorous. Everything from jacknives to corncobs has been found in its stomach.—Philadelphia Record.

CURRENT COMMENT.

The only way to tame that fellow Castro would be to import, naturalize and assimilate him and then elect him to Congress.—Philadelphia Ledger.

For a fleet that was said to be full of blowholes and other infirmities the American battleships are giving a pretty fair imitation of seaworthiness.—St. Louis Post-DOispatch.

And now a physician comes forward to say that "that tired feeling" is hereditary. It is pleasant to live in an age when it is possible to blame so many of our faults and failings upon our ancestors.—Baltimore American.

GERMAN GLEANINGS.

Glass telephone poles re-enforced by wire are being used in some parts of Germany.

By order of the Emperor William the trousers of seamen of the German navy are in future to be made about two centimeters wider.

A dump tramp has been arrested in Berlin for begging. He used a phonograph, visiting private houses only, where his machine poured out a heartrending tale of its owner's misfortunes.

The Eagle and the Lion.

A young curate who was showing an American girl through an old English cathedral enjoyed her appreciation of ah andsome lectern. The Bible rested on the outspread wings of a powerful wrought bronze eagle. At the base of the lectern another symbol of the gospel was presented in the form of a great lion.

The clergyman yielded to the temptation to banter the fair visitor a bit.

"We have a lion to watch the eagle," he remarked.

"Yes," flashed the answer, "but the eagle stays on top."—Harper's.

"Oh," exclaimed Miss Gusch at the are exhibition, "here's a clever thing in oil, 'When the Cat's Away!' It isn't signed. I wonder who painted it?"

"Evidently a woman," replied Mr. Shoude. "Look at the mice. See what a ferocious expression she has given them."—Philadelphia Press.

Something Sweet.

Clementine—If you should dare to kiss me I should say, "Oh, sugar!"

Clarence—And I guess I'd say the same.—Detroit Tribune.

The Moth's Appetite.

The buxom moth we wonder at.
It certainly seems droll
That it should grow so very fat
And simply eat a hole.
—New York Times.

Unnecessary.

"How do you shoot craps—with a gun?"

"No; a gun is unnecessary. The dice themselves are loaded."—Cleveland Leader.

SHORT STORIES.

The pineapple is said to be the most profitable fruit in Florida. Grape fruit comes next.

Louisana has a steel sawmill with a capacity of 600,000 feet a day, which is said to be the largest in this country.

The Hudson Fulton celebration committee in New York decided to change the date of the celebration from September 18 to Stepember 25, 1909, to insure probability of good weather.

The royal northwest mounted police after two years' work have cut an eight foot trail from Peace river through the Rocky mountains to the Yukon, giving a route from Edmonton to Dawson entirely over Canadian territory.

Middleton island, in the gulf of Alaska, near longititude 146 degrees and not far from the entrance to Prince Wiliam sound, is becoming known as a garden spot. Last winter there was no snow, and grass was green every month.

A rainbow before sunup was seen in York, Pa., one morning recently. The rainbow was perfect in form, very distinct and was spread across the heavens in the northwest. This atmospheric phenomenon vanished, however, in about ten minutes.

THE COOKBOOK.

Melted butter is a very good substitute for olive oil in salad dressing Many prefer the butter to oil.

Turnips boiled in their jackets like beets are much better than when pared. Adding a little sugar to the water will correct any bitterness.

Fish that is to be fried should be ordered to be sentearly, as it cooks much better if previously rolled some time in a clean cloth to insure perfect dryness.

Scoop out as many large lemons as there are guests, scallop the edges and fill the cups with French peas mixed with a stiff mayonnaise. Arrange the lemons on crisp lettuce leaves and serve with cheese and crackers.

A woman who is past master in sandwich making prefers fried ham to boiled for sandwiches. She cooks the ham slowly in the frying pan, giving it pust enough browning to it by grinding to a veritableowp it by grinding to a veritable powder and mixes it with mayonnaise.

CHURCH AND CLERGY.

Welsh Congregational churches are now valued at about $9,200,000, on which there is a debt of about $1,600,000.

The Scottish Episcopal church is a comparatively small one in point of numbers, but it has a penny newspaper to keep its adherents in touch with the church.

Of the twelve memorial windows given the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception at Mibile ten have been completed, but it will be another year before all are ready.

Father Ehrle, director of the Vatican library, is a German and a Jesuit. He is said to be the supreme authority on the care of books and on the perservation and restoration of old manuscripts.

SPORTING NOTES.

Hughey Jennings' new war cry is said to be a choice of blend between the last mutterings of a slowing up locomotive and the yell of Geronimo after scalps. That ought to supplant "Ey-Eah."

Hamilton, the University of Louisville runner, turns out to be an ex-western college champion in the 100 yards. He is training for the Olympic trials and hopes to make the team. He has done ten seconds.

Joe Delehanty, brother of Jim, once of the Cincinnati Reds and many others, is said to be sure of his job in the outfield of the St. Louis Cardinals. He is said to more closely resemble his brother, the late Ed, than any other member of the family.

SCRAPS OF SCIENCE.

Light passes from the moon to the earth in one and one-fourth seconds.

Astronomers tell us that in our solar system there are at least 17,000,000 comets of all sizes.

Saturn is nearly 900,000,000 miles away from us, and his rings, while 170,000 miles in diameter, are supposed to be only about a hundred miles thick.

The microbe fiend will be confirmed in his fussiness who learns that some hardy microbes can live over two centuries on the land and longer yet in the water.

The Rat in Paris.

Parisians have found a way of turning the rat into a profitable commodity. In that city there is a rat pound. It is a deep walled pit, in which some thousands of rats are kept. A dead horse is thrown into this pit at night, and rats strip the carcess of its flesh. Once a month there is a general slaying of rats by gas. The rats are sleek and plump and their hides are in excellent condition. Their skins are removed and treated and eventually are made into "kid" gloves.

"Because I can hear him crack them."—Boston Transcript.

"I leave to-morrow morning," he shouts. "Ain't it enough to bring me to this Gawd-forsaken 'ole and work me 'alf to death and blister me from 'ead to foot, without this? I give you warning now. I'm going 'ome. And you be glad I ain't 'aving the law on you for this outrage. Us poor servants 'as rights, and—"

There was more, plenty more. We couldn't shut him up. And the Heavenlies' explanations didn't count either. He was dead set on leaving in the morning.

Finally, we give it up and went back to bed. Lord James said he was going to stay in the kitchen all night. Nothing would hire him to sleep in Marcellus' receiving tomb again.

"Humph!" says Hartley, as the Twins went upstairs, "it looks to me as if your joke had lost us the best valet you ever had, Van."

Van cussed under his breath. "He shan't leave," he said. "I must keep him somehow. He's invaluable in the city, and we may go back there some time. Not for months, though, of course," he adds.

But in the morning James was worse set than ever. He wouldn't help with breakfast nor nothing; went aloft at daylight and begun to pack his trunk. He was going to leave, that's all there was about it.

The Twins was pretty blue during breakfast. Van about losing his lordship and Hartley on account of sunburn, I cal'late. 'Twas another elegant day and there was wind enough to keep the flies and mosquitoes away from the house. If you got in the lee anywheres, though, they was laying for you in droves. They didn't bother me much, 'count of my hide being tough and leathery and my flavor too salt maybe; but they was fattening up fast on the Heavenlies and James.

About ten o'clock Scudder shows up with the first dory load of Fresh Airers from the Eastwich place. Miss Agnes come along with 'em. Then the second load come, cap'ned by the Talford girl. And then there was doings.

Them Fresh Air young ones wa'n't all of a piece with Redny, which was a mercy. He was a handful in himself, that little sorrel-top was—but there was enough like him to keep things stirred up. Marcellus' old shingled prison had to take it that day. There must have been some stewing in Heaven if old Lady Berry could look down and see them youngsters whooping and carrying-on in the front parlor. In Mrs. B.'s day that parlor was a kind of saint's rest, as you might say, and the only time anybody opened its door was when she sailed in with the broom and feather duster. And then she must have had to navigate by compass, because the blinds was always shut tight and the curtains drawn and 'twas too dark to see anything.

Hartley looked out for the children and Van Brunt piloted the two girls over the place, pointing out where the garden was going to be some day, and where the hens was likely to roost and the pig to board. They seemed to be as pleased and tickled as he was, and thought everything was "lovely" and "just too quaint and dear." I was busy cooking and Lord James sulked out in the barn. He couldn't get away until late afternoon on account of the train.

Redny stuck to Hartley like a mud-turtle to a big toe. He was right at his heels all the time. By and by the pair of 'em come out in the kitchen to see me.

"Hello, Andrew Jackson," says I to the boy. "How do you like this part of the country?"

"Great!" says he, his eyes snapping. "Gee, ain't we having the peach of a time!"

"Must feed you well over there," I says. "Seems to me you're getting fat already. Board's up to the mark of the Newsboys' home, ain't it?"

"You bet!" says he. "Chicken, and pie, and all the milk you want. And cream—aw, say!" and he smacked his lips.

"How'd you like to live here all the time?"

He shook his head. "Naw," he says. "Too still. Sometimes I can't sleep good 'cause it's so still. No El, nor whistles nor fights nor nothing. And no Chinks to chuck rocks at. Miss Agony won't let you chuck rocks at folks anyhow."

"Don't you wish you was back in New York with your dad?" I says.

"Not much," he says. "The old man used to club me too good. When he was full I'd get a belting most every day."

I looked at Hartley and he at me. Poor little shaver! It's when I see how some folks treat children that I get to thinking I could make a better world than this is.

"Going to run away again?" I asks, after a minute.

"Naw," says Redny. "Not while I'm down here. Miss Agony cries over me and I'd rather be licked any time than that."

"I Give You Warning Now, I'm Going 'Ome."

Hartley rumpled the youngster's hair with his fingers.

"Sol," he says, "there's good here if you can get at it. Too much good to be running to waste. Ah, hum! Must be rather pleasant to have one or two of your own; must make life almost worth living. That's where you and I have missed it."

"You've got plenty of time yet," says I. "Maybe you'll be down in these diggings nine or ten year from now with a family of your own."

He smiled, kind of sad and one-sided. Then he got up and walked out to the piazza. Redny hung around a spell, long enough to ask a couple million questions. Then he went into the parlor with the rest of the young Injuns.

Pretty soon I heard some one speak. I looked through the doorway and see the Page girl coming up the porch steps alone. Hartley stood up and lifted his cap.

"Where's Van?" he asked.

"He's down on the beach with Margaret. I came back to look after the children."

"They're all right," says Martin. "Playing games in the front room."

Agnes stopped for a second in the doorway. "I don't just understand," she said, hesitating, "why you are here. Is it true that your health is bad?"

"No," he said, with a little laugh. "I did feel rather gone to seed before I left town, but now I'm having the time of my life."

"Indeed?" says she. "So far from Wall street? I'm surprised."

He didn't seem to answer—leastways I didn't hear him. Next thing I knew he was standing on the top step.

"Please excuse me," he says, pretty frosty. "I must speak to James."

He went off down the steps and out of sight. She stood and watched him a minute, and I thought she looked puzzled—and solemn. Then she went into the parlor.

We had dinner out doors on the piazza. While it was going on the grown-ups didn't do much talking. It's precious little fun trying to talk against a typhoon and an earthquake mixed, and that's what them Fresh Air young ones turned that meal into. 'Twas "Hurrah boys! Stand from under!" from the beginning. When I wa'n't filling up fish plates I was dodging potato skins and similar bouquets. They didn't fire 'em at me, you understand, but it's always the feller that's looking on at the row who gets hit. Redny was cap'n of the gun crew. He could chuck a potato skin with his left hand and eat with his right and look pious and shocked all at the same time.

When the juniors was filled up—and it wa'n't no slouch of a job to get 'em filled—they went off to start a riot somewheres else and the Twins and the girls had a chance. Van got to telling about Scudder's presents, and he was funny as usual. That Margaret Talford would laugh until I had to join in just out of sympathy, even though I was up to my eyes in soapsuds and dishwashing. She was a jolly girl, that one; pretty and full of snap and go.

Nothing would do but them "presents" must go on exhibition. So Van lugged 'em down from James' room and lined 'em up on the piazza for inspection. He took a stick for a pointer and gave a lecture about 'em, same as if they was a panorama, pointing out what he called the "feeling" and "atmosphere" of the shell basket and the "perspective" of Marcellus in the crayon enlargement. He had a good time and so did everybody else, especially Miss Talford.

By and by she clapped her hands. "Oh!" says she, "I've got an idea. Did you say your man was going to leave you, Mr. Van Brunt?"

Van heaved a sigh. "Yes," he says. "I believe he is. I fear that James hasn't the artistic temperament. I confess I'm disappointed. He certainly looked as if he had it; he was sad and soulful and—and—dyspeptic. But no; even the 'Motherless Home' didn't appeal to him. He says he's going to-night."

"I wonder if he would come over to the school?" says she. "We need a man there, don't we, Agnes? To help about the place and look out for the boys, and to—well, to protect us."

"Lucky James!" says Van. "But why James? Won't Martin here do—or—excuse my blushes—myself?"

But the Talford girl laughed and said he wouldn't do at all. He lacked dignity, she said, and didn't look the part. She asked Miss Page if she really didn't think that James would be just the man for them. Agnes said perhaps he would. So the four of 'em went away for a walk on the beach and to talk it over.

I'll bet I called that valet anything but a chuckin member and a good feller a dozen times over while I was diving into them dishes. I washed and washed till, seemed to me, I was soaked out fresh enough to bile, like a pickled codfish. And when the washing was done there was the wiping. I laid out a bale or so of dish towels and pitched in.

Pretty soon somebody says: "Mayn't I help?"

I swung around and there was Agnes Page. Nice to look at, she was, too.

"Can't I help you, please?" says she picking up a towel.

"Land sakes, no!" says I. "You'll spoil your fine clothes. Besides I've got sort of used to it by this time; my arm goes round of itself, like a paddle wheel."

She laughed and grabbed a chowder plate and commenced to wipe. She done fairly well for anybody who hadn't practiced much, but she never would have won the cup for speed. One dish every five minutes is all right, maybe, if you're getting paid by the year, but— However, I judged her ma kept hired help to home. I wondered what she'd done with Hartley.

By and by she says: "Mr. Pratt, how long do you expect to stay here?"

"Here?" says I. "On Horsefoot—on Ozone island? Land knows. Long's the Heavenlies—that is, long's Mr. Van Brunt and Mr. Hartley stay here, I guess. It's a restful place, ain't it?" says I, reaching for the next stack of dishes.

She smiled. "No doubt they find it so," she says. "How do you like the Natural Life?"

"Who—me? Oh, I cal'late I shall like it tiptop when I get a little more used to it—that is, if I last. I was oldest boy in a family of nine, and dad died young, so I was brought up Natural, as you might say. It's been some time, though, since I had so many hours of straight-along, pitch-in-and-hustle Naturalness in the day's run; been getting artificial and lazy of late years, I guess. But I'm tough, and I'll be all right and used to it pretty soon—getting lots of practice. By the way," I says, "who was it that sent 'em here?"

"Who?" says she, looking surprised. "Sent? I don't understand."

"Was Mr. Van Brunt and his chum sent here by the doctor, or who?"

"Why, I didn't know they were sent at all. I think they came here of their own accord."

"Humph!" says I, considering. "Was any of their folks ever took this way? Does it run in the families?"

That seemed to tickle her and I guess she understood what I meant. But she didn't answer the question; went on dry-polishing the pickle dish. Then she says, kind of accidental on purpose:

"Is Mr. Hartley's health improving?"

"Oh, yes!" says I. "He's picking up some, 'specially in his appetite. He ain't up to Van Brunt in that line yet, though. Van eats for three; Hartley's only up to the one-man-and-a-boy mark so far. He'd do better if he didn't have them blue streaks of his. Seems to have something on his mind."

"Perhaps he's troubled about leaving his business," she suggests, looking sideways at the pickle dish.

"Guess not," says I, looking sideways at her. "I don't think I've heard him mention business since he's been down. No, 'tain't that, according to my notion. He ain't in love, is he?"

She looked at me then pretty hard; but I was as wooden-faced as a cigar sign.

"Dear me, no," she laughs, brisk. "I guess not. What made you think that?"

"Oh, nothing," says I. "I ain't ever been took that way myself, but it seemed to me he had all the symptoms. Didn't know but he was fretting about some young woman. He's a fine chap, that young Hartley. It'll be a lucky girl that gets him."

She didn't say much more, but she looked at me every once in a while as if she was wondering. I never let on. I was as innocent and easy as the cat with the cream on its whiskers. I had a sneaking hope that I might have boosted Hartley a little mite, and I felt good down one side. Then I thought of Van, and I felt mean all up the other.

After a spell the Twins and Miss Talford happened along, and what a time Van Brunt made when he see his girl helping me wipe dishes.

"Well, well!" he says. "Is this the way you hurry back to 'see what the dear children are doing?' Sol, you old fascinator, how do you do it? Martin and I fell in love with him at first sight, Miss Talford; and now look at Agnes."

"Hold on there," says I. "Don't spread it too thick. I ain't got but one hat that'll do for Sunday, and I want that to fit me. I was giving Miss Page a few lessons in housekeeping, and you'd ought to thank me for that, Mr. Van Brunt."

It seems the Talford girl had seen James and he had agreed to go to Eastwich with 'em. 'Twas a good chance for him, a soft job and all that. Truth to tell, I guess he was kind of sorry about parting from Van altogether, the gleaning might not be so good in his next boss' berry pasture.

So about six o'clock Scudder come with his dory and the picnic broke up. The Fresh Airers were pretty nigh played out by this time. The smaller children was nodding with their heads on the shoulders of the bigger ones, and I even had to tote two of the littlest in my arms down to the beach. But they was all full fed and sunburned and dirty and happy, and they'd had the bulliest time in their poor, pinched-up little lives.

"Well, good-by, Andrew Jackson," says I to Redny. "Had good time enough to want to come again, have you?"

"Sure thing," says he.

"Like it as well here as you do over at the school?"

"Yup," he says. "Ain't nobody to plug potato skins at over there."

He was a smart little coot. Had the makings of a man in him if you dug down far enough to get at it.

Lord James comes down to the shore tugging his trunk behind him.

"So long, Hopper," says I. "Shall I give your love to Marcellus' spook if it comes gliding again?"

He looked at me very solemn. "You'd better come too," he says. "You take my advice and leave this blooming island now while you 'ave the chance. There'll come a time," says he, "when you won't 'ave it."

He climbed into the dory and set down all huddled up in the stern with his trunk between his knees. Scudder begins rowing and they moved off.

"There," says Van, referring to his lordship, "goes the final tie that binds us to a sordid past. Shall we sing 'The Last Link Is Broken,' Martin? Or have you something more appropriate to suggest, skipper?"

"I have for myself," says I. "It's 'Work, for the Night is Coming.'"

And I hurried up to the house to get supper.

CHAPTER X.

The Voyage of the Ark.

The Heavenlies was late down to breakfast next morning, owing, I cal'late, to the loss of Lord James. I could hear 'em hailing each other, asking: "What's become of my golf stocking?" and the like of that. Trouble seemed to be that they had too many clothes. If they'd been limited to one suit for Sunday and a pair of overalls to cover up the ruins the rest of the week, like I was, they'd have got along better.

But they was rigged at last and at breakfast was chipper as a pair of mackerel gulls. They commenced to talk garden. Consarn 'em, I hoped they'd forgot that.

"The loam business is all right, Sol," says Van. "Scudder will bring us loam at three dollars a boat load. He says it'll take about 15 boat loads."

"He does, hey?" says I. "At three dollars per? That's generous of him. Anything else?"

"Yes. He is to continue to bring us milk. We have decided that perhaps for the present we had better not keep a cow."

Small favors thankfully received. I was glad that milking wa'n't going to be added to the general joyfulness.

"I think that's a nice, far-sighted decision," says I. "Unless you could learn your cow to eat seaweed, I don't see—"

"Oh, Scudder could bring us hay," says Van. "And we could give the animal the spare vegetables from the garden."

"'Twould be a long time between meals for the poor critter, I'm afraid," says I. "How much is Nate charging for the milk?"

"Nine cents a quart. That's only one cent more than you have to pay in New York, and, when you consider how far he has to bring it, I call it dirt cheap."

Well, 'twas about as cheap as the garden dirt, but I didn't say nothing.

"We're going to raise chickens, too," says Hartley. "Scudder, so Van says, will sell us live Plymouth Rocks at 30 cents a pound. Skipper, you might fix up the poultry yard in your spare time."

In my "spare" time. There was a joke in that, but it wa'n't so intended.

Then Van Brunt began to preach "pig." Seems Nate had told him that the one thing needful to turn Ozone island into a genuine Natural Life was a pig, and of course he, Nate, had the only pig in creation that was worth buying.

"He showed it to me the other morning," says Van. "The prettiest little black and white fellow you ever saw, Martin. Miss Talford saw him yesterday before she came over, and she said he was a dear. You might be repairing a sty for him in your odd moments, Sol."

My odd moments, and my even ones, too, was pretty well filled up for the next few days. The Heavenlies loafed and superintended and smoked and fished and ate. All I had to do was to turn out with the gulls, and cook breakfast, and clear away, and wash dishes, and build hen yards, and fix up a leaky pig pen, and get ready them blessed gardens, and sweep and dust, and dig clams, and make beds, and get dinner, and sail a boat, and chop wood, and bundle up washing for Nate to take to Huldy Ann, and scour knives, and—and—well, there was plenty more. Seven or eight hundred odd jobs have slipped my memory.

The gardens was ready for planting on a Wednesday. Nate fetched over the last dory load of loam the night afore and I spread it afore I got supper. The chickens and the hog was to come on Thursday. I was to take the skiff and go after 'em, Nate being engaged to cart a carry-all load of boarders to Ostable. Huldy Ann was to have the live stock at the shore ready for me.

"How's the menagerie coming, Nate?" I asked. "In cages or on the hoof?"

"Oh, I'll box 'em for you, Sol," he says. "The hens in one box and the pig in another. The pig's pretty thin—I mean young, so he won't be no heft to you."

Y.M.C.A. PLAYERS GIVE HARLEMITES A DRUBBING

The local Y. M. C. A. nine journeyed to New York Saturday afternoon, where they gave the Harlem Branch of the Y. M. C. A. a severe drubbing, defeating the New York aggregation by a score of 21 to 11. The locals gathered in sixteen hits for a total of thirty-five bases, Banks and M. Miller being the star players. At the end of the second inning Scott left the box and Manager Listman twirled the next five innings, but could not locate the plate. He gave six free passes. Craig finished the eighth and ninth innings in the box.

This is the team's first experience at Van Cortlandt Park and no doubt the last. Polo games, tennis, cricket and a dozen other games, all trying to play in the same space, makes good playing very difficult. Automobiles would pass between pitcher and catcher during the game and never less than six balls on the diamond at one time, four games going on around and on the same diamond at the same time. Plainfield had ten earned runs and Harlem had but two. The score:

MONTCLAIR HIGH SCHOOL OUTPLAYED BY P. H. S

Inability to connect with the mysterious curves and benders of Chauncey Murphey, coupled with seven misplays, combined to cause the defeat of the Montclair High School at the hands of the Plainfield High School on Crescent Oval, Saturday. The final score was 7 to 2, and in consequence the local school boys are unusually jubilant. The Montclair High School team is considered one of the strongest in the State, in fact they claim the State championship for high school clubs, but they were outplayed here.

Aside from the pitching of Murphey, who had excellent control, the "candy boy" of the game was Snyder, who by his effective stick work, materially helped his team to win. Three times at the bat he cracked out a two bagger and then a three bagger, both when long hits were needed. Giddis, Riffert, Lidgate and Van Zandt each made a single. On the error sile, Giddis excelled, being credited with three misplays at short, which might have lost the contest under ordinary conditions. Altogether P. H. S. played like veterans and displayed more ginger than usual and the victory is one of which the boys can be proud.

Williams, who was on the slab for Montclair, was not nearly so effective, his opponents gathering six hits off his delivery, and besides he made two costly errors, as did also Brown at first base. Jenkins and Holton also helped to lose the game by making an error a piece. The local boys were credited with eighteen assists, while Montclair had fifteen, showing the amount of fast work in the field.

The detailed score follows:

LOCAL JUNIOR TEAM EASY FOR SCOTCH PLAINS

A wild throw by Albert in the third inning, was the only thing that prevented the 'Plains team from shutting out the Juniors of this city, in the game at the 'Plains, Saturday afternoon. Van Arsdale hit a slow infield ball toward third base. Albert picked it up and threw it nearly to Park avenue, Muir coming home on the throw and Van Arsdale going to third, scoring later on a single. These were the only two runs scored by the Juniors.

The 'Plains team, although without a regular pitcher, played a good game in the outfield and infield, giving Albert and Washburn, who alternated in the box, great support. But two errors were made. The Juniors supported Dodge poorly at critical stages of the contest. The final score was 9 to 2. The lineup and score by innings:

"HAS BEENS" DEFEATED BY THE HOPE Y.M. CLUB

Although the contest was a comedy of errors, both teams being guilty of numerous misplays, the game on Hope Common Saturday afternoon between the Hope Y. M. Club and the "Has-Beens," was full of interest. The final score was 18 to 16 in favor of Hope Y. M. Club. The "Has-Beens" used three pitchers, George Firstbrook, Archibald Hacquer and James Penny and then were not able to stop the fast playing of their opponents. Features of the contest were the playing of Hacquer and Firstbrook, and also Rev. L. R. Howard, who was at third base. Nothing passed him and he hit the ball every time he came to the bat.

The line-up: Hope Y. M. Club—A. Snyder, p. and capt.; Donald Mortimer, 3b; Frank Rimmer, ss; Hunter, rf-1b; Evans, 1b-rf; Gage, cf; Cose, 2b; J. Kenny, lf; H. Kenney, c. HOL CROSS DEFEATED BY THE HAMILTON A. C.

The Holy Cross team was defeated by the Hamilton A. C., of Rahway, at the latter place, Saturday afternoon, by the score of 4 to 3, in one of the best played games of the season. Ira Vail, pitching for the locals, held his opponents to one hit, while Holy Cross secured nine singles off of Rhodes. Four errors on the part of Holy Cross explains the loss of the game. INDEPENDENT GUN CLUB ARRANGING TWO SHOOTS.

At the monthly meeting of the Independent Gun Club tonight, the Board of Directors will take up the question of handicapping the different members who enter the trap-shooting tournament for the silver trophy presented by Schoverling, Daly and Gales.

The first section of this tournament is scheduled for Memorial Day. Each contestant is to shoot at 300 birds in blocks of twenty-five.

It is expected also that at tonight's meeting Dr. C. W. Leonard, of the club, will make a report on the proposed match between a rifle team from Company K of this city and a team composed of members of the Independent Gun Club.

If this match can be arranged, it will take place on Memorial Day also. The shooting is to be at 200 yards range on the grounds of the Independents and a compromise target will be used; a modification of the standard rifle target used by the army and the ring target which is the standard Schutzen target.

Curtis accepted five hard chances in left field, while Coon led in the hitting, making three safe swats.

Otto Knabe is playing great ball for the Philadelphia Nationals at second base. The lively little German covers lots of ground and is a great favorite with Quarker City fans.

Claims She was "Short Changed."

Mary Starr, a portly colored woman, was arrested by Special Policeman Berlowitz, Saturday night, on a charge of creating a disturbance in Ambrams' shoe store on West Front street. In the city court this morning she denied the accusation and asserted that a clerk in the store had attempted to "short change" her. Judge Runyon put the case over until Thursday morning while an investigation is made. The women's arrest upset the Saturday night trade in the business section and something like a thousand or more rubbernecks blocked the streets in their anxiety to get a look at her.

Says Ma Taught Him to Gamble.

John Conniski, Andrew Conniski and Joseph Hubbard, white, and Walter Wells, colored, all boys, were arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning on charges of shooting crap preferred by Patrolman Andrew Saffron. Wells startled the court by declaring that his mother had taught him the game and that it was customary to have a friendly throw of the bones after the evening meal. Sentence was suspended after the culprits were warned to confine themselves to crokinole, checkers and dominoes.

A Rose Matinee.

As a special feature of the Plainfield Stock Company's first week at the theatre, a rose matinee will be given Wednesday afternoon. Every lady attending will be presented with an American Beauty. The company's first performance in the city will take place tonight with "The Cowboy and the Lady" as the attraction.

Following this the pastor made a short discourse on "The more abundant Life."

7TH DAY BAPTISTS PLANS

Eastern Association of the Denomination to Convene Here on May 23.

A FOUR DAYS' PROGRAM.

Some Interesting Bits of History Concerning the Conferences of that Sect Which Is Strong Here.

The Seventh-Day Baptist Eastern Association will convene in Plainfield on Thursday, May 28, for a session of four days, the program for which will be announced next week. The association was organized in 1837 and held its first session that year with the New Market church. It comprised the churches of that denomination in Rhode Island, Connecticut, Eastern New York State to the Hudson River and New Jersey. Previous to 1837 the yearly gathering of these churches as a whole was covered by the annual sessions of the General Conference, which included all the churches of the denomination in this country.

At about the same time two other associations were organized, the Central, taking in the churches in New York State west of the Hudson River and east of the Allegheny county; an the Western, including all the churches west and south of that section. Since then, however, as the churches increased in number and became more widely extended there have been organized in the Northwestern, Southeastern, Southwestern and foreign associations.

Since its organization the Eastern Association has been held each year with one of the following-named churches: In Rhode Island, the First Hopkinton; Second Hopkinton, Pawtucket, in Westerly, and the Rockville; in Connecticut, the Greenville and Waterford; in New York State, the Berlin and in New Jersey, the Marlboro, New Market, Plainfield and Shiloh.

The Plainfield church was constituted in 1838 and was admitted as a member of the association that year. Of those whose names appear in the records of the first session of the association the following reminders will be read with interest by many Plainfield and New Market readers: Rev. William B. Maxson, Rev. David Clawson, Randolph Dunham, Sr., Phineas Dunn, Abram D. Titsworth, Isaac S. Dunn, Simeon F. Randolph, Pinkham Mosher, Lewis Titsworth, John D. Titsworth, Simeon F. Randolph, David Dunn and Isaac D. Titsworth.

HOW SHALL THE WOMEN SPEND TIME AND MONEY.

At the last meeting for the season of the Monday Afternoon Club, held yesterday in the Casino, the plan of study for the coming year was given, the general subject being "Our Country, a Century of Progress." The subject of the day's discussion was "How Shall Women Spend Their Time and Money." Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of New York, an honorary member of the club, led the discussion in an interesting paper.

She was followed by Mrs. Hugh F. Fox and Mrs. Dexter Tiffany, both of whom had papers full of wise suggestions. The general discussion that closed the meeting was animated and practical.

Small Fire; Lots of Excitement.

An awning at W. W. Warnock's store on West Front street caught fire shortly after 9 o'clock last night and resulted in an alarm being turned in. The awning was a wreck when the department arrived and what was left was quickly drenched. In sending the recall from the keyless box, Chief's driver, Daniel Keiderling, accidentally turned the crank and sent in a second alarm. It resulted in a big crowd of people hurrying to the business section under the belief that a conflagration was in progress. The awning was probably set on fire by a cigarette.

FREEHOLDERS PLAN ANOTHER BRIDGE HERE

Major King, director of the Union County Board of Freeholders, accompanied by Freeholders T. J. Pierson and S. P. T. Wilbur, the other members of the committee, inspected the Berkeley avenue culvert in this city yesterday, and according to the power granted to it, today advertises for bids for doing the work. Today Major King and Freeholders Adams, Murer, Wilbur and Engineer F. J. Hubbard visited the Johnston avenue bridge and decided to recommend that a new structure be placed there. A report wil. be presented at the next meeting of the board.

An inspection will be made tomorrow of Robinson's Run bridge, located between Plainfield and Rahway, which was built by the W. T. Kirk Iron Company for the Aqueduct Water Company, under the supervision of the freeholders. The committee comprises Major King, Freeholders Henry Krausse, C. A. Smith, T. J. Pierson and George B. Cladek. The structure is now completed and it is expected that it will be accepted tomorrow.

WILL STORES BE OPEN ON MEMORIAL DAY?

After a full discussion if the question as to whether the shopkeepers should close their stores or keep them open on Memorial Day, the Plainfield Merchants' Association, at its regular meeting, last night, unanimously decided to take no action, but instead give each member the right to determine the question for himself. It was the general opinion that action by the association one way or the other would only tend to complicate matters and for this reason it was thought best to leave it optional with each member to do as he pleases. It is expected that a majority of the shops will be closed.

The association received Milton Mindel at the meeting for the purpose of giving him an opportunity to explain his proposition regarding the automobile service to be established between this city and Metuchen. He presented the many advantages such a line would afford the merchants of Plainfield in bringing shoppers here, and while the members were heartily in favor of the scheme, it was thought wise not to give official endorsement until the proposed company is organized and is in more definite shape to do business. The rest of the evening was devoted to discussing matters of minor importance.

W. D. MURRAY TO PRESIDE AT PARENT-TEACHER MEETING

A meeting in the interest of the parent-teacher association will be held at the Plainfield High School tonight. The public is invited, it being desirous that everyone interested in the movement attend, particularly the parents of the children in that school. William D. Murray will preside. He has made a personal study of the subject and will be prepared to give some interesting facts.

The principal speaker will be Robert L. Burns, assistant superintendent of the public schools in Philadelphia, where there is one of the strongest parent-teacher associations in the country. He says that the movement has passed beyond the experimental stage and is now one of the most valuable aids to the proper training of children. It is also expected that Principal I. W. Travell will make a few remarks.

Nurses' Exercises.

At the anniversary and graduation exercises of the Training School for Nurses to be held at the Casino on Thursday night, an orchestra will furnish music during the exercises and play for the dancing later in the evening. The Muhlenberg Hospital Training School Alumnae will have charge of the dancing and the refreshments, as they did last year. All who are interested in the Training School and Hospital are invited to be present.

P. P. A. RE-ELECTS DEPEW

He Consents to Serve After Declining to Run, and Submits His Report.

DETAILS THE YEAR'S WORK.

Reviews the Past and Outlines Plans for the Future—Some Important Things Yet to Be Accomplished.

After two postponements, the Plainfield Protective Association held its annual meeting at the Casino last night. What it lacked in attendance was made up with enthusiasm and a large amount of business was transacted within a short time. President R. Henry Depew submitted a report covering the proceedings of the past year and the members took occasion to discuss city affairs in a straight-to-the-point way.

The following officers, presented by the nominating committee, were elected: President, R. Henry Depew; vice president, George Rogers; secretary, H. C. White; treasurer, George W. V. Moy; executive committee, D. M. Van Vliet, H. C. Decknatel, T. M. Day, John M. Whiton, F. T. Woodhull, Albert H. Atterbury, F. E. Kinsman and D. E. Titsworth. An amendment to the constitution passed later empowers the president to name various committees as the occasion requires.

When the nominating committee presented the list, Mr. Depew addressed the meeting and declared that he had decided to refuse re-election as it had ben stated a number of times that he had started the P. P. A. for the purpose of furthering his political ambitions.

"I have political ambitions," Mr. Depew continued, "but they are simply for the purpose of stirring up the people to take an interest in politics. As far as office is concerned, there is not one that I have solicited or canvassed for."

When the speaker had concluded, John M. Whiton addressed him to the effect that he was just the man for the place and that the members of the association wanted him to remain at its head. The ticket then went through as mentioned.

Following the election, Albert H. Atterbury took the floor and spoke in the warmest terms of Mr. Depew's work since the P. P. A. had become a factor in local affairs. He had used his wits with success against the Public Service Corporation and also the members of the city government, and was largely responsible for a number of improvements that had been brought about. Other members of the association spoke in a similar vein.

In a discussion of the appointment of committees, the president stated that his idea is to appoint one, for instance, to keep a watch on the street car service; another to see that all streets are put back properly when torn up for the laying of pipe or conduits and still another to attend council meetings in order that the association may keep well posted on the transaction of city business. He dwelt in particular on the street matter and mentioned a number of instances where carelessness had prevailed and that the public had suffered in consequence. One of these, he said, was in not properly guarding an excavation for brick work at Fourth and Sycamore streets and in which his own automobile had been overturned.

A resolution introduced further in the meeting reduced the annual dues to $2 a year and a special effort will be made to increase the membership of the association. It now numbers 150 and it was reported that there is $1,500 in the treasury. The report submittted by President Depew is as follows:

"The appointment as superintendent of the central division by the P. S. C., of Mr. E. C. Deal, who resides in Plainfield, is working to our advantage, as Mr. Deal is personally interested in making conditions satisfactory both in the lighting and commericial departmens of the company, and is working to that end.

"The improvement which has been brought about by the efforts of this Association are fully demonstrated by comparison of the lamps in use in our streets and those in other municipalities.

"I saw lamps in some of the best streets of Short Hills recently (one of them being upon a prominent corner) as black as ink and I have seen the same conditions to a greater or less degree in Springfield, Summit, Englewbod and other places.

"We again urge upon our members the advantage of reporting to the officers or executive committee any complaints as to bad service or seemingly incorrect bills and we would also suggest sending these to Mr. Deal personally if same are not satisfactorily handled by the departments.

REALTY MEN VISIT PLAINFIELD TUESDAY

As one of the members of the committee appointed by the president of the New Jersey and New York Real Estate Exchange for the proposed visit of realty men to Plainfield on Tuesday, Elston M. French is particularly anxious to obtain the co-operation of the officials and Board of Trade members to insure the success of the outing.

In speaking of the proposed tour on Tuesday, Mr. French said today: "The Plainfield Board of Trade has been kind enough to extend a cordial invitation to the members of the Board of Governors of the New Jersey-New York Real Estate Exchange, to visit Plainfield and vicinity, and being chairman of the Committee on Arrangements for the Exchange, I think it would be well to have the public understand the object of the invitation and of the proposed visit which will take place on Tuesday, May 26.

"The New Jersey-New York Real Estate Exchange was formed to advance real estate interests and values in New Jersey, particularly in the counties suburban to New York. It has offices in the McAdoo building, which are always open for New Jersey real estate men, to whom facilities are extended for closing titles, conducting auction sales, desk room and offices services for members, and reference to realty maps and records. The members of the Exchange are all interested in realty operations in this section, and the particular object in getting them to come to Plainfield is to have them acquainted with the attractions of this vicinity in order that they may give information to builders and real estate operators who are looking for new locations.

"A secondary reason and an important one, too, is the fact that they will bring with them real estate writers on most of the larger New York newspapers, whose articles on the visit and the real estate outlook will aid materially in advancing the interests of the city.

"Speaking as a resident of Plainfield, I trust all of those who are interested in its welfare will do anything in their power to make the visit a success. W. G. Besler, vice-president and general manager of the Central Railroad, has kindly consented to stop the 12 o'clock express from New York at Plainfield, and has offered to arrange with the superintendent of dining car service to have a luncheon prepared on the train, but I imagine the Board of Trade would prefer to have their guests entertained in Plainfield, in order that they may have an opportunity to become acquainted with them.

"Let it be thoroughly understood that any real estate owner or broker who has real estate for development, and who desires to have the guests visit his property, can do so, but as doubtless ten or twele automobiles will be needed to conduct the party, I would suggest that any person desiring them to visit his property should provide an automobile to pilot the party and carry some of its members to the land which he desires to show.

"The others members of the committee appointed by the president are Charles H. Hand, Edmund Rushmore and H. B. Welles, the last named of Cranford, formerly president of the Central Park Realty Company of this city.

"Any suggestions which may be offered by real estate owners or brokers will be gladly received. The sole motive in planning this visit is to assist in booming Plainfield and vicinity, the plan being to come here first and then go to Westfield, Cranford, Roselle and Elizabeth, in order that the guests may obtain an idea of the growth and improvement along the line of the Central Railroad.

"I trust the city and borough officials and the officers of the Board of Trade particularly will be on hand to greet the members of the Exchange upon their arrival at 12:42 on Tuesday, May 26."

Disturber Fined $1.

Petman Robinson, James Connett, Clarence and Horace Martin, small boys, were arraigned before Recorder Dolliver in the borough court, last night, on a charge of disturbing the Sunday evening service in Warren chapel by entering the vestibule at intervals and yelling. It developed that Robinson, who is awaiting trial on this side of the brook on a charge of stealing a bicycle, was the chief shouter. He was fined $1 and the others were let go on reprimand.

BODY FOUND IN CANAL

Relatives of Miss Vanderbilt, a Niece of J. C. Abbott, Say Death was Accidental.

FREQUENTLY VISITED HERE.

Pretty Young Assistant Librarian of Princeton Disappeared Some Days Ago.

Miss Bertha Vanderbilt, the pretty young assistant librarian at Princeton University, who was found dead in the Delaware and Raritan Canal, near Princeton, yesterday, was a niece of Mrs. John C. Abbott, of West Front street, and of Mrs. Beatrice Vanderbilt, of West Fifth street. She frequently visited in Plainfield, her last sojourn here being at Christmas time. She had many friends in this city.

In the minds of the girl's parents and relatives there is no doubt but that Miss Vanderbilt's death was purely accidental. She left her boarding-house last Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock to pick wild flowers, and at the point where her body was found in the water there is a plank about a foot wide spanning the canal. This plank is always wet and slippery and it is the opinion that while trying to walk across the canal her feet slipped and she fell into the water. There was not a bruise on her body, and only a few scratches on the face.

Two young men from Trenton returning from a camping trip on the Millstone river discovered the body floating in the canal. The police at Princeton were notified and the body was removed from the water. There is little ground for the opinion that the girl committed suicide, except rumors of a love affair between Miss Vanderbilt and George Willward, a student at Renasselaer Polytechnic Institute. Only last Friday he wrote her a letter signing himself "lovingly yours." It has been intimated that at the end of the college year she intended resigning her position to get married.

Other reports say that she expected to return to her position at Princeton next fall. It is known that her parents received a letter from her only recently in which she said that she would be home in four weeks for her summer vacation. There was nothing to indicate that there was anything wrong. She was of a particularly happy disposition and always made friends wherever she went. The parents, who live at Amsterdam, N. Y., are frantic with grief over the death of the girl.

Visited the Leggetts.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Force and daughter, Miss Lillian A. Force, of Duer street, spent yesterday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard Leggett, at Morristown. Mr. Leggett's many friends in Plainfield will be glad to know that he has found many warm friends in and around Morristown, who are doing all in their power to put a little sunshine in his life of suffering and gradual decline. Mr. Leggett and family are living at the home of a good Samaritan, G. R. N. Crater, 250 Wester avenue, on the outskirts of the city.

Board of Trade Meeting.

There will be a special meeting of the Board of Trade Thursday night to give a public hearing to a committee appointed by the promoters of the Plainfield-South Plainfield-Metuchen buss line. As Thursday is not the regular meeting night, Prof. A. S. Herr has offered the use of the assembly rooms of the Plainfield Business College, in the Woodhull & Martin Building, and the meeting will be held there instead of in the Coward building.

A Bicycle Mystery.

Chief Marshal Weiss, of the borough, received a telephone message last evening, stating that a boy had ridden up to the Maple avenue bridge near Greenbrook road and thrown a bicycle beneath it, afterward running away. An officer was sent to the place and secured the wheel. It is now at headquarters awaiting a claimant.

Finish Brick Pave This Week.

City Engineer Gavet hopes to have the brick pavement work completed this week. The rain on Friday and Saturday interfered with finishing the work on Front street, but it is expected that this will be done within a day or two. The concrete foundation on Watchung avenue is about laid and all is in readines for the brick there.

Ground Broken for Police Station.

Ground was broken by Contractor Milne this morning for the erection of the new police station at East Fourth and Sycamore streets. The excavating is being done by William B. Emmons.

RAILROAD CLUB IN A HANDSOME HOME

The Railroad Club, the latest and most exclusive of the downtown lunch clubs, in New York, opened its inviting doors to a company of a thousand members and guests for the first time yesterday. Occupying the entire twenty-first and twenty-second floors of the Cortlandt-Dey street wing of the Hudson tunnels terminal building, the club has the distinction of being the loftiest eating organization in the city as well as the most sumptuously appointed of those which have quarters in the financial district.

The president of the club is Judge E. H. Gary, chairman of the Board of the United States Steel Corporation. W. G. Besler, of this city, vice-president of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, is on the house committee, and also a governor, as is Pliny Fisk.

WANT TO ABOLISH VOTING MACHINES

At a meeting of the members of the Union County Democratic Committee at Elizabeth Monday evening, action was taken upon the law recently passed permitting voters in each election district where voting machines are now used to hold special elections and vote either to accept or reject the machines. It was the unanimous opinion of the members present to have petitions placed ever election district where voting machines are now used throughout the county, and procure the required number of names to hold a special election.

Communications were read from many prominenet men residing in districts where the voting machine is used, denouncing them and urging the committee to take steps against their further use. Among these was one from James E. Martine. J. V. F. Dilts, of this city was called upon to state what Plainfield thought about the voting machine. He said he could not speak for Plainfield but could only speak for himself.

"The question before this committee tonight," said Mr. Dilts, "is whether we are in favor of rejecting or accepting the voting machine is to my mind a plain duty for every man that stands for an honest ballot to oppose them. Many are the objections to the voting machine and if there was none other than that they are a contrivance so intricate to manipulate that no voter unless he has been instructed how to work it can vote as he may desire to and therefore it is a menace, and deprives the voter from exercising his most sacred right, his sovereign will to cast his ballot for whom he may choose to vote for.

"I believe in having our election laws and the method of voting by ballot as the founders of the constitution intended it to be; so simple that every man can cast his ballot for any candidate. I have no use for the man or men who in any way or by any means, whether it be by unit rule or any other subterfuge, to deprive men from voting as their conscience dictates.

"The dishonesty of men is enough to contend against in trying to have honest elections without having a machine to further their schemes in fooling the voter. This should not be a partisan question but men of all parties should unite to do all that can be done and do away with anything and everything that interferes with the purity and sacredness of the ballot."

They Seek Office.

Coupled with the formal announcement by Senator Everett Colby yesterday at Newark that he will seek re-election to the upper house of the Legislature this fall, comes the report that Assemblyman William P. Martin may be backed by the "new idea" wing of the Republican party for Congress from the Seventh district. Mr. Colby was frank in declaring his candidacy, but Mr. Martin was not inclined to say whether he would oppose Representative R. Wayne Parker. His friends, however, say he will do so.

Boynton Beach Opening.

The formal opening of Boynton Beach will occur on Saturday and on Memorial Day, May 30, arrangements have been made for a grand opening of all the attractions. Many improvements have been made since last year and it will continue to be an attractive place for an outing.

REV. A. C. PECK RESIGNS

Rector of St. Stephen's Accepts Call to St. Edward the Martyr, New York.

TO SPEND SUMMER ABROAD.

He Has Done Fine Work During the Short Pastorate at East End Episcopal Church.

Rev. Arthur Searing Peck, who during the past three years and a half has been the rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal church, has tendered his resignation, the same to take effect September 1. He expects to sail for Europe on Tuesday, May 26, and he will spend the summer abroad. In the fall when he returns he will become the rector of St. Edward the Martyr church at Fifth avenue and 109th street, New York. His successor at St. Stephen's church has not yet been chosen.

While Mr. Peck's resignation will come as a surprise to many of his friends, knowledge of it was known by a number of his parishioners, who sincerely regret his action. Since coming to St. Stephen's church, Mr. Peck has accomplished a great work. When he took up the work here there were fourteen communicants and today there are 158. He has built up the parish in numerous ways. It was through his efforts that a large and well-appointed parish house was acquired at considerable expense. He has also published St. Stephen's Messenger, a monthly periodical, which has kept the parishoners in touch with the church work.

St. Stephen's church was Mr. Peck's first charge. Immediately following his graduation from the Berkeley Divinity School at Middletown, N. Y., he came to Plainfield. He was born in New York and is therefore fully acquainted with conditions there. The new church to which he goes in the fall has 700 communicants and is an active parish with many interests. St. Stephen's church today is in the best of condition financially and otherwise and Mr. Peck in leaving the work there goes with the best wishes of every member of his parish.

CHECK SWINDLER FIGHTS AGAINST EXTRADITION

Charles B. Curtis, the alleged head of a check swindling gang, arrested in New York last week on Chief Kiely's complaint, was given a hearing in the Tombs court yesterday. Three lawyers appeared in his behalf and sought to have him discharged on the ground of insufficient evidence, their plan being to prevent his extradition to New Jersey.

Chief Kiely's side of the case was presented by Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., and he succeeded in having Curtis remanded for another week. In the meantime, the necessary papers will be secured to bring him to Plainfield after which he will be given a hearing on the charge of forging the name of W. F. Wilson to two checks.

PASSENGER TRAIN KILLS A TRACKWALKER

Michael Kouace, trackwalker for the New Jersey Central between Grant avenue and Dunellen, was killed last night by the train due at the North avenue station at 8:27. He was walking east near the Rock avenue crossing and in moving over the tracks to get out of the way of a freight train, stepped in front of the passenger. The engineer saw him and tried to prevent the accident but the distance was too short.

The train was stopped and Kouace's mangled body was placed aboord by Patrolman Cornelius McCarthy and Fireman G. Holly Freeman, who chanced to be a passenger. It was brought to the depot and afterward taken to Cole's undertaking rooms.

Kouace was forty-seven years old and lived on West Front street within a few hundred feet of where he was killed. He leaves a wife and several children. The funeral will be held in the Catholic church at Raritan Thursday.

A WHITE SALE--Beginning May 20

With a gathering of White Goods, second to none in this section—with bargains that are real, on merchandise of merit, we inaugurate this sale to again illustrate real bargains at a TEPPER'S WHITE SALE, for it's not only selling merchandise cheap, but selling merchandise of a character that will appeal to you at a glance for its intrinsic value, you have learned to know that if the article is of so low a grade that its only recommendation is its low price to induce you to purchase, it will prove a poor bargain on the actual test of wear, such goods never find favor with—never tempt our buyers. Every article will be found exactly as advertised—we cannot put this too clearly before you, unless you have attended our former sales, then you know, that it is our principle to adhere to actual values in quoting values, in print as well as in the house. We shall expect you to this White sale. We have prepared many bargains that we cannot enumerate here, in cases where lots are small, yet the bargain may prove the biggest, there will be many such little groups all through the Dry Goods section, and not mentioned here.

There is both Burch and Murch on the Brooklyn team, and the fact has confused many baseball writers.

Evans, the young outfielder, who showed such promising hitting form on the southern trip of the Giants, has been sold to Montreal. Evans' inability to field cost him his place with McGraw.

McAleer has many new players with him this trip. There are infielders Ferris and Williams, outfielders Charley Jones and Hoffman and a small brigade of young stock.

Howell, Powell, Pelty, Waddell, Bailey and Dineen form one of the strongest pitching staffs in the country.

Although the White Sox dropped two out of three to the Athletics, Jones should give his rivals a keen brush for the pennant, as his team is much stronger than last year. Parent and Anderson add greatly to its batting strength and the curving corps is always good.

McQuillen beat both the Cubs and Pittsburgs on their own lots in one week. The Paterson man is the pitching sensation of the National League.

As rain prevented three out of four scheduled games last week, the Phillies will have to do some wholesale doubling up with the Cubs before the season ends.

Manager Ganzel, of Cincinnati, offered Hans Lobert to St. Louis for outfielder Murray and the choice of pitchers Raymond and McGlynn. Stanley Robison said nix.

Dave Brain has notified Joe Kelley of his willingness to join Boston at the club's terms, but Kelley says that there is no room on his team for Brain. Sweeney's sensational work has earned him the third sack assignment permanently, and Boston will probably sell Brain to Cincinnati.

National League managers are flooding McCloskey with all sorts of offers for some of the extra men on the Cardinals' pitching staff. McCloskey has more good flingers than he needs, and he is sure to make an advantageous trade or two.

It is said that Bob Unglaub is persona non grata in Boston and that McGuire hopes to make a deal which will bring a new first baseman to the Hub. Unglaub has not hit up to standard this season.

Detroit is a good road team. Manager Jennings would never win a pennant if he played all of his games at home. The Tigers never seem to be able to hit their best pitch on their own fair acres.

Bridewell, who came to the Giants labeled as a weak sister with the bat, is leading his team in hitting. The others, however, are far below their normal notch.

Joe Delehanty, of last year's Williamsport team, is having a reign of terror at the bat. The Phillies and the Athletics overlooked a large wager when they didn't get this man, who was at their very door.

GOLF.

Among the golfers all eyes will turn toward the Baltusrol links this week, where the tenth annual championship tournament of the Metropolitan Golf Association will begin tomorrow and finish on Saturday. Oddly enough, this will be the first time in the history of the organization that the Metropolitan Golf Association has seen fit to select Baltusrol for its championship, although practically all the other important attractions, such as the national amateur, open and women's and women's metropolitan, to say nothing of the New Jersey tournament, have been decided there at different times.

The entry list, which has closed with the secretary, Leighton Calkins, shows that the field will be of its usual high class, and among those who will be watched closely are Jerome D. Travers, of Montclair, the title holder; Walter J. Travis, of Garden City; Findlay S. Douglas, Nassau; George T. Brokaw, Deal; Fred Herreshoff, Garden City; Gilman P. Tiffany, Powelton; Max Behr, Morris County; Archie Graham, North Jersey, and Charley Seely, Wee Burn.

Travers started the season inauspiciously by being defeated in tournaments at Atlantic City and Garden City, but the way he went through his field at Huntingdon Valley last week will serve to give his friends renewed confidence. An indifferent long game has handicapped him not a little thus far. The Montclair crack won two tournaments at Baltusrol last year and plays the course well.

Travis, on the other hand, has never distinguished himself there, and incidentally the veteran has not hesitated to criticise the Short Hills course, but since he lost there in the national championship in 1904 many improvements have been added, until now Baltusrol is recognized as being one of the best trapped eighteen hole circuits in the East.

Douglas Graham, Herreshoff, Behr and Tiffany will also be worth watching. The latter has not been playing in tournaments for nearly a year, but report has it that his game is as good as ever. Herreshoff always liked Baltusrol, and so does Behr, who plays it in low figures.

The Onondaga Golf Club, of Syracuse, has shown commendable enthusiasm in arranging a season schedule. Beginning with the ball sweepstakes on Saturday, the list calls for something in a competitive way every week until well into October. The club championship will not begin until September 26. The members are interested in the Central New York Golf League championship, which will be held this season at Albany, July 7-11.

H. H. Wilder, of Harvard, regarded as about the best of the amateurs in Massachusetts, gratified his admirers on Saturday by winning the chief cup in the final round of the open tournament at the Country Club of Brookline. Wilder defeated Fred O'Connell by 2 up and 1 to play in the decisive match. The winner is president of the Intercollegiate Golf Association.

The kirmess has come and gone. It is a happy recollection, for it not only demonstrated what the people of Plainfield can do when they have a mind to but it also showed that every man, woman and child is deeply interested in Muhlenberg Hospital for whose benefit the big undertaking was arranged. The week's spectacle was an object lesson in many ways. All classes of people worked together to insure the success of the affair and the splendid results were due to this fact in a very large measure.

It would be hard indeed to pick out any particular individual as worthy of special mention for his share in the work. Probably Charles J. Fisk, whose personality had much to do with the success as it undoubtedly has had in every thing of the sort given for local charity for many years past, might be singled out, but the people had grown to expect that this most public spirited man would play the most prominent part and do the hardest of the executive work. Mrs. Frederic W. Butler, who as chairman of the general committee, acquitted herself nobly, might also be selected for special mention, but after all without the solid and magnificent support given by all the inhabitants of the city and borough the efforts of the few at the heads of committees would have counted for naught.

BAPTIST MEN'S BANQUET

Samuel St. John McCutchen Toastmaster at Annual Feast of First Church's Club

MANY GOOD SPEECHES MADE.

Rev. Dr. Chambliss, Rev. Mr. Warner, H. C. Krebs, Dr. Buchanan and C. W. McCutchen Talk.

Under the auspices of the Men's Club of the First Baptist church, a dinner was given at the Park Club, last night. The details for the event, as arranged by the committee of which H. C. Krebs was the chairman, combined to afford an evening of pleasure to about seventy members and friends of the club.

An added and unexpected feature was the delightful music by an orchestra, under the direction of the president of the club, Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan. Those comprising the orchestra were: Arthur Mosher and Ernest Higham, violins; Herbert Byard, piano; Elmer Wheeler, flute; Whitney Frazee, cornet; Otto Mueller, 'cello, and Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, bass viol.

Following the excellent dinner served by Mrs. Henry Johnson, there was an enjoyable hour of short speeches. Samuel St. John McCutchen was the toastmaster, who was introduced on the menu card as follows: "Let me have audience for a word or two." In his customary witty manner he presented the various speakers, not forgetting appropriate personal "roasts."

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, responded to the toast, "Our Author," he being the one who organized the club. He gave some timely advice as to how the men could increase their usefulness in church work. He urged that the men get to know each other better, and while he was not especially praiseworthy over past achievements he looked forward to better things in the future. He said that no one could tell what might be accomplished if they worked together.

"Our Guests," was the toast assigned to Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, and he was given a hearty welcome as one coming from another denomination. He said that in his opinion the best test of a man's religion is the way he lives in a community and what he is thought of by other citizens. It did not make so much difference to him if for reasons best known to a man he did not always attend church, as long as he lived the right kind of a life every day. He said that he had never found a more upright lot of Christian men in any community than in Plainfield, men who devote their time to doing good deeds and supporting the ministers. He referred to the noble work being done by Judge Lindsey, of Denver, whom he described as "a Christian gentleman who is doing things."

"Our Club," furnished an excellent toast for Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, the president of the organization. He devoted his brief remarks to a review of the most prominent secret societies, including the Masons, Odd Fellows, etc., concluding with the declaration that these lodges are doing the work that should be taken up by the church. He believed that every man should be considered the equal of another and there was much in the cordial handshake. No matter what position a man held he always found a warm handshake when he attended a lodge meeting and it should be so in the church. He said that many improvements had suggested themselves to him during the year and he felt sure that the club could largely increase its usefulness by expending more effort on the practical side of Christianity and thereby help the pastor.

It was a most appropriate toast, "The Perennial Tenor," that was given to Charles W. McCutchen, and he responded in a happy manner. He said that for forty years he had been singing praises in the church and thought it was about time he stepped aside and let someone else assume control. One thing that had impressed him much was that the congregations in the church do not do their part in singing. He said that it pained his heart every time he stood up to sing, "Praise God From All All Blessings Flow," and see the dull faces before him. He did not find the same conditions in the churches of the South or in England, but on the contrary everyone feels it his duty to sing.

Taking exceptions to Mr. Warner, Mr. McCutchen said that he liked to see Christians go to church and be there every Sunday and then go out in the world and live according to the teachings. He impressed upon all the importance of being ready to board the Gospel train when it starts.

"An Unknown Force," was the toast to which H. C. Krebs responded, and he related several amusing incidents which had come to him in his profession as a school teacher and county superintendent of schols. Becoming more serious he said that he believed the education of a boy or girl to be worth all the time and expense and even sacrifice made necessary to accomplish it. He mentioned two or three incidents where education had been obtained only after the greatest sacrifice and it paid. He also cited an interesting case when a very poor boy had grown to manhood only by the hardest kind of knocks and today holds a position of wealth and influence, and he believed that such men are real heroes in the world.

The present officers of the club are as follows: President, Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan; vice-president, T. S. Armstrong; secretary, Raymond Carver; treasurer, Edson C. Martin. The organization will not meet again until fall.

Superstition in Japan.

Says the Kobe Herald: "A man named Oshita Matsusaku, living at Yamano-mura, Shinzaki, has been ill since September last with a malady which failed to yield to ordinary treatment. During the present month his wife got into the hands of two professional exorcists, who persuaded her that her husband's trouble was due to the spirits of a fox and a badger, which were tormenting the unfortunate man. Having been allowed to take charge of the case, the two men built up an enormous charcoal fire, to which for six days they exposed the patient on the pretext of driving out the evil spirits. In addition, they poured boiling water over the sick man's back. The natural result was that the unhappy man's body became covered with burns and he is now in such a critical condition that it is not expected that he will recover.

Right Over Him.

"You say you were under a great general?" interrogated the pretty girl at the military ball.

"Yes, indeed," drawled the callow young man with the cigarette-stained fingers.

"Ah, you were in the late war?"

"Er—no."

"Then how is it you were under the great general?"

"Well, I'll tell you the secret. He occupied the upper berth on a sleeper and I occupied the lower."

Study at Home.

"Maud graduated from your cooking school last spring, didn't she?"

"Yes, but she's going to take a post graduate course next fall."

"Going back to the same school again?"

"Oh, no! She's to be married to a poor young man."—The Catholic Standard and Times.

MISS GALLATIN'S BOW

Graceful and Clever Actress, Heading New Stock Company, Makes a Hit.

HER SUPPORT IS SPLENDID.

"The Cowboy and the Lady" the Initial Production Will Run All this Week at Local Theatre.

"The Cowboy and the Lady," the first offering of the Plainfield Stock Company at the New Plainfield theatre as played last night before an enthusiastic audience scored well in the minds of all present. It was remarkably well done, and reflects great credit on the able direction of Kendal Weston. The piece was played with sincerity and a positiveness that many of the regular season high priced companies do not attain. The settings while not calling for any elaborate pictures were in keeping with the story and in excellent taste.

As for the acting first should be mentioned Miss Alberta Gallatin, who heads the company, as she has been a full pledged high priced star for several seasons. As "Mrs. Weston" she proved to be a most delightful actress and well equipped to head a first class stock company, as she has brought to Plainfield. Miss Gallatin is pretty, graceful, equal to all phases of the character and is equally at home in comedy as she is in the serious moments of the part. Her dressing is in excellent taste and her gown of the second act was particularly admired. Miss Gallatin is worthy of greater opportunities. Miss Evelyn Watson makes a big hit in a delightful performance of "Madge." She is young, pretty and made really a genuine success. Margaret Trayer made the most of "Molly Larkins," and proved herself a most capable actress. Miss Ralston as the "Pianist" and Miss Pearson as a young society girl were both excellent.

Maurice Wilkinson is a good leading man, playing "Teddy North" with sincerity and is bound to prove himself a four time winner as an exponent of romantic roles. Mr. Royal Thayer is one of the best comedians seen in Plainfield in some time. His performance of "Yoe" (the cowboy without a last name), was delightful. Mr. Thayer never lost the character for an instant and was one of the bright lights of a fine performance. Warren Roger was particularly good as "Quick Foot Jim,' (an Indian half breed). Paul Webster gave a finished performance of "Pete," a rough cowboy, making all that was possible out of the character. Norman Wendell as "Dave" and George Harcourt as "Ransom" were both good, as was also Frank Young as "Dick Rod," while Vendal Weston also burdened with the cares of the production, showed in the part of "Weston," a scoundrel, that he was a finished actor of vast experience and fine presence.

If last night's performance is any criterion of what is to come, theatregoers must thank Manager Counihan for bringing Miss Gallatin to Plainfield. All the good things said of the organization in advance were substantially backed up. "Held by the Enemy" is announced for next week, and "The Cowboy and the Lady" will continue, with Wednesday and Saturday matinees at 2:30, until Saturday night. It was conclusive last evening that Miss Gallatin did truly bring to Plainfield a $2 show for 50 cents.

Murderously Assaulted.

Marshal Reilly and State Detective Jenkins are investigating the affair and arrests are expected soon. Dr. Pittis, of this city, who is attending Regan, says there but little hope for recovery.

NEW STYLE MAIL BAG.

Its Use May Help to Cut Down the Annual Postoffice Deficit.

Washington, May 19.—Through substitution of a new mail bag, Second Assistant Postmaster-General McCleary is considering a plan which he believes will cut down the annual postoffice deficit several million dollars.

The new sack was originally adopted for use in Alaska, where it was necessary to have a lighter one for sledge service. It weighs a trifle over three pounds—one-half as much as the old style. Also, it is absolutely waterproof, whereas the old sacks were defective in this respect.

Postmaster General McCleary said today:

"If adopted, not only will the new sack save a large amount in transportation, but its cost will be less. Heretofore, as the old sacks are not waterproof, it has been the practice to use two, one inside the other. This makes the weight of the sacks alone twelve and a half pounds. With the new sack only one, weighing three pounds, will be necessary. There will be 75 per cent. saved in weight and nearly that saving in original cost."

ANNUAL CONVENTION OF EXEMPT FIREMEN.

Gathering Will Take Place at New Brunswick Tomorrow.

Tomorrow will be a gala day at New Brunswick, for the annual convention of the Exempt Firemen's Association of New Jersey will be held and big preparations are being made for the event. The town will be lavishly decorated with bunting and flags. Over six hundred delegates are expected. The sessions of the convention will be held in Graham & McCormick's Hall, formerly the old Y. M. C. A. building. Armory Hall has been engaged for the dining hall and here the guests will be refreshed during the day.

The chief feature of the day will be the firemen's parade in the afternoon, in which all the eight companies and apparatus of the city will turn out. The procession will go through the principal business and residential streets. A firemen's ball will close the festivities of the day.

Ex-Chief Henry C. Housell is chairman and is aided by a large corps of assistants.

SOUGHT DEATH AFTER TIFF.

Mrs. Henry Newman's Effort to Asphyxiate Herself Frustrated by Her Husband.

Phillipsburg, May 19.—Mrs. Henry Newman, of this place, was discovered in the act of committing suicide by her husband Sunday evening. Mr. Newman, who is an employe of the Ingersoll Rand Company, left home early in the day to visit his brother, and admits having had words with his wife before leaving the house.

The family jar evidently preyed on the mind of Mrs. Newman until she became hysterical, and then, locking all the doors and windows of the home, she went to the kitchen and turned on the gas. Mr. Newman, finding the house in an unusual condition on his return home, forced open a door and probably saved his wife from death. The family physician succeeded in resuscitating the woman. Her condition today was much improved.

HAD RIGHT TO CUT WATER OFF.

Vice-Chancellor's Ruling in Case of T. Howell Jones, Who Brought Suit Against Bloomfield.

Trenton, May 19.—Vice Chancellor Emery has filed an opinion in the proceedings instituted by S. Howell Jones against the town of Bloomfield, in which the complainant attacked the action of the town in installing water meters in four houses, of which he was the owner. Under the regulations by which the town supplied water it reserved the right at any time to set and maintain a meter on any service pipe, and to change the meter price for all water delivered, according to the amount indicated by the meter.

The vice-chancellor holds that this provision does not make the mere setting of the meter effective to change the price, but merely reserves the right to change the rate after setting the meter. Up to January 1, 1906, Mr. Jones had paid a flat rate in each of his houses. The meters were set in the houses without his knowledge some time in January of that year. The town sent flat rate bills up to July 1, 1906, but subsequently about that date sent bills at meter rates. Those were not paid, and Mr. Jones had the town enjoined from cutting off the water supply.

The court concludes that the town having sent the bills for flat rates for all the houses from January to July, and not having before July 1 indicated to the owner any election to change to meter rates for any part of this period, the flat rates must govern until July 1, when the election to change the rate under the reserved right was first indicated by sending bills at meter rates. He says that the town was rightfully enjoined from cutting off the water because the meter rates were not paid during that period. Counsel will be heard further on the question of whether or not Mr. Jones is entitled to costs.

FAMOUS STALLION DIES.

Todd, the Sire of Many Noted Trotters, and Purchased Last Fall for $30,000, Expires at Somerville.

Somerville, May 19.—Todd, the famous trotting stallion and the greatest sire of futurity winners in the world, bred by J. Malcolm Forbes, of Boston, and purchased at the thirteenth annual Old Glory Sale in Madison Square Garden, New York, in November, 1907, by William Bradley, for the record price of $30,000, died Sunday of pneumonia at the Bradley stock farm, two miles north of here.

Todd was foaled in 1899. Early in July of his yearling form he showed a 2.20 gait. At a two-year-old he stepped halves in 1.06, and trotted a full mile in 2.21. His record of 2.14¾ was made in his fifth year over the Lexington, Kentucky track. It was as a sire that stallion achieved his greatest fame. His first foals sired in New England include the famous Toko, a winner of seven races in Europe; Cochoto, 2.11¾, and his Kentucky offspring numbers Kentucky Todd, 2.08½, and many other famous trotters.

Held as Bicycles Thieves.

Elizabeth, May 19.—Two young men, who gave their names as John Frick and Nicholas Rotunda, entered the bicycle store of W. Headley, 288 Morris avenue, here Saturday night and offered to sell him two comparatively new bicycles for $1.50. Mr. Headley at once suspected the wheels were stolen and managed to retain the men until the police were notified. They were locked up and the wheels taken to police headquarters, pending further developments in the case.

Believed Firebug Started Blaze.

Rahway, May 19.—A fire, supposed to be of an incendiary nature, was started early yesterday in the ruins of the recently burned brewery on St. George avenue. Policemen Crahan and P. H. Gehring chased two men, who were near the scene, but failed to catch them. The appearance of one was similar to that of a man who was seen running from the burning Millburn factory two weeks ago. The brewery above was burned two years ago.

Telephone Call Scares Thieves.

Jersey City, May 19.—The ringing of a telephone bell saved Police Justice John W. Queen from being robbed of silverware and other articles by thieves yesterday. He arose to answer the bell in his home on Kensington avenue, and heard some one run toward a rear door. He stumbled over a bundle, which burglars had evidently packed up when they were scared by the bell. Entrance had been effected by a rear window.

Ammonia Tank Explodes in Cellar.

Elizabeth, May 19.—A tank of ammonia, used as part of an ice-making machine in the cellar of the Hersh building, exploded Saturday afternoon and three persons were overcome by the fumes. Employes of the building opened coal holes in the pavement for air and pedestrians for half an hour had to leave the pavement and walk along the trolley tracks.

Rev. and Mrs. C. L. Goodrich, of West Seventh street, have returned from Hackensack, where they attended the funeral of Mrs. Charles Boss.

Rev. Dr. Joseph Chambliss, who has been visiting his brother, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of Central avenue, will leave this week for his home in Kansas City.

Wednesday morning the Heavenly gardening begun. One patch for Van Brunt and the other for Hartley. They had seeds by the peck, more or less, brought over by Scudder's express and charged for at undertaker's prices. The Twins started in with a vengeance. I showed 'em how. For once I was superintendent and the job suited me fine—nothing would have tickled me more, unless 'twas to turn in and take a nap.

Van takes one hoe and Hartley the other. Each of 'em was actually round-shouldered from the weight of the seeds in their pockets. They had cucumber seeds, and melon seeds, and land knows what. Wonder to me was they didn't try oranges and pineapples. And in the middle of July!

"Now, Martin," says Van. "Here goes! Bet you fifty I get the first cucumber."

"I'll go you," says Martin, shucking his jacket. "Sol, what do I do next?"

I showed him. I started 'em even on cucumber beds. They hoed like they went by steam. You never see such ambitious farmers in your life as they was—just then.

"Kind of hard work, ain't it?" says I, watching their front hair get damp and stick to their foreheads.

"Work?" says Van. "This is recreation, man!"

"All right," I says. "Heave ahead and recreate. I've got to work, myself."

So I went in and swept out the dining room. Once in a while, through the open window, I'd get a sight of 'em laying into the cucumber beds, with the sun blazing down. I grinned. When the boot's been on one leg too long it's kind of nice to see somebody else's corns get pinched.

When they come in to dinner they was just slopping over with joy. Gardening was more fun than a barrel of monkeys. But I noticed that when Van got up from the table he riz kind of "steady by jerks" as if he had kinks in his back, and Martin moved his shoulders slow and easy and said "Ouch!" under his breath when he reached too far.

They didn't seem to be in any real hurry to get back to work, either. Stayed on the porch, and smoked two cigars instead of one. I had to chuck out a hint about getting them seeds covered up quick afore they'd leave their chairs. Then they went, and I could see the hoes moving; but they moved slower.

They turned in right after supper, which was unusual. Next morning I didn't hear a word about gardens. The conversation was pretty limited and doleful, being separated with grunts and groans, so to speak. When Van Brunt dropped his napkin he hollered to me to come and pick it up, and Hartley fed with his left hand and kept the right in his jacket side pocket. They didn't seem to enjoy that meal half so much as I did.

"Well," says I, to brighten things up; "I cal'late them cucumbers is ready to eat, pretty nigh, by this time. Started on your corn, yet? No? Well, you mustn't lose no time. It's late in the season now. Come along with me and I'll get you going."

I headed for the door as I spoke. They looked at each other again.

"It's pretty cloudy for planting, isn't it?" asks Hartley. "We might be caught in the rain, you know."

"Rain your granny!" says I. "Them clouds is nothing but heat fog. It'll burn right off."

"Wait till we finish our cigars, skipper," says Van.

"No," says I. "You can smoke and plant at the same time. Smoke 'll drive away the mosquitoes."

They got up then and followed me out. The hoes was laying by the beds and I handed 'em one apiece. They took 'em, not with what you'd call enthusiasm, but more the way the boy took the licking—believing 'twas more blessed to give than to receive. The cucumber beds was begun beautiful, the first hills rounded up fine and lovely. But the tail-end ones looked like the pauper section of the burying ground, more useful than ornamental. I showed 'em how to plant the corn and went away, leaving 'em leaning on their hoes, with a kind of halo of mosquitoes around their heads. My talk about smoke was more or less sarcastic; the mosquitoes on Horse-foot Ozone was smoke-cured and fireproof.

I got the breakfast work done about ten o'clock and then 'twas time to go after the pig and the hens. I took the skiff oars out of the barn and then walked around by the gardens to see how things was getting on. There laid the hoes by the place where the corn-hills was intended to be, but there wa'n't any corn-hills nor any Heavenly gardeners either; not a sign of 'em. I hailed once or twice but didn't get any answer. Then I went on down to the skiff. And there they was, sprawled out in the shade of the pines, as comfortable as you please.

"Hello, skipper," says Van Brunt, turning over on one elbow. "We've been waiting for you. We're going with you after the livestock."

"You are?" says I. "Got your farming done so early?"

"No-o," he drawls. "Not precisely. The fact, is Sol, Hartley and I have decided that agricultural labors are not—"

"Labors?" says I, shoving the skiff into the water. "Thought 'twas recreation."

"For definition see dictionary," he says. "It's a painful condition, not a theory, with us just now. Martin and I are convinced that what we need is a sea voyage. Come on, Martin."

Hartley got up, pretty average gingerly, and they climbed into the skiff. I pushed off and begun to row.

"Well," I says, after a minute or two, "it ain't for me to suggest anything, but, just for greens—like the old woman stewed the burdock leaves—I'd like to mention that if you want vegetables with the dew, and not icicles, on 'em, you'd better be getting the rest of them seeds into the ground. What's the present standing of that cucumber bet?"

Van didn't open his eyes. "You win it," he says, lazy.

I stopped rowing and looked at him over my shoulder.

"Meaning—what?" says I.

"Just that. You win the bet. Likewise you cultivate the cucumbers. Martin and I, in convention assembled, have nominated you for secretary of agriculture. We resign."

I'd been expecting it. And I'd made up my mind what to say. But I hated to say it. Thinks I: "I'll wait t'l I get back to Ozone."

So I didn't answer, but went on rowing again. The tide was going out fast and 'twas a hard pull, three of us in that little skiff, but by and by we reached the main. And there was Scudder's hired boy waiting for us.

"Hello," says I. "Where's Huldy Ann—Mrs. Scudder, I mean?"

"She couldn't come," said the boy. "But I fetched the hens and things. Here they be."

He had the hens—a dozen of 'em—jammed into one lath coop. The door of it was fastened with a shaky wood button.

"Handle 'em kind of careful," says he. "That button undoes itself sometimes."

"Where's the pig?" says Hartley.

"Here he is."

We could hear him. He wa'n't in a box at all, as he'd ought to have been according to contract, but setting in the sand with his hind legs tied together with string. He was whirling in circles with his tail for a pivot, so to speak, and he seemed to be mainly squeal. Little he was, and thin—'peared to me to be thin as Nate's milk of human kindness—but the Heavenlies fell down and worshiped him like he was a hog angel.

"Humph!" says I. "Is that the 'dear?'"

"That's the dear," says Van, patting him at long distance.

Well, he weighed four pound and cost six dollars, so that's dear enough for anybody.

I loaded the critters into the skiff—the pig fairly sung psalms while I was doing it—and then the Twins climbed aboard.

"All right, skipper," says Van. "Shove off."

"Just a minute," says I. "What am I going to do—take the next train? This transport seems to be pretty well loaded."

It was. Van Brunt was on the amidships thwart. Hartley was up in the bow, with the pig between his knees. The chicken coop was piled in the stern. I ain't no dime show dwarf, and where I was going to stow myself was too much for me.

"Humph!" says Van. "It does look standing room only. Here, skipper; you kneel on the back seat. I'll row."

I didn't exactly kneel, but I straddled across the stern somehow, with the butt end of the hen roost in my lap and my feet over each rail just clear of the wet.

Nate's boy shoved us into deep water. He had to take off his shoes and stockings to do it, and he was laughing so that he made mighty poor headway.

"You pesky young one!" says I, losing my patience. "If you don't tend to your job I'll get out and duck you. What are you giggling at?"

"I ain't giggling," says he. "I'm pushing. Ugh! Haw! haw! Ugh! There you be!"

He gave us a final shove and then went back and rolled around in the bushes. Somebody was having a good time if we wa'n't.

We moved off stately and slow, like an ocean liner leaving her dock. We didn't have any band, but the pig and hens furnished music. The skiff's rail was almost a-wash and my heels dipped on every little wave.

Van rowed like a good one till he got about two-thirds of the way across. Then the tide got a grip on us and he commenced to go slower and groan. He'd miss a stroke and we'd swing half way around. We was going broadside on most of the time.

By and by Hartley spoke up.

"What makes this pig kick so?" says he, like 'twas some kind of a conundrum. The critter seemed to be doing his best to answer it, but his language wa'n't understandable.

"You look out he don't kick that string off his legs," I hollers. I had to holler to make myself heard above the choir.

He bent forward and looked down. "Why!" says he. "I'll be shot if he hasn't done it already."

"Hang on to him then!" I yells. "For the land sakes don't let him loose."

Van Brunt gives a final groan and stops the oars.

"No use, skipper," he says. "My cucumber recreation has put me out of the race. I wouldn't row another stroke for the control of the Standard Oil. You'll have to be shofer the rest of the way."

I didn't know what a "shofer" was and I don't know now; but I could see trouble coming.

"Set where you be!" I shouted. "Don't move. Thunderation! There you go!"

The pesky idiot had stood up to stretch, leaving the oars in the rowlocks. Course the skiff swung broadside on and a wave knocked the starboard overboard. Hartley see it going and made a jump and a grab. He missed it, you might know, but he let go of the pig.

I ripped out a lively kind of speech and dove for the port oar. The hen coop was in my way and it and me went headfirst into Van Brunt's shirt-front. When I got out of the mix-up both oars was ten yards astern, the pig was doing three laps a minute over us and under the thwarts and the hens was all out of jail and proud of it. Likewise we was drifting out to sea.

"Well!" says I. "This is nice, ain't it? Get out, you varmint!" This last part was to a pullet that was flapping on my shoulders.

Would you believe it, all them Heavenly loons done was to laugh. They just roared.

"Ho! ho!" whoops Hartley. "Oh, dear me! This is worth the price of admission."

"Ha! ha!" cackles Van, puffing for breath, and shoving the pig out of his lap. "This is the best ever! The floating garden of Eden! Or the ark! Say, Martin; I begin to sympathize with Noah."

"Noah sent out a dove, if I remember right," says Hartley. "Wonder if it would work with a chicken? Where's our Ararat, skipper?"

I was mad clean through. Here was twice that I'd been made a fool of on salt water. I wa'n't used to it and it hurt.

"The ark was afloat for 40 odd days; you want to remember that," says I. "And this skiff won't float 40 minutes, loaded the way she is, if she drifts outside that point."

"Then she mustn't drift there," says Van, cheerful. "I don't want to get wet—not now, with James gone. This is the only presentable suit I've got left. If this is wrecked you'll have to press it, Sol."

A Set-Up Job.

"Are you the man from Sodder & Co.'s to do the repairing of the water pipes?" asked Mr. Subbubs.

"Yes," replied the plumber, "and Mr. Sodder says it'll cost you $60."

"What? Why, he hasn't seen the job; he don't know how much I want done."

"Mebbe not, but he told me how much to do."

The irregularity and insufficient voltage which has been evident lately is now being investigated and correction has been promised.

"In January last the closing of the proposed new contract for street lighting seemed imminent. At is was considered by your executive committee that the change from the present contract would not be to the advantage of the city, action was taken, with the details of which you are familiar and which, therefore, need not be recited at length. As a result of our efforts a public hearing was granted by the Common Council, which was attended by a large number of citizens and at which our position was endorsed without dissent. The contract was rejected and the committee discharged.

"The contract of November 28, 1898 is still in force and we believe that the correction of existing deficiences of service and unsafe conditions of wiring, etc., will now be brought about through the passage of ordinances by the city authorities and by compelling the company to live up to the terms of the contract in every particular.

Two of the suggestions made by this association are now receiving attention: Public scales, which will probably be installed at the new police station, and an ordinance to abolish the soft coal smoke nuisance, which is now being considered by the Council. The questions now presented for your consideration are: The water question, city expenses and increased taxes, assessments of property, bond issues.

"The commission which has been investigating the water question is soon to make a report, and having in mind the fact that our annual meeting would be held at this time, the Mayor, about five weeks ago, asked me to meet him to consider this subject. After discussing the facts the Mayor suggested that it would be of advantage to have this association co-operate with the committee and the city authorities in the solution of this problem, as well as of others which arise from time to time. I assured him of our willingness to do so and we await his further call.

"The other three questions are practically different parts of one general subject, and are worthy of, and should receive, serious consideration.

"Great irregularities in the assessment of properties exist and the Mayor has several times suggested the advisability of this subject being investigated by this association. A suggestion which I made to him as a means of correcting these inequalities was, the publication and distribution each year of a list of all assessments, in ample time for them to be carefully analyzed and compared before the meeting of the commissioners of appeals, which publication would probably do more than anything else to remedy this trouble.

"If all assessments were brought to an equality it would not only not be necessary to keep advancing the tax rate, as was done in 1906 and 1907, but a substantial reduction could be made and this equalization should be effected at once. In 1905 the tax rate was $2.48 on about a 50 per cent. average valuation. In 1906 assessments were supposedly raised to full value, the majority being doubled, but the tax rate was only reduced to $1.35 or equal to $2.70 on the former basis. In 1907 the rate was advanced to $1.47, or $2.94 on the old basis, an increase of 46 points in two years, or of $46.00 on a property valued under the former method at $10,000.

"The explanation was that payment of part of the money turned over by the State for schools would be delayed owing to railroad taxes being held up by litigation, but that when this money was received the taxes would be as low as before, if not lower. Part of this money will be paid this year, but owing to increased expenditures for police and fire departments, salaries of various employes, interest on bonds and various increased appropriations, without a corresponding increase of taxable values, the rate will be reduced, probably, only to 1.45 or 2.90 on the old basis.

"Owing to the exhausted condition of the State treasury efforts (which, however, were unsuccessful) were made at the last session of the Legislature to reduce the allowance by the State for school purposes. Should these efforts be renewed and be successful next year the effect will probably be to increase taxes again, as will other items, among which will be interest on additional bonds.

"For years it was the proud boast of the citizens of Plainfield that we were a city practically without a bonded debt, our whole indebtedness being about $58,000 for school bonds and mortgages. Today we have outstanding bonds to the amount of about $375,000, and if all improvments which are contemplated are put through (in addition to those under way) in another year or so we will add about $250,000 more, making a total of about $625,000.

"The improvements referred to and the approximate amounts involved are $42,000 for brick paving, less about $12,000 or $15,000 to be returned by the Public Service Corporation and property owners. About $90,000 for one school and possibly $50,000 to $60,000 for another. $30,000 for police station and probably $20,000 to $25,000 for East End fire house and apparatus. An unknown amount for new sewer extension and pumping station and for East End sewer, and $17,000 for street macadamizing, to be collected back from property owners. This last item is for macadamizing seven streets, which ordinance will come up for final passage at the meeting of the Council on May 4th.

"The question for us to consider is ap lain business question. Is it advisable for Plainfield to go on piling up a debt and increasing its expenses, and thereby continually increasing the taxes, or to apply the brakes and go a little slowly in our effort to change from a suburban city of homes into a metropolis? While we wish to be progressive it seems the part of wisdom to be not too hasty in rushing into expenses and bond issues, as the habit is more easily acquired than stopped.

Extravagance has been rampant throughout the country for the past 10 years and the effect is being felt not only by individuals, but by the United States government, and many states and municipalities—even the great city of New York being in straits to raise sufficient funds for necessary improvements.

"While we are now in excellent condition let us keep so by conservatism in our expenses and in the issuing of bonds. Nothing is more conducive to the accomplishment of this result and to good government generally, than the active personal interest of the citizens in the affairs of the city, and as the improvement of municipal conditions is one of the objects of this association we believe we have now reached a point where we should broaden out in the endeavor to promote this interest and through this association bring the city authorities and the citizens into closer personal relations.

"By working together in a spirit of co-operation and not in the way of criticism, by an appreciation of the fact on the one side that the city's business is the people's business and that they have a right at all times to express their wishes and to have them observed, and of the fact on the other side that the Mayor and Common Council are generously devoting a large part of their time to the affairs of the city, we believe that this co-operation will, while tending to check possible mistakes, also make the work of the authorities more pleasant and satisfactory by providing a means of keeping in touch with the people and having their work and purposes more clearly understood.

"We feel certain that this plan, when formulated and understood, will be most effective in promoting the general interest and welfare and we ask your active labor and support in making it effective.

Respectfully submitted,
R. HENRY DEPEW,
President.

Charles J. Fisk Re-elected Vice President of State's Tuberculosis Society.

DR. VAN D. HEDGES AN OFFICER.

President of Local Board of Health an Executive Committeeman —Big Meeting in Newark.

At the annual meeting of the New Jersey Association for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis, held in Newark yesterday afternoon, the reports read proved conclusively that New Jersey is far advanced beyond any other state in the Union in the work of preventing and relieving the white plague. Other reports showed the association to be growing in membership and to be in an excellent financial condition.

A feature of the meeting was an address by Dr. Thomas Darlington, president of the New York Board of Health, and noted as an expert in the cure and prevention of tuberculosis. Dr. Darlington's remarks were listened to with the keenest of interest.

All the old officers were reelected as follows: Dr. G. K. Dickinson, president; Dr. William G. Schaeffler, first vice-president; Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of Plainfieldfi second vice-president; Fred Edson Clerk, secretary and treasurer. Honorary vice-presidents were elected as follows: Right Rev. Bishop James A. McFaul, President Woodrow Wilson, of Princeton, and Governor John Franklin Fort.

The executive committee of the association was named as follows: Dr. Dickinson, Fred Edson Clerk, Bleecker Van Wagenen, Mrs. C. B. Alexander, Dr. V. Van D. Hedges, of Plainfield, Dr. Wiliam H. Murray and Dr. T. W. Corwin. The directors elected were: Dr. C. B. Smith, of Washington; D. L. Haigh, of Summit; Joseph E. Bernstein, of Jersey City; Samuel S. Fort, of Wrightstown; Dr. H. A. Henriques, of Morristown; Dr. Stephen Pierson, of Morristown; Dr. Katherine Porter, of Orange; Dr. L. A. The treasurer reported receipts from all sources amounting to $2,649.70, and a cash balance on hand of $1.85. Several new members were received yesterday.

William C. Smallwood, executive secretary of the association, submitted a lengthy report showing the accomplishments of the past year. This report showed that nineteen local committees are now actively engaged in furthering the objects of the association. These committees are located in Atlantic City, Beverly, Burlington, Bridgeton, Camden, Elizabeth, Glassboro, Jersey City, Lakewood, Millville, Mt. Holly, Newark, New Brunswick, Orange, Paterson, Plainfield, Trenton, Vineland and Woodbury. Another will be formed in Summit during the present month.

TATTOED NAME IN ARM TO HAVE HIMSELF IDENTIFIED.

In preparing the body for burial, it was found yesterday that Michael Kouace, the New Jersey Central trackwalker who was killed at Rock avenue Monday night, had taken unusual method years ago to have himself identified in case of sudden death.

On arriving in this country in 1890 from Hungary, Kouace visited a professional tatto artist in New York and had his full name pricked into his right arm. It was placed in a spot where be believed it would stand the least chance of being obliterated in case of mangling but at the same time where it would be readily observed. It so happened that when he was killed, it was known who he was but the right name was not known until the mark was discovered on the arm. It has since been said by relatives that he had a horror of going to a nameless grave.

Kouace leaves a daughter living in Raritan who was to have been married next week to a well known young man of that place. The body was taken to her prospective mother-in-law's home and the funeral will be held in the Raritan Catholic church tomorrow morning.

Sunday-school Institute.

Under the auspices of the Union Sunday-school Teachers' Association an institute will be held in the First Baptist church Tuesday afternoon and evening, at which time C. D. PARENTS AND TEACHERS FORM AN ORGANIZATION

More than one hundred parents and teachers attended the meeting at the Plainfield High School, last night, held for the purpose of forming another parent-teacher association. There was a great amount of enthusiasm on the part of parents and teachers and an organization was formed with the following officers: President, Mrs. Otis T. Hovey; first vice-persident, Ira W. Travell; second vice-president, Mrs. J. Hervey Doane; secretary, Miss Mabel Phillips; treasurer, Mrs. George M. Rittenhouse.

The meeting was in charge of William D. Murray, and beside him on the platform were Dr. Henry L. Maxson, superintendent of schools; Principal Ira W. Travell and Robert L. Burns, assistant superintendent of the Philadelphia public schools.

The objects of the association were explained in an entertaining way by Mr. Murray, whose remarks were listened to with great interest. It was largely through his efforts in speaking in behalf of the children that so many of the parents became enthusiastic over the movement. Mr. Burns gave a brief talk from the teacher's side as seen in Philadelphia and he said that the association there had been of incalculable value to the advancement of the children's interest in obtaining an education. A few remarks were also made by Dr. Maxson and Mr. Travell endorsing the movement.

"LADIES' NIGHT" AFFAIR PROVES ENTERTAINING

The Men's Club of the Congregational church gave a "ladies' night" entertainment, last night, to which all of the men's clubs of the city and borough, together with their friends were invited. This was the last meeting of the club until fall and a delightful evening was afforded all present. The entertainment was provided by Walter David, humorist reader and Miss Edith Davies, soprano soloist at the Brick Presbyterian church, New York. Bert Harold assisted at the piano.

It was the tenth appearance here of Mr. David and his amusing selections were enjoyed as much as ever. He remarked that it was in the Congregational church that he made his first appearance in Plainfield and it was always a delight to him to return. The selections by Miss Davies charmed everyone and she was obliged to respond to many encores. After the entertainment ice cream and cake were served by members of the club and a social time enjoyed. The program was in charge of Dr. Frank T. Clawson, assisted by a committee of men.

CONGREGATIONAL WOMEN CHOOSE NEW OFFICERS

Election of officers, reports for the past year and the selection of chairmen for the various committees comprised the principal busines at the annual meeting of the Women's Society of the Congregational church, yesterday afternoon. This society embraces all of the women's work of the church and it is one of the most active of the several departments.

During the past year $600 was raised for foreign and home missions, of which amount $50 was received at the thank-offering tea in November and $72 was received at the foreign mission tea. The women have studied India for foreign missions and Alaska for home missions. The average attendance for the year was four in excess of the previous year.

These officers were elected: President, Mrs. Charles L. Goodrich; vice-president, Mrs. Charles A. Rice; recording secretary, Mrs. James McClymont; carresponding secretary, Mrs. C. E. Bentley; treasurer, Mrs. J. M. Whiton; chaiman mission committee, Miss Florella Clark; chairman music committee, Mrs. William Rawson; chairman social committee, refreshments, Miss Jessie McIntosh; entertainment, Miss Ethel Millar; afternoon teas, Mrs. Mary Harold; chairman visiting committee, Mrs. William Van Alstyne; chairman sewing committee, Mrs. Wiliam Hand; chairman house committee, Mrs. L. B. Morgan; chairman literary committee, Mrs. Benjamin Dunning.

Shot Himself in the Foot.

Charles Taylor, aged twenty years, of South Plainfield, accidently shot himself in the instep of the right foot yesterday afternoon while fooling with a revolver. The bullet inflicted a painful wound and the young man decided to go to Muhlenberg Hospital for treatment. The bullet was removed and the injury is not considered serious.

JR. O. U. A. M.'S EUCHRE A BASEBALL BENEFIT

Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., held a progressive euchre party in the lodge rooms last night, the affair being largely attended by both members and friends of the organization. There were six prizes, three for the women and the same number for the men. The first prize for the women was a silk umbrella, which was won by Mrs. H. Bouton; second prize, a women's hand bag, went to Mrs. William Leeoui, while Mrs. George Waldron took the bon-bon dish given as third prize. Harry R. Bouton won the first prize for the men, a silk umbrella; P. H. Latourette the second prize, a wallet and Walter Walker received third prize, a watch fob.

After the euchre the floor was cleared and dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. During the intermission refreshments were served. The affair was arranged for the benefit of the baseball team and a good sum was realized as profit. The committee in charge comprised Walter Walker, chairman; E. Victor Lorton and Joseph Muir.

GARDNER R. COLBY GETS A $2,000 JOB

Governor Fort failed yesterday to name the members of the Excise and other commissions, and gave out a statement that he would name them on Friday. It is understood that he is having the most trouble in filling the Excise Commission.

The Civil Service Commission organized with William Fletcher Johnson president, Speaker Frank P. Jess of the Assembly examiner in chief, and Gardner R. Colby, secretary. The Commissioners get $2,000 a year, the Chief Examiner $3,000, and the Secretary $2,000. Gardner Colby is the cousin of Senator Everett Colby.

The State Board of Health organized with John H. Capstick of Morris as President and Dr. Bruce Skeator of Asbury Park, Secretary.

The politics in these appointments show in the case of Speaker Jess of of Camden, as it removes him from the path of Senator William J. Bradley, who will be renominated from Camden next fall. Gardner Colby's appointment fastens the Colby faction to the administration.

The Civil Service Commissioners will go to New York to study the working of the commission there. The law does not go into effect in Jersey until Oct. 10.

HOLY CROSS CHURCH WOMEN HAVE A TEA

Under the auspices of the Women's Guild of the Church of the Holy Cross a delightful tea and sale of candy was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. O. Stevens on Clinton avenue. The affair was largely attended, there being a number of guests from out of town. The home was attractively decorated. In the dining room there were lilies of the valley, while white lilacs were used in profusion. Pansies were used with good effect in the reception room.

The reception committee comprised Mrs. J. O. Stevens and the executive board, Miss Louise Davis, Mrs. Emil Larsson, Mrs. Frank Allen, Mrs. Fred Harrington and Mrs. William Cressy. Mrs. Samuel Townsend and Mrs. J. H. Carman were in charge of the tea room, pouring tea and chocolate, and they were assisted in serving by Miss Florence Stevens, Miss Iola Moore, Miss Ida Davis, Miss Gertrude Pierson, Miss Miriam Carman, Miss Gerta Lunberg, Miss Laura Long and Miss Ruth Burt. Those in charge of the candy table were Mrs. Herbert Langford, Miss Dorothy Langford, Miss Helen Harrington and Miss Katherine Stevens.

During the social hour there were several charming selections on the piano by Miss Laura Long and vocal selections by Mrs. Byard Hawthorne, soprano. The affair was held for the purpose of stimulating interest in the work of the guild and it was an entire success. The amount of net proceeds has not yet been determined.

William Jeffery Acting Foreman.

The Union County Grand Jury adjjourned its session this morning until tomorrow morning. Foreman Russ, of Elizabeth, will be unable to attend tomorrow and he honored William Jeffery, of Berkeley Heights, by asking him to preside as foreman during his absence. There is plenty of business ahead for the jury and the session will probably be a lone one.

FISK VETOES ORDINANCE

Mayor Sends Back to City Fathers Measure Providing for Another Bond Issue.

THIS FOR THE STREET WORK.

Said to Strongly Oppose Piling Up Bonds and Favors a Plan that Relieves City of the Burden.

It was learned today that Mayor Fisk has vetoed the ordinance providing for the macadamizing of numerous thoroughfares throughout the city. The Mayor, himself, refuses to make any comment on the subject until the Common Council meets on Monday night but his veto is on file with the returned ordinance in the city clerk's office. As there was but one dissenting vote among the city fathers to the measure, the Mayor's action has caused some surprise.

It is explained by friends of His Honor that the Mayor is determined upon a policy of retrenchment and will not sanction any further bond issues at this time. He is also reported to be strongly opposed to the present method of issuing bonds for street improvements other than those of a permanent character, such as brick pave. It is said that the Mayor believes that before any more macadamizing is done on a particular street the property-owners on the given thoroughfare should pay up to the city their proportion of the expense so that there would be no need of any issue of bonds, and any delay in collecting assessments for such work.

In a special message, Mayor Fisk on May 4, it is said, notified the street committee that he would not approve an issue of $17,000 worth of bonds for the proposed macadamizing work. Notwithstanding his attitude the ordinance was passed and sent up to him. The city authorities are now waiting to see what action the Common Council will take when the vetoed ordinance is sent back to them on Monday night.

TOLD OF HOME LIFE OF THE ITALIAN WOMAN

Mrs. George A. Chapman prepared an interesting paper on "The Italian Woman in Her Home," which was read by Mrs. Robert Lowry at the meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the First Baptist church held yesterday afternoon in the lecture room. Mrs. Chapman's paper gave a view of Italians in their dwelling places, the Italian language having no equilvanent for the word home. She gave a graphic description of many homes in Italy, from the peasant's lowly abode to the palace of the patician, and incidentally revealed many characteristics of Italian women.

This paper was followed by another on "Italian Missions," written by Mrs. J. Herbert Case and read by Mrs. George H. Bachelor. Mrs. Case told of the vast numbers of Italians that came to this country, that nation being the largest single element in emigration and the number increasing at a great ratio in recent years. She said three quarters of them settled in the Northern Atlantic States and thirty per cent. of these in New York City. The light hold of the Roman Catholic religion upon them was touched upon and their susceptibility to gospel influence. Buffalo was spoken of as the birth place of Italian missions in this country and their growth in New York city and other places was described. The importance of workers, means and sympathetic interest was urged to establish missions among Italians in our cities and towns that the posibility of their evangelization may avert the peril they may otherwise be to our country and its institutions.

The papers were preceded by a devotional service led by Mrs. J. A. Chambliss, the theme being "Following in His Footsteps—in Sociability."

Special Services at Faith Chapel.

Commencing tonight and continuing every night until Sunday, excepting Saturday night, evangelistic services will be held at Faith chapel. They wil be in charge of Rev. Atkinson, who has been supplying the pulpit at the Scotch Plains Baptist church, and he will be assisted by Frank Fitzgerald, a noted singer, from New York. The public is invited to attend these services.

District Court Session Adjourned.

Because of pressing business in the Union County Court Judge Newcorn announced today that there would be no session of the district court, tomorrow morning as usual. The cases will go over for one week.

BORO' SCHOOL BUDGET CARRIED UNANIMOUSLY

The annual school meeting for the vote on appropriations was held in the Somerset street school, North Plainfield, last night. The borough citizens were conspicuous by their absence and only fourteen ballots were cast. The fixed sum of $14,200 was unanimously carried.

Dr. J. H. Cooley called the meeting to order and was elected chairman while Albert Steiner acted as secretary. The tellers were F. W. Ward and Frederick Hale. Dr. Cooley addressed the voters and in the course of his remarks explained why the appropriation is so much below those made in previous years. The money coming from the State railroad tax, he said, is responsible as the borough will receive over $10,000 from this source. The polls were declared open when he concluded and they were closed at 9 o'clock.

The appropriation is divided as follows: For general expenses, $11,500; for repairs, $1,000; for manual training, $1,700; total, $14,200.

FAITH CHAPEL HAS A BIRTHDAY PARTY

The Ladies' Aid Society of Faith chapel entertained many friends in the chapel last night, the occasion being arranged as a celebration of the third anniversary of the society's birthday. Although just a youngster in years the society is a very powerful force in the chapel.

An excellent musical and literary program, arranged and prepared by Mr. David Patterson, was enjoyed by a very appreciative audience. Rev. J. W. Musson in behalf of the Aid Society tendered to all a hearty welcome, after which the following ladies and gentlemen entertained those present: Piano duets by Miss Marie Viebrock, Mrs. Crow, Misses Randolph and Dunavan. Vocal solos by Mrs. Charles Quint and Mr. Fitzgerald; vocal duets by Mr. nd Mrs. David Patterson, Misses Christine Viebrock and Miss Bennett; recitations by Miss Aimee Emmons, Violin solos by Mr. Laurence, cornet solos by Mr. Frazer; all of which items were rendered very acceptably. Miss Marie Viebrock made a very efficient accompanist.

Refreshments were served at the close of the program by a committee of ladies in charge of Mrs. Mackay and Mrs. V. Utzinger.

MUSICAL RECITAL AT THE CASINO LAST NIGHT

A musical recital was given at the Casino last night by Miss Mary Lansing, contralto; Miss May Gessler Daland, pianist; Harold Kent, baritone and Frank Rice, violinist, Miss Morrison being the asistant accompanist. Miss Lansing and Miss Daland, who have many friends here, were given a cordial greeting. The program:

Sanitary Sewer Obstructed.

The sanitary sewer extending from the Marsh building at Park avenue and Second street, through West Second street to a point near Trinity Reformed church, which has been clogged up for several days was cleared this morning and is again in working order. The trouble was first discovered when the sewage matter backed up in the Marsh building. The matter was reported to City Engineer Gavett, who took immediate action. On West Second street it was necessary to make a large opening in the street to reach the sewer and clear it of the obstruction.

HEAVY SENTENCE FOR RETURNING MARINE

Richard Grindley, an undersized Scotchman who is no stranger to the local police, was fined $100 and sent to jail for sixty days by Judge Runyon this morning. He was arrested by Ptarolman Kelley yesterday on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct preferred by his wife, a respected woman who has frequently been made the object of his abuse.

Grindley has been arraigned previously on three occasions since last July. The first time sentence was suspended, the second he went to jail for sixty days and the third, when he was arrested for assaulting his wife and children, he was fined $100 and given sixty days in addition. This was in September of last year and when he had served five months he shipped aboard an ocean steamer for Glasgow, returning only a few days ago.

Grindley came back to Plainfield and despite the penalty he has suffered before, started in at his old tricks. The wife stood it as long as she did and then made the complaint. Grindley pleaded with the judge to let him go back to his ship but His Honor turned a deaf ear.

"You are entitled to no consideration," he said, "and after you have served another five months in jail, you had better take Plainfield off your visiting list. You'll find it rather unhealthy here every time you come back."

SONS OF OLD NASSAU MAKE MERRY TONIGHT

The annual smoker by the Princeton Club of Plainfield will be held at the Casino tonight at 8:30 o'clock, the committee in charge having promised an unusual program of fun. Edward J. Patterson will be the toastmaster and among the speakers of the evening will be William R. Wilder, H. J. Murray and McCready Sykes, graduates of Princeton, and Robert Bridges. There will also be singing by one of the old Princeton quartets and many of the famous songs written by Kenneth Clark for the Triangle Club will be heard.

The Casino will be appropriately decorated for the occasion and the committee in charge of which Owen H. Fleming is the chairman, promise several surprises. Joseph M. HUBBY IS NOW ON THE TRAIL.

Wants the Police to Help Get the Trinkets Back but Dreads Newspaper Publicity.

A visit to police headquarters yesterday by an East End man whose family circle has been broken into by an outsider brought near the surface a bit of gossip that has been discussed sub-rosa for the past couple of weeks. The aggrieved husband had a tale of woe to tell but owing to his dread of newspaper publicity refused to make any complaint that would bring him in the limelight.

According to the story that has been traveling about and which has been verified in its essential points, the trouble has been caused by a dapper young man who came to this city several weeks ago from Newark. He dressed fashionably and had a fine line of talk about his wealthy relatives, recent trips to Europe and a lot of "salve" that is aptly described by a new slang term. He registered at a local hotel and in the course of his meanderings about the city, was introduced to the East End man's wife. She is in her early twenties and is the daughter of a well known and respected borough family. The two became quite intimate—unbeknown to hubby, of course, and there were numerous walks and drives in the afternoon while the head of the household was at work.

Things were going along in this way until a week ago Monday, when the husband accidentally discovered a note from the Newarker to his wife. A stormy scene followed and after an outburst of tears and pleadings for forgiveness from wife her lord and master started downtown to wreak vengeance on the interloper. T he note was written on paper bearing the hotel's heading and it gave him a clue. He reached the hostelry late in the afternoon, finding that the man in question was stopping there but that he had gone out for a drive. He made up his mind to wait there until he came back but while he was pacing up and down in the office, a friend of the Newarker's slipped out and informed him of what was up as he was coming back. He stood not on the order of going but went. His flight was so sudden that he left his suit case behind and a board bill of $15.

The husband was unaware that the tip had been given and remained at the hotel until late last night, all the time growing more excited as he framed up what he was going to do to the destroyer of his happiness. When he found that it would be useless to wait any longer he sought the aid of the police in locating his man but they were unable to do anything for him.

That ended the matter on the outside for the time being and the scandalmongers were unable to learn whether or not a separation had followed the episode. It seems that there was none, but a new chapter was added to the story by the husband's visit to headquarters yesterday. He announced that his wife had been even more foolish than he had at first thought, and had just found out that she had given the Newarker two valuable rings that she had been wearing since her wedding a short time ago. Her new found friend said he only wanted to "borrow" them but she is looking for them yet.

The East Ender said he wanted the police to lend a hand in getting the rings back but as he refused to swear out a charge of larceny no official action could be taken. He added the information that he has been informed on good authority that the jewelry was pawned in Elizabeth and the police of that city have been asked to see if they can be located.

Arranging Curtis' Extradition.

Chief of Police Kiely and Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., will go to Albany, N. Y., this afternoon for the purpose of having Governor Hughes sign the necessary papers to bring Charles B. Curtis to Union county. The documents have already been passed upon by Governor Fort and nothing now stands in the way of Curtis' extradition.

June Meeting of the Council.

The next regular session of the Common Council will be held Monday night, June 1, when maters of varied importance will be considered. It is possible that the report of the water investigating commission will be received at that time.

GOLF.

Nearly all the prominent amateur golfers of the district have entered for the tenth annual championship tournament of the Metropolitan Golf Association, to be held at the Baltusrol Golf Club today and following days. In the list of ninety entries, one of the largest in the history of the organization, the names of Archie Graham, of North Jersey, runner-up in the national tournament last year and the Metropolitan in 1905, and Fred Herreshoff, of Garden City, fail to appear. Graham does not feel like taking the time from business, but Herreshoff neglected to enter in the regular way through his club secretary. The chances are, however, that the Garden City man will be allowed to start.

With the exception of Herbert M. Harriman, all the former Metropolitan champions have sent in their names. This means that Jerome B. Travers, of Montclair, the title holder; Walter J. Travis, Garden City; Findlay S. Douglas, Apawamis; Chas. Seely, Wee Burn, and Harold Wilcox, Montclair, will be found at the first tee. Gilman P. Tiffany, of Powelton, the four-times champion of the Hudson River Golf Association; Charles Hitchcock, of Balutsrol; Louis Livingston, Garden City; Robert C. Watson, Westbrook, and George T. Brokaw, Garden City, are also entered among others.

Conditions call for a 36-hole medal play qualifying round, the best thirty-two to continue on for the championship. Cups have also been presented for two other divisions.

The five American players entered in the women's championship golf tournament of Great Britain did not fare well in the eighteen-hole stroke competition, preliminary to the big event, on the links at St. Andrews, Monday. The conditions were unfavorable, as a strong wind was blowing.

Miss M. F. Phelps returned 105, while Miss Frances C. Griscom, the United States champion in 1900, needed 106.

The winner of the competition was Miss E. G. Suttie, with a score of 89. Many of the 138 players tore up their cards because their scores were so high.

Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., will have initiation at the meeting to be held Friday night.

THE LIQUOR QUESTION.

Some timely and wholesome remarks were made yesterday by Rt. Rev. Edwin S. Lines, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Newark, anent the excise question, the prelate, who is one of the authors of the present Bishop's law, eloquently defending the present statute. As is a matter of history, the Newarker, with his brother bishop, Rt. Rev. John Scarborough, of the Trenton diocese, and the two Roman Catholic bishops of New Jersey, Rt. Rev. James McFaul, of Trenton, and Rt. Rev. John O'Conner, of Trenton, stood sponser for the excellent liquor legislation now in force. All four of these distinguished men have done good work since in preventing any tampering with that law and the utterances of Bishop Lines yesterday are most interesting.

"The existing laws," said the prelate, "which forbid the opening of saloons on Sundays, the closing of back rooms, the exclusion of minors, is good legislation, in accordance with the traditions of the commonwealth, and ought to be maintained.

"The removal of the licensing power from politics and the limitation of the number of licenses in some proper proportion to the population, leaving them in the hands of responsible and law-abiding men, are proper things to work for.

"The demand in the name of personal liberty for the breaking down of the traditions and customs of the country does not become those who have here sought homes, and ought not to be heeded. At a time when Germany, France and Italy are trying to regain their lost day of rest, and feel the need of restriction as regards the use of strong drink, because of its physical effects upon the people; when the British government has committed itself to greater measures of restriction to correct abuses, it is not a time for us to part with our good customs.

"I have no sympathy with the violent language which has been recently used, and I try to appreciate the feelings of great companies of my fellow citizens who differ from me as regards this question. The people of the country have apparently made up their minds that something shall be done to limit waste of life and national wealth through the abuse of strong drink.

"If moderate measures are not accepted, as in this State, the demand for sweeping measures will come. All men in the State ought to accept cheerfully what has been written down on the statute book.

"Sunday as a day of rest has been one of the greatest blessings of men, especially to those who do the hardest work. The pleasure of the few must not count against the good of the multitude.

"It is greed, not reasonable personal liberty, which seeks to open saloons and places of amusement on Sunday, and it is against greed that we ought to make our fight, for the sake of the great company of epople.

"We must accept greater liberty as regards the use of Sunday for recreation. It does not offend me to see great companies of men and boys, who have been shut up all the week in the shops and factories, at play on Sunday, as it does to see men and women who have large liberty as regards the use of their time turning away from the churches to the golf links on Sunday."

It has been announced that Governor J. Franklin Fort, who is a firm and consistent advocate of the Bishop's law will appoint a commission within the course of a few days to investigate excise conditions throughout the State. Report has it that Charles J. Fisk, of this city, who has made a special study of the subject and is a defender of the present statute, will be a member of the commission. Would it not be wise to add as two of his colleagues, Bishop McFaul, of Trenton, and Bishop Lines, of Newark?

YES, HE'S A PEACH.

As the "real thing" in the way of a mayor and all around model citizen, the fame of Plainfield's chief executive is spreading far beyond the borders of Union county. His work has attracted favorable press comment from many quarters.

Here is but a sample. It comes from the New Brunswick Home News:

"They have a wide-awake Mayor in Plainfield, Charles J. Fisk. When he gets behind a project it moves. The Mayor got all the women in Plainfield excited to the boiling point over a Kirmess there last week. (A Kirmess is an archaic appellation for a vaudeville show). He kept them at it in the pretty opera house for five nights, and even then there wasn't room for all comers. The net proceeds for the Muhlenberg Hospital were $6,000, which is a lot of money when you count it out in quarters. Plainfield's Mayor is a peach."

After hearing that California and Alabama had endorsed W. J. Bryan, James E. Martine, the "farmer-orator of New Jersey," and the personal friend of the Nebraskan, rushed into town this morning to "frankly admit" that the Commoner editor's nomination is inevitable. "Just as sure as you're born," he added. It's a fortunate thing for himself that Mr. Martine never dabbled in stocks.

Local taxpayers have reason to be thankful that the present municipal administration has succeeded in cutting down the annual appropriation for the public schools to approximately $35,000. This is almost half the amount asked for last year and is a satisfactory demonstration that a policy of retrenchment has been decided upon.

Gardner Colby has been given a $2,000 job on the civil service commission, and his cousin, Everett Colby, is now chasing after another term as State Senator. All of which goes to show that it is sometimes advantageous to be a reformer.

In convention assembled at Trenton, the Prohibitionists did two things. They "pointed with pride" to themselves and "viewed with alarm" Roosevelt, Taft, Bryan, Fort and most everybody else.

A Bound Brook paper in a wild effusion on Bryan declares that "The Peerless One" is "a statesman of whom any country might be proud." It should have added "in the Dark Ages."

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

As the result of special work seventeen new members have been added to the Home Department of the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday school.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

It seems as though a stop should be put to the crap shooting in this borough which creates excitement here on Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons. There may be seen loitering around the corner of South avenue many of these players waiting for the game to start. If the Mayor would pay much attention to this it would be stopped very shortly.

The Jr. O. U. A. M. baseball team of Plainfield will play here next Saturday afternoon against the Dunellen Field Club nine on the latter's field. The game will be called at 3:45. The battery for Dunellen will be Harvey and Dodwell.

At the meeting of W. G. Holton Council, No. 55, Jr. O. U. A. M., it was voted to hold a celebration on July Fourth. A committee of five was appointed to make arrangements.

Badly Hurt in Trolley Collision.

August Kolke, a driver for George Frisch, a New Brunswick scavenger, was seriously hurt in a trolley collision in New Brunswick Monday night on the Codwise avenue line. The trolley car crashed into Kolke's wagon, which was upset. One horse was knocked down and Kolke and the motorman, Charles Clausen, were hurt. Kolke was taken to Wells Hospital, with two broken ribs, a broken knee cap and a slight concussion of the brain. He will recover. The motorman was badly cut by flying glass. The trolley car was wrecked.

First Excursion to the Shore.

The first Sunday-school excursion out of Plainfield this summer will be that of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian, Grace, St. Stephen's, Holy Cross, Seventh-Day Baptist, Bethel chapel and the schools from New Market and Dunellen. There will be two sections, twenty-eight cars in all and they will stop at Dunellen, Clinton avenue, Grant, avenue, Plainfield and Netherwood, and plans are being completed for one of the largest excursions ever going out of Plainfield to Asbury Park. The date is July 2.

Newspaper Changes Hands.

"The Daily Times" and the newspaper and job printing business conducted by "The Times" Publishing Company at New Brunswick, will pass under the control today of Linn E. Wheeler, who has purchased all of the stock holdings of Francis W. Daire. Mr. Wheeler was pastor of the First Baptist church, in that city, for a number of years. Mr. Daire, who has been closely identified with "The Times" since 1893, retires owing to ill health.

Favors Police and Fire Commissions.

By a vote of seven to four the Passaic Council declared last night in favor of Mayor Fred R. Low's plan for police and fire commissions, and by a vote of ten to one it declared in favor of his plan to submit the municipal light plant proposition to the people. A special election will be held on Tuesday, June 9, at which the voters will decide both questions.

Justice Pleased Woodbridge Couple.

John Leland and Miss Margaret Berry, both of Woodbridge, were married Monday night by Justice of the Peace Clark at his home in Scotch Plains. The couple was so pleased with their treatment that they promised to send Justice Clark all the Woodbridge business possible in the matrimonial line.

In some ball towns when a player leaves and goes to some other team they tell continually about how punk he is, but in New York when a player goes elsewhere they wish him luck.

SENATOR KEAN WANTS MORE FOR JERSEY CITY.

Washington, May 20.—United State Senator Kean yesterday made a move in the Jersey City postoffice matter by offering an amendment to the bill as it came over from the House, which ordered a $350,000 appropriation for the proposed new Federal building in Jersey City.

Senator Kean moved to amend by making the amount $500,000 instead of $350,000.

The amendment has been referred to the Senate Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Senator Kean says he will do his best to have the amount raised to half a million. He says Jersey City is entitled to a fine and substantial new Federal building and that a $500,000 building would be none too good.

YOUNG MAN'S HEROISM SAVES DROWNING GIRL.

Paterson, May 20.—But for the heroic action of Alexander Hammond, a young man of 27 Albion avenue, eighteen year old Mary Seusel, of 57 Holsman street, would have been drowned here yesterday. At the risk of his own life, Hammond plunged into the Passaic river, near the Sixth avenue bridge, and swam with the young woman to the shore. It was hours later before she recovered consciousness in the General Hospital.

The girl left her home, after informing her family that she did not feel well, and intended to take a short walk in the fresh air. It was not until several hours later that her relatives heard from her again, and then only when they received a telephone message from the hospital informing them that their daughter was at that institution and in a serious condition.

While walking near the banks of the river the girl was seized with a sudden weak spell, and evidently fell into the water. Just how the mishap occurred she could not tell, as she says she couldn't remember much after she left her home until she recovered consciousness in the hospital.

Hammond was walking along the Goffle road when he noticed the young woman struggling in the water, which, at that point, is about six feet deep. He plunged into the water, and managed to drag the girl to the shore after a brief struggle. It was late yesterday afternoon before the girl regained consciousness and furnished the hospital authorities with her name and address.

RUM AND SALT WATER.

Former Had the Effect of Gaining Boatman Two Immersions at Perth Amboy.

Perth Amboy, May 20.—William T. Hartmann, who has been a member of the Perth Amboy police force a little over two weeks, last night made his first arrest, and his initial prisoner was a man who had been twice rescued from drowning within three hours. As he was still drunk after his second immersion in the waters of State Island Sound, Hartmann told Recorder Pickersgill this morning that he thought he was justified in making an arrest.

The man gave his name as William Clark and said he was twenty-two years old, when arraigned in court. He admitted that he has no home and claimed to be a professional boatman. Clark said that he had been drinking and the first time he went overboard was because he thought the dock on which he was walking was several feet longer than it proved to be. He was rescued by the crew of the Lehigh Valley tug Allentown and taken to the boiler-room to dry his clothes.

There he received more to drink, and when later he tried to go ashore, Clark says, he saw two ladders where there was only one and attempted to leave the tug by using the imaginary one. The result was another dip into the brine, and again he was saved. Hartmann then arrested him. With a warning to shun intoxicants and salt water alike, Clark was released.

Fire Develops A Hero.

Perth Amboy, May 20.—Fire last night destroyed three boarding houses at Keasbey, a suburb, rendering more than sixty boarders homeless and causing damage to the amount of $12,000. The origin of the fire is unknown. No fire department was available except the hose carts from neighboring factories, and they could do little to stop the progress of the flames. Fred Olsen, fourteen years old, is hailed as a hero, because of his daring rescue of a baby a year old. He learned that the child had been forgotten in the excitement and rushed to its rescue, escaping with it in his arms less than two minutes before the roof fell.

The meeting at the Congregational church tonight will be for the purpose of practicing congregational singing and learning the responses under the direction of Charles L. Lewis. This will take the place of the service usually performed by the quartet choir.

MR. PRATT

By

Joseph C. Lincoln

Author of "Cap'n Eri," "Partners of the Tide," Etc.

Illustrations by T. D. Melvill

My, but I was hopping! Talking about pressing clothes and us next door to going to the bottom!

"I'll press nothing," says I. "And I'll say right now, Mr. Van Brunt, that I won't 'tend to them gardens. You hear—"

Van waved his hand. "Your salary from now on," he says, "will be—"

"No, it won't. My salary's big enough. It's me that's short—short about 26 hours out of the 24. If I was two men I might do what's needful, but as 'tis I can't. I like you both first-rate—when you ain't too crazy—but either you'll have to get me a helper or I'll have to quit. That is, if we get out of this mess alive, which ain't likely."

All the time I was preaching this way I was tugging at the 'midships thwart. Finally I got it loose and shoved it over the stern. I was going to try to scull with it.

The Heavenlies was completely upset. Not by the fear of drowning—drat 'em. I don't callate they was afraid of anything—but my talk of quitting seemed to knock 'em silly.

"By Jove! you know," says Van. "This is serious, skipper. You can't mean it."

"You bet I can!" I says, sculling like all possessed with one arm and fighting pullets with the other.

"You're not going," says Van, decided. "You're—simply—not. Is he, Martin?"

"I should say not," says t'other Twin. "Sol, if you want more money—or assistants—or anything, why, all right. But we want you. And we're going to keep you."

"That's settled then," says Van, quick. "What kind of help do you want—and how many?"

"Well," I says, cooling down a mite—of course I was pleased to find they liked me so well. "Well," I says, "if you could get somebody to cook and help 'round the house may be I—"

"A cook?" says Van. "Good! We get a cook—two cooks—ten of 'em, if you say so. And we get 'em quick."

"Let's get ashore first," says I. "I've got to make the point there or we'll get—"

"Our finish, hey?" he says, ending the sentence for me. "All right; make the point." Then he got out a cigar and went to smoking.

But I wa'n't by no means sure we would make the point. 'Twas the east'ard end of Ozone island I was aiming for. The tide set in strong there and I could see that the skiff would pretty nigh hit the beach, if I had luck.

We zig-zagged along. Pretty soon we got to where the waves was running higher. They commenced to slop into the boat.

"She'll go under, sure's you're born," says I. "If I can only keep her up till we get into shoal water."

"I seem to have acquired the castaway habit," says Van. "Once in that other boat of yours, Sol, and now in this one. I must swear off. This is getting monotonous."

The swells run bigger as we neared the point. The skiff was half full and the slopping and the motion stirred up the menagerie. Such squealing and squawking and flapping you never heard nor saw. Them hens was all over us and the pig underneath.

We riz on a wave and begun to capsize.

"Here we go!" I yelled. "Stand by!"

Over we went. The hens had the best of us in a way—they could fly after a fashion. I wished I could. Lucky the water wa'n't more than waist deep.

I plowed through the sand and undertow and got to the beach. Hartley come next, toting the pig by one leg. The "dear" wriggled loose and headed for the pines, hurrahing like a sawmill. The most of the hens had gone on ahead.

"Humph!" says somebody. "You're pretty wet, ain't you?"

I rubbed the wet sand out of my eyes. There on a sand hummock in front of us was a girl. A queer-looking female she was, too. Reminded me some of Hannah Jane Purvis, being built on the same spare lines and having the same general look of being all corners. She had on a striped calico dress, stripes running up and down, and her belt went across the middle of the stripes as straight as if 'twas laid out with a spirit level. I couldn't see her face good, for she had on a sunbonnet and 'twas like peeking at her through a nail keg, but she had snapping black eyes and moved quick, which wa'n't Hannah Jane's way by a good sight. I stood and stared at her.

"I say you're pretty wet, ain't you?" she says again, louder. "Why don't you say something? Are you hard of hearing?"

Before I could get my bearings enough to answer Van Brunt comes dripping alongside. He was still holding the cigar stump in his mouth and he had one of the Plymouth Rocks—the rooster, as it happened—squeezed tight under one arm.

"Well, skipper," he says, "the Ark has stranded and the animals may now—Hello! What? Who?"

He looked at the girl and she at him. Then he says brisk:

"Can you cook?"

CHAPTER XI.

Eureka.

Whatever that girl might have expected from us, I guess she didn't expect that. It set her back so that she couldn't speak for a full minute; which was something of a miracle, as I found out later.

"Can I what?" she says, finally.

"Can you cook?" asks Van Brunt again.

"Can I—" Then she turns to me. "He ought to be attended to right off," she says, referring to Van. "Some of that wet has soaked in and he's got water on the brain. Take that poor rooster away from him afore he squeezes it to death."

Van laughed and dropped the rooster. I callate he'd forgot that he had it. "Let me explain," he begun. "You see, we—"

Hartley spoke then. "Wait a minute," says he, laughing. "I suggest that we adjourn to the house and get into some dry clothes. Then we can talk business, if the young lady is willing."

The girl looked at him. "Business is what I'm here for," says she. "Which of you three is the quahaug one?"

"The which?" says I; and the Heavenlies both said the same.

"Which of you is the quahaug one? I've got some business to talk with him."

"Martin," says Van, grave, and turning to his chum. "Are you a 'quahaug one?'"

"I guess he is," says I. I was beginning to see a light. Hartley's clamming cruise was turning out as I'd expected.

"Humph!" says the girl. "Well, you made a clean job, Lys says. About three buckets and a half, wa'n't they?"

You never see a man so puzzled as Hartley, unless 'twas Van Brunt. They looked at each other, at the girl, and then at me. I explained.

"I judge 'twas this young woman's quahaug bed that you and James cleaned out t'other day," I says. "You remember I told you we'd hear from them quahaugs later."

"Oh!" says Martin. "Awfully sorry, I'm sure. I hope you'll permit me to pay for—"

She bobbed the sunbonnet up and down. "That's what I come for," says she. "They was my brother Lycurgus' quahaugs. He'd just bedded 'em. Quahaugs is worth a dollar a bucket this time of year. That's three dollars and a half. I won't charge you for the sticks, though what on earth you done with them is more'n I can make out, and Lys says the same."

WOMEN'S WOES.

Plainfield Women Are Finding Relief at Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing-down pains; they must stoop over, when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. Agnes Christiansen, of 311 Prescott place, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Several years ago I was sick from kidney diseases and suffered all kinds of hard pains in my back and loins, and about the kidneys. I could not bend over to pick up anything, and occasionally had dizzy spells and headaches. I could not rest well at night and on the whole my condition was such that life did not seem worth living. Doctors being unable to help me I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills, which had been used with success in our family. I took them, finding relief in a short time and continued taking them until cured."

BOROUGH HIGH LOSES TO Y. M. C. A., 8 TO 5.

The Y. M. C. A. baseball team defeated the N. P. H. S. team on Crescent Oval, in a 5 inning practice game, yesterday afternoon by score of 8-3. The association team scored 5 runs in the first, which proved enough to win. The borough team got one run in the second on a hit by Overton, a base on balls and a scratch hit by Bailey. In the third Bailey reached first on a clean hit and was brought safe on Powlison's home run over Riffert's head who was playing in close. The Y. M. C. A. team ran bases at will and took every chance.

JUNIORS DEFEATED IN A CLOSE GAME

The annual baseball game between the senior and junior teams of the Plainfield High School, played yesterday afternoon on Crescent Oval resulted in a victory for the seniors, the score being 6 to 5. Lyness, pitching for the juniors, held his opponents up to the eighth inning without a hit, and then Kahn, Mortimer, Hammond and Rubenstein started a batting rally that netted a sufficient number of hits to give the seniors the game. At the time the batting rally was started the score was 5 to 3 in favor of the juniors. Lyness did the best work for his team.

Each team was credited with four errors. The juniors secured six hits off of Rubenstein, while the seniors gathered five singles off Lyness. The lineup: Seniors—Kahn, lf; Titsworth, rf; Schofield, cf; Mortimer, 2b; Rothberg, ss; Nash, 3b; Hammond, c; Dutcher, 1b; Rubenstein, p. Juniors—Riffert, 2b; Doane, 3b; Abbott, 1b; Lyness, p; Beeken, ss; Banks, lf; Pryor, cf; Robins, Wilcox, rf; Gray, c.

SCHOOL FACULTY TO "SHINE" ON THIS DIAMOND

Individual members of the Plainfield High School faculty are bruising their fingers on the sly in secret baseball practice for the game to be played at Crescent Oval Friday afternoon with the school nine. There is, however, such a feeling of confidence on the part of the pedagogues that no team practice is to be held before the game, and it is reported that Dr. Henry M. Maxson, who is to play in the outfield, hasn't thrown a baseball yet this season.

"Ben" Evans, who is the "big noise" in the baseball up at Hope Chapel, is to distribute the bends from the centre of the diamond, and his work-outs in practice have kept the betting odds 'way down. F. Clyde Doane, of the school nine, will be the receiving end of the battery, (if he can keep up his curriculum work so as to be eligible). On first base will be Principal Ira Winthrop Travell, and when he hasn't been sleuthing around to break up "school fraternities," he has been out at Crescent Oval, where he is almost perpetually photographed with a bat in his hand, swinging at Murphey's curves. His wing is now in great shape, and he can now throw to third base on the second bounce. Lindsey Best is to be on second, F. L. Bostwick on third, and S. B. Howe, Jr., at short, but all scorn the need of practice.

There is lots of material for the out-field, where Dr. Maxson, James D. Macnab, "Elbert" Hubbard, Charles L. Lewis, and George Broadbent, the cricket fiend, all want a chance. Each of these candidates are trying for the position of right-fielder, on the assumption that there is least work in that position. Unless the distribution can be amicably settled, it is probable that the entire quintet will be in right garden, or else that there will be five more rooters for the faculty and no outfield at all.

The faculty nine is confident of victory, holding as they do the inalenable right to rule any member of their opponents' team off the diamond for low standing in school work. The women members of the faculty are already organized into a cheering section, and will cheer the lucky plays of the teacher-players, by reciting the Greek alphabet, "magna cum voluminitate." (Walla-Walla!)

PAUL SORG WILL BRING THOROUGHBREDS HERE.

The entries for the annual exhibition of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club will close on Saturday. Practically all of the important exhibitors have entered, including Paul Sorg, of Pittsburg, who will be here with a string of twenty-five thoroughbreds. It is now doubtful whether the Avondale Farm will be here, owing to the fact that J. W. Harriman has disposed of nearly all his horses. It is possible that Mr. Harriman may defend the Thomas W. Lawson cup, which he won last year.

An additional class that should arouse considerable local interest will be for hackmen, the prize being $25 or a cup. Horse will count sixty per cent. and neatness and apeparance forty per cent. This will be distinctly a local class. It has been arranged by the committee in charge to have Jerome W. Leary, of the Hotel Iroquois, take charge of the refreshment stand at the show grounds, and meals will be served there as heretofore. A gang of men has been employed for some time getting the grounds and stables in shape for the exhibition and reception of horses and this work will be completed soon.

The Alwayswins Always Win.

The Alwayswins have twice defeated the Leal's Juniors in as many weeks and a third struggle on the diamond is scheduled for Saturday. The Netherwood baseball bookies say it's a twenty to one shot that the Alwayswins, whose team consists of such mightly players as Roy Voorhees, pitcher; Warren Butker, catcher; Robert Gavett, first base; Phelix Yonkers, second base; James Ackerman, captain and third base and Esty Foster, short stop, will triumph. The captain says that six players are enough to win any game with any team averaging thirteen years.

Pupils to Give a Recital.

Miss Sarah Palmer has issued invitations for a recital to be given by her pupils tomorrow afternoon at the residence of E. A. Parsons, 534 East Front street. They will be assisted by Allen B. Fenno, of New York city, who six years ago was the boy-soprano at the Church of All Angels, New York, and for several years was one of the few boy-sopranos who received a yearly salary of a thousand dollars. His voice today is a baritone, as rare in quality and compass as was that of his youth.

Talking Pictures to Return.

The talking pictures that recently made a big hit at the New Plainfield thatre, will be shown at the house next week. The films will all be new and will depict numbers from the reigning Broadway successes.

PRINCETONIANS' SMOKER

E. L. PATTERSON TOASTMASTER

McCready Sykes, Robert Bridges and H. G. Murray Speak— 'Varsity Lawyers There.

The praises of "Old Nassau" were heard in songs and speeches at the annual meeting and smoker of the Princetin Club of Plainfield held at the Casino, last night. The Plainfield graduates to the number of about fifty gathered and enjoyed an informal program which lasted until nearly midnight. The large hall was appropriately decorated in irange and black, bringing back pleasant memories of college days.

Early in the evening a short business session was held, at which officers were elected for the coming year as follows: President, Edward L. Patterson; vice-president, Owen H. Fleming; secretary and treasurer, J. J. Cochran. In choosing officers the graduates formed a permanent organization and constitution and by-laws were adopted. It was decided to make Plainfield the central point, instead of Elizabeth, and the local Princeton men will make every effort to build up a strong club, inviting other graduates in the vicinity to join. The proposition was received with great enthusiasm.

Following the business meeting the Princeton men enjoyed an hour of speech-making. Mr. Patterson was the toastmaster and the first speaker was H. G. Murray, class '98, of "the committee of fifty," which is striving to increase the interest of graduates throughout the country in the university. He told chiefly of the present needs of the institution and no doubt later on the club will plan to assist in a substantial way.

The next speaker was Robert Bridges, Class of '79, who in addition to giving a delightful talk on the proposed changes in the buildings at Princeton from an architectural standpoint, recited an orignal poem, which called forth hearty cheers. It was regretted by all that William R. Wilder, who was expected to speak was unavoidably detained. Interspersing the speeches, the university quartet, comprising J. R. Truesdale, '04; W. A. Bours, '04; Otto Hack, '03 and William Walker, '03, sang a number of songs, many of them being compositions of Kenneth Clark, who wrote all of the songs for the famous Triangle Club.

Later in the evening supper was served by Mrs. Henry Johnson, and until midnight the college men enjoyed themselves to the fullest extent. A feature, during this part of the program was the presentation speech by McCready Sykes. Appearin his gown on an improvised platform, before which was placed the club roster, he called each member forth and presented him with a suitable gift. The most amusing was that of a live hen given to Mr. Truesdale. He enjoyed the joke immensely and managed between the frequent hen was an egg. Mr. Sykes had for the present. Accompanying the hen was an egg. Mrs. Sykes had "roasts" for every member and they all took them good naturedly.

Those present were: C. B. Andrews, Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, J. Whitney Baker, Dr. Thomas D. Blair, C. Ames Brooks, DeWitt C. Brokaw, Jr., A. D. Beers, Dudley H. Barrows, H. J. Cochran, F. L. Curtis, Dr. F. E. DuBois, D. D. Dunham, Owen H. Fleming, Drs. E. W. and B. Van D. Hedges, H. C. Irons, J. P. Murray, Dr. W. H. Murray, H. C. Munger, Edward J. Patterson, D. S. Pond, G. S. Simons, Jr., Joseph M. Shellabarger, McCready Sykes, William Palmer Smith, Jr., Knox Taylor, Duncan W. Taylor, Augustus VanDeventer, J. H. VanDeventer, Orville G. Waring, Lewis E. Waring, A. G. Killmer.

Mrs. Bridget Pyquette.

Mrs. Bridget Pyquette, widow of Vydel F. Pyquette and formerly a well known resident of Dunellen, died yesterday after a long illness. She was forty-six years old and leaves three sons and a daughter, the latter being ap atient in Muhlenberg Hospital at the present time. Mrs. Pyquette's husband was killed on the New Jersey Central at Dunellen ten years ago. The funeral will be held at the residence of Edward Gray, South avenue, Dunellen, Saturday morning, at 8:30 and later from St. John's church.

Will Collect Delinquent Accounts.

The Plainfield Merchants' Association has engaged Constable Robert Pierce, of Dunellen, as collector of delinquent accounts. The members have adopted a system whereby they can acquaint each other of persons who should not be given credit and in this way they hope to escape from long-standing accounts. Mr. Pierce will begin work at once.

The Hope chapel Junior Club met at the chapel last night and installed these newly-elected officers, under the direction of George H. Whyte and James Penny as leaders: President, George Grey; vice-president, John Herron; secretary, David Henry; treasurer, Harry DeHart. The club was organized five months ago and the present membership is twenty-three. All boys twelve years of gae are eligible, provided they belong to the chapel Sunday-school. After the installation the boys adjourned to the gymnasium, where ice cream and cake were served.

After the refreshments, President Grey introduced G. Herbert Condict, superintendent of the Sunday-school who gave the boys a good wholesome talk, in which he pointed out the power for righteousness such an organization might be in the chapel and community. Mr. Condict was followed by Rev. L. R. Howard, who made a few remarks of a similar nature. Mr. Doig was also called upon for a speech and he emphasized the three characteristics a boy should possess: Firmness of character, honesty and truthfulness, and he related several stories in making a personal application of these points. The meeting closed after remarks by Mr. Penny and Mr. Whyte.

Disorderly Charge Dismissed.

Following a lengthy hearing in the city court, this morning, Judge Runyon dismissed the disorderly conduct charge against Mrs. Mary Starr, colored, arrested Saturday night after an argument in a Front street shoe store over change. The defendant was represented by S. S. Swackhamer and some six or seven witnesses were examined. Their evidence was in direct contradiction to each other and the magistrate found it impossible to fix the responsibility for the trouble.

William H. Long.

Former Surrogate William H. Long, who was well known in this city, died last night at his home in Somerville. He had been prominent in Somerset county affairs for many years. He leaves a wife, one son, Dr. William H. Long, the county physician, and daughter. He has a brother to Dr. Monroe B. Long, of Park avenue, and Mrs. Stephen O. Staats, of West Second street, this city.

To Aid Underpaid Rectors.

At the second day of the annual session of the Protestant Episcopal diocesan convention, Trinity church, Newark, yesterday a vast amount of business was transacted. No change was made in the personnel of the Standing Committee. There was an election of a treasurer, registrar and members of the Board of Missions, Missionary Council and Auditing Committee, without change.

LITTELL EXEMPTS HEAD

Plainfielder Re-elected President of New Jersey Organization at Annual Meeting.

OPPOSITION UNSUCCESSFUL.

The Reports Showed that There Are 9 Paid and 193 Volunteer Fire Departments in the State.

The Elizabeth delegates to the twenty-second annual convention of the State Exempt Firemen's Association, at New Brunswick, yesterday, tried to defeat D. W. Littell for re-election to the presidency, James C. MacMaster, of that place, leading the opposition and nominating James J. Manning, of Elizabeth for the office. The opposition failed, however, Mr. Manning declining to run. Mr. Littell was then chosen without further trouble.

It was a great day for the exempts. In the afternoon the New Brunswick fire department paraded in honor of the visitors, and the pageant won great aplause from the thousands of people who lined the streets. There was a big banquet at the conclusion of the parade and last night two balls were given in honor of the old volunteers.

The election of officers was as follows:

President, Daniel W. Littell, Plainfield; secretary, E. T. Humphrey, Nutley; treasurer, Nicholas Snyder, Trenton; vice-presidents, Herman Klosterman, Camden; Henry C. Housell, Newark; H. J. Weart, Trenton; James MacMaster, Elizabeth; John VanBuskirk, Hackensack; B. F. Higgins, Bloomfield; A. K. Reeve, South Orange; John T. Scotte, Kearney; John Wagner, Hoboken.

V. W. Nash, Sr., of this city, was elected a member of the executive committee. The Plainfield and North Plainfield associations were represented by the regularly-elected delegates, and they were acompanied by several friends.

The statistician reported that there are nine paid fire departments in the State and 193 volunteer departments. He said that while the automobile is being utilized for fire fighting purposes, the airship has not been used on account of the difficulty of getting water, but he hoped that that difficulty would be overcome in time.

The report of Treasurer Snyder showed that the total receipts had been $1,032.07 and that the balance on hand is $413.35. The secretary reported that he had given out 200 life membership badges and was authorized to buy as many more as are needed for the other life members. The convention adjourned to meet next year at Phillipsburg, Hackettstown withdrawing in its favor.

During the convention the new Exempt Firemen's Association of Jersey City received recognition, it being admitted to full membership. There was a fight against its admission. The old association of Jersey City has about $20,000 in its treasury, and did not want to go into the State body, but the whole membership of the old association has joined the new association and now the old trustees will have to turn this money over to the new body.

In addition there was a vocal solo, "The Girl from the U. S. A.," by Miss Susan Bennett, a flag drill by twelve girls and a fancy dance by Miss Madeline Grosshangler, of New York. The little Miss is only six years old and she performed in a most creditable manner; also giving several recitations. After the entertainment there was a sale of ice cream, cake and candy. The proceeds will go toward the piano fund. The accompanists of the evening were Miss Grace and Miss Jane Bennett.

BOARD WANTS $45.000

Plans Have Been Submitted for Proposed School House in the West End.

HALE & ROGERS ARCHITECTS.

Structure to Be Located West Front Street Between Mariners Place and West Front Street.

Tentative plans have been drawn by Hale & Rogers, New York architects for a proposed new public school building to be erected on West Front street, between Mariners place and Clinton avenue, to provide for the children living in the West End of the city. It is the intention of the Board of Education to press the claims for a school in that part of the town as advocated and within a short time the board will petition the Common Council for a sum between $45,000 and $50,000, the estimated cost of the building.

It is proposed to erect an eight-room school-house and the plans as submitted by Hale & Rogers meet with the approval of the board. They are considered ideal for the purpose desired, there not being a foot of waste room in the structure.

There is some doubt as to what action the Common Council will take on this proposition in view of the recent communication from Mayor C. J. Fisk, urging that no further issue of bonds be made until those now out be retired. There are several members of the Common Council who are opposed to any further expenditures of this kind and believe that if the new Darrow avenue school is built this year it will be sufficient. They are of the opinion that the erection of another school building can be deferred until next year. On the other hand there is the urgent need of the school and it is belfeved that this will have some weight with the city officials in deciding the question.

KIRMESS CHAPERON ENTERTAINS DANCERS

Mrs. William Newcorn, of West Front street, who chaperoned the Japanese dance at the Kirmess for the benefit of the hospital, entertained the young women who took part in that dance at her home, last night, at a dinner, followed by a musical program, consisting of vocal and instrumental selections and dancing. The dining room was attractively decorated for the occasion and after the dinner all adjourned to the parlors, where the entertainment was provided.

There were piano solos by Miss Rottberg and Miss Kadish; piano duets by Mrs. Newcorn and Miss Nettie Newcorn; vocal selections by Miss Levine and the Misses Berlowitz, while Dr. Max Miller, of New York, brother of Mrs. Newcorn, who unexpectedly dropped in, favored the company with several classical selections on the piano. A feature was the presentation to each one taking part in the dance of a souvenir, upon which was inscribed "Kirmess-1908." The young women were delighted with the affair provided in their honor. Those present were the following:

Tale of Burglars and Buried Gold

Among the defendants who will be arraigned before Recorder Lazarus in the Bayonne juvenile court to morrow are Alphonsus Lawless ten years old, and Charles Wicks, fourteen. They are charged with having broken into Public School 8, in Avenue C, and with having rifled the desk of Miss Wilson, the principal, of $18. According to the police, the boys made a confession yesterday, saying they had buried the money in a tomato can on the shore of Newark Bay, and that when they went for it the following day it was gone. They think somebody watched them bury their treasure.

WILL GET P. O. BUILDING

Senator Kean Having Gotten $100,000 in Committee; Bill now Sanguine of Success.

BUSINESS MEN ARE PLEASED.

Announcement Exclusively in Yesterday's Press Causes Much Rejoicing—Postmaster Suggests Sites.

Announcement from Washington yesterday, exclusively in The Daily Press, that the Senate Post Office Committee had inserted in its bill an item for a $100,000 building for Plainfield was the cause of much rejoicing among the officials and business men who have been striving for several years to obtain from Congress a suitable appropriation for such a structure. Postmaster Bird admits that at least $150,000 will be needed for the purpose but it is said here that there will be no difficulty in getting an additional appropriation. Senator John Kean two years ago introduced a bill for the purpose but it died in committee. He was more persistent this time and has wired friends here that now that he has gotten the committee to act favorably he intends to use every effort to shove the item through and is sanguine that he will be successful.

Already Postmaster Bird has transmitted to the Department, on instructions, a list of available properties which might be used as a site. Including among the number are Friends meeting house property at Watchung avenue and Third street; the Force property at Second street and Watchung avenue, and the Durlock property at Front street and Watchung avenue. The price asked for each is approximately $60,000. According to the Department regulations there must be a forty feet space on all sides of the building and therefore any of these sites would be suitable.

It is desired to have the building within eighty rods of the North avenue station as in that case the railroad company and not the government is compelled to pay for the mail messenger.

County Chairman Frank H. Smith, who is interested in getting a new postoffice building here, stated today that he had assurances from Washington that the item in the appropriation bill would be passed at this session of Congress.

Mrs. Emily K. Boss.

Mrs. Emily K. Boss, widow of Samuel Boss, died yesterday afternoon at Muhlenberg Hospital to which she was taken a week ago for an operation. She was sixty years old and had lived in Plainfield a long time. She was a member of the First Presbyterian church. Surviving her are two daughters, Mrs. Louis Hummer and Miss Sallie Boss. The funeral will be held at her late home on East Fifth street, near Watchung avenue, Saturday afternoon.

Holding Special Services.

A series of evangelistic services were started at Faith chapel, last night, under the direction of Rev. Mr. Atkinson, who has been supplying the pulpit of the Baptist church Scotch Plains, assisted by Frank Fitzgerald, a well-known Gospel singer of New York. Respite the storm there was a good attendance and much interest. The service will continue tonight, tomorrow night and on Sunday.

—A Watchung avenue woman lost a valuable Yorkshire terrier Tuesday night and immediately placed an advertisement in The Daily Press. An employe of Marchant Brothers' dairy found the dog, saw the advertisement and within a short time returned the animal to the owner, receiving a reward.

HOUSEHOLD GOODS HELD UNTIL THE RENT IS PAID

Learning that one of his tenants, Joseph Schultz, of 333 Watchung avenue, was about to move out owing him $40 for rent, Charles H. Hand got busy this morning and had Justice Hezekiah Hand issue a distress warrant restraining the removal of the goods. When Justice Hand reached the apartment, an expressman was engaged in taking away the furniture. He put a stop to further operation at once and would not permit the goods to be touched until the claim was settled.

Mr. Schultz was not at home at the time, but his wife was and she spoke in a way that left no doubt as to who was boss. Justice Hand was insistent, however, and finally seeing that it was useless to argue with him, the woman sent for her husband and a payment of $20 was made. At the suggestion of the landlord, the family was then permitted to move out upon promise to pay the remaining $20 within a short time.

PUGNACIOUS MATRON GETS SIXTY DAYS IN JAIL

Mrs. Helen Scheiderbeck, an attractive young matron of twenty-two years, was sent to jail for sixty days by Judge Runyon, this morning, following a hearing in the city court on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct. She heard the sentence pronounced without the quiver of an eye lash and started toward a cell with a defiant toss of a pretty head topped off by a monstrous black Merry Widow hat.

Mrs. Scheiderbeck has made life miserable for a patient husband by receiving attentions from an "affinity," John McDonald, who was recently jailed by Judge Runyon for continually hanging about her home. While he was serving his term, the young woman behaved herself but he was released last week and she has since been carousing around with him. Yesterday she went to a West Front street establishment where her husband works and demanded some money. When he refused she began throwing bottles at his head and almost wrecked the place before she could be stopped. She was finally ejected but returned soon afterward and renewed the assault, compelling the proprietor to call the police.

Patrolman Charles Flynn answered the summons and Mrs. Scheiderbeck gave him a hard tussle before he landed her in the patrol wagon. She continued to fight all the way to headquarters and the officer had the time of his life keeping her from scratching her name on his face. She had nothing to say when Judge Runyon gave her the chance, beyond the fact that her husband first threatened to hit her and she threw the bottle to ward him off. The Scheiderbecks live on Plainfield avenue and the neighbors speak very highly of the husband.

NEW VAUDEVILLE HOUSE

The New Jersey Amusement Co. will Open the Orpheum Theatre on Aug 1.

HAVE LEASE ON REFORM HALL.

Proprietor of New Plainfield Theatre, Where High Class Productions Are Given, Figures in This Enterprise.

Articles of agreement were completed today, whereby the New Jersey Amusement Company, represented by Manager William J. Counihan, secured a five years lease on Reform Hall at Second street and Central avenue. Immediate steps will be taken to make extensive alterations for the opening of the place on August 1 as an up-to-date vaudeville house under the name of the Orpheum theatre. Mr. Counihan will attend to the management and will have his weekly programs booked through the Keith & Proctor agency.

The New Jersey Amusement Company, as the name implies, was organized for the purpose of transacting a general theatrical business. The company will lease and build theatres throughout the State and the Reform Hall-Orpheum is the first of a number of houses that will be used to make up a circuit. W. J. Counihan, owner and manager of the New Plainfield theatre, is the president, and the other officers are as follows: Vice-president, M. L. Shannon; secretary, Frank W. Martineau; treasurer, S. W. Cunningham. Mr. Martineau, the only stranger to Plainfielders, is a member of the Klaw & Erlanger executive staff and a theatrical man of wide experience. Mr. Shannon was formerly connected with the New Plainfield theatre and is at present manager of the Majestic theatre at Perth Amboy, built by Mr. Counihan and himself. Mr. Cunningham is treasurer at the New Plainfield and has been in the amusement field since he was a boy. All the business of the concern will be transacted through offices in Plainfield.

The introduction of a local vaudeville house has been considered on numerous occasions by theatrical men and several plans to bring it about have fallen through. Mayor Fisk has recently been petitioned by outsiders for a license relative to one but hitherto he has refused requests under the belief that the applicants were not familiar with local conditions and would introduce objectional shows. Manager Counihan, being a local resident, gave the necessary assurance that his programs would be above criticism and a permit has been issued for the new house. Women and children will be catered to especially and matinees will be given every day. The alterations will be extensive owing to the fact that the lesees wish to have the building in strict confirmation with the local ordinance to insure fire protection. Moving pictures will have a place on the bills and the film machine will be entirely closed in a metal box.

When the Orpheum is opened, it will make the third house that Manager Counihan has given the public inside of three years; the New Plainfield being the first and the Majestic at Perth Amboy the second. He also has a first class house at Morristown in view of the operations that will be conducted by the New Jersey Amusement Company. Taken in all, his energy and enterprise have stamped him as a "hustler" and the coterie along Broadway has long since taken notice.

Case Amicably Settled.

At the opening of the court at Elizabeth yesterday it was announced that the case of Maurice Culhane against the Niles,. Angleman, counsel for the plaintiff, for injuries sustained at the Pond Tool Works, and the settlement effected by him was a satisfactory one. The terms of the settlement were not announced. Lindabury, Depue & Faulks represented the defendant.

We may be able to help you out. At any rate if you'll inform us of your needs, we'll try. The winter months just past have raised the expenses of the average householder to their highest point and many of us have been unable to meet all of our obligations as promptly as we would like to and consequently find ourselves in debt.

SUPPOSE we were to advance you sufficient funds to meet your obligations. Do you not think you would be more satisfied to have only one payment to look after on pay day?

There is no place where money will be advanced you more willingly or where you will receive more courteous treatment than from us. It's worth investigating.

The possession of household goods, horses and wagons is sufficient evidence of your ability to pay. Call, write or 'phone.

A WHITE SALE--Beginning May 20

With a gathering of White Goods, second to none in this section—with bargains that are real, on merchandise of merit, we inaugurate this sale to again illustrate real bargains at a TEPPER'S WHITE SALE, for it's not only selling merchandise cheap, but selling merchandise of a character that will appeal to you at a glance for its intrinsic value, you have learned to know that if the article is of so low a grade that its only recommendation is its low price to induce you to purchase, it will prove a poor bargain on the actual test of wear, such goods never find favor with—never tempt our buyers. Every article will be found exactly as advertised—we cannot put this too clearly before you, unless you have attended our former sales, then you know, that it is our principle to adhere to actual values in quoting values, in print as well as in the house. We shall expect you to this White sale. We have prepared many bargains that we cannot enumerate here, in cases where lots are small, yet the bargain may prove the biggest, there will be many such little groups all through the Dry Goods section, and not mentioned here.

the hands of Downs.

If the Detroits were as good at scoring as they are at scolding another pennant would be theirs easily.

Only those who haven's seen Griffith's team play are still harping on the weakness of the pitching staff.

The Detroits are a good team, but they would do better to play more ball and do less rowdy kicking.

That old gag about the National League developing more young players than the American is still heard occasionally. Such was the case a few seasons ago, but no more.

Tom Hughes has been doing sterling work in the box for the Washingtons of late.

In the matter of young pitchers who are filling the bill in clever style this season, McQuillen of the Phillies is not to be overlooked.

One marked result of the new glossless ball, or rather having a ball that pitchers must handle without rubbing it in the dirt, is shorter games. And, incidentally, games are short enough.

Never was there a more welcome Sunday for the Pirates. It gave them a chance to rest and get over the Philadelphia administered headache.

Rube Waddell may be the best advertised ball player in the business, but his is not the sort of advertising most ball players care for.

The New Yorks and Cincinnatis are scheduled for a double header in New York on September 26, but in case of postponment on that day there would be no chance for a playoff, so Fred Knowles and Frank Bancroft are trying to arrange to have the double header played on the second Eastern trip of the Reds.

Sueprintendent Leur, of the P. S. C., who is stationed at West Dunellen, is arranging the details for a baseball game to be played soon between teams from New Brunswick and Plainfield lines, after which a collation will be served. Early in the week the Elizabeth employes were defeated by New Brunswick and the Plainfield boys want to get even. The date for the contest will be announced within a few days.

Rochester has sold Pitcher Otey to the Wheeling Club.

Manager Jimmy Casey, of Montreal, has disposed of Pitcher Herbst to New Haven. Casey did not have room for the big German with Bumpus Jones, Wicker, Keefe, Stanley, Donahue and Tift.

Jimmy Bannon, Malachi Kittredge and Charley Dooley, who are managing Binghamton, Scranton and Utica in the New York State League, are all former Montreal managers.

Harry Bay, whom Cleveland sold to Nashville, has made a big hit with the fans in the latter city. In Bay's first game he reached first base five times and stole three bases.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch lauds Billy Gilbert in the following language: "Gilbert is improving in his fielding play every day. He is really the most reliable member of the infield when it comes to handling ground balls and thinking."

The Tri-State League, at a meeting in Harrisburg this week, voted to raise the salary limit to $3,100. Last winter the league fixed $2,900 as the limit, but all of the clubs experienced difficulty in signing good players and keeping within bounds. At the meeting every club owner reported its salary list was over the limit, and rather than sacrifice valuable players by Thursday, when the agreement was to become operative, the change was deemed advisable by all hands.

The first break in the Union League was made known Monday, when it was announced that the Wilmington team will be transferred to Richmond, Va. The attendance at the games has been small and the club was reported to be losing money, although it was well up in the race. William Waller, who managed the outlaw team, is said to be slated to succeed Mike Grady as manager of the Tri-State League team of that city.

The general impression that the headliners in their respective clubs are really the most difficult players to handle is entirely wrong. Cobb, Crawford and Donovan make the least possible trouble for Manager Jennings, of Detroit. Keeler and Chesboro, of the New York Americans; Wallace and Stone, of St. Louis; Joss, of Cleveland; Young and Criger, of Boston, and in fact the stars of other clubs, are all intelligent, well-behaved and easily managed.

There are some exceptions. During the early days of baseball cases were numerous where the stars did as they saw fit—dissipated, and by rowdy tactics on and off the field, came near to putting the national pastime in bad repute. Thanks to stricter rulings on the part of owners and managers, the troublesome cliques were broken up. The fans like to see an aggressive player, but when he resorts to rowdy tactics to stretch a point he is overstepping the line of field deportment and soon loses encouragement and support from the spectators.

GOLF.

All eyes are turned toward Baltusrol this week where the tenth annual championship of the Metropolitan Golf Association is being played. The list of entries is one of the largest in the history of the association and it is expected that there will be a breaking of records.

Regular play will begin on the Park Golf Club course Saturday with competition for the President's and Golf Club trophies, which was so popular last year. The course is now in the best of condition and the members are anxiously waiting for the opening day.

F. O. Reinhart is among the popular golfers returning to the game this year. He has engaged in the weekly play at the Plainfield Country Club this season and gives promise of returning to his old form.

Dudley H. Barrows, who in two competitions has returned the lowest score for the Spring Handicap cup, Class A, at the Plainfield Country Club, is playing in mid-season form. He will doubtless be a factor in the various competitions at the club this year.

The new service at the Plainfield Country Club under the direction of Steward Dennis Hartz is meeting with the approval of the members, who have availed themselves of the opportunity to partake of luncheons, teas and dinners there.

"Marty" O'Loughlin has entirely recovered from the injury to his wrist and is able to follow the game again. He is driving and putting in his old-time style and will probably make a new record this season.

The Westfield Golf Club is preparing for an active season and a very attractive schedule will be presented. There will be the usual holiday features on Memorial Day.

There will be plenty of golf at the Plainfield Country Club and Park Golf Club on Memorial Day and the occasion will be a gala one at these two popular places.

—The excavation is completed for the intersection of brick pavement at Seventh street and Arlington avenue, and the brick will probably be laid this week. The work was finished on West Front street today and City Engineer Gavett hopes to have it opened by Saturday. There still remains the intersection at East Second street and Watchung avenue and Watchung avenue from North avenue to Fourth street to complete the job.

NEW POSTOFFICE IN SIGHT.

It is a source of much satisfaction to know that Senator Kean has finally succeeded in his efforts to have the Senate Postoffice Committee include in its list of proposed appropriations an item for a $100,000 building for Plainfield. From the moment that he promised to do all in his power to obtain such a structure for this city, the average Plainfielder felt that sooner or later he would accomplish his end for the senior Senator from New Jersey is without doubt one of the most influential members of Congress.

The original bill, however, died in committee some few years ago, but this was due to no fault on the part of Mr. Kean. That fact, happily, did not discourage him in the least for everyone at all acquainted with such affairs knows full well that the wheels of Federal legislation grind slowly when it come to matters concerning expenditures. The Senator persevered and as a result yesterday the desired item was found to be included in the Senate's postoffice committee bill. And now reliable assurance is given that the sponser for the proposed postoffice building here is sanguine that both the Senate and the House will take favorable action.

Plainfield will owe a debt of gratitude to Mr. Kean if he makes good his promise to obtain the desired appropriation within a reasonable time, particularly so if he succeeds during the present session. Of course, it is admitted that $100,000 will be entirely inadequate for the purpose, but there is not the least doubt that should that sum be secured there will be little difficulty in getting such an amount as would be necessary to

ANOTHER PLAYHOUSE.

It remained for William J. Counihan to demonstrate that Plainfield could support the only first class amusement house between Newark and Trenton. Since he came to this city but a few years ago, flattering prosperity has marked his career as the proprietor of the New Plainfield theatre, a playhouse which is always packed to the doors when high class productions are presented. A shrewd man in the theatrical business, Mr. Counihan sees a field for vaudeville in this, the "city beautiful," the most enterprising and progressive community in the State. Accordingly he has determined to open another playhouse devoted entirely to superior vaudeville. The Orpheum theatre will open its doors to a discerning and appreciative public on August 1. That it will be successful no one will dispute.

Scared off Men with Her Shoe.

Rahway, May 21.—Burglars entered the Elm avenue residence of Fred W. Scuppman last night during the absence of the family and stole silverware and a revolver. Thieves also attehpted to enter the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Rollison, a neighbor. Two maids, who were alone in the house, heard a noise at the front door as if some one was trying to insert a latch key. One of them threw her shoe at the door, whereupon two men fled down the street.

WOMAN MISSIONARY SPEAKS AT TRINITY

Mrs. Caroline D. Hoover, of Elizabeth, for the past thirteen months a missionary at Adkins, Kentucky, where she assisted Rev. and Mrs. Messler, who are stationed at McKee, and Miss Schermerhorn at Gray Hawk, in their labors among the Mountain Whites of Kentucky, spoke at the prayer-meeting in Trinity Reformed church, last night. She told a remarkable story about her endeavors to carry the Gospel to the ignorant people of that section if the country. She has been granted a six weeks' leave of absence and she is spending most of her vacation addressing audiences and telling of her work.

Mrs. Hoover was sent out by the Board of Domestic Missions if the Reformed church of America and she has had great success in her efforts. Yesterday she addressed three meetings and it is her intention of attending the session of the General Synod next month and tell of her work to that body. She is an earnest, consecrated woman, who loves the work she is engaged in, and so interesting was her story last night it was 9:30 o'clock before the audience was aware of it. Mrs. Hoover described the people among whom she labors and it was the wonder of all that she was able to make any progress. They are very uncouth in their general appearance and habits and so ignorant that it is more difficult teaching them than a child. They are anxious to learn and appreciate all that is done for them. The speaker made an earnest appeal for greater support on the part of the churches and she aroused much interest in the cause if home missions.

As president of the Ladies' Christian Wirk Society of the church, Mrs A. L. Force presided at the meeting and introduced Mrs. Hoover.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Hope is the mother of disappointment.

The average woman would worry a lot more than she does if she listened to everything she says.

Some people can ever see the silver lining to a cloud of adversity—if it is hovering over others.—Chicago News.

Kindred Spirits.

Nothing is more certain than that our manners, our civilization, and all the good things which are connected with civilization, have in this european world of ours, depended for ages upon two principles, and were indeed the result of both combined: I mean the spirit of a gentleman and the spirit of religion. The nobility and the clergy, the one by profession, the other by patronage, kept learning in existence even in the midst of arms and confusion, and while governments were rather in their causes than formed. Learning paid back what it received to nobility and priesthood, and paid it with usury, by enlarging their ideas and by furnishing their minds.—Edmund Burke.

In a murder trial in Texas some years ago the counsel for the defense was examining a venireman regarding his qualifications to serve. The candidate admitted that he had once been a member of a jury which tried a negro for murder. It is not permissible in such cases to ask the result of the trial, so the counsel said: "Where is that negro now?"

"I don't know," was the reply. "The sheriff hanged him at the appointed time."

"He looks like a cross-breed, doesn't he?" returned the lady.

The diet prescribed for tuberculosis sufferers is plenty of pure milk—all the patient can drink, or, what is usually more to the point, all he can afford, and six eggs a day. According to the doctors it doesn't matter about the status of the egg, so long as it has not commenced to "sprout."

Virtue of Enthusiasm.

The secret of the superiority of one man over another does not always lie in mental vigor or excelling skill of hand, but in most cases is to be found in close application to work, in the enthusiasm with which the task becomes lightened and therefore easier of accomplishment.

Ptomaine poisoning, brought about, it is believed, by eating too heartily of cabbage, caused the death in Camden yesterday afternoon of Bessie Henry, colored, twenty-four years old, of 1444 Broadway. After eating dinner she complained of severe pains, and before medical aid could be summoned, she died. Coroner Wingender gave a certificate.

John Reid, of 7 Godwin street, Paterson, thought he was suffering from indigestion during the past two weeks. His mind was set right on this idea yesterday, when he visited the General Hospital and allowed the physicians to make an examination of his condition. He was informed that he was suffering from a fractured rib on his left side. Then Reid remembered that about two weeks ago he tripped and fell while crossing a railroad, and his chest struck the rail with some force.

PROHIBITIONISTS TAKE LOCAL OPTION STAND.

About 150 delegates were present from different parts of the State, when the Prohibition State convention, to elect delegates to the national convention, opened in Y. M. C. A. Hall, at Trenton yesterday.

Dr. Day, the presiding officer, made a speech in which he criticised President Rosevelt, Secretary Taft and William J. Bryan. Dr. Day criticised the President for drinking in public, Secretary Taft for saying that prohibition would not solve the liquor question, and Mr. Bryan for remaining silent on the subject. He insisted that all Prohibitionists should stand by the Prohibition party and not be carried away by side issues.

The convention was divided into two factions, one demanding prohibition and the other favoring the local option movement. The local optionists won, defeating the proposition to reaffirm the old platform, and a committee of one from each county was appointed to prepare resolutions, to be submitted to the convention.

Adoption of the platform resulted in the hottest kind of a fight, including bitter denunciation of Governor Fort and Prosecutor Clarence Goldenberg for failure to enforce Sunday closing in Atlantic City. Sunday selling was also charged against Hudson and Essex counties, and all officials who fail to do their duty were called on to resign or defend impeachment.

William H. Nicholson, of Union county, and John R. Mason, of Collingswood, were chosen members of the electoral college, and the following delegates chosen to represent the congressional districts of this State: First district, Dr. Grafton E. Day; second, George Adams; third, J. P. Johnston; sixth, Archibald T. Worth; seventh, Robert Burnett; eighth, John Barryman; ninth, Daniel Black; tenth, R. V. Arts.

Russell Harding, of the borough, who has been enjoying a vacation in Hunterdon county, has returned home.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Being a Christian—III. At the ballot box.—Ps. xxviii, 1-9.

This topic suggests that Christianity should play a part in our political lives, and there is no doubt that it should. Nations as well as individuals are dependent upon God and are held responsible by Him for their misdeeds. The only difference is that nations are punished in this life, while the full punishment for man's sins, if unrepented of and unforgiven, is reserved for the future. "The nation that forgets God shall perish," says the Scripture, and only a very small knowledge of the history of nations is necessary to manifest to us that this statement is true. Call the roll of the once great nations—Babylon, Greece, Rome, Spain and others—and what is their position among the nations of the world? They have fallen, and all because they forgot God. They forsook righteousness, which exalts a nation, and reveled in sin, which is a reproach to any people. On the other hand, "Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord." This is just as true as its opposite. The great nations of today—England, the United States and Germany—hold their positions because the mass of their people at least fear God and obey Him.

The policy of our own government, being "of the people, by the people and for the people," is decided by the votes of its male population over twenty-one years of age. And upon the man who has reached this age rests a great national responsibility. He possesses an equal power at the polls with the president of the United States. Upon about 15,000,000 of our male population the power of determining the character of the national government depends, and upon these same men, variously distributed, depends the government of states, cities and counties. The value of the right of suffrage cannot therefore be too much emphasized. All men, and especially Christian men, should exercise this right. But, alas, how often they are careless and indifferent and allow the more irresponsible classes of the nation to do its voting! It is not a question of being on the winning or losing side, but a question of the performance of an important and sacred duty. No Christian man should neglect or refuse to vote. Moreover, he should take the time to intelligently inform himself as to how he should vote for the best interests of city, state or nation.

How we shall vote as Christians is a difficult question to answer. Every voter must study the question and decide it for himself. No vote is ever cast in vain. It counts for something regardless of the majority that may be against it. This much, however, may be said: No Christian should blindly vote a party ticket, whether right or wrong. The most influential voter in our land today is the independent voter, who studies measures and men and conscientiously votes for what he believes to be for the best. And he is increasing in numbers, and as his numbers increase he will force all parties to nominate clean men and to suggest and carry out only beneficial measures, and thereby the standard and perpetuity of the nation will be preserved. We should vote as we pray and pray while we vote, and we will not go far wrong in our voting and can ask the blessing of God upon our votes and our cause.

The Utmost For the Highest.

Dr. Francis E. Clark, the president of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, sends the following message to his fellow Endeavorers:

Dear Fellow Endeavorers:

The recent British national convention had for its motto "The utmost for the highest." I do not know of a better motto for your new year of work or for Endeavor day. Every one who keeps this in mind will have something to give of time and money and sympathy and energy for missions, for evangelism and for that evangelistic missionary work known as Christian Endeavor in your state and throughout the world. Faithfully yours, FRANCIS E. CLARK.

An Honor to the World.

Vice President Fairbanks, speaking at the Seattle Christian Endeavor convention, said:

"This Christian Endeavor society grows upon me the more I think of it, and my tribute to it does not grow out of the fact that I am now an interested member of it. I speak the language of impartiality and justice I will not detain you except, Dr. Clark, again to thank you from the bottom of my heart for what you have so splendidly accomplished—an honor to America, an honor to the world."

"Quality and Quantity."

Let us not talk about quality rather than quantity, but quality and quantity. We can have both if we will with God's blessing upon our efforts. Let us not think lightly of numerical increase. It is at the basis of all other increase and betterment. You cannot help a young person until you get hold of him. You must get him into your society as an active or associate member before you can do much for him.—Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., LL. D.

Text For the Year.

Dr. Clark has given as a motto to Christian Endeavorers for the year the verse, "The Lord make you to increase and abound in love one toward another and toward all men."

Sunshine.

Christian Endeavor ought to be to a soul what sunshine is to a room.—Miss E. M. Weatherly in Irish Endeavorer.

Van was grinning from ear to ear. Tother Twin reached into his pocket and fished out a sopping-wet pocket-book.

"Will the three fifty be sufficient?" he asks, troubled. "I'm really very sorry. It was a mistake, and—"

"Oh, it's all right," says the girl. "You didn't know no better. Pa says fools and children ain't accountable. You'd better spread that money out to dry 'fore you pay me with it. And you'd better get dry yourself or you'll catch cold. I can wait a spell, I guess. Why don't you go after your boat, mister?" she says to me. "You'll lose it first thing you know."

I looked where she pointed and there was the skiff stranded bottom up on the tip end of the point flat. I ran after it, waded in and hauled it ashore. The Heavenlies hurried up to the house. When I come back the girl was waiting for me.

"I'll walk along up with you," she says. "Say, you're Solomon Pratt,

"Which of You Three Is the Quahaug One?"

ain't you? I heard about you. Nate Scudder told pa. He said he'd let this place to Sol Pratt and a couple of crazy men from New York. I thought sure you'd swear when the boat upset, but you didn't. You must belong to the church. What are you—Methodist?"

I grinned. "So you think a ducking like that would be apt to make a man swear, do you?" says I.

"Yup, if he hadn't got religion. Pa'd have cussed a blue streak. You'd ought to hear him when he has his nervous dyspepsy spells. Did you say you was a Methodist?"

"No-o, I guess I didn't. Let's see. Did you say your name was Dusenberry?"

She stopped and kind of fizzed, like a teakettle biling over. "Sakes alive!" she snaps. "I hope not! Do I look as if I was carting a name like that around? My name's Sparrow—Eureka Florina Sparrow. What's the matter—anything?"

"No, not 'special. You kind of fetched me up into the wind, striking me head on so, unexpected. Just say that again and say it slow. Eureka Peruna—what was it?"

She switched around and stared at me hard. "Eureka—Florina—Sparrow," says she, slow and distinct. "Want me to spell it for you?"

"No, thanks. You might mix me up some if you did. I had to leave school early. Any more in your family?"

"Yup. Seven of us, counting me—and pa makes eight."

"What's their names?"

"Well, there's Lycurgus and Editha and Ulysses and Napoleon and Marguerite and Dewey—he's the baby. Great names, ain't they? Pa's doings, naming 'em that way was. Pa says there's nothing like hitching a grand name to a young one; gives 'em something to live up to, he says. His own name's Washington, but he ain't broke his back living up to it, far's as I can see; and ma used to say the same afore she died."

"O-o-h!" says I. "I see." I knew who she was now. I hadn't lived around Wellmouth so very long, but I'd heard of Washington Sparrow. He lived in a little slab shanty off in the woods about a mile from Scudder's, and had the name of being the laziest man in town.

We'd reached the house by this time and I left Eureka Florina in the kitchen and went to my room to change my duds. When I come down the Twins was in the kitchen, too, and I could hear the Sparrow girl's tongue going like a house afire. Martin had just paid her for the quahaugs and she was telling how scarce they'd got to be in the bay, and how her brother had worked to get a few bedded and how he'd sold a couple of quarts to the Baptist minister's wife and what she said about 'em and so on. The Heavenlies seemed to be enjoying every minute of it, judging by the way they laughed.

"Introduce us to the lady, skipper," says Van, when I come in.

I done the honors. "She's one of Washy Sparrow's tribe—I mean family," says I. "They live over in the woods hereabouts."

"I guess tribe'll do," says Eureka, cutting in quick. "There's pretty near enough of us to make a town, seems sometimes. You'd think so if you had to get the meals for 'em, same's I do."

"You!" says I. "Do you cook for all that gang? How old are you?"

"Seventeen last March. Cook for 'em? Guess I do! And scratch to get things to cook, too; else we'd have to live on salt air pudding with wind sass. I take in washing, and Lycurgus he goes fishing and clamming and choring around, and Editha helps me iron, and we all take watch and watch looking out for the young ones."

Hartley spoke then. "We're looking for a cook," he says. "Will you come and cook for us, and help about the house here? Mr. Pratt finds the job too big for one man."

She bobbed her head. "Yup," says she, dry as a chip. "I should think he might, judging by what I've seen. No, I can't come. I've got to stay home and look out for the folks."

"Why can't your father do that?" asks Hartley.

"Who—pa? I guess you ain't heard about pa. He's sick. Got his never-get-over, he says. Pa's had most every kind of symptom there is; phthisic and influency and lumbago and pleurisy. Now he's settled down to consumption and nervous dyspepsy. Afore ma died she used to try to cure him, but the doctor and pa had a row. The doctor said pa didn't have consumption nor nothing else; what he needed was hard exercise, such as work. Pa said the doc didn't know his business, and the doc said maybe not, but he knew pa. So pa told him never to darken our door again, and he ain't—except to come around once in a while and collect something from me on the bill."

"Well," says I, "maybe you know somebody else that would do for us. Who's a good cook and general housekeeper that would be likely to hire out?"

She thought for a moment or so. "I don't know," she says. "Most folks in this neighborhood is too high toned to go out working. They'd rather stay to home and take boarders. Mrs. Hannah Jane Purvis is about the only one, and you've had her."

Martin made a face. "We have," he says.

"Yup," says Eureka. "She told Mr. Scudder that you was crazy as all get out, and sunk in worldly sin besides. She said you'd get your pay hereafter for treating her the way you did."

"We hope to," says Van, cheerful. "Now, Miss—er—Sparrow, we want you to come and help us out. We're Crusoes on a desert island and we need a Man—I should say Woman—Friday. We'll pay you so much," he says, naming a price that made even my eyes stick out, and I was used to high prices by this time.

"A month?" she says, staring at him.

"A week," says he.

She had a queer way of doing everything by jerks, like as if she was hung on wires and worked with a string. Now she straightened up out of her chair so sudden you almost expected to hear her snap.

"A week?" she sings out. "Oh!" Then she looked at me.

"Oh, it's so, if he says so," says I, resigned like.

"Land sakes! A week! I never—but it ain't no use. What would become of pa and the children?"

"Couldn't you come over for the days, at least?" asks Martin. "You might go home nights, you know."

And that's the way it ended, finally. The Twins had made up their minds, and when that happened, heaven and earth wouldn't change 'em. At last Eureka said she'd talk it over with her folks and Van Brunt said we would come over to her house next day and get the decision.

"There!" says he, when the Sparrow girl had gone. "Skipper, the cook question is settled."

"Maybe 'tis," says I. "Looks to me as if you'd settled it the way the feller settled the coffee, by upsetting it. For chaps that piped for rest and quiet you two do queer things. Do you realize what getting mixed up with that Sparrow gang is likely to mean?"

"If the whole flock is like the specimen bird we've seen," he says, "it'll mean joy. If there was one thing needed to make Ozone island a delight, a gem of purest ray serene, that original would be the thing. She's a circus in herself. I shall dream tonight of pa and the doctor. Ho, ho! By the way, what's her Christian name?"

I told the name—the whole of it. How them Heavenlies did laugh.

"Eureka!" says Hartley. "Splendid!"

"Eureka!" says Van. "We have found it! Sol, let's have lunch."

I got 'em something to eat and then the three of us put in the afternoon chasing the wild animals. The chickens was fairly easy to get hold of; I laid a trail of corn up to the door of the henyard and trapped the most of 'em that way. But the pig was a holy terror. He'd had his experience with Ozone islanders that morning and he didn't want any more. Up and down that blessed sand bar we chased him, getting upset and tiring ourselves out. The pig race over to Eastwich wa'n't in it. I did most of the chasing; the Heavenlies superintended, as usual, and gave orders and laughed. They pretty nigh laughed themselves sick. Finally the critter bolted into the woodshed and I locked the door on him. It was six o'clock when I dumped him into the sty. Of all the Natural Life days I'd had yet this one was the liveliest and most wearing. A week like it and my natural place would have been the burying ground. I cal'late I lost three pound that afternoon. I was getting so thin that when I fell down my legs made grooves in the sand.

The next forenoon me and Hartley went over to close the cook trade. Van wouldn't go. He said the gardening and the shipwreck and the steeplechase—meaning the pig hunt—had given him sensations enough for a week or so; he had some of 'em with him yet. So Martin said he'd go, for my sake. I borrowed a couple of spare oars from Scudder, when he arrived with the morning's dose of skimmilk and cream and butter, and, as I took care to row the skiff this time, we made the passage all right. Then we walked up to the Sparrow's nest.

'Twas a pretty shabby-looking shack, now I tell you. Shingles dropping off, and fence falling down, and a general shortage of man's work everywhere. But there was a bed of bachelor buttons and old maid's pinks under the front window, and the windows themselves was clean and bright. Eureka had done her best to make the place homey; you could see that.

She let us in when we knocked at the kitchen door. Her sleeves was rolled up and there was a big basket of clothes by the steaming washtub. Editha, the 12-year-old, was grinding at the wringer and Dewey, the baby, was setting on the floor playing with a rag doll. The rest of the tribe—except Lycurgus, who had gone peddling clams—was off playing.

Eureka, she apologized for things being so upset, but there wa'n't any need for apologies. The house was plain and poor—you could see that it took a mighty lot of stretching to make both ends come in sight of each other, let alone meet; but 'twas clean as a whistle. Even the baby was clean, all except his face and hands, and no healthy young one ought to have them clean.

"Good morning," says Hartley. "Have you decided to cook for us?"

She bobbed her head over the washtub. "I've decided it, if pa has," says she. "He ain't made up his mind yet. He wanted to sleep on it, he said. I guess he's done that. Anyhow he's just got up. Step right into the dining room and talk to him. You'll have to excuse me; I've got to get this washing done afore noon, somehow."

So she pitched into the scrubbing, bending in the middle exactly like a jointed pocket rule, and the Twin and me went into the dining room.

Washington Sparrow was there. There wa'n't but one comfortable rocking chair in sight and he was in that, with his stocking feet resting on the ruins of a haircloth sofa. He was pretty husky looking, seemed to me, for a man complicated with consumption and nervous dyspepsy, but his face was as doleful as a crape bonnet, and 'twas plain that he could see no hope, and was satisfied with his eyesight. He had a clay pipe in his mouth and was smoking like a peat fire.

"How are you, Mr. Sparrow?" says Martin, bright and chipper. "How's the health this morning?"

The invalid rolled his eyes around, but he didn't get out of the rocker. Neither did he take them blue yarn socks off the sofa.

"Oh!" says he, groaning something awful. "I'm miserable, thank you. Set down and make yourselves to home."

There was only three settable pieces of furniture in the room. He was using two of 'em, and t'other was a child's high chair. So we decided to stand up.

"Don't you find yourself improving this beautiful weather?" asks Hartley, sympathetic.

Washy fetched another groan, so deep that I judged it started way down in the blue socks.

"No," says he. "I'm past improving. Just lingering 'round now and suffering waiting for the end. I s'pose Reky told you what I had, didn't she?"

Hartley looked troubled. "Why," he says, 'she did say that you feared tuberculosis, but—"

"Tuber—nothing! That's just like her! making fun of her poor sick father. What I've got is old-fashioned consumption." Here he fetched a cough that was hollerer than the groaning. "Old-fashioned consumption and nervous dyspepsy. Can't eat a meal's vittles in comfort. But there! I'll be through pretty soon. The sooner the quicker I say. Everybody 'll be glad when I'm gone. 'Don't,' I says to 'em, 'don't rag out in no mourning for me. Don't put no hothouse wreaths on my grave. I know how you feel and—' Get off my feet, you everlasting young one! Think I'm a ladder?"

The last part was to Dewey, who had come in from the kitchen, and was trying to climb onto the sofa.

Martin looked like he didn't know what to say. By and by he cleared his throat and threw out a hint concerning Eureka's coming to Ozone. The sick man shook his head.

"No," he says. "I'm self-sacrificing, and all that, but somehow I can't make up my mind to let her go. I can't bear to have her out of my sight a minute. You can't begin to think, Mr. What's-Your Name, what a comfort 'tis to me, agonizing here and suffering, to have Reky setting down alongside of me day after day, the way she does. You can't begin to think it, mister."

I couldn't begin to think it—not without what the doctor calls "stimulants." The amount of setting down that poor, hard-working Eureka got time for wouldn't comfort anybody much, it seemed to me.

NEWARKER WHO SWORE FALSELY FINED $200.

Trenton, May 21.—Some of the methods employed in making citizens in Newark were again ventilated today, this time before Judge Joseph Cross in the United States District Court, when Pitero Cerrato, president of a Fourteenth Ward Republican Club in that city, pleaded guilty to making a false affidavit in connection with the naturalization of Salvatore Beneditto. Before the election last fall, as has been told, Beneditto subscribed to an affidavit setting forth that he had been in this country five years. He claimed that he arrived in 1902, when in reality he did not leave Italy until 1904. Cerrato swore that of his own personal knowledge he knew that Beneditto had been a resident of the United States for five years.

Chairman Alfred N. Dalrymple, of the Essex County Republican committee, was present in court and was anxious that sentence be suspended.

Chauncey G. Parker made a plea for Cerrato on the ground that he had accepted a statement made by Beneditto and had been guilty of no intentional wrong-doing. Mr. Parker's plea seemed to make a temporary impression, but this was quickly offset when the Government produced an affidavit from Beneditto setting forth that Cerrato had invited him to join the club and had then furnished him a ticket, upon presentation of which he was promptly employed by the Newark Board of Works. The affidavit further set forth that after he had been working for a time Cerrato informed him that he would have to take out nauralization papers, which Cerrato had prepared and which Benditto signed at his request.

Judge Cross imposed a fine of $200. The case against Beneditto was not pressed, he being used as a government witness. A complaint against him was dismissed some months ago.

Blacksnake Fights Farmer.

Belvidere, May 21.—Oliver Smith, a farmer living at Riverton, Pa., on the side of the Delaware River opposite here, had an encounter with a blacksnake yesterday. While at work in the field Mr. Smith saw the snake sunning itself, and sought to kill it. A blow with a stick aroused it, and the reptile gave a spring at the farmer and coiled itself about him. Smith secured a stake from a nearby fence and finally hit the snake a blow that killed it. He had to unwind the coils from about his legs. The snake measured six feet, seven and one-half inches, and when exhibited was declared to be the largest reptile ever killed in the county. Mr. Smith will keep the skin.

Columbia Commencement.

The alumni representation at the Columbia University commencement exercises on May 27 is expected to be larger than ever before. This year will take place the dedication of the staute of Alexander Hamilton, the gift of the Alumni Association of Columbia College. The staute was modeled by William Ordway Partridge of the Class of 1885, and will be placed in front of Hamilton Hall on South Field, facing north.

TATTOED NAME IN ARM TO HAVE HIMSELF IDENTIFIED.

In preparing the body for burial, it was found yesterday that Michael Kouace, the New Jersey Central trackwalker who was killed at Rock avenue Monday night, had taken unusual method years ago to have himself identified in case of sudden death.

On arriving in this country in 1890 from Hungary, Kouace visited a professional tatto artist in New York and had his full name pricked into his right arm. It was placed in a spot where be believed it would stand the least chance of being obliterated in case of mangling but at the same time where it would be readily observed. It so happened that when he was killed, it was known who he was but the right name was not known until the mark was discovered on the arm. It has since been said by relatives that he had a horror of going to a nameless grave.

Kouace leaves a daughter living in Raritan who was to have been married next week to a well known young man of that place. The body was taken to her prospective mother-in-law's home and the funeral was held in the Raritan Catholic church this morning.

KILLS HERSELF WITH DOSE OF ROACH FOOD.

Hoboken, May 21.—Roach food was used yesterday by Miss Mary Corrar to commit suicide. She had been in this country only six months. She was twenty-six years ild, and came here to make her home with a family by the name of Kinsmann, whom she had known in Austria. For three months she was happy and contented, but of late had longed to return to her native land. Yesterday when the members of the family went out to be gone all day the young woman was homesick, and told them that she preferred death to a home in a strange country, and that when they came home they would find her a corpse.

They laughed at her, but when they returned late last night they found her writhing in agony. Doctors worked over her and sent her to St. Mary's Hispital, where she died a few moments after being admitted. The woman was conscious when the Kinsmanns returned home and said that she had taken the poison soon after they had left and had been in too much agony all day to help herself to more of it.

Counsellors W. S. Angleman and William G. DeMeza have taken steps to appeal from the decision of Vice-Chancellor Emory in dismissing the action for divorce brought by Mrs. Olive Dunn against Wesley Dunn. The matter will now be argued before the Court of Errors and Appeals. S. S. Swackhamer is counsel for the defendant.

FORT NOT CANDIDATE FOR V. P. NOMINATION

Governor Fort gave an interview in Newark yesterday, in which he said that his recent statement, in which he declared he was not a candidate for Vice-President was final. He also said that he was elected on a platform which declared for certain things, and that he was committed to the work of carrying out these pledges, as well as those made by himself. He further declared that he would do all he could to further the candidacy of ex-Governor Murphy.

"I cannot see why my statement of some time ago is not taken as final," said the Governor. "I have said I would not be a candidate for Vice-President, and I mean just that. I will not under any circumstances be considered as a candidate, and I do not want any one to think that I am. I intend to finish my term as Governor of this State if I am allowed, and am happy and contented in that office. I want nothing else. As I said before, I have much to do here yet, and I am convinced the people of this State look to me to do it. I was elected upon a platform which declared for certain things, and I am committed to the work of carrying out these pledges as well as those I made myself. The Vice-Presidency is an honor of which any one might well feel proud, and I am keenly appreciative of the mention of my name in connection with it, but I am satisfied and convinced my duty lies here in New eJrsey. Of course I will support Mr. Murphy for second place. I believe the State convention's declaration in favor of Mr. Murphy for the Vice-Presidential nomination was sincere, and I shall do all I can to further his candidacy."

The Governor repeated once more that he wanted this statement of his own position to be taken as final. He added that he expected to see Secretary Taft made the Presidential nominee, and hoped for that result.

Mr. Murphy said yesterday taht the assurances of support he had received were extremely gratifying, and from what his friends had told him he believed that he had an excellent chance of getting the nomination.

MUST MOVE HOUSE TO MAKE WAY FOR OLD BROOK.

Westfield, May 21.—Charles Metzger, of this place, has been notified that he must move his house in Harrison avenue. The house was built about a year ago over the bed of an old brook, and the brook has been filled in since that time. The water in storms has flowed over Harrison avenue and the Town Council has ordered the house moved and the old waterway of the brook opened. This will cost Metzger about $1,000.

JACK THE OLDEST DOG ALIVE.

He Was Born Nineteen Years Ago, But Refuses to Think of Dying.

Jack, a mongrel terrier, but a breed worth while, has been so used to fighting all his life that he will not die. Not he; he refuses to think of it, says the Boston Globe.

His father was a cross between an Irish terrier and a skye terrier and his mother a smooth-haired fox terrier. Glorious combination, a terrier of the terriers. He was born in Newton Lower Falls in March, 1889.

Bought for $5, his owner, to keep the peace in the family of Noah A. Plympton of Wellesley Hills, said that he had brought him home for the baby. On those terms and on those alone was he admitted to the household, which he has ruled since to such an extent that the members are grateful that he does not know about the discussion which so nearly kept him from the place where he belonged.

Faithful, affectionate, good to look at, with his expressive eyes and shaggy hair, intelligent to a degree, good-tempered, though quick to resent an insult like the accident of having moved one's foot anywhere near him, Jack has been a cheering companion and a devoted friend.

And Jack has had the unique honor of being present at a Wellesley college function, to which no man ever has been admitted. He came home decked out with ribbons.

CARRIES WIRELESS IN POCKET.

Boy Who Can Telegraph Home as He Walks Along the Road.

Walter J. Willenborg is a boy who has decided to conquer the problems of wireless telegraphy. He has his own laboratory adjoining his bedroom. He has constructed a wireless receiving station at the top of the house.

Curious to see what could be done on a small scale, says St. Nicholas, he invented and made a portable telegraphic station that he could carry about in his pockets. From the top button of his coat he hung a slender wire that reached to the ground and so arranged that when he walked along a country road the wire would trail upon the ground behind him.

In his pocket he carried a little battery. On a bit of board as big as your hand he placed a complete wireless transmitting apparatus, induction coil, baby sounder and all, supporting this fairy telegraph station by fastening it to a belt around his waist.

From this traveling station he sent messages from a country road to his folks at home eight miles away in town, telling them where he was and where he was going and that he would reach home in time for supper.

War Is Evil

War suspends the rules of moral obligation, and what is long suspended is in danger of being totally abrogated. Civil wars strike deepest of all into the manners of the people. They vitiate their politics; they corrupt their morals; they pervert even the natural taste and relish of equity and justice. By teaching us to consider our fellow creatures in a hostile light, the whole body of our nation becomes gradually less dear to us. The very names of affection and kindred, which were the bond of charity while we agreed, become new incentives to hatred and rage when the communion of our country is dissolved.—Edmund Burke.

Arctic Dog Life.

Nowhere in the world has the dog such unrestricted right of way as in our most northerly possession—Alaska. In winter, when the more than 600,000 square miles of territory are sealed up in solid ice, dogs are almost the sole means of getting from place to place—in fact, they seem necessary to life itself.

The aristocrats of Arctic dog life are the mail teams in the service of the United States government. They are to-day a superior breed to the dogs employed some half dozen years ago before great gold discoveries demanded increased mail service.—St. Nicholas.

Could Find the Way.

The theater was in an unfashionable, congested part, and the visitor from afar had much difficulty in finding it. To the man in the box office he made complaint. "You have no direction painted up to point the way. At the end of this villainous street is a notice, 'To the Baptist Chapel,' but never a word as to your theater." The man at the pay box weighed his words. "The chapel-goers may need directing; our patrons find the way easily enough." There may or may not be a moral to the tale!

Estimated Age of the Earth.

The highest authorities place the total number of years elapsed since, in the light of best geological evidence, men first appeared upon earth at 288,000. Of this, 78,000 belong to the pre-glacial epoch, 100,000 years to the glacial, 44,000 to the interval between the glacial epoch and the proto-historic and neolithic, 10,000 years to the two last named epochs, and 6,000 years to the time elapsed since the beginning of the historic period in Egypt.

Exempla Gratia.

"It is not enough," said the man who was fond of moralizing, "that a man should be prudent most of the time; he must be so all the time. The foolish action of a few minutes may spoil the prospects of a lifetime."

"That's so," put in Henpeck, "it only takes a few minutes to get married."

TWO NURSES GRADUATED

E. H. Ladd, Jr., Presides at Annual Exercises of Hospital's Training School.

H. L. HALL PRESENTS PINS.

Rev. George A. Warner and Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan Make Addresses—Dr. Zelie Also Takes Part.

The thirteenth annual graduation exercises of the Training School for Nurses of Muhlenberg Hospital were held last night at the Casino, and as on previous occasions there was a large attendance of the friends of the nurses, as well as the hospital, including the medical staff, physicians of the city, Board of Governors, Women's Auxiliary and others. The Casino, under the direction of the alumnae association was decorated with American flags and a profusion of flowers.

E. H. Ladd, Jr., as a member of the Board of Governors, was in charge of the program, and others seated on the platform were Rev. George A. Warner, who made the address of the evening; Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, who addressed the two graduates and Henry L. Hall, who presented them with their pins. The graduates were Miss Missouria Findley Martin, of New York, and Miss Belle Simpson Lewis, of Millington. They occupied seats with the pupil nurses and the superintendent Miss Hughes in seats reserved for them in the front part of the hall, instead of being on the platform as heretofore.

The exercises opened with prayer by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, after which Mr. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, was introduced and made a short address which was congraulatory and full of timely advice. He said that he was the son of a physician and knew something of their hardships; also those of the nurses. Some people say that the life of a nurse is one of self-sacrifice, but in the opinion of the speaker there is more than that to the profession. He said that there is so much she can do through her influence that is should be considered a great pleasure. He said that there were two ways to look at life from the standpoint of a nurse. One was to be a perfect machine and command $25 or $50 week and the other was that her profession is a personal calling of God to a life of service to suffering humanity and it is the latter that we need more of among the nurses.

"There is something more to be considered than the acting little details," continued Mr. Warner. "The life that is touched by God means so much, not as mere professional nurses, but consecrated women. You will find many persons not able to pay you $25 a week for your services, but you will be called upon to minister to them.

"There are men in the ministry today, and we will be charitable to them, who are doing the best they can. You can tell whether a minister or nurse who is in the profession for all that can be gotten out of it. There are nurses who are so apt to impress you with the professional side of her life, especially in the sick room, where a poor human soul is at stake. When the circumstances reach that point in a sick room that the nurse says that the minister can see the patient, he will unduly excite the sick one, I think it is all wrong. Where is your personal influence to be? You are dealing with body, soul and spirit and some day God will call you to account and say, 'What did you do for Him?'

"I have been ill in a hospital and I remember well one nurse that I detested because of her professional air, while another nurse was a blessing because of her sweet nature and cheerful manner. When you go out into your life work have a feeling of consecration that God has called you to it. There is no greater work than that of the minister, doctor and nurse."

The address to the graduates was then given by Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, who congratulated the two women upon completing their course of training and he gave them the Golden Rule as the best one to follow. He paid a deserving tribute to the profession of nursing, referring to the "white cap nurse" who holds the confidence of the physician as well as the patient. Dr. Buchanan briefly reviewed the progress made in the study of medicine and surgery, showing what improvement had been made, and yet he said, today the physician is getting more in touch with nature, back to some of the first principles.

At this time Mr. Ladd presented Miss Martin and Miss Lewis with diplomas, congratulating them upon the completion of the three year course. This was followed with the presentation of the pins by Henry L.

COMMITTEE CONSIDERS ST. WORK BOND VETO

The Councilmanic street committee got together last night to discuss the Mayor's action of vetoing the ordinance which calls for an issue of $17,000 worth of street improvement bonds, as told exclusively in The Daily Press, and before the discussion was concluded Mr. Fisk was sent for and was asked concerning his opinion of the matter. He maintained the same position as outlined in his veto of the ordinance, disapproving of the expenditure until such time as other bonds can be disposed of. He also showed the members of the committee a draft of a letter he intends to send to the Common Council at the June meeting, providing an attempt is made to pass the ordinance.

There was not a full attendance of the street committee last night, and the Mayor was requested to withhold his latest message until all of the members had an opportunity to consider the matter. This he promised to do. It is the first time since Mr. Fisk has been Mayor that he vetoed an ordinance and in consequence the Common Council, especally the street committee, feels like going slow with the proposed improvement.

The committee decided to try two preparations on North avenue as a dust preventative—Tarvia and Asphaltine, with a view to learning which is the best. It may be decided to use the preparations on portions of Park avenue, below Fourth street. A car-load of each will be ordered and if possible the committee will get representatives of the companies making the preparations to put it on the streets named. The members feel convinced that the expenditure of money for these preparations is a wise one and will give satisfaction. The committee will probably hold another meeting next week to further consider street matters.

READY TO WELCOME REAL ESTATE MEN

Plans for the reception and entertainment of the members of the New Jersey Real Estate Exchange, who are to visit Plainfield next Tuesday afternoon, were discussed at the Board of Trade meeting last night. A committee composed of L. B. Woolston, Edmund Rushmore, A. S. Herr, J. T. Vail and J. F. McDonald was appointed by Chairman F. A. Duttenhofer to arrange for the affair. It is expected that there will be about a score of men in the party, which will include real estate representatives of New York and State papers.

General Manager W. G. Besler, of the New Jersey Central, has arranged to have the 12:42 train stop here to leave the party, and the New Yorkers will be entertained at luncheon by members of the Board of Trade and local real estate men. The place of the luncheon has not yet been decided upon. A feature of the visit will be a "Seeing Plainfield" auto trip in the afternoon, when about a dozen automobiles are to be placed at the service of the visitors, who will make a tour of the city and borough, visiting the tracts being especially developed.

Francis K. Anderson, editor of "The Site-Seeker," urged the Board to appoint a committee to revise the by-laws, which are to be printed in the July number of the publication. Mr. Anderson submitted the table of contents for the first issue, and declared the purpose of the magazine to be to secure the realty development of Plainfield, not by a single "boom," but by persistent service. The Board has already endorsed the publication as a Board of Trade magazine, and the committee requested will be appointed at the regular June meeting.

A telegram from Senator Kean, reporting the Senate's appropriation of $100,000 for a postoffice building in Plainfield was read by Prof. Herr and caused prolonged applause. Speaking in commendation of the Senator's efforts to secure this appropriation, Prof. Herr said that the question of the location of this new building would soon cme up. "Plainfielders must be big and broad about a site, and put the new postoffice where it will do the most good and show up for the best advantage of the city."

Actor Jailed for Sixty Days.

Littleton Magruder, Jr., an actor, who reached the city last night from Washington, D. C., was sent to jail for sixty days by Judge Runyon this morning. He was observed by Patrolman Messler at various times around midnight acting in a suspicious manner and the officer finally arrested him in an alleyway at 2 a. m. Several young men appeared as complainants against him.

MISS A. E. DAVIS A BRIDE

Daughter of Dr. and Mrs. T. S. Davis Becomes Mrs. Richard Rene Muser.

DR. STEVENSON OFFICIATES.

Ceremony at Grace Church—Miss Helen R. Davis Maid of Honor —Ralph E. Muser Best Man.

Miss Anna Elizabeth Davis, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Davis, of Park avenue, and Richard Rene Muser, of New York, were married at 7 o'clock last night at Grace church in the presence of a large assemblage of friends from New York, Brooklyn and this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of the church. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Helen R. Davis, as maid of honor and Miss Lilian M. Emerson, of Ansonia, Conn.; Miss Gwendolin P. Gillen, of Jamacia, L. I.; Miss Margery Gillespie, of Woodhaven, L. I.; Miss Marion E. Niven, of New York, and Miss Anna M. Garrigues, of this city, as bridesmaids.

The bride was gowned in white satin, trimmed with duchesse and rose point lace, and she wore a veil of duchesse and point lace and carried lilies of the valley and bride roses. The maid of honor's gown was of white satin striped crepe de chine, trimmed with real lace and she carried pink roses. The bridesmaids' gowns were of pink Liberty satin, trimmed with embroidered fillet lace and their bouquets were of pink roses.

An attractive and novel arrangement was made in the entrance of the bridal party in the church. Instead of all the members of the party preceding to the chancel from the front of the edifice, it was planned to have the ushers and bridesmaids enter from the vestry-room and preceding down the aisle meet the bride and her father and the maid of honor and then reversing the ushers led the way to the chancel, followed by the brides-maids, maid of honor and bride, accompanied by her father.

During the processional William E. MacClymont, at the organ, assisted by violin and 'cello, rendered the wedding march from Lohengrin. The msuic was a decided feature of the service and was greatly admired. As the bridal party left the church the Mendelssohn Wedding March was played.

In the decorations at the church a pleasing arrangement was noticed. About the chancel there was a profusion of palms, greens and lilacs, while at the end of every pew there was a bunch of French lilacs. The effect was striking.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents on Park avenue, which was attended by the relatives and very intimate friends of the couple. The home was elaborately decorated for the occasion, pink and green being the predominating colors in the reception hall, parlor and dining room. The porch was enclosed and illuminated with incandescent lights making it an attractive place for the guests. After congratulations supper was served and the guests were given an opportunity to view the large collection of handsome gifts, including gold and silverware, cut-glass, furniture, rugs, etc.

There was an exchange of gifts among the bridal party, the bride receiving from the groom a valued piece of jewelry. The bride gave her maid of honor and bridesmaids mistletoe pins set with pearls and the groom gave his best man and ushers gold cuff links.

During the reception at the home music was furnished by an orchestra of three pieces and it added greatly to the enjoyment of the affair. The couple was showered with the best wishes of their friends for a prosperous and happy life.

The bride has for sometime been prominent in the younger society set and has taken part in numerous social functions. The groom is also prominent in New York society. He is a lace importer, being engaged in business with his brother, under the firm name of Muser Brothers, of Fifth avenue, New York. After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Muser will reside on Ninety-third street, between Riverside and West End avenue, New York. Among the valued gifts received by the bride was a Sheffield silver cake dish over one hundred years old.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will hold its last meeting before Memorial Day on Tuesday night and a full attendance of the veterans is desired.

SUDDEN DEATH OF WELL KNOWN SCOTCH PLAINS MAN

William D. Johnston, one of Scotch Plains' best known residents, was found dead shortly before noon today in the barn on the Lynus Walpole hotel property at Park and Westfield avenues. He had entered the place a short time before for the purpose of getting some tools and had evidently succumbed to an attack of apoplexy or heart failure. The body was found by one of the hotel employes.

Mr. Johnston had lived in Scotch Plains practically all his life and was about sixty years old. He was a contracting mason and builder and was president of the Union County Master Builders Association. He served in the War of the Rebellion and had been identified with Grand Army affairs for a long time. He was also a member of local fraternal organizations.

Mr. Johnston is survived by a wife, three daughters and two sons, all of whom live at the Plains. He was a half brother to George Johnston, well known in baseball circles.

DR. MARTHA STILLMAN DIES AT NEW LONDON

Dr. Martha Rose Stillman died at New London, Conn., yesterday. She was born at Alfred, N. Y., March 11, 1870.

Dr. Stillman was graduated from Alfred University in 1889, taking the master's degree the year following. In 1892 she began the study of medicine. She was graduated from the Woman's Medical College of the N. Y. Infirmary in 1896. She received an appointment to the Infirmary and served there nearly a year and a half.

Dr. Stillman practised medicine in Plainfield from Dec., 1898 until Dec., 1907, when she was obliged to undergo an operation in New York. After recovering, she accepted an appointment to the New York Infirmary for Women and Children expecting to return to her practise in Plainfield the first of April. In March, however, failing health compelled her to lay aside her work and she went to the home of her brother-in-law, Dr. Thomas Rogers, at New London, Conn., where she remained with her mother and sister until her death.

A strong, brave spirit, Dr. Stillman was a help to all with whom she came in contact. It is given to few to be so deeply loved and so sorely missed.

She was a faithful member of the Seventh-Day Baptist church of this city.

Dr. Stillman was an earnest Christian and though for many weeks she knew her disease to be uncurable, her triumphant faith sustained her and her one regret was that she could not go sooner to the Master whom she loved. Professionally she was most successful and her many patients will find it hard to fill her place, a rare tenderness and sympathy with suffering being a strong characteristic.

Dr. Stillman leaves a mother, two brothers, Charles Stillman and Roger Stillman, of Alfred, New York, and one sister, Mrs. Thomas Rogers, of New London, Conn.

The funeral services will be held at New London tomorrow.

ANOTHER ASSOCIATION FOR PARENTS AND TEACHERS.

Another parent-teacher association was organized yesterday at a meeting of the parents and teachers of children at the Irving School. It was the largest attended meeting yet held and fully one hundred women joined the association, after a most excellent address by Superintendent H C. Krebs, of the North Plainfield Public Schools, in which he explained the objects of the movement and enlisted the sympathy and support of all present. Dr. Henry M. Maxson was present and made a few remarks commending the movement.

These officers wer chosen: President, Mrs. Joseph Pierson; vice-president, Miss Genevieve Petrie; secretary, Mrs. A. E. Force; treasurer, Mrs. George O. Stevens.

There are now five parent-teacher associations organized in the city with a total membership of about 400, which includes the parents and teachers of children in the High School, Bryant, Franklin, Stillman and Irving Schools. In the fall similar organizations will be formed in the remaining schools. In addition to the meeting at the Irving School yesterday the parents were greatly interested in the Manual exhibit, which is considered the best in the history of the school.

Miss Marion Schmidt, of Jersey City, who has been spending the past week in this city, has returned.

AUTO BUS LINE ENDORSED

Proposition Meets with Favor When Brought Before the Board of Trade.

$25,000 STOCK CO. PLANNED.

Projectors Present Two Routes, One to Include South Plainfield, Oak Tree and Metuchen.

The proposition for an auto bus line from this city to Metuchen, by way of South Plainfield and Oak Tree, brought before the Board of Trade by Milton Mendel, of Holly Park, was strongly endorsed at a special meeting of the Board held at the Plainfield Business College last night. A committee composed of Harry Marshall and F. A. Duttenhofer was chosen by the Board after a general discussion of the scheme, and these men, with A. E. Force and Mr. Mendel, named as a committee at the meeting of the Merchants' Association held last week, will wait upon Mayor Fisk within a few days for his endorsement of the project. A stock company, capitalized at $25,000, is to be formed immediately, and the stock in the proposed bus line will probably be sold at $10 a share.

Mr. Mendel, the principal promoter of the scheme, laid the project before the members of the Board as the principal business of the meeting, at which F. A. Duttenhofer occupied the chair, in the absence of President Marshall. There are to be two distinct lines operated by the new company,—one between Plainfield and Metuchen, called the southern line, and the other through the residential district of the west end of this city south of the railroad track, known as the western line. Mr. Mendel pointed out the need for both of these lines for the passenger autos, and the approval of his scheme was marked by sustained applause by the members of the Board at the clase of his remarks.

In speaking of the line to Metuchen, Mr. Mendel emphasized the fact that a system of trailers on the autos used would establish a complete and quick delivery system to these towns and the coast cities, whiles express transportation and a delivery system for local tradesmen would be other acruing benefits. The buses to Metuchen are to run hourly, ten trips a day, starting from a central point and proceeding as follows: To Watchung avenue, to Crescent avenue, to Eighth street, to Central avenue, to Road Ending, to Plainfield avenue, to Lehigh avenue, (South Plainfield), to the Lehigh Valley station, to Maple avenue, to Park avenue, to Holly avenue, to the Oak Tree station, Lehigh Valley Railroad), to Park avenue, to end of P. S. C. trolley line New Brunswick and Perth Amboy, to Pennsylvania Railroad station in Metuchen. This line, he said, aside from taking in stations on three railroads and connection with the trolley line to coast resorts, would be of great practical service in mail delivery, for all mail for South Plainfield, now has to go either to Easton, Pa., or New York first.

In speaking of the western line, the local route, Mr. Mendel said that he believed a bus line would be superior to a trolley lyine, which would tend to depreciate the property value of the residential section in the west end of the city. The autos on this line will run on half hour schedule, starting from a central point to Park avenue, to Ninth street, to Central avenue, to Stelle avenue, to Plainfield avenue, to West Seventh street, to Clinton avenue, to the Maple Grov School.

The rate of fare will be reasonable; on the southern line it will cost five cents to the Driving Park, five cents tfrom there to Oak Tree and five or ten cents from Oak Tree to Metuchen. This line will take the place of the present auto line from Rowley's drug store, and the Lehigh Valley Railroad will sell tickets over it and will advertise it. The fare on the western line will be five cents, and there will be a reduction for school children and mechanics. The equipment of the lines is to consist of five heavy automobile buses, with a capacity of fifteen or twenty people. They wil run at a speed of 10 or 12 miles an hour, and will be distinctive loooking, so that they may be recognized at a distance. They will run on regular schedule time, two on each line, while the fifth will be held in reserve in case of break-downs, or for the use of pleasure parties. Trailers will be used on the Metuchen line for express, parcel and mail delivery.

At the meeting with Mr. Mendel were Peter McDonough, Captain Smith and Rev. C. W. F. Attlee, Plainfielders, who also spoke on the new project. They developed the value of the autos to railroad travellers, as a means of rapid mail delivery, and pointed out that the line would mean a saving of one hour in

"LARRY" WALLACE MUST SERVE OLD PRISON TERM

It was announced in Union county court circles this morning, that "Larry" Wallace, now serving a sixty days sentence imposed by Judge William N. Runyon, would be taken to the state prison at Trenton as soon as the time is up. He will be incarcerated on a charge of breaking parole and be compelled to serve nineteen months of a three years term given him for breaking and entering and from which he escaped by pardon after fourteen months imprisonment. It is stated that the parole was forfeited by his arrest and that under the terms by which he was released he must serve out the original sentence.

Wallace's home is in Fanwood but he has been more or less of a character in Plainfield for a long time, appearing in the police court at regular intervals. He received the prison term after an escapade at Scotch Plains in which he and a couple of companions smashed in a hotel door to get a bottle of whiskey. Local people considered the sentence much too severe under the circumstances and the Board of Pardons granted the parole after numerous petitions. He had been back but a short time when the Plainfield police arrested him on Somerset street for drunkenness and panhandling and Judge Runyon sent him to jail. At that time it was shown that his conduct had not been of the best from the time of his release and steps were then being taken to send him back to prison.

Y. M. C. A. ORCHESTRA HOLD ANNUAL DINNER

The first annual dinner of the Y. M. C. A. orchestra was held at the association, last night, when thirty-seven members and friends were present. An excellent dinner was served by the social work committee of the Ladies' Auxiliary and was greatly enjoyed by the guests.

Walter M. Sampson was the toastmaster and he introduced the several speakers, including Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, Dr. Leonard Waldo, President J. W. Gavett, H. W. Herman, J. Harry Manning, W. H. Sampson, Secretary H. E. Parker and Martin A. Korff, leader of the orchestra.

The members of the orchestra felt honored in having Dr. Waldo present to speak to them and his announcement that the best musical compositions would be available to the members next season at the Public Library was received with much enthusiasm. Dr. Waldo spoke chiefly along the development of musical talent and the importance of unit in orchestra work.

The remarks of Dr. Herring, who himself is a musician of marked ability, were of an encouraging nature. He spoke of the great benefit to be direved at church and other religious services by having good music and he said that the orchestra was filling a place of great usefulness. The other speeches were along the same line and were listened to with much interest by all.

On Thursday night, May 28, the orchestra will give a testimonial concert for Thomas Morrell, one of its members. The program of the last concert will be repeated.

PHONE CO.'S NEW RULE MEANS BETTER SERVICE.

To facilitate the work and thus give prompt, accurate and satisfactory service to its subcribers, the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company has adopted a new rule at the local exchange. Patrons are requested to announce the name of the exchange in addition to the phone number desired. For instance in calling The Daily Press office, a patron must not call for "61" but for "61 Plainfield."

It has been found that a considerable number of subscribers in calling other exchanges thoughtlessly give the number only thus making confusion and complicating matters generally. This causes delay and hurts the general service to the public in general. Hence the new rule.

Trolley Cars Every Half-Hour.

The Public Service Corporation has returned to the old schedule of operating cars at night on the Netherwood and Arlington avenue lines, running them every half-hour after 10 o'clock. Another new rule provides that on stormy nights the westbound main line cars shall be run every half-hour after 10:15 o'clock at night. This arrangement has caused great inconvenience to late travellers and it is probable that they will take the matter before the Common Council with a view to seeing what can be done toward making a change.

FOUR BOYS PAY EIGHTY-SIX CENTS EACH FOR A LAUGH.

Charged with breaking a large window in the store of B. Epstein, on West Third street, four boys, Elmer and Henry Anderson, George Blount and William Cogger, were arraigned in the city court this morning. Each member of the quartet was positive that he hadn't broken it but young Blount admitted that one of them had pulled a piece of the pane out after somebody else had done the smashing. He also acknowledged that all four had enjoyed a good laugh when the glass jingled to the sidewalk.

"Well, now," observed the judge in a most amiable way, "you boys have often visited the theatre, haven't you?"

"Sure," piped up the bunch.

"And it cost you at least a quarter to have a good chuckle over the funny things on the stage?"

"Sure," was the response again, only this time the four looked at each other as if to get a line on what His Honor was driving at.

"Well," continued the judge, "you had a fine laugh when this window was broken and as Mr. Epstein says a new one will cost $3.50, suppose you all chip in eighty-six sents apiece to pay for the fun."

The boys shifted about a moment or two and then said they would make up the amount. One of them remarked afterward that they had "gotten off lucky" but it is doubtful if eighty-six cent shows will become popular in the West End.

Miss Katherine Hartshorne, formerly of Freehold, has been visiting Miss Barlow, of Prospect place.

Miss Lillian Emerson, of Ansonia, Conn., who has been visiting at the home of Dr. and Mrs. T. S. Davis, of Park avenue, will return home this week.

Marshall & Ball Sale

Saves You Enough to Pay For Your Decoration Day Outing

Hundreds of men have taken advantage of this Splendid Clothing Opportunity. They have procured a high-grade suit, unusually smart in style and skillfully tailored, just in time to wear it on Decoration Day, and at the same time have pocketed a sum substantial enough to pay their outing expenses, and in many instances, leave a surplus.

Even this unusual store has never seen a Clothing Sale that has quite equaled this. The character, style and snap shown in the lot of Suits we acquired from a leading manufacturer at practically our own price would alone make this offer extremely tempting.

Add to this the fact that many of our own make—garments of unquestioned fashion and integrity, including our Celebrated Londoncut Suits for young men—are included, and it is little wonder that this Sale is the talk of the town.

There are conservative as well as radical models from which to choose, in this season's newest shades of brown, tan and gray; also blues and blacks. Remember, there is not a suit in the lot that was made to sell for less than $16, and up to $30.

Tomorrow will undoubtedly bring more convincing evidence than ever of the great interest men have in this Extraordinary Saving Event. It will be the last Saturday before Decoration Day, and the men or young men who come in early in the day will have a decided advantage over the late comers.

The Merits of the "W.B.Reduso"

W. B. Reduso puts every stout woman on the same style basis as her slender sisters. It is the last word in corset making, radical in its idea and its results. A scientific, logical, simple corset, which by forcing its wearer to hold herself properly so encourages deep breathing that nature itself reduces the excess flesh out of the abdomen through hardening the soft, fatty tissues into hard, muscular fibre. The Reduso will in a few months bring about a natural lessening of the figure. It is not a harness in any sense of the word, but it is as simple, as light and as comfortable as any corset made. It has all the latest style modifications, and will taper off the hips, render the lower back less prominent, and not only improve the appearance but the health of the wearer.

W. B. Corsets have been getting more sensible every year. They've become more scientific, more hygienic, and because they're built along nature's own lines, the W. B. is constantly growing more graceful, because nothing in all art can surpass the exquisite lines of a beautiful woman.

A WHITE SALE--Beginning May 20

With a gathering of White Goods, second to none in this section—with bargains that are real, on merchandise of merit, we inaugurate this sale to again illustrate real bargains at a TEPPER'S WHITE SALE, for it's not only selling merchandise cheap, but selling merchandise of a character that will appeal to you at a glance for its intrinsic value, you have learned to know that if the article is of so low a grade that its only recommendation is its low price to induce you to purchase, it will prove a poor bargain on the actual test of wear, such goods never find favor with—never tempt our buyers. Every article will be found exactly as advertised—we cannot put this too clearly before you, unless you have attended our former sales, then you know, that it is our principle to adhere to actual values in quoting values, in print as well as in the house. We shall expect you to this White sale. We have prepared many bargains that we cannot enumerate here, in cases where lots are small, yet the bargain may prove the biggest, there will be many such little groups all through the Dry Goods section, and not mentioned here.

TOMORROW CIRCUS DAY.

Ringling Brothers' Gorgeous Street Parade Starts at 10 o'clock.

Tomorrow is circus day—the day which makes the world young and kin. Every household will be alive early on account of it, and our country cousin, arrayed in his best, will flower in the highways and byways with refreshing glory and abundance.

The five special trains, eighty-five cars in all, are due here before dawn tomorrow morning and the usual army of curious will no doubt be at the railroad yards to greet the arriving trains. As circus men are known as hustlers, it won't take long to unload the enormous equipment, several hundred horses and forty elephants. When the colony is established and the banner of Ringling Brothers flies from the top mast of the great central tent, the local population will have been added to by 1,280 people.

The gorgeous street parade, for which Ringling Brothers are famed beyond all others, will start from the circus grounds promptly at 10 o'clock. All the 1,280 men, women and children with the great show, scores of open wild animal cages, forty elephants, twenty camel team, mounted soldiery and calvary bands, fashionable whips, fun-making clowns, celebrated riders, gymnasts, acrobats and distinguished specialists of all sorts, educated wild creatures, blue-blooded high-stepping horses, gorgeous tableaux floats, national fete scenes, coquettish ponies, wierd barbarian bands, and a countless number of other strange and fascinating features are woven into the extraordinary three-mile-long parade.

Two-thirds of the performers with Ringling Brothers this season are appearing in this country for the first time. There are no conventional acts in the 110 numbers of the enormous bill, because the performers are acknowledged masters in their varied feats and bring refinement and invention to their work.

Beside the human superiority of this season's exhibition, there is a unique and wonderful animal training display. Riccobono's horses are the most puzzling and delightful performers of their dumb kind ever shown in America. Prof. Kerslake's pigs prove that these ground rooters have something in their heads akin to brain. Prof. Wormwood's monkeys and dogs and Pearl Souder's trained elephants are other amazing features in this part of the program.

In the menagerie are 108 cages and dens containing the rarest and most valuable collection of wild animals in the world. Three giraffes, rhinoceros, hippopotamus, horned horse, snow leopard, black vaark, nursery of baby beasts and forty elephants. All the canvases are water proof.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The first meeting of the general committee on Independence Day celebration, was held last evening in Temperance Hall. The general feeling of the meeting was that as the celebration last year was so successful even more elaborate arrangements would be made this year. John McDonough is planning a large parade for which entrance fees are reduced. The fees are to be spent in prizes for the contestants. David Blackford has instructions to get prices for a band of about twenty pieces. Frank Kellog is to arrange for a display of fireworks on a large scale. The dinner committee is already at work, and will hold a special meeting on Wednesday afternoon, and on that evening all sub-committees wil meet the general committee to report.

Mrs. Adam Deter of Newark, formerly of this village, who was over here yesterday visiting friends, reported that her sister's recent fall had left her in a serious condition, and that not only were three ligaments of the hand severed and the bones of the wrist broke, but that she is not even able to walk without supports.

The annual election of officers will take place this evening at the regular meeting of the Good Government Club to be held in Temperance Hall.

time and $1 in money to persons going to the sea-shore resorts. They spoke of the unsuccessful efforts to get a trolley line connecting Plainfield and South Plainfield and gave practical figures as to the cost of maintaining the proposed line.

Several members of the Board of Trade spoke in endorsement of the scheme, among them Elston M. French. "I think it's a good thing," he said, "and I believe it will help Plainfield. There's nothing that will do a town more good than lots of ways to get to it."

The committee appointed to act in conjunction with the Merchants' Association committee and Mayor Fisk will report at the June meeting of the Board.

MISS PALMER'S PUPILS HEARD AT A RECITAL.

The pupils of Miss Sarah Palmer, teacher of pianoforte, gave a pleasing recital yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Parsons, 534 East Front street, assisted by Allen B. Fenno, of New York city, who six years ago was the boy-soprano at the Church of All Angels, New York. He is a pupil of William Lee, of New York, and today his voice is a baritone, as rare in quality and compass as was that of his youth. He gave two numbers yesterday with encores and pleased the large audience with his singing. Mrs. Charles L. Lewis was the accompanist.

The program given by Miss Palmer's pupils reflected credit upon their ability as well as their teacher and each number was heartily applauded. The pupils taking part in the recital included Miss Doris Sattels, Miss Ruth Bomann, Miss Carolyn Ross, Miss Esty Foster, Miss Edith Foster, Miss Katharine Lee, Miss Alma McCormick and Henry Zook, Jack Ross and William Brandegee.

Entertainment at Grace M. E. Church

The Epworth League of Grace M. E. church will give an entertainment at the church this evening. Much time has been spentin the preparation and the rehearsal of the three dialogues to be presented, which form a part of the entertainment.

The affair promises to be a brilliant success and as the entertainment is given for the benefit of the church a large crowd is anticipated. The committee in charge of the affair promises a very enjoyable evening to all attending.

The Good and Welfare committee of Freedom Castle, No. 42, K. G. E., has arranged a special program for the social session following next Tuesday night's meeting and a large attendance is desired.

WARREN ENDEAVORERS OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

The twentieth anniversary of the Christian Endeavor Society of Warren chapel was observed at the chapel last night with appropriate exercises. The chapel was elaborately decorated with dog-wood, American flags and the society colors, orange and black. The program was opened with organ selections, "Andante," Beethoven, and "Minuet," Salome, by Bert Harold, and after Scripture reading and prayer by Rev. J. O. McKelvey, an address of welcome was given by President Charles E. Bryan.

There were vocal selections by the Y. W. C. A. Glee Club, under the leadership of Miss Margaret Leal, which were greatly enjoyed by all. Miss Nora B. Schenck, secretary, presented her annual report, showing that the society is in excellent condition. The average attendance was twenty-five and $87 was raised for missions.

A vocal solo, "The Courier of Moscow," by Herbert Byard and selections by the glee club, preceded a fine address by Rev. Spencer C. Dickson, of Hopewell. His chief thought was that God wants pillars in the church and not pillows, and he said that the Christian Endeavorers are called upon to become granite pillars for Him. The program was concluded with another selection by Mr. Byard and one by Mr. Harold on the organ.

Miss Georgianna Galloway was the chairman of the affair and the sub-chairmen were as follows: Music, Miss Nora B. Schenck; refreshments, Miss Harriet Squier; speaker, Miss Adele Kirby; decorations, Miss Dolly Bolsterli, while Charles Windham was chairman of the social committee. They all had their own assistants. Ice cream and cake were served and a social time enjoyed.

Hall, who also told the nurses never to be ashamed to display their pins that they represented a standard of excellence. A little later Mr. Hall made a brief statement concerning the success of the Kirmess. He said that the actual receipts were $9,050 and the net profits will be a trifle over $6,000. The voting contest, he said, made it possible to establish seventeen free beds at the hospital for one year.

A feature of the evening was the music by Charles Suhr's Imperial Orchestra. The various number of the program were interspersed with popular selections and afterward music was furnished for dancing. During the reception to the graduates when they received many handsome gifts from relatives and friends, ice cream and cake were served under the direction of the Alumni Association, Miss Margaret Cramer being chairman of the committee in charge.

—The decoration for the Davis and Muser wedding, both church and house, were furnished by Mrs. L. J. Denton.

Forty Days for Septuagenarian.

Robert Thompson, a Scotchman nearly seventy years old, was arraigned in the city court, yesterday morning, on a charge of drunkenness and panhandling. Judge Runyon took pity on him because of his age and suspended sentence after giving him some kind advice. Yesterday afternoon Patrolman Charles Flynn again found Thompson in the last stages of intoxication on North avenue, begging money from storekeepers and making a general nuisance of himself. The magistrate was in no mood to waste sympathy this morning and gave the offender forty days.

When arraigned in court today they were about the most wretched-looking pair of hoboes that ever stood before the desk and Judge Runyon sentenced them to forty days at Elizabeth.

FREEHOLDERS' LATEST MOVE.

Rescind Resolution Giving Railroad Right to Run Over Avenue C Bridge.

The Hudson County Board of Freeholders at its meeting yesterday afternoon rescinded a resolution passed twenty-two years ago giving the Jersey City and Bergen Horse Railroad Company permission to operate cars over the bridge that unites Jersey City and Bayonne at Avenue C. The horse railroad was succeeded by the trolley company.

The County Board not only excluded the cars from the bridge, but adopted plans yesterday for a new bridge without the car tracks. The county officials insist that the trolley company pay an annual rental equivalent to one-third of the cost of the new bridge which they intend building and the cost of maintenance. The trolley company has refused to acede to the terms, claiming a perpetual franchise under the act of 1886 which the County Board repealed yesterday.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Miss Grace George, whose London engagement last summer marked the first absolute triumph of an American actress there from the time Ada Rehan made her success in 1887, comes on Decoration Day, matinee and evening, May 30, to the New Plainfield theatre, in Sardou's immortal comedy of "Divorcons," which was the medium of her London success, and in which she has made a successful tour of the United States and Canada since her return from the other side.

Miss George acted the role of Cyprienne in this fine comedy more than a hundred nights in Wallack's and the Lyceum theatres, New York city; while her run in the Duke of York's theatre, London, extended for twelve weeks through the very heart of the summer.

Martha Washington Council, No. 23, Daughters of America, wil nominate officers at its meeting to be held tomorrow night.

The Women's Relief Corps will meet tonight at Reform Hall to complete its part of the arrangements for Memorial Day observance.

Does Your Furnace Leak Gas?

Cases of asphyxiation are not uncommon, but even the faintest odor of gas in the house is disagreeable. It's due to the faulty construction of the old style of furnace, and any Boynton dealer will tell you why the

MR. PRATT

By Joseph C. Lincoln

Author of "Cap'n Eri," "Partners of the Tide," Etc.

Illustrations by T. D. Melvill

Copyright, 1907, A. S. Barnes & Company.

She's my favorite child," went on Washy, swabbing his eyes. "She always was, too. Even when she was a baby I thought more of her than I done of all the others."

Eureka must have been listening, for she called from the kitchen:

"Why, pa!" she says. "When I was a baby there wa'n't any others. I'm the oldest."

The invalid bounced up straight in the rocker. "That's it!" he hollers. "Make fun of your helpless, poor old father! Go ahead! pick at me and contradict me! I s'pose when I'm dead and in my grave you'll contradict me every time I speak."

He blew off steam for much as five minutes. Didn't ever remember to stop and get his cough going. Hartley turned to the door. I could see he was disappointed.

"Very well," he says. "I'm sorry. I'm sure she is just the girl we need. Good day, Mr. Sparrow."

I cal'late Washy wa'n't expecting that. He hitched around in his chair. It had a busted cane seat, the chair did, and he had to roost on the edge of it to keep from falling through.

"Er—er—just a minute, mister," he says. "I want you to understand how I feel about this thing. If I was able to do for myself 'twould be different, but—"

Eureka came to the door then, wiping her arms on her apron.

"Why, pa," she says, "I told you I could fix that."

She went on to tell how she'd get up early every morning and cook the meals afore she left, and how Editha would be there, and Lycurgus would split the wood and do the chores, and how she'd be home nights, and so on. She had planned everything. I liked that girl. At last her dad give another one of his groans.

"All right," says he. "I give in. I ain't going to stand in the way. Hadn't ought to expect nothing different, I s'pose. Work and fret and slave yourself into the boneyard bringing up children, and—and educating 'em and all, and then off they go and leave you. Well, I'm resigned. Mr.—Mr.—What's-Your-Name, she can go, Eureka can—for two dollars more a week."

I actually gasped out loud. The cheek of him! Why, the price Van had offered was enough to hire three girls. And now this shark wanted more.

Even Martin Hartley seemed to be set back some. But he was game. For a "mercenary" chap he was the most liberal piece of goods on the shelf.

"Certainly, Mr. Sparrow," says he. "That will be satisfactory. Good morning. Good-morning, Eureka. I presume we shall see you to-morrow?"

We got out of the house finally. Washy come far as the kitchen to see us off. He was smiling and sweet as syrup now. When I'd got to the walk Eureka called me back.

"Mr. Pratt," she whispered, "you tell Mr. Hartley that of course I sha'n't take the extra two dollars. I'll be paid too much as 'tis. But we won't let pa know."

Afore I could answer there was a yell from the dining room. I looked in and there was Washy doubled up in that rocker with his knees under his chin. He'd forgot about the busted cane seat and had set down heavy and gone through. Editha was trying to haul him out, the baby was crying and the invalid himself was turning loose the healthiest collection of language I'd heard for a good while. Eureka dove to the rescue, and I come away.

Hartley and I walked on a spell without saying much. Then he asks:

"Skipper, do you suppose that fellow really has consumption?"

"Humph!" says I, disgusted; "consumption of grub."

He thought a minute longer.

"Poor girl," says he. "She has a hard time of it. We must see if we can't help her in some way."

CHAPTER XII.

Miss Sparrow's Diagnosis.

Eureka was on hand bright and early the next day and it didn't take me long to see that she was worth her salt. She took hold like a good one and had breakfast—and a mighty good breakfast—ready right on time. I don't know when I've enjoyed a meal like I done that one, sure all the while that I hadn't got to turn to and wash the dishes afterwards. I went out to my gardening feeling like a sick man who had turned the corner and was on the road to getting well again.

And from then on the Natural Life was easy for all of us, for quite a spell. The new girl was a wonder, so far as doing work was concerned. She'd go through Marcellus' old home like a hurricane, sweeping and dusting and singing. She was 'most always singing—that is, when she wa'n't talking. She had a queer program of music, too, running from hymn tunes to songs she'd heard the boarders use over at the hotel. One minute 'twould be, "Land Ahead! Its Fruits Are Waving," and the next meeting somebody "in the shade of the old apple tree."

One day I come in and she was piping up about how everybody in her house worked but her dad, or words to that effect.

"Hello!" says I. "Did you make that up out of your head?"

"Reliable Money Brokers"

IF IT'S A QUESTION OF DOLLARS.

We may be able to help you out. At any rate if you'll inform us of your needs, we'll try. The winter months just past have raised the expenses of the average householder to their highest point and many of us have been unable to meet all of our obligations as promptly as we would like to and consequently find ourselves in debt.

SUPPOSE we were to advance you sufficient funds to meet your obligations. Do you not think you would be more satisfied to have only one payment to look after on pay day?

There is no place where money will be advanced you more willingly or where you will receive more courteous treatment than from us. It's worth investigating.

The possession of household goods, horses and wagons is sufficient evidence of your ability to pay. Call, write or 'phone.

UNION BUDGET $344,000

Small Increase Over Last Year in County Despite Addition to Road Fund.

IMPORTANT ITEMS PRUNED.

Committee Cuts Appropriations—Figures to Be Approved by Board at an Early Date.

Despite a $23,000 increase in the amount to be expended for State aid roads by conscientious paring of other items the county budget for the year beginning July 1, as tentatively fixed by the Committee on Appropriations of the Board of Freeholders, yesterday afternoon, calls for an increase over the year just closing of less than $9,000. This is the more remarkable in light of the fact that the court expense item alone calls for an additional item of $9,000. The figures fixed by the committee yesterday will come up for approval at the next meeting of the Board of Freeholders, and will in all likelihood be ratified. The budget tentatively fixed is as follows:

Jail	9,000.00	8,000.00
Lunacy	37,000.00	39,000.00
Members' pay salaries, etc	14,000.00	14,000.00
Coroners	500.00	500.00
Election	21,000.00	21,000.00
Stationery	2,500.00	2,500.00
Advertising, publishing, & printing	2,000.00	2,000.00
Incidentals, schools, etc	10,000.00	12,000.00
Children's guardians account	500.00	1,000.00
National Guard	1,200.00	850.00
Tax Board and taxes	2,500.00	2,700.00
Principal on bonded debt		9,000.00
Interest on bonded debt	40,000.00	40,000.00
Interest on temporary loans	1,700.00	1,500.00
Sinking Fund	8,000.00	8,000.00
Public grounds & buildings	17,000.00	17,000.00
Bridges & culverts	45,000.00	57,000.00
Repairs to county roads	17,500.00	17,500.00
Hospitals	20,000.00	20,000.00
State roads	33,000.00	10,500.00
Repairs to State aid roads	1,500.00
Totals	$343,900.00	$335,050.00
Less assets of Co	3,900.00	17,000.00
Total raised by taxation	$340,000.00	$318,050.00

The members of the committee confronted with an imperative demand for a big increase in the court item, made necessary by the growing business of the county, decided not to spare the pruning knife on other items and as a result made the total increase remarkably small.

They made a cut of $12,000 in the bridge and culvert account alone. It was declared by one of the members that despite the fact that the work to be done during the coming year on county bridges will compare favorably with that during the present, which had been very extensive. Another cut of $2,000 was made in the incidental account, and a cut of $500 in the children's guardian account. A slight increase was made in the National Guard item because it had been stated they could not get along without it.

The notable increase is in the item for State aid roads. The conversion of West Grand street and North Broad street, Elizabeth, into State aid roads, which will benefit Elizabeth, Roselle and Union, will cost the county about $30,000, and $32,500 was added to the item on that account. Terrill road, Plainfield, was not included in the contemplated expenditure. It will be up to the board at its next meeting to say whether it shall be, and an additional amount provided.

Consideration of the various moneys wanted showed a growth in the county's business that surprised the freeholders themselves. The board has no actual control of the court expenses, which are fixed by law. Besides the increase in the court expenses, there was a companion increase in the jail account of $1,000. A reduction of twice that amount was made in the lunacy account.

The tax board account was lowered $200. The entire salary item, including salaries of members, officials and committee expenses, was kept at $14,000.

The assets on hand will be about $3,900, and thus keep the amount down to the figures given.

3 YRS. FOR ELOPING WITH A WHITE GIRL

In the county courts at Somerville yesterday Judge Schenck sentenced James Williams, colored, who recently eloped with a white girl from Eriggstown, to three years in State prison. The rig the couple got away with was stolen by Williams, who was arraigned on allegation and pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing a horse from John H. Schomp of Harlingen, and a buggy from Theodore B. Hoagland, at Griggstown. The girl, who was also lodged in the county jail at the time Williams was arrested, had been held only as a witness.

Walter Savage, who was in jail on charges of assault and battery preferred by Jacob Johnson and John S. Bennett, Franklin township farmers, was also arraigned on allegation and entered a plea of guilty. Sentenced was deferred until next Friday.

Frank Delasander of Bound Brook, who had been convicted of stabbing an officer, was sentenced to six months in the county jail, less one day.

Joseph Fioretti, of Docky Hill, convicted of stealing three game fowls from Mrs. Fannie Van Dyke, was given four months in the county jail.

Joseph Catelli made application for a wholesale liquor license at Kingston. A hearing will be given in two weeks.

The petit jurors have been excused until June 4, when some of the justice-appeal cases will be taken up by Judge Schenck.

PRETTY COMEDIENNE, GRACE GEORGE, COMING

The announcement that Miss Grace George will appear in Sardou's "Divorcons" on Decoration Day matinee and night, in the New Plainfield theatre, calls to mind the fact that here is a unique example of a plan's being successful in this country in spite of its original French title. The term "Divorcons" is not readily translatable. It is in word peculiarly French; and there is no single word in the English tongue that expresses its meaning.

It is, in reality, an exclamation, meaning, in effect, "Let's get divorced!" But even with this explanation the idea is not clearly conveyed; for the word, in its application to the story of the comedy, is supposed to be spoken in a tone of impatient anger, as if to say: "Very well, then! Since we cannot agree, let us get divorced!"

One reason why the title of the play has not been changed is that the names of so many great French actresses have been associated with the play that managerial wisdom has regarded the original title as possessed of great commercial value. Bernhardt, Rejane, Duse, Jane Hading, Pudic, Aimee, and Jane May are some of the world-famous players who have acted Miss George's role of Cyprienne.

TREE SPRAYING WORK TO BEGIN NEXT WEEK

Because of the difficulty in obtaining experienced men to spray the city trees, a contract has been made by the Shade Tree Commission with the Munson Whitaker Company, of New York, to spray the elm trees on all the local streets. The work will be done under the direction of the city forester, R. P. Gay. At the same time the company will be prepared to do spraying on private grounds. It is the hope of the commission that persons having elms on their lawns will avail themselves of this opportunity, as, in case any considerable number of such trees are not sprayed, the adult beetles will spread to the trees that have been sprayed and will necessitate the spraying of all the trees on the street next summer, while if eveyone has the work done now it will probably rid the city of the beetles so that there will be no further trouble the coming year.

The adult beetles spend the winter in rough attics, under the eaves of houses and in almost any place where they can obtain shelter. In early spring they come out of their hiding places and are now beginning to eat, and in doing so they puncture holes through the elm leaves, much like shot holes. They then lay their eggs in bunches of from fifteen to twenty on the underside of the leaves and in a week or so these eggs hatch and the young larvae are the ones that do most of the damage.

If present in considerable numbers as they have been in Plainfield, they will strip the leaves to such an extent that the latter will fall off in mid-summer and greatly injure the trees. The spraying will commence early next week. Arsenate of lead, which will adhere to the leaves for several weeks, will be used. Anyone deiring to have tree prayed may communicate with Mr. Gay or the company can be reached through the Shade Tree Commission, or at their New York office in the Flatiron building.

SCHOOL LAW TOO STRICT

Magistrate Asserts Circumstances Frequently Warrant a Little Leniency.

FOUR CASES IN COURT.

Stories Related by Parents Make It Plain that It Is Sometimes Difficult to Prevent Absences.

City Judge William N. Runyon declared in his court, this morning, that he disapproved of the method adopted by the local truant officer, Miss Adelaide Ball, in enforcing the school law relative to absences. Three fathers and two mothers appeared before the magistrate today to explain why their children had remained away from studies and the stories told by a couple of them showed that circumstances make a tremendous difference in alleged violations.

A case in particular was that of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Reed, who have been frequently summoned by Miss Ball, the father on one occasion spending a day in jail, on her complaint. They have a daughter who is absent from school frequently because the mother as well as the father has to go out to work in order to make both ends meet, and two infants must be looked after. The girl is not behind in her studies and this was explained to the officer but she adhered to the iron-bound principle of the law that only illness is accepted as an excuse.

The story related by the parents was what induced the magistrate to assert that he did not believe in enforcing the law to such an extent and he added that he believed there were cases where leniency should be shown. Another instance was brought to light by Mrs. James Kiley, of South avenue, who gave an explantion that showed it was at times absolutely necessary for one of her daughters to remain home.

"Goodness knows," exclaimed Mrs. Kiley in the course of her story, "I am more anxious than anyone else to have my children properly educated but when there are eleven in the family it requires a lot of planning and scheming to keep them at school every day week in and week out. I have an eleven-year-old daughter who is kept at home occasionally so that she can take care of two smaller children while I go down town. It's a long ways from Netherwood and I can't go after school hours as I must be back to get my husband's supper."

Mrs. Kiley also said that Miss Ball had been very impudent to her and that when she answered back in the same way the school officer declared she must apologize or she would b taken to the city court. Miss Ball denied the accusation.

Thomas Waldron, another father, said his boy was just under the school age but had been sent to work to help the family out. The only other defendant, William Gillette, acknowledged that Miss Ball's complaint was just as he had two boys who played "hookey" and he found it impossible to make them attend to their studies. He was instructed to have the pair in court Monday morning.

In disposing of the other cases, Judge Runyon advised that discretion and tact be shown and that in so far as it was possible the children should be kept at their studies.

INJURED ON RAILROAD CAN'T EXPLAIN CAUSE

Isaac Brown, who claims to be a Turk despite the name, was found on the railroad near the Washington street bridge, late last night suffering from severe injuries received through contact with a train in some way. The discovery was made by trackwalker John Faulkner, who had him removed to the North avenue station where temporary treatment was given by Dr. Hubbard pending the arrival of the ambulance.

An examination conducted by Dr. Pittis at the hospital showed that Brown had sustained a bad scalp wound, a broken ankle and severe cuts on various parts of the bady. He retained consciousness but in his broken English it was impossible to make out how he came to be hurt. He explained that he was walking from Jersey City to Philadelphia and it is thought he attempted to board a moving freight train. He is about thirty-five years old.

Schlick; treasurer, John Schlick. After the meeting a smoker was enjoyed. The club decided to hold its Decoration Day outing at South Beach.

THIS MAY WETTEST OF ALL ON RECORD

Let the oldest inhabitants beware of telling about wetter months of May than this month of May. There haven't been any, and the Weather Bureau has compiled its figures to prove it and to confute any stories to the contrary.

No matter how many miscues the bureau may make as a prophet, it is deadly accurate as a historian. Members will not serve against it, not even the memory of that day in May, 1877, when the Sunday-school picnic was spoiled because it rained cats and dogs, nor of that May day in 1883 when a cloudburst made it impossible for the relatives from out of town to get to the wedding.

Here is what the bureau did say about this particular wet May in its report of yesterday: "Up to 8 o'clock this morning (not a minute before or after 8, but just 8) the rainfall since May 1 has been 7.20 inches, or 4.97 inches more than the full month average of all Mays. (So there is a margan of nearly five inches, with seven days to go.) May's normal cloud output is 2.23 inches.

"The best day of the month (if you like records, the worst if you had no umbrella) was the 7th, when a fall of 4.16 inches was recorded. On May 3 and 4 in 1893 there was a fall of 3.04 inches on each day.

"In May, 1901, the total fall for the month was 7.01 inches. That was the record until now.

"The last twenty-two days have more than made up for the year's rain deficiency up to the end of April, when the total for the first four months was 1.74 inches below normal."

BOMB FROM HEAVENS.

Enters Medford House, Bursts and Shatters Mirror.

Diligent search has failed to disclose how a thunderbolt entered the home of Albert Cowperthwait, of Medford, during the storm last night, as all the windows were closed and there were no apertures where it seemed possible for it to get in. The telephone wire was examined and found to be all right. Local electricians are unable to explain the singular phenomenon.

The family had all gone to bed when a ball of fire entered the house and exploded in the sitting room with a deafening report. The house was filled with the fumes of sulphur, but the only damage done was to a mirror, which was broken into a thousand fragments. The occupants were badly frightened.

Business College Affair.

The Plainfield Business College extends a cordial invitation to all its pupils their friends and the public generally, to atten an illustrated lecture and entertainment to be given Monday night at 8 o'clock in the assembly room of the institution in the Woodhull & Martin building. Everyone capable of enjoying a high class form of entertainment will be warmly welcomed.

DISCUSS FIRE ALARMS FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS

The Councilmanic fire committee met last night to discuss affairs of general importance to the department. The members considered the question of installing a system of fire alarms in the public schools of the city, which was presented several months ago and it was decided to hold a meeting of the committee and other city officials next week Friday when it is expected that the matter will be determined. Although the expense is quite an item, the committee is is said feels as though the outlay is warranted as it will provide greater protection to the children in the schools.

It is expected that at the meetings next week the officials of the public schools will be present and be heard on the question. At the last meeting representatives of the North Plainfield schools and fire departments were invited to attend and they were especially interested in the proposed improvement. Chief T. O. Doane approves of the system, believing it to be the only safe one in the plan to minimize the fire risks in the schools. As Mayor Fisk was one of those most enthusiastic over the proposition it is not expected that he will oppose the scheme now.

The members also discussed the question of the new fire house in the East End and decided not to push the improvement just now in view of the message of Mayor Fisk to the Common Council recommending economy in such matters until such time as other bonds are retired.

MISSING WOMAN STARTED TO VISIT FRIENDS HERE

Thomas Kane of Main and Lewis streets, Rahway, is greatly worried because of the absence of his wife, who left her home two weeks ago to visit friend in this city.

Mrs. Kane, who is about 40 years of age, left home saying she was going to Plainfield. As she expected to return the next day she left her four children at home. Mr. Kane has learned that on the afternoon that his wife left Rahway, a woman resembling her was seen at Picton, walking in a westerly direction. Inquiry brought the information that she had not reached the home of her friends here.

It is feared that the woman may have wandered off in a fit of temporary insanity and that harm has befallen her. The husband knows of no reason why Mrs. Kane should have disappeared in this manner, unless she was out of her mind.

The police have been notified and every effort is being put forth to find the woman. When she left home she wore a long black cloak and a dark skirt. She wore no hat. Mrs. Kane is about five feet tall, has light brown hair and wears eyeglasses.

MISSES QUINN'S PUPILS ENTERTAIN THEIR FRIENDS.

The pupils of the Misses Alice M. Quinn and M. Katharine Quinn gave a creditable piano and violin recital in Knights of Columbus Hall, last night, before a large audience, including the parents and friends of the pupils. The program was a lengthy one and gave each pupil an excellent opportunity to display his or her talent. The progress noted reflected great credit on the teachers and the audience was very generous in its applause. The selections were all from the well-known composers and the most difficult ones were rendered in an intelligent and praiseworthy manner.

The Misses Madeline Blimm, Estelle Boss, Helen Deady, Mary Eetinger, Katharine Flynn, Amelia Forristel, Nellie Geary, Marion Geary, Elizabeth Geary, Caroline Giles, Lorena Harris, May Harlow, Katharine Kane, Ella Lappin, Mamie Lappin, Katharine Leahy, Charlotte McIntyre, Flora May, Mary Murrey, Delia Morely, Elizabeth Mara, Grace Norman, Ella Schenck, Mary Weirenga, Mrs. Oris Todd and Master Lloyd Harris, Joseph Harlow, Joseph Murrey, Elisha McKeon and Walter Knowlton.

Will Not Hold Sacred Concert.

Owing to unforseen circumstances the sacred concert which was announced to be given in the Knights of Columbus Hall tomorrow night by W. H. Shaefer, has been postponed.

OUR P. O. BILL PASSED

Kean's Influence Shown in Senate's Quick Approval of $100,000 Appropriation.

NOW UP TO C. N. FOWLER.

If Congressman Shows Any Interest In His Constituents' Petition We'll Have A New P. O. Building.

It is now up to Charles Newell Fowler to show what influence he has in the House of Representatives, the United States Senate having passed the bill appropriating $100,000 for a post office building for Plainfield. For the last twelve years Mr. Fowler has devoted the most of his time in Congress to the advancement of his ideas on currency and as there is no intention on the part of that august body to agree to his views, it is extremely probable that he wil have ample time to obtain the passage of a measure of great importance to his constituents in this stronghold of Republicanism.

The Omnibus public buildings bill, known as the "pork" bill, was reported to the Senate yesterday and passed. It contained among other amendments an authorization in addition to those made in the House bill, for a $100,000 public building for Plainfield.

The proposed appropriation for Plainfield was not included in the House bill but it is said that there is plenty of time for Mr. Fowler to get down to work in the interests of Plainfield, although Congress will adjourn within a short time. Mr. Kean lost no time in advocating the claims of Plainfield and his efforts have greatly pleased the business men and particularly the members of the local Board of Trade. It's up to Fowler now.

STRENUOUS LANDLORD JAILED ON ASSAULT CHARGE.

Arraigned in the city court, this morning, on a charge of assault and disorderly conduct, Antone Jargebenski, of the East End, was fined $10 with an alternative of twenty days. He paid the money after remaining in a cell for an hour.

Jargebenski's arrest was brought by his strenuous method of trying to collect $10 rent from a tenant, Mrs. Henry Donnelly, of Terrill road. When she attempted to put him off until a later date he pulled a knife and chased her about the house. She also alleged to Judge Runyon that he had caught hold of her and bitten her thumb.

Jargebenski has been in court on two previous occasions. Last January he was arraigned on an assault charge preferred by his wife and was fined $50 and sent to jail for fifty days beside.

MORE BUSSI SUSPECTS.

Two Negroes Arrested Yesterday, One at Trenton and the Other at Bethlehem, Pa.

The police in this and adjoining states continue to arrest suspects in the Bussi murder case. Four out of five who have been in the Somerville jail since last week were released yesterday and today the authorities were notified that two more are in custody at different points.

One of the new prisoners was picked up at Trenton last night and the other one was arrested at Bethlehem, Pa., yesterday afternoon. Both answer the description of the Bussi assailant and they will be held pending the arrival of the Somerset authorities. County Detective George Totten is to be sent after the men.

For a Monetary Commission.

The House Committee on Banking and Currency at Washington, yesterday, voted by a substantial majority to recommend the passage of the Aldrich joint resolution creating a currency commission, which passed the Senate yesterday. During the consideration of the resolution in committee, amendments were suggested, increasing the size of the commission beyond the eighteen members stipulated. These amendments were voted down on the ground that to make any change in the resolution as it came from the Senate would provoke a conference, and this it was desired to avoid.

Christian Citizenship.

Former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer will address the Christian Endeavorers of the Congregational church tomorrow night at 7:30. The subject will be "Being a Christian at the ballot box." WANT VOTING MACHINES ABOLISHED IN COUNTY

It was announced yesterday that the Democrats of Union county were preparing to call a special election for a referendum vote, the object of which is to drive voting machines out of the county before the next general election. A recent meeting of the county committee resulted in a decision to take such action, and petitions are now being circulated.

Republican voters from many sections of the county are expected to support the movement to abolish the voting machines, although it is known that the Republican leaders are greatly in favor of their use, particularly as the coming election is a Presidential one, with more than the usual tendency to insure the voting of a straight ticket by means of the machines.

The prime movers among the county Democrats toward the abolition of voting machines are County Chairman Collins and James E. Martine, of Plainfield. It is expected that the petitions will be in shape to present to the Elizabeth City Council at its meeting on June 1.

TOWNSHIP COMMITTEE SUED.

Papers Are Served on the Complaint of Two Rseidents of Cranford.

Cranford, May 23.—The Township Committee, at its meeting last night, was served with the papers in a suit brought by George P. McCoy and Susan E. A. Hackett, to recover $500 on account of an error in the tax duplicate five years ago, when their property was sold for taxes, which, they claim, were already paid. Former Assessor Edward S. Crane is also mentioned in the complaint. The committee refused to have the township attorney defend the assesor, telling him to take care of himself.

Antonio Griffo, through his attorney, also threatened suit for money said to be due on sewer construction unpaid. One thousand feet of eight-inch sewer was ordered laid on High street and a fire hydrant installed in Rankin Park. Three horses were ordered purchased for the fire apparatus.

Twice Attempts Suicide.

John Robinson, a barber, and John Robbins were arrested in Paterson by Patrolman Kissick at daylight yesterday for fighting. Robinson was placed in a cell which Doorkeeper Vanderhoff later found flooded with water. The prisoner had stuffed his slouch hat down the lavatory, causing the water to overflow. Believing the prisoner was not in his right mind, the police transferred him to a padded cell. At 7:30 a cloud of smoke rolled out into the sergeant's room. Robinson's cell was found blazing. The prisoner, unconscious, was pulled out of the fire. The mattresses had been ripped open in some unknown way and the straw padding taken out. The prisoner had applied a match to the inflammable stuff. Robinson was sent to the General Hospital, where he was revived and taken back to the station house. A charge of insanity was entered against him and he was committed to the county jail for observation.

will start at 3 o'clock in order to allow the Tigers to catch a train for Montreal.

The Clinton Avenues will go to Scotch Plains today and meet the team of that place for the first time this season. The contest should be a good one as both teams are in good condition and have played several games this year.

It is expected that Clifford Randolph will be able to pitch for Clinton Avenue today, having about recovered from an injury to his foot.

There will be a great game today at the Plains when the Clinton Avenue team and Scotch Plains meet for the first time this season. Both teams are putting up a fast game and the play will be warm enough to suit the most ardent followers of either team.

The local attraction in baseball today will be the opening of the State Y. M. C. A. League, when Plainfield will play Summit on Crescent Oval. Summit is reported to have a team of exceptional strength and will make every effort to capture the first contest in the league series. Manager Listman will have his full team out and he will leave nothing undone in making preparations to take the game.

It was "Rube Waddell Day" in Philadelphia Wednesday. The announcement that the great twirler, formerly with the Athletics, would pitch for St. Louis against his former teammates had an electrical effect on Quaker City fandom and the biggest crowd of the season turned out to see the game. Waddel was in his oldtime form and pitched a grand game, St. Louis winning by the score of 5 to 2. Waddell wound up the game in great style. Only ten men faced him in the last three innings, and in the ninth, just to show that he still had the "old whiffer," he shot the ball over the plate so fast that Murphy, Smith and Oldring fanned out in order. The Rube struck out four men and held the Athletics down to five hits.

Walter Manning's phenomenal work in the box for the New York Americans has stamped him as one of the pitching finds of the season. In New York he is attracting the same amount of attention that Christy Mathewson did when he made his debut with the Giants in 1901. Manning marked up his fifth successive victory for the Yankees Wednesday by defeating Detroit. Early in the season there was some talk of Manning coming to Newark, but this is all off now, as Clark Griffith would not part with Manning at any price. Manning first came into prominenec in 1906 in the Tri-State League, when he won sixteen straight games for Williamsport.

President A. Lawson, of the Union League, Wednesday disposed of the Reading franchise to Doc Reisling, manager, and "Kohly" Miller, captain of the team. The sale includes the lease on the grounds for five years. Lawson, in giving his reasons for selling out, said he was obliged to take this course, in order to be able to give the proper amount of time to the administration of the affairs of the league. Lawson also declared that the league is in a prosperous condition, and that four large cities are clamoring for franchises.

Joe Doyle, of the Yankees, is suffering from a lame arm. Kid Eberfeld, who is on the hospital list, appeared on the field Wednesday, but it will be fully a week before he is able to play.

The Plainfield Colored Giants, Peter Simmons manager and William Warrick, captain, have organized for the season of 1908 with one of the strongest aggregations in the history of the club. The services of Garner and Meesha, the noted battery of Shaw University of North Carolina and McMeer, formerly of the famous Norfolk "Red Stockings," have been secured, who, together with a fast lot of young talent, will comprise the team. The candidates are as follows: Pitchers Meesha, McNeer, Brokaw, T. Brown; catchers—Campbell, Garner, Willis; infielders—Perkins, Hawkins, Simmons, Warrick, King, George Brown; outfielders—Coleman, R. Johnson, Somerset, Hatchett, Johnson, Carter. All dates in June are open and Saturday, May 30, is also open to Clinton Avenue, Y. M. C. A., Mono F. C., or Jr. O. U. A. M. Address all communications to Oliver N. Carter, secretary, 132 Central avenue; telephone, 338 W.

Pitcher Conshay, of the Social A. C., has joined the Highland A. C., and will pitch today. Although his team lost Saturday to the Highlands, he struck out eleven batsmen.

GOLF.

The Park Golf Club will begin its active season today with the initial weekly competition for the President's and Golf Club cups. Everything is in readiness and nothing remains to be desired except a pleasant day to make the opening auspicious.

Frank O. Reinhart was one of the contestants in the opening play for the tenth annual championship of the Metropolitan Golf Association at Baltusrol this week. He returned a card of 88, 87-175 in the first day's play. Yesterday he was paired with Herreshoff, and was defeated 7 up and 5 to play.

There will be the weekly competition for the Spring Handicap cups at the Plainfield Country Club today, Class A and B. There will also be social features at the clubhouse.

C. B. Morgan will again follow the game this season. Last year he made an enviable record in the various competitions in which he entered and he is now in good form and should play a strong game.

Several new faces are to be seen each week at the Plainfield Country Club including many novices. Later on they will be found contesting for the various prizes.

Among those who will be familiar figures on the Park Golf Club course this season will be Dr. H. K. Carroll, Rev. C. L. Goodrich, and Rev. J. O. McKelvey. They get genuine enjoyment out of the game in the exercise afforded and it is not an uncommon thing for them to return low scores.

In connection with the opening of the active golf season at the Park Golf Club, today, there will be the opening of the new tennis courts, affording an opportunity for those who do not wish to play golf to enjoy tennis. George Anderson has again been engaged and the same excellent service of the past will be continued this year.

Among the enthusiastic golfers at the Park Golf Club and in fact the only woman who follows the game regularly is Miss Lydie Loizeaux. She plays with the male members of the club in the weekly competitions and does not ask for any more handicap than she is entitled to on the basis of past performances.

SOMERVILLE.

A number from this place went with the veterans of the Fifteenth Regiment to Richmond, Va., and Washington this week. Among them are Postmaster and Mrs. John G. Easton, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cawley, William Hardgrove, the Misses Jennie Wink, Jean Cawley, Laura Hoagland, Evelyn Lindquist and Anna Burkett.

Robert Scully, a son of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Scully, of this place, who is private secretary to Andrew Carnegie, sailed Thursday for Scotland, where he will spend the summer.

The concert to have been given Thursday evening in the Methodist church was postponed because of the illness of some of the performers.

The Misses Jameson have returned from a visit to their sister, Mrs. Hillery Chambers, in New York.

PLAY CARDS IN COURT AND PROSECUTOR WINS

The spectacle of an Assistant Prosecutor of Essex County playing cards with a professional gambler and winning by using a marked pack of cards, was witnessed Thursday in Newark in the Quarter Sessions Court by Judge Ten Eyck, a jury that was trying Jacob Kugel on a gambling charge, and an interested throng of spectators.

Morris Meisner admitted to Assistant Prosecutor Frederick Lehlbach that he was a professional gambler after a cross examination regarding evidence he had given as to Kugel's good character. The Assistant Prosecutor then asked Meisner if he knew how to play "stuss." Meisner said he did, and Mr. Lehlbach suggested a game.

The tow sat down at a table inside the bar, and, to the gambler's chargrin, he was beaten easily by the Assistant Prosecutor, and then was beaten by Rudolph A. Braun, Kugel's counsel. Then Meisner was told that the deck of cards was marked and was one that had been taken from Kugel's gambling place. He would not believe it at first, but, after studying the cards for a few moments, he admitted that they were marked. Then he won a game easily.

Kugel was found guilty of the charge of conducting a gambling house in a very short time.

APPEAL FOR $1,000 FOR LOCAL CHARITY

During the past winter there have been people in Plainfield out of employment and there has been considerable destitution. As a result there have been heavy demands on the treasury of the Charity Organization Society, whose duty it is to ameliorate the condition of the unemployed, to find work for them, and to assist them until work is found.

The Society has been able, however, to meet all proper demands upon it, and to render such assistance as necessity demanded in every worthy case. But the strain has been great. The number of days work furnished and paid for by the Society increased in February from the previous month's record of forty-eight, which was about normal for that time of year, to one hundred and twelve. The society has met the hard condition resulting from the large number of unemployed, successfully through the winter, but in order to enable it to continue to do so until fall an additional $1,000 will be needed.

We appeal to the citizens of Plainfield to furnish the funs required to continue this necessary work. Checks should be drawn to the order of the Charity Organization Society and sent to the treasurer, William G. Wright, 516 Eighth street, Plainfield, N. J.

By order of the Board of Trustees.
WILLIAM G. WRIGHT,
Treasurer.

MAY HAVE PREVENTED MURDER OF PRISONER.

New Brunswick, May 23.—Charles Rogers, warden at the county jail, yesterday revealed that a woman's tip had probably prevented a murder at the county jail. George Vilogas, Joseph Chesney, John Palog and Alexander Marjoras, who were sentenced last week to twenty years in State prison on conviction of murder in the second degree, it being charged that they killed Michael Lovak, had been kept in one cell until just before they were sentenced, when they were put in separate cells.

The warden then did not explain his reason for making the change but now says that he received a tip, over the telephone, in a feminen voice, in broken English, that Balog had had a razor smuggled to him, and intended to use it in cutting the throat of Marjoras, whom he accused of having turned informer at the trial. When Balog was searched the razor and a pair of scissors were found. The men were then separated.

The same evening the same voice informed Rogers over the telephone that a revolver was to be smuggled to Balog, hidden in a loaf of bread. Watch was kept for the bread, but the attempt was probably abandoned.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sweeney, of Jersey City, have returned to their home after spending some days with friends in this city.

Big Advertising Business.

The volume of display advertising published in The Philadelphia Record last year was more than a million lines in excess of that upblished by its nearest Phildaelphia competitor. It is a maxim among advertisers that "Where Advertising Pays it Stays," a fact that the proprietors of hotels and boarding houses in this vicinity should remember when placing their advertising orders for the coming season, as The Record has held this supremacy for the past ten years. This condition is due to the quality and quantity of The Record's circulation, which is unequalled by that of any other Philadelphia newspaper.

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press:

A few old fogy Plainfielders are wondering today why it is that circuses are allowed to exhibit in this city on Saturdays, the day always looked to by local business men to make up trade deficiences for the rest of the week. Other towns consider local business interests of sufficient importance to prohibit such rivalry on that day as a circus always presents.

F. W. RUNYON.

Editor, The Daily Press:

It would be interesting to the general public to know what right the executive committee of the Reform Club has to lease the hall to a theatrical company, when in 1884 that building was purchased with money given in the interest of temperance and with the understanding that when Reform Hall was no longer needed for temperance or religion work, it was to become the property of the city of Plainfield.

The late James McGee, of North Plainfield, made the largest contribution towards the purchase. Incedentaly it would also be interesting to know what use is made of the money taken in for rent by that executive committee.

PATERSON FEELS HURT.

Mayor McBride Brings Libel Suit Against a Magazine and a Writer.

Mayor McBride of Paterson, has instructed City Counsel Merry to start suit for libel against The Broadway Magazine of New York City and Broughton Brandenburgh, a writer, for disparaging statements regarding Paterson, made by the writer in an article "The Menace of the Red Flag," in the current number of the periodical.

Mayor McBride said today that the statements made by Brandenburgh were false and slanderous, as Brandenburgh should know, and that he and other writers must cease publishing such falsehoods.

A previous article of similar character, of which Paterson complained, was written by Brandenburgh for Collier's Weekly, which later retracted statements in the article.

HELD ON SWINDLING CHARGE.

New York Salesman Accused by Five SElizabeth Women.

Elizabeth, May 23.—Charles Levowitz, salesman for a furniture establishment in New York city, who was arrested here yesterday on a charge of swindling, this morning was arraigned in police court, where five women appeared against him. They said that the prisoner sold cards to them on the instalment plan, they to pay so much weekly on the card, which, when filled, would represent a value of $9.50. They claimed to have paid this money and that when they began payments Levowitz informed them when the card was filled they could go to the furniture house and select any articles of furniture desired to the amount of $9.50.

The complainants alleged having done so but could get no satisfaction there and did not know if they would ever a get anything for the money they had invested. The prisoner was held for the grand jury in default of $200 bail in each of the five charges.

Dr. Max Miller, of New York, who has been visiting his sister, Mrs. William Newcorn, of West Front street, has returned home.

CONSTABLE SEVERELY BEATEN.

New Providence Borough Official attacked by Three Men and Badly Punished.

Summit, May 23.—Adolph Miller, constable in the borough of New Providence, received a severe beating yesterday at the hands of three men, who, after pounding him into semi-unconsciousness, made their escape in a buggy. In addition to his official duties, Miller is a gateman at the Springfield avenue crossing of the Lackawanna Railroad, alongside of the West Summit Depot.

Late yesterday afternoon three men came driving along in a single-seated buggy, and in spite of the fact that a train was rapidly approaching they made every effort to get over the tracks ahead of it. When Miller lowered the gates in front of them they made threats against him.

After the train passed they drove on, while Miller shouted to them to halt, saying that he was a constable. The constable dashed after them, daring them to alight on the station platform, which they did.

He attacked the three, but the odds were too great, and after inflicting severe punishment upon him the men jumped into their carriage and escaped. The constable stated that he believed the men were under the influence of liquor.

Police Inspection and Parade.

Elizabeth, May 23.—The annual inspection and parade of Elizabeth's police department will take place on the afternoon of Memorial Day, May 30. The parade will be through Broad street, Elizabeth avenue, East Jersey street and West Scott place to City Hall Park, where the force will be inspected by Mayor Ryan, the Police Committee of the Aldermanic Board and by the Board of Aldermen. This will be followed by the formal opening and inspection of the new police headquarters, after which there will be a reception and collation.

EYE-STRAIN

is directly responsible for the majority of cases of blindness today. If instead of trying to overwork the eyes, one would at once get glasses at the first warning of eye-strain there would be fewer cases of blindness at the present time.

Come to us and have your eyes examined free of charge and we will advise you what to do to save them.

A Tale of the Cape Cod Fisher Folk

No," she says. "It's a new one that Lycurgus heard over to the Old Home house. It sounded so as if 'twas made for our family that it kind of stuck in Lys' craw and he come home and told it to me.

"'Everybody works but father,
And he sets 'round all day.'

"I tried it on pa last night," she went on. "Thought it might jar him some, but it didn't. He said 'twas funny. Maybe I'd think so, too, if I was him."

How Hartley laughed when he heard her singing. She tickled the Twins 'most to death, anyway. She was as sharp as a whip and as honest as a Quaker parson. When her first pay day come she set her squared-toed boot down and simply would not take the extry two dollars wages. She said even a hog knew when it had enough, and she wa'n't a hog. Martin told me he was going to make it up to her some other way. The Heavenlies was mighty interested in her; but not more so than she was in them.

She and I had some great confabs when we was alone together. She asked I don't know how many questions about Hartley and Van Brunt; why they was living this way, and how they used to live and all. I told her some of what Lord James had told me, but not the whole. I left out about the engaged business, because I figgered it wa'n't any of her affairs, rightly speaking. Course 'twa'n't none of mine, neither, but somehow I'd got to feel that I was a sort of father to them two cracked New Yorkers.

"Do you think they're crazy?" she asks. "Nate Scudder says they act as if they was."

"You've got me," says I. "I ain't made up my mind yet."

"What makes 'em go in swimming every morning?" she wanted to know.

"Why, to take a bath, I guess," says I. "Van Brunt told me he always took his 'plunge' when he was home."

She nodded, quick as usual. "Umhum," says she. "I've read about it. They do it in the marble swimming pool in the gardens of the ducal mansion. And there's palm trees around and fountains, and nightingales singing, and music floating on the balmy, perfumed air. And when they've got all scrubbed up there's velvet-footed menials to fan 'em and give 'em hasheesh to smoke."

"Want to know!" I says. "What's hasheesh? Plug cut or cigars?"

"'Tain't neither," said she. "It's some kind of stuff that makes you dream about beautiful women and things."

"Well, they don't have that here," says I. "They smoke cigars and cigarettes. And I've smoked both of 'em and my dreams was mainly about how much work I had to do. Nightingales are birds, ain't they? We're pretty shy on nightingales over here to Horsefoot, but maybe the gulls make that up. Gulls don't sing, no more than hens, but they screech enough for six. Where did you get all this stuff from, anyway?"

She got it out of library books and the Home Comforter. Seems old Miss Paine, over in the village, lent her the Comforter every week as fast as she got through with it herself. Eureka had never been to the city, nor anywheres further than Eastwich, and her ideas about such things was the queerest mixed-up mess of novel trash and smart boarder's lies that ever was. That, and what she'd read in the newspapers. She said she was going to the city some day when her "affinity" showed up.

"What's your idea of a first-class affinity?" I asks, looking for information. I didn't know whether 'twas an animal or a cart.

"Well," says she, "he's got to be good-looking and have chests and chests of gold and jewelry. Further than that I ain't made up my mind yet."

She said when she did go she would sew up her money in the waist of her dress and if a confidence man or a trust or a policeman tried to get it away from her, she bet he'd have trouble on his hands.

"Policeman?" says I. "What would he be doing trying to steal your money? Policemen ain't thieves."

"They ain't, hey?" she says. "City policemen ain't? I guess you ain't read much about 'em."

She read the police committee trials in a stack of three or four-year-old newspapers and they'd fixed her, far's policemen was concerned.

She didn't take any stock in Hartley's being down our way for his health. She said she had made up her mind what was the matter with him. "What ails him," says she, "is Girl."

"Girl?" says I.

"Yup. He's in love."

I set back and looked at her. Mind you I hadn't said one word about Agnes Page or the busted engagement.

"Get out!" I says, finally. "What did he come here for, then? There ain't a female native in this neighborhood that wouldn't stop a clock—present company excepted, of course."

"It don't make no difference. He's in love, and he's come here to forget his troubles. You never read 'False, but Fair; or the Bride Bereft,' did you? I thought not. Why, East Wellmouth is Glory alongside of some places that young men in love goes to. You wait. I'll find out that girl's name some of these days."

She said that Van Brunt wa'n't in love; which struck me funny, knowing what I did.

'Twa'n't so very long after this that the Heavenlies and me drove to South Eastwich to visit the Fresh Air school. I don't think Hartley would have gone if it hadn't been that his name was 'specially mentioned in the note from Agnes. Even then Van had to say that he wouldn't go unless his chum did.

We left Eureka to keep house. It seemed to suit her first rate.

"You wait till that Scudder man comes," she says to me. "I want to talk to him about the milk he's been leaving."

"What's the matter with it?" I asks. "Ain't he giving full measure?"

"Not of milk he ain't," she says. "It's too white to wash with and too blue to drink. I'm going to tell him we've got a pump ourselves."

The Eastwich school was a big old farmhouse with considerable land around it. The youngsters had lots of room to run and carry on. All hands was at the door to meet us, Agnes and Miss Talford and Redny, and all the inmates. The Heavenlies had stopped in the village and got a big freezer full of ice cream—they ordered it ahead—and, well, I thought we'd got a warm welcome, but when the children saw that freezer—

The ladies shook hands with us and asked us in. Lord James was there in all his glory. You could see that his new job suited him down to his shoes. No hard work, no sailing or such like, good easy bosses and plenty of picking on the side, I judged. I turned the horse and carriage over to him, under protest, and we went into the house.

"First of all, Ed," said the Page girl, turning to Van Brunt, "I want to thank you, on behalf of the children, for your kindness in sending them the fruit. It is delicious. You should see the dears every day when the expressman comes with the basket."

Van looked puzzled. "Fruit?" he says. "I don't understand. Do you know anything about fruit, skipper?"

I pleaded not guilty. Hartley didn't seem to hear. He was busy talking with Miss Talford.

"Why!" says Agness. "Doesn't it come from you? We have been receiving the loveliest basket of fruit from Boston every morning. I thought of course you had ordered it for us. Didn't you, really?"

Van shook his head. "It takes a man with the ordinary amount of brains and thoughtfulness to do things like that," he says. "I'm miles below the average in such things. In all but carelessness and general idiocy I'm a bear on the market. Here, Martin! Miss Talford, please excuse him for a moment, will you? Martin, are you responsible for this fruit?"

Hartley was so sunburned that you couldn't have told if he did blush. But he acted nervous and uneasy.

"It was nothing," he said. "I knew the youngsters liked such things, and the stuff you get here isn't eatable. Then James is a success, Miss Talford, you say?"

But he didn't get off quite as easy as that. Agnes looked up surprised and, I thought, pleased.

"That you, Mr. Hartley," she said. "It was kind of you, and very thoughtful."

Of course the Talford girl thanked him, too. He acted a good deal like he wished he hadn't come.

But I guess that feeling wore off after a while. It seemed to me that Miss Page was considerable pleasanter to him than I'd seen her yet. She talked to him more and there wa'n't so much of that chilly "hands-off" kind of manner in her voice. Two or three times they seemed almost friendly, as you might say, and toward the end of the day Hartley's blueness, that was always with him when she was in sight, had pretty nigh disappeared. He seemed quite happy, for him—not his usual careless, don't-care kind of jollity, either.

One thing that I think Agnes noticed was the way the boy, Redny, stuck to him. You could see that the little chap's idea of a first-class brick was Martin Hartley. And another sure thing was that Redny was the Page girl's favorite. She was always running after him to see what he was doing, that he didn't get hurt, or such like. One time when she'd gone on this kind of an errand, and the Twins and Miss Talford and me was left together, I spoke up and says:

"That small fire top is considerable on Miss Agnes' mind, ain't he?"

Margaret Talford laughed. "He's the apple of her eye," says she. "She fairly worships him. I'm sure I don't know why, for he's the worst mischief-maker in the school. But Agnes' sympathy seems to run to the black sheep. Were you a black sheep, Mr. Van Brunt?"

Van shook his head, very solemn. "I was," says he, "but the cleansing influence of the Natural Life has removed the upper coating. You can see that she doesn't find it necessary to run after me. I flatter myself that I'm rapidly becoming—what is it that our new cook sings, skipper? Oh, yes! 'Whiter than snow.' Do you notice my alabaster purity, Miss Talford?"

"I hadn't as yet," she says. "I'll call Agnes' attention to it."

"Pray don't," says he. "I'm not altogether certain of its lasting qualities. Suppose you keep an eye on me instead, until I'm sure that it is enamel and not whitewash."

That was a sample of the talk of them two. Just nonsense, but they seemed to enjoy it first rate.

At dinner Van entertained the crowd, as usual, with stories about the island and our doings on it. He told how the Ark upset, and 'twas wild enough anyhow, but when he'd finished embroidering it 'twas a regular crazy quilt. Then he begun with Eureka. He didn't know much about Washy, except from the girl's talk, for Hartley nor me hadn't told much of our experience. So all he said was that the old man was sick. Agnes Page seemed a good deal interested.

After they'd finished eating she asked me considerable many questions.

"Is he all alone there, the poor sick man?" she asked.

"No, no!" says I. "There's children enough to help out a whole hospital. He's all right."

"But those children ought not to have to stay at home," says she. "They need the air and exercise and schooling."

"They don't look as if they was wasting away," I told her. "Eureka's as good as a ma to 'em—and better than a pa—her pa, anyway."

She seemed to be thinking. "The poor fellow," she says, referring to Washy, I judged. "I must drive over and see him."

I told her Hartley had promised to help Eureka. She seemed real pleased. Her face kind of lit up. She walked away then and didn't say no more.

Lord James and me had our dinner together. I pumped him about the girls and how he liked 'em.

"They're all right," he says. "As perfect ladies and as generous and open 'anded as I could wish."

"Which do you like best?" I asked.

"I 'aven't no choice," he says. "Miss Page is a good 'ousekeeper. Almost too good if I may say it. A lady 'adn't ought to meddle with 'ousehold affairs, not when she has a competent man to attend to 'em for 'er. Miss Talford now, she's different. I'd like to work for 'er always."

"Pity she ain't going to be Mrs. Van Brunt instead of t'other," says I. "Then you'd have an easy berth. Don't it seem to you that Miss Page and your boss ain't any too thick for engaged folks?"

"No, indeed!" says he, scornful. "Lord love you, you'd ought to see some married folks as I've worked for. W'y Lord 'Enry and 'er ladyship, they—"

He was on his English tack now and you never could get him off it when he was started good. I didn't get much satisfaction out of him.

I got more a while later, though. Just afore we started for home Hart-

"Is He All Alone There, the Poor Sick Man?"

ley and the Page girl come walking down the porch together. They wa'n't saying much when I first saw 'em, but all at once she says:

KEPT THE CIRCUS TICKETS.

Jersey City Alderman Disappears with Complimentary Slips and Search Was Futile.

Jersey City, May 23.—When Alderman Charles Muldoon, chairman of the Committee on Ehibition, was handed 110 complimentary circus tickets Wednesday, he disapepared, and all the searching of his fellow-aldermen could not locate him. They wanted to get their share of the tickets.

At a meeting of the board Thursday night Muldoon was absent and the city fathers as they stood in and around the city hall before the usual caucus was called, wore moody looks and made frequent mention of Alderman Muldoon.

"How many circus tickets did Muldoon give you?" was the question most in evidence all evening, and the negative reply uttered both in sorrow and more or less asperity, was heard on every side. The opinion was freely expressed that Alderman Muldoon, mindful of the fact that he is serving out his second term, had perhaps "stiffened" his constituents in the Fourth Ward with circus tickets with the expectation that they would help him out in the matter of a third term nomination.

When the next meeting of the board is held May 28, dark threats of what will happen to Muldoon if he appears, were freely uttered.

DOING THEIR DUTY.

Scores of Plainfield Readers Are Learning the Duty of the Kidneys.

To filter the blood is the kidneys' duty.

When they fail to do this the kidneys are sick.

Backache and many kidney ills follow;

Urinary trouble, diabetes.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure them all.

Plainfield people endorse our claim.

Mrs. Julia Molloy, of 740 West Front street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Many so-called cures for backache and kidney disease have been taken by me, but no medicine ever stopped my aches and pains until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Randolph's pharmacy. I took them according to directions, and found before finishing the first box that they were far more healing and brought even more relief from backache than their owners claim for them. I continued with them and was cured, and now do not suffer from aches or pains or kidney troubles."

Rube Waddell has kicked over the traces again. When the St. Louis team pulled out of Broad street station, Philadelphia, the other night, bound for Boston, the versatile southpaw was holding down a seat in a trolley car bound toward Clementon, N. J. Accompanying the Ruben were a brand new suit case and a brand new gun case. The latter contained a gun, but in the suit case there was none of the St. Louis club's money.

When the Ruben returned to the Aldine, after his great victory on Tuesday, he naturally felt elated. He knew that he personally was responsible for the extraordinary increase in the attendance over Monday, and he wanted to go about town and give the natives a treat by permitting them to gaze upon him. So, in order to deport himself in a manner becoming his achievement in the afternoon, and to hold up his end, the Ruben must necessarily have some cash. Accordingly he approached Manager McAleer:

"Jimmy, your little Ruben would have fifty bucks, so that he may seek surcease from sorrow and dull care this eve."

"Nay, nay, Ruben, fifty bucks constitute too vast a sum for one so young and inexperienced as you to have on your person after nightfall in this large and wicked city," said McAleer. "But, if you promise to be in by eleven, I will stake you to a two spot. You won't be able to buy many automobile rides with that, to be sure, but it will go a long ways on a trolley car."

In all likelihood Rube will pitch a few games, have a few days' fishing and then when the funds begin to roll low, he will return to the St. Louis team, Manager McAleer to the contrary notwithstanding.

Members of the New York National League team predict that checkers will be the downfall of the mighty Christy Mathewson, if he does not curb his passion for the game. Just before leaving for St. Louis McGraw complained to one of the Reds that Matty's limited success in recent games was due to checkers.

"Matty has been beseiged by checker players ever since we came on this trip," said he. "They come from far and near and at all hours of the day and night to play with him, and he accommodates them all. If he doesn't cut it out he'll go to pieces as a pitcher."

On Tuesday of this week seventeen pitchers were used in the four American League games.

The National League race is more interesting this year because the "pipes" that were are such no longer.

The Eastern League is having a pretty race. Somebody is moving up or falling back in the standing every day.

Si Seymour has picked up in his hitting since the New York Nationals went on the road. He has been getting at least one hit a game.

Manager John Ganzel is at least doing as well with the Reds as any other manager Cincinnati has had in recent years, and it looks as if he'd do better.

Making nine runs in one inning is unusual, but it doesn't boost the percentage column in the same proportion that losing three out of four games reduces it.

TEST CASE MADE OF NEW AUTO LAW

Trenton, May 23.—Preliminary steps were taken yesterday to test the constitutionality of the Frelinghuysen automobile law in the United States courts on the ground that it violates the interstate commerce provisions by exacting a license fee from non-residents. It is the intention, if possible, to have the whole law set aside or its provisions nullified by the attack on certain parts in which the State is alleged to have exceeded its authority.

To accomplish this Richard H. Johnson and Xenophen P. Huddy, of New York, started from the New York office of the White Steamer Company in a car not licensed in New Jersey and containing several bundles of tools which, it will be contended, were being transported to the Philadelphia office. Upon arriving here Mr. Huddy called the attention of a policeman to the absence of the license and had Johnson arrested. His bail was fixed at $200, and instead of furnishing it application was made to Judge Lanning in the United States Court for a writ of habeas corpus.

Judge Lanning insisted that the Attorney-General should be notified before a final hearing on the application, and after consultation with his office this was fixed for next Monday. Mr. Johnson was then ready to give bail, but Judge Lanning ruled that he would have to go back to jail or else abandon the habeas corpus proceedings. This was not exactly the procedure which had been anticipated, but an understanding was reached with the police by which Mr. Johnson, while actually given his liberty, remains in the nominal custody of the police without bail until Monday, when the police will be responsible for his appearance before Judge Lanning.

Mr. Huddy, who is counsel for a number of automobilists, had expected to conduct the case himself, but as he had not been admitted to practice in this jurisdiction he secured the services of Peter Backes, of this city. Mr. Johnson is in the employ of the White Steamer Company.

BATTLE ROYAL AT VAILSBURG TRACK.

Interesting Duel Looked for When Clever Professionals Race on New Track.

There's not a little interest being displayed among the cycle fans over the prospects for success for Floyd Krebs in the races at the Vailsburg track tomorrow afternoon. Krebs got two firsts last Sunday, Champion Frank Kramer failing to get inside the money in either. "The Flying Dutchman" is said to be decidedly joyful over the feat and feels that he is capable of repeating tomorrow. Kramer, on the other hand, is riled over the fact that he did not make his usual clean sweep and has been working hard all the week to get in better shape. He's been carrying weight and is desirous of getting rid of it, so that he may be able to not only display his wonderful sprint, but also be capable of going the distance.

Tomorrow's program is an attractive one. It contains a one-third mile open, a five-mile miss-and-out, and a one sixth mile, flying start, novice race for the amateurs, and a twomile handicap to be known as the Velodrome Handicap, and a five-mile open called "The Zimmerman Stakes" for the money-chasers.

Jimmy Zanes, recently restored to the amateur ranks, will ride in the races for the "simon pures." Teddy Billington, the "Pride of Vailsburg," has returned to the game, but will be seen competing as a professional. Willie Fenn and George Glasson are expected to get up for the first time Decoration Day.

State League Opens Today.

The State Y. M. C. A. Baseball League will open its season here today, when the local nine will meet Summit on Crescent Oval. The contest will be called at 3:30 o'clock. Manager Listman has gotten together a strong aggregation of players and he feels confident that they will make a good showing the league. Trenton and Newark are the two teams in the league to be feared most, but the local club believes that by the time it meets these aggregations it will be able to give a good account of itself and play equally as well. After today's contest the fans will be able to get a better idea of the playing strength of the local nine.

F. O. Reinhart a Winner.

In the play among the beaten sixteen, first division, at the Baltusrol Golf Club, yesterday, Frank O. Reinhart beat Oswald Kirby, 3 up and 2 to play in the first round and in the semi-final round he beat H. J. Whigham, 2 up and 1 to play. The finals will be played today.

BOARD OF TRADE TO DINE ITS GUESTS AT TRUELL HALL

The reception committee of the Board of Trade for the entertainment of the New York and New Jersey Realty Exchange Board of Governors met at the office of Secretary Herr last night and it was decided to have the 12:42 train stop at the Netherwood station and take the visitors direct to Truell Hall for luncheon.

Among those in the party beside the exchange's board of governors will be the reception committee of the Plainfield Board of Trade and other citizens, together with eight or ten New York and Plainfield newspapermen. After the luncheon the party will be taken in automobiles on a tour which will include a trip through Plainfield, North Plainfield, South Plainfield, Westfield, Cranford, Rahway and on to Elizabeth.

MARSHALL DARRACH AT CASINO ON MONDAY.

Marshall Darrach, whose fame as a reciter of Shakespeare is known throughout this country, will appear at the Casino Monday afternoon, May 25, when he will give "The Comedy of Errors." Mr. Darrach gave a Shakespeare recital here last year and was greeted by a large audience. The Boston Herald in speaking of Mr. Darrach says:

"A fashionable gathering was present to hear Marshall Darrach recite "The Comedy of Errors" last Tuesday evening, at Steinert's Hall, and received a very favorable impression of the gentleman's ability as an actor. His marvelous memory and exceeding grace of gesture gave the rectitation something of special interest to the hearer. Perhaps in the near future we shall have the opportunity of hearing what he can do with Browning. It is quite credible that he can recite any verse of any text and the more involved the better, after listening to his easy mastery of those Shakespearean characters."

DAMAGE SUIT UP AGAIN.

Elizabeth Man for Second Time Asks for $5,000.

Elizabeth, May 23.—In the Union County Circuit Court here yesterday before Judge Vail and a jury the second trial of a suit for $5,000 damages brought by Julius R. Rissell, of this city, against the Public Service Corporation, was tried.

Rissell, in February, 1907, while riding horseback at Elizabethport, was run into by a trolley car, his leg fractured in two places and his head and body injured. He was laid up three months in a hospital, and says he is permanently injured. At the former trial the jury awarded him $600. Judge Atwater declared this was not enough, and, on application of Rissell's lawyer, a new trial was granted. The case in the hands of the jury.

Would Release Jersey's Prisoner.

A writ of habeas corpus obtained to secure the release of Tyler M. Gibbs, formerly of New York, who was arrested in Washington, D. C., yesterday at the request of the New Jersey authorities, was the occasion of court being held last night in police headqurters for the first time in its history. Gibbs is a sub-contractor employed on the new building of the bureau of American republics, and was recently indicted in New Jersey for alleged conspiracy to defraud the Monet Engineering Company of Merchantsville, N. J., of $1,000. He was released under $2,000 bonds to appear in court today, when the writ of habeas corpus will be argued.

WORLD'S BIGGEST CLOCK TO BE STARTED MONDAY

The largest clock in the world will be set goin Monday afternoon at 8 o'clock on the top of the Jersey City factory of Colgate & Company. The mechanism will be started by a touch of an electric button, a ceremony that will be performed by the Mayor of Jersey City. Speeches will be made by several men identified with the building of the clock, to celebrate the event. This giant clock which faces New York from the Jersey shore, wil be visible for many miles, is really a very wonderful piece of mechanism and its regulation has involved some interesting problems. Heretofore, the Westminster dials on the Parliament Buildings in London have held the record abroad, with the diameter of 22½ feet and an area of 398 square feet. In this country, the dials on the Philadelphia City Hall are the largest, measuring 25 feet across and having an area of 490 square feet.

The Colgate clock has an area of more than twice either of these. The dial of this monster will be 38 feet across and its area 1,134 square feet. The minute hand is twenty feet long and with its counterpoise, weighs nearly a third of a ton, while the ponderous weight that moves the mechanism will weigh just two thousand pounds and the whole clock approximately six tons. Across the dial of this clock twenty men of average size could stand shoulder to shoulder. The big time-piece is unique in the way it is made visible at night. Instead of the usual transparent dial lighted from behind, the hands will be outlined with incandescent lights; brilliant red lights will mark each numeral and an incandescent lamp each minute mark. These are twenty-four inches apart. The face of the clock is really in skeleton form, as it was found unsafe to place so large an area to the wind without such heavy supports that the face would be obscured. The tip end of the hour hand travels twenty-four inches every minute, or over a half mile a day. The "works," although gigantic in size, are constructed and mounted with such nicety that they can be regulated as accurately as a watch.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Nine new members will be received at the morning service in the First Baptist church tomorrow morning.

The Junior Epworth League of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church will give an entertainment at the church Tuesday night, including "The Queen of May," and "Our Aunt from California."

On account of the first annual anniversary of the Plainfield Sunday-school Teachers' Union to be held at the First Baptist church Tuesday night, no meeting of the union will be held at the Y. M. C. A. Monday night.

At the Seventh annual meeting of the Woman's branch of the New Jersey Historical Society held in the Historical building, Newark, this week, Mrs. James J. Bergen, of Somerville, was chosen corresponding secretary and Mrs. A. E. Reed, also of Somerville, was chairman of the nominating committee.

The musical program will be a feature of the annual rally mass meeting of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union to be held next Thursday night at Trinity Reformed church. The union chion under the direction of Charles L. Lewis has rehearsed special music for the occasion. The meeting will open at 7:45 with a fifteen minute song service.

EXCISE INVESTIGATORS ARE STILL UNNAMED.

Governor Fort has again deferred the appointment of the Excise Investigating Commission and the other State boards.

The Goverfnor issued a statement yesterday saying there is no haste needed in the appointments and that he was awaiting an opinion from the Attorney-General whether he could legally appoint members of the Legislature to the commission. The appointments will probably be made next Tuesday.

Lost Control of His Horse.

Frank T. McInerney, the mason and builder, had an exciting time on Park avenue this morning, when a spirited horse he was driving took fright and started to run away. Mr. McInerney was unable to hold the animal, but succeeded in guiding him safely through Park avenue to Front street, where the horse fell on the brick pavement. Bystanders lent their assistance and the animal was gotten to his feet and the owner had no further trouble. Aside from a few scratches on the horse, there was no damage.

Boys Soap Trolley Rails.

Trenton, May 23.—Half a dozen Hamilton Square boys, including two sons of the Baptist dominie of the village, were held in bail by Justice of the Peace Naar yesterday on the charge of soaping the rails of the trolley line between this city and their home town. In one place a car ran backward down a hill, and an accident was narrowly averted. The boys explain that they did the soaping as a joke.

EIGHTH TALK ON CREED

HE IS THE COMFORTER.

Belief in Holy Ghost Is Belief in the Active Energy of Good in the World.

The bearing of the doctrine of the Holy Ghost on the practical side of life formed the basis for the eighth discourse on "The Apostles Creed," given by Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring at the First Presbyterian church, last night. The subject was treated not theologically, but almost entirely from a practical view point. Dr. Herring said:

"We have now come to the third division of the Creed. You say, 'I believe in the Holy Ghost.' You have already confessed your belief in the Father Almighty, you have confessed your faith in the revelation He has made in His Son Jesus Christ. Now you declare your belief in the Holy Ghost, and the rest of the Creed has reference to the Holy Spirit's activity in the world.

"What bearing has the doctrine of the Holy Ghost on my practical life?

"I am anxious to present the truth tonight not theologically but practically, so that we shall grip it and it shall grip us. Perhaps a good definition of the Holy Ghost would be this: The Holy Ghost is the Energy of God.

"His peculiar office is to bring to our remmebrance the things of Christ. The relation of Christ to the Holy Ghost has been illustrated by the photographic camera. The human soul is the sensitized plate, the Holy Ghost is the sunlight, Christ is the landscape. It is through the Holy Ghost, who is the Energy of God, that the image of Christ is stamped upon the soul. That which Christ is to you in your religious life is thro the Holy Ghost. It is not a presence of Christ and the Holy Ghost, but the Holy Ghost making clear to your minds the teaching and work of Christ.

"Christ says that the Holy Ghost is 'another Comforter' not another sort of comforter, but one who would give the same kind of comfort. This is what He meant: The Holy Spirit will so quiet you as if you had the personal presence of Christ in your life, for you do have that presence in the Holy Ghost.

"When you say you believe in the Holy Ghost, you say, in effect, that you believe in the active energy of God in the world. You believe that God by His spirit is bringing all things into subjection to Himself; and there is no power antagonistic to Him that can hinder the realization of His plan.

"There is something very suggestive in he inpartation of the Holy Spirit to the disciples on the Day of Pentecost. There was one central source of flame and from that parted individual tongues which sat on the head of each diciple. The figure is one for all time. It symbolizes that each man must have his own experience of Christ, and that the Holy Spirit adapts Himself to the individual man He empowers.

"The Holy Ghost sanctifies individuality. The lightning strikes the tree but it follows the grain of the wood. The Holy Ghost touches a man and sanctifies his individual powers. 'The weakest among us,' says Ruskin, 'has a gift however seemingly trivial which is peculiar to him and which worthily used will be a gift to men forever.' There is power in the meanest talent if sanctified by the Holy Ghost.

"'The Holy Ghost called is the Comforter.' He represents the mother principle in the Godhead but His comfort means more than consolation. The root idea in the word comfort is strength and in the days of King James comfort meant not the sympathy that enervates but the sympathy that strengthens. That is exactly the force of the Greek word which is translated 'Comforter, one who stands by another' as a source of strength and consolation.

"I have read of this interpretation as to why the third Person of the Trinity is called 'Holy.' He is called holy because His office is to create and cultivate holiness.

"In Acts, He is so named fifty times. Only twice in the Acts Christ is called the Holy One.

"In the Epistle to the Romans, the Holy Spirit is spoken of five times, but we do not read once, in this Epistle, of Christ as the Holy Son or Holy Christ. The same is true of other Epistles of the New Testament, showing that the distinctive mark of the Holy Spirit is holiness.

"It cannot mean that the Spirit is holier than the Son and so is designated the Holy Spirit. It must mean that His office is to instill holiness in the minds and hearts of believers.

"It is said that 'God annointed

L. N. LOVELL HEAD OF MAYFLOWER DECENDANTS

Rev. Dr. William R. Richards, formerly of this city, but now pastor of the Brick Presbyterian church, New York, made the principal address Friday at the annual meeting of The Society of Mayflower Descendants of New Jersey, held at the Hotel Beechwood, Summit, at which time luncheon was served and officers for the coming year elected. There were also short addresses by Rev. Dr. Adam, of Montclair, and Col. Leander N. Lovell, of this city. These officers were elected:

Governor-Colonel, Leander N. Lovell, of Plainfield; deputy governor, Alden Freeman, of Orange; captain, Benjamin Shepard, of Newark; elder, Rev. Dr. Charles Augustus Brewster; secretary, Boardman Wright, of Orange; treasurer, Elijah Thompson Farnham, of Elizabeth; historian, Mrs. Frances W. R. Turrill; surgeon, Dr. William Gray Schauffler, of Lakewood; assistants, William M. Stillman, William S. Tyler, Edward H. Ladd, Jr., of Plainfield; Henry H. Truman, Charles A. Greene, Willis Lord Brownell and Edmund LeB. Gardner; committee on nominations, Charles A. Greene, chairman.

SWACKHAMER TALKS ON LOCAL OPTION

Former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer was the speaker at the patriotic meeting of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union held at the Congregational church last night. The topic was "Being a Christian at the Ballot Box" and this meeting subject was universal in Christian Endeavor gatherings yesterday. The service was marked by the singing of patriotic songs. Mr. Swackhamer's topic was "The Voter's Duty Regarding Local Option." He said in part:

"The right to vote is a priceless heritage given to us by a great sacrifice of our forefathers. This right is not fully appreciated by many, who will sell their birthright for a dollar. A grave responsibility rests upon us if we do not use the right of suffrage for a higher citizenship.

"What excuse can we offer to our creator when called to our final account if we neglect to use this weapon—the ballot—to wipe out the greatest curse ever inflicted on the human race. This terrible scourage of rum that has wrung the last drop of anguish from tortured souls All other questions are insignificant when compared with the nation's wide issue of local option.

"Local option is the right of majority rule on the liquor question. The stock arguments of the liquor interests are that prohibition does not prohibit and that local option would not be effective. If that were the case the liquor interests instead of combating local option would do all in their power to secure it."

LOCAL SHOW GROUNDS ARE SOLD FOR $12,000

While Ringling Bros.' circus was in progress Saturday afternoon, a deal was closed whereby the land at Park avenue and Randolph road, where the mammoth tents were spread, was sold by the owners, the Clawson estate to George E. Sovereign, of Pottersville, for $12,000. There are eleven acres in the tract and it is considered one of the most valuable pieces of property in Plainfield. That it has not been improved and developed is partially due to the fact that there were six parties who owned it and no agreement could be reached, it being the principal object to sell.

The new owner as a manufacturing machinist at Potersville and is reported to be a man of considerable wealth. While it is not known definitely what his plans are, it is reported that he intends to develop the property and build several fine dwellings thereon. During the past few years there has been a great deal of building in that part of the city and it seemed destined to become one of the attractive sections.

Boys Overturned Grave Stones.

Small boys desecrated the First Presbyterian church yard Saturday afternoon by upsetting about fifteen of the older grave stones. The stones, which are not firmly set, were toppled over on the graves in several instances. David K. Young, president of the board of trustees of the church, announced today that he suspected several boys and intended to have them punished to the full extent of the law.

Mrs. Gertrude Ross, of Bank place, is confined to her home with a severe attack of the mumps.

AMERICA'S FOES TODAY

MODERN FOE A MORAL FOE.

Special Music Marks Military Service at St. Stephen's Church, Attended By the Veterans.

About thirty members of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., in charge of Commander J. F. Berg, accompanied by a delegation of a dozen members of Sons of Veterans, G. A. R., and a score of members of the Women's Relief Corps, attended a special G. A. R. service at St. Stephen's church last night. The service was marked by special music and the full vested choir was in attendance. Rev. Arthur Searing Peck officiated, and preached the sermon.

He spoke of the militant side of Christianity, emphasizing the fact that there is still an enemy to be conuered in this country. The fight now, he said, is by the morally corrupt against the church of God. He spoke as follows:

"In addressing men of chivalry, even though you have met battles, and met them bravely, I know that you do not rest now inactive upon your laurels.

"For now it is the part of the priest to preach a new crusade even, as did St. Peter the Hermit when he thrilled the whole of Europe with his own wonderful devotion and eloquence.

"For a crusade there are three necessary elements: One: A definite and clear-cut goal, rising lustrous and alluring before the mind, bewitching men in their waking hours and disturbing them in their sleep. Two: A passionate enthusiasm, which burns up in its white flames all lesser ambitions and meaner desires and which counts no cost too great and no sacrifice too large. And three: A loyalty to one lone supreme commander so intense as to melt all the soldiers into one solid phalanx and send them with irresistable momentum against the foe.

"These were the fundamental features of that dazzling and unparalleled phenomona of eight centuries ago. There was a goal; the rescue of the Holy Land, there was an enthusiasm that burned up the lethargy and indifference of nations. There was loyalty to Jesus as the supreme commander, every crusader being baptized into that Name which is above every other name, and they marched under the banner of the Holy Cross.

"The goal of a twentieth century crusade, you ask what is it? Why, America. The same country for which so many of your comrades gave their lives. America, the Republic of the West, the mightiest and grandest experiment in free government known to history.

"The land of Washington and Lincoln. To rescue it from the hands of the modern Saracen, is the ambition of the new crusade. The Saracen of the fourth centry is gone but the Saracer of the twentieth is here.

"Who is he? Why, the rum-seller the whoremonger, the gambler and the scurvy politician; he is the anarchist, and the home destroyer, the bribe giver, and the bribe taker; the law breaker and the law hater; the foe and the enemy of Christ, endeavoring to break down, the Lord of Hosts, the great Captain of our Salvation. America is in danger; and he who cries it down with shouts of pessimist, is blind. He sees not, or does not want to see the swirl and trend of things. He has never put his ear to the ground and heard the roar of the subterranean fires which seethe and his under the thin crust of our civilization. He has never stood at the centre of our vast cities where vice has built her most splendid palaces, and wickedness has thrown up her long line of forts, and where the rulers of the darkness of this world have massed their cohorts behind ramparts well-night impregnable, nor seen the horns and the crowns of the beast against which the Lamb without blemish must wage war.

"To beat back this Saracen is our work; to repair the desolations which he has made, to rescue America, the land dedicated to liberty and consecrated with the blood of our heroes It is a Holy land, and we have to keep it so. Where shall we get the fire? Let us get it again from God Love and not money makes the loyal and the good soldier, the only kind America is worthy of. The Christian life is a warfare, for Christ's priesthood is after the sort of the King of Righteousness. A man, even at the very beginning of his Christian life, has to become a soldier for he signed with the sign of the Cross, in token that here-after he shall not be ashamed to confess the faith of Christ crucified and manfully to fight under his banner, against

FATHER DELEHANTY GOES TO WESTWOOD

Father James T. Delehanty, who has been curate of St. Mary's church for thet past five years, has been appointed pastor of St. Andrew's church, Westwood, and will also have charge of St. Mary's chapel, near Westwood. The appointment was made by Bishop O'Connor and is in the order of promotion. Announcement of the change was made at St. Mary's church yesterday by Father Bogan, who explained that he deeply regretted the fact that Father Delehanty is to leave this parish where he has endeared himself to the hearts of everyone.

Bishop O'Connor has appointed Father James J. Keough, of Westwood, temporary curate at St. Mary's church and later will make a permanent appointment.

Father Delehanty was born at Worcester, Mass., where he received a public school education. Later he completed his education for the priesthood at the Sultician's College and Seminary, Montreal, Canada, where he was ordained. His first appointment was to St. John's church, Jersey City, where he remained but a short time, when he was sent to St. Mary's church that place, from which parish he was transferred to Plainfield five years ago. During his stay in Plainfield he has made many friends and is held in high regard by all who know him.

PLAINFIELD HIGH ATHLETES COMPETED AT RUTGERS.

Plainfield High School track athletes did not show in the annual interscholastic games held at Rutgers College Saturday afternoon. The meet was won by Newark Academy with a score of 24 1-3 points, in close contest with Montclair High School.

Allen Snyder, slipping at the start of his heat in the hundred, lost five yards, but finished third, failing to qualify in the finals. Beeken and Parsons ran in the senior half mile, finishing eighth and ninth. Nelson Ramsey did not show in the junior 100 or 220.

Funeral of James Mottley.

The funeral of James Mottley, who died at his home on Richmond street, Friday, was held in St. Mary's church this morning when a solemn mass of requiem was said for the repose of his soul. It was conducted by Rev. Father Bogan. Mr. Mottley had been a member of the church for a great many years and had also been identified with St. Mary's T. A. B. Society since 1890. Burial was made in St. Mary's cemetery, the following acting as pall bearers: Michael Callahan, Hugh McDonald, Jumes Ryan, Michael De Courcey, Daniel Dugan and Michael Harrington.

Cyclists Went to New Brunswick

The Plainfield Cycling Club took a run to New Brdunswick yesterday, when nineteen local wheelmen were in the party. The cyclists went by way of Metuchen, returning through Bound Brook and Somerville. Barring punctures, there were no accidents.

ON ASSESSMENT METHODS

Mayor Townsend Makes a Protest Before Somerset County Board.

OPPOSES CURRENT PRACTICES.

State Senator Frelinghuysen Also Speaks, Dwelling on Property Values in Somerset.

Discussing the method of tax assessment now practised in Somerset county, Mayor Samuel Townsend spoke at a conference on the tax question held with the Somerset County Board of Taxation Saturday afternoon at Somerville. At the meeting were several of the county freeholders. State Senator J. S. Frelinghuysen spoke on the question of property valuations in Somerset, giving instances where the properties were taxed below their true value. He advocated an increase in the scale of valuation by the assessors, stating that an increase in the tax valuation meant an increase in the revenue from the railroad tax.

Mr. Townsend also had something to say about the work of the county assessors, stating that while he felt assured that each was trying to do his duty, there were several who were not familiar with conditions. "We must enucate our assessors," he said.

At the conclusion of the session, it was decided to hold another meeting of the Board, in conjunction with the State Board for the Equalization of Taxes, when the experiences of other counties will be brough up for discussion as a model for Somerset. This meeting will probably be held at Somerville Friday.

Mr. Townsend's remarks were framed in a letter to the County Board of Taxation. He spoke as follows:

"As a citizen and taxpayer of Somerset county, I wish to protest against the continuance of what to me seems the unwise policy pursued for the past two years in the assessing of real and personal property in Somerset county and which I am advised it is proposed to continue with slight modifications for the present year. I refer to the policy of permitting assessors to keep down the valuations instead of insisting that they be put on a higher level, as has been done in other counties, the latter policy being clearly to the advantage of not only the county as a whole, but to every community and to every individual taxpayer. In order that this may be clearly understood it will be necessary to go back to the year 1906, in which year the Legislature passed al aw providing for the taxation of railroad by the State, and also enacted that after retaining an amount equal to one-half or one per cent. the balance of the tax should be distributed among the various counties of the State in proportion to the amount of their ratables. Under this law the counties that have made the largest proportionate increase in their ratables will receive proportionately the most benefit, while counties like Somerset that have adhered to the old method of keeping down their asessed valuations must take a smaller amount than they might otherwise have received.

"With the tempting reward that the State offered the counties that should increase their ratables many were quick to take advantage. In one year from 1905 to 1906 the percentage of increase was in Union county 92.2 per cent., Cape May 77.3 per cent., Passaic 65.8 per cent., Essex 55.9 per cent. In contrast with these figures Somerset made an increase of 10 per cent.

"At this same session of the Legislature in 1906 there was passed a law providing for a reduction of the tax rate in all taxing districts where the rate was in excess of $1.75 on the $100 of assessed valuations. While this law undoubtedly has its effect in causing some raise in valuations, the remarkable increases were unquestionably due to the fact that they appreciated the opportunity and were anxious to get their full share of this new railroad money. It can hardly be explained by saying that they were under-assessed before, and that they are now just beginning to assess somewhere near true values. As I understand it, the law has always demanded a true valuation in making assessments, but the stimulus of a reward created a marked change, and so it has followed that the counties that were quick to grasp the opportunity will this year receive large sums from this railroad tax, consequently greatly reducing their local taxation, while the counties which have adhered to the old method will find their local taxes reduced somewhat but not nearly so much as they might have been had a different policy been pursued.

"In 1905 the assessed valuation of

BABY SWALLOWED ACID; DYING OF CONVULSIONS

As the result of swallowing carbolic acid found in his father's barn yesterday afternoon, the two-year-old son of Harry Sofield, of South Plainfield, lies at the point of death at his home today. Dr. Nelson, of New Market, who has been working over the little fellow since the accident, said today that there is practically no hope for his recovery.

The baby was playing about the garden yesterday afternoon and toddled into the barn to explore there. His screams a short time afterwards brought his mother, who found him in convulsions, with a bottle by his side. Dr. Nelson was immediately summoned and declared the contents of the bottle to be carbolic acid. He worked over the boy for several hours and late in the afternoon his condition seemed to be more comfortable. At night, however, the convulsions returned, and this morning his condition was much worse. His mouth and throat have been horribly burned, but he was still alive at noon.

RUNAWAY HORSE GALLOPS OVER A FIVE MILE CIRCUIT

A horse driven by Patrolman Cornelius McCarthy ran away on the Warrenville road at Watchung, yesterday afternoon, and went over a five mile circuit before it was finally caught at Front and Somerset streets.

The animal became frightened by a loose bit of paper and getting the bit in its teeth swung into upper Somerset street at top speed. McCarthy did his best to bring it to a stop but without avail. The runaway continued into the borough, turned into Greenbrook road, thence into Rockview terrace and through the Park district to the Sycamore avenue bridge over Green brook. At that point the driver swung it into the field leading to Giraud avenue and kept it going around in a circle in the hope that it would calm down.

McCarthy thought he had succeeded when the horse suddenly started out afresh and took to the road again. At Sycamore avenue and Front street the young man was hurled out of the vehicle and the runaway went toward town on a mad gallop. When nearing Somerset street it caught up with D. C. Smalley driving his crack pacer, "Ned Davis." Smalley turned into Somerset street to escape a collision but the runaway evidently believed it was a challenge for a "brush" and started in pursuit. The sudden swerve threw the animal down and it slid over the brick pavement for fifty feet before it fetched up against a curb.

The runaway was still game, however, and was making a scramble to get on its feet when W. W. Warnock jumped on its neck. A sharp tussle followed but it was all over in a minute and "Bill" was master of the situation. Strangely enough, the horse was uninjured beyond a few cuts about the mouth and the rig was practically intact.

NEW POST OFFICE SURE

Conferees of Senate and House Agree on $100,000 Building for Plainfield.

SENATOR JOHN KEAN GETS BUSY

That Plainfield will obtain the proposed $100,000 appropriation for a postoffice building seems reasonably certain now. A dispatch to The Daily Press from Senator John Kean, following several previous messages in which he had told of results accomplished, states that the conferees of the Senate and House at Washington have agreed to retain the Senate amendment which includes an item of $100,000 for this city.

The conferees' action means that there will be smooth sailing for the bill and about all that remains is for the formal ratification of Congress and the signature of President Roosevelt. There is ample time for the passage of the postoffice appropriations bill which is a mere matter of form.

As originally submitted, the House bill contained no mention of any appropriation for Plainfield, although the Fifth district has a representative at Washington, but when the Senate committee's bill was shown, it was found that it contained an item of $100,000 for this city. This was due to the efforts of Senator John Kean. When the conferees of both branches of the Congress met, Senator Kean's influence was potent in having the Plainfield item retained.

Postmaster Bird and others were pleased when they were notified by Mr. Kean of the progress of the bill in which this paper has been interested.

EDIFYING MUSIC GIVEN BY TRINITY'S CHOIR

The quartet choir of Trinity Reformed church consisting of Miss S. Etta Raybert, soprano; Miss Winifred Carroll, contralto; Fred S. Cutter, bass and Edmund D. Young, tenor, under the direction of Arthur L. Titsworth, organist, gave a delightful musical service at the church last night. The quartet was assisted by Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnston, violinist, who rendered the prelude with the organ, and a violin obligato, accompanying Miss Raybert, who sang "A Prayer of Faith," by J. C. Bartlett.

There were solos by Miss Raybert, Miss Carroll and Mr. Cutter, and a trio number, "My God, My Father, While I Stray," All were rendered in a delightful manner, the members of the quartet being in excellent voice. All enjoyed greatly the violin selections by Mrs. Truell-Johnston.

In connection with the music, the acting pastor, Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, preached a sermon on the subject, "Singing His Praises," in which he especially urged every member of the congregation to sing joyously to the Lord and not depend entirely on the choir to furnish the music. His remarks were helpful and exceedingly appropriate. The musical program follows:

Prelude, violin and organ, "Berceuse from Jocelyn," B. Goddard; Sentence, "The Lord is in His Holy Temple," Anthem, "The strain upraise, Allelulia," Dudley Buck; Gloria Patri, Juan Alzamora; contralto solo, "The Lord is long suffering and merciful," from "Judith," C. H. H. Parry; quartet, "The Lord's Prayer," Chas H. Hoyt; Anthem, "All praise to God in light arrayed," R. Wagner; soprano solo, "A Prayer for Faith," J. C. Bartlett, (with violin obligato); trio, "My God, my Father, while I stray," P. A. Schnecker; response, "Lord, may we prove the power of prayer," Cranston; sentence, "Lord, keep us safe this night," A. T. Lee Ashton; postlude, violin and organ, "Marcia," J. Raff.

GRACE GEORGE IN "DIVORCONS"

Announcement is made by the management of the New Plainfield theatre that Miss Grace George will appear there next Saturday afternoon and night, May 30, in her now-celebrated creation of Cyprienne in Sardou's immortal comedy of "Divorcons," in which she has made the success of her career not only in her own land, but has captured London's playgoers as no other American actress did following Ada Rehan's first visit to the British Metropolis in the mid-'80s.

The importance to playgoers here who love what is best on the stage of Miss George's engagement is not to be easily overestimated. She has for nine years been picking and choosing among plays of native and foreign make to get one that should prove her right to a foremost place among our stars. Then, in a moment of inspiration, she turns back to this brilliant work of Sardou's written by him as long ago as 1880, and shows the critics that, had she done the same thing when she first became a star, she would have perched success on her banner in such degree as to leave her claim unquestioned.

Miss George comes here with her London support, headed by Mr. Frank Worthing, one of the best of our leading men.

NUGENT'S NEW MOVE.

The trials of Mr. Nugent and those indicted with him are set for this date, and the service of this notice in itself acts as a stay of the proceedings, at least until the court has passed upon the application.

Dr. Connolly suffered a broken leg and severe bruises, but the two others escaped with a shaking up. The machine was wrecked.

Shortly after the officiating clergyman in the rectory of the Immaculate Conception church, Montclair, had spoken the words in the ceremony which made Charles Serman McKinstry and Miss Mabel Myers man and wife, Wednesday evening, the bridegroom received a telegram announcing that his father, Charles H. McKinstry, had killed himself by shooting in the Hotel Braddock, New York. Bridegroom, bride and suicide had been employed at the Hotel Montclair until recently.

Pastor Has Two Faiths.

New Brunswick, May 25.—The Rev. Thomas S. Brock, who was graduated from the New Brunswick Theological Seminary of the Dutch Reformed church Thursday, can supply either a pulpit of that church or a Methodist one. Church at Absecon, N. J.

"Without."

"I'd like a glass of plain efferescing drink," said a thirsty man. "You haf vanilla, or you haf raspberry?" asked the young woman—a Teuton—behind the counter. "I want a plain drink, no flavoring—understand me? responded the thirsty man testily. "Yes, but vat kind flavoring you vant him mitout? Mitout vanilla or mitout raspberry?"—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"Love is All."

Of riches we are wantin' more an' more,
But love it is can beat 'em any minute—
A mornin' glory vine above the door
An' a woman sweet who loves you standin' in it!
—Atlanta Constitution.

No Idle Boast.

Bilkins—Smythe tries to make people believe that he belongs to the "upper crust." Wilkins—Well, I should think he did belong to the "upper crust." Bilkins—In what way does he show it? Wilkins—Always short and easily broke.—Brooklyn Life.

An Advantage For Sure.

"So Jack's married a divorcee. Well, that's better than marrying a widow?"

"How do you make that out?"

"Well, a divorcee is not likely to throw up to one the virtues of her former husband."—Boston Transcript.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES.

A small quantity of vinegar boiled on the range will counteract the odor of boiled cabbage or other vegetables.

Where white underslips are not used the pillowcase should be of linen, as the strips of the ticking do not show through this as plainly as through cotton.

Nickel plating may be cleaned with water and whiting or with water and alcohol as easily as silver. Where there is a large amount of nickel to be cleaned gasoline will do the work well and quickly, but of course extra precautions must be taken.

In cleaning upholstered furniture do not beat directly upon the covering, as this helps to wear it out and scatters the dust in clouds, but lay towels or thick cloths on top and then do the beating. These cloths should be carefully gathered up and shaken out every little while.

If last year's linen suits look yellow they may be whitened by boiling in a lather made in the proportion of a pound ow pure white soap to a gallon of milk. Rinse thoroughly in several waters and blue slightly. A double boiler should be used that the milk may not scorch.

An ingenious householder who wanted to have a cedar lined closet, but hesitated at the expense, tried a good grade of cedar shingles, put on over lapping, as on a roof, lining the whole closet, with most excellent results. The work can be done by any amateur carpenter.

Imposing.

"The Sweltons seem to keep up an imposing establishment," remarked the canned goods drummer.

"You bet they do," replied the groceryman, with a sigh long drawn out, "and I'm one of the fellows they impose on."—Chicago News.

Seasonable Reflections.

Is it not sad
To think, my lad,
Does it not give you pain
To ponder, that
Last year's straw hat
Won't do to wear again?
—Kansas City Times.

Suspicious.

"Have the Oldhams always had money?"

"I don't know, but there have been times when they allowed their grocery bills to run a long while."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Stroke of Novelty.

"What makes you regard that man as such a brilliantly original orator?"

"He made an after dinner speech without saying that he had not expected to be called on."—New York Evening Journal.

Nobility does not lie in the hall full of family portraits dimmed by the hand of time—Seneca.

GOLF.

The local golf season is now well underway and the Plainfield Country Club and Park Golf Club courses are the scene of many spirited competitions which will continue until snow flies.

Even though he did not finish in the first division at Baltusrol, Frank O. Rinehart showed that he is rapidly getting into his old-time form and will be a factor in the competitions at the Plainfield Country Club this season.

Robert Abbott has thus far this season devoted little or no time to golf. Later on he wil probably be seen at the Plainfield Country Club, where he has heretofore played a fast game.

The putting greens at the Plainfield Country Club are now in fine condition and are appreciated by the contestants.

George Schoonmaker, chairman of the Green committee at the Plainfield Country Club, is devoting a great deal of time this season to keeping the course in the best of condition.

Special holiday events at the local golf courses on Memorial Day will attract a large number of contestants. At the Plainfield Country Club there wil be a 36-hole, medal play, handicap event, with prizes for the best net and best gross scores. Classes A and B. Features will be luncheons and dinners to be served at the clubhouse.

The Memorial Day events at the Park Golf Club wil include play for the Holiday cup, with an approaching and putting competition in the afternoon. There will also be social features at the clubhouse.

Arrangements have been completed for a big golf tournament to be played on Memorial Day at the Middlebrook Country Club course, Findern.

Jesus Christ with the Holy Ghost.' With this meaning of the office of the Holy Spirit, it becomes clear that His holiness was owing to the presence of the Holy Spirit. One of the powers of the Holy Spirit today is to make men holy.

"Our Lord was 'born of the Spirit' but when He reached His thirtieth year there came upon Him at the Jordan a special endowment of the Spirit.

"That was the beginning of His life of service and throughout His ministry you read of the activity of the Spirit. He was never alone; He is lead of the Spirit into the wilderness; His victory over each temptation is called a victory of the Spirit and in the power of the Spirit He returned to Gallilee; He preaches in the synagogue of Nazareth and begins by saying, 'the Spirit of the Lord is upon me.'

"Now His disciples have to carry on His work, but that work shall be effectual only as the Holy Spirit leads. The Spirit that descended on the Day of Pentecost is still the energy of the church. It is the self-same Spirit that is the basis of our efficiency."

His Parents.

"Well, my little man, what's your complaint?" asked the passerby.

"Hungry, sir. Haven't had anything to eat today," replied the little fellow.

"Have you no parents?"

"Yes, sir; but father's a poet and mother plays bridge whist."—Yonkers Statesman.

Speed Desired.

"I set my boy to sawin' some wood today," said Farmer Korntop.

"Did ye?" replied Farmer Nearbye. "I'll send my boy over to help him if ye—"

"No, don't ye! I want the job did in a hurry."—Philadelphia Press.

sin, the world and the devil and to continue Christ's faithful soldier and servant until his life's end.

"Even on the great day of their going forth, Christ said to His Apostles, "Thing not that I am come to bring peace upon the earth, but a sword." So shall the battle be fought. The work is stupendous, my honored brethren. And we do err if we make it small.

"Let alone gambling, and debauchery, and thieving, and law-breaking, all other forms of vice, in this land of the brave under the protection of the stars and stripes, the liquor traffic slays more souls annually than Abdul Hammed. And so by cutting into strips and trying to constantly minimize, we lose in its re-action the up-lift which should come from the sight of it terrible vastness. It will be a long campaign. We blunder if we prophesy otherwise. No sixty or hundred day men are wanted; we want men enlisted for life.

"You who have fought in the past so bravely and routed one Saracen will you not again be our leaders, if we help, to rout another enemy, more subtle than the last, for now it is not an open enemy. It is the one that skirmishes in the thickly wooded regions, and inhabitits the plague spots of ehe earth. In the name of power of God, we must do it."

Union county, was something over two and one-half times greater than Somerset county, while in 1907 it had gone up to nearly five times the valuation of Somerset county for 1907, consequently the amount to be received from the railroad tax by Union county will be nearly five times as great as that which Somerset county will get.

"If Somerset county had increased its ratables in the same proportion as Union county the amount of railroad tax coming to them this year would have been more than doubled, and this, too, without any cost whatever.

"It is true that if an increase in assessments was made in some parts of the county and not in others, the sections where valuations were kept down would benefit at the expense of others. But if a fair assessment were made no particular district would suffer, but all would get the benefit. It requires no argument to prove that the doubling of valuations would have the county and local tax rates, but no more would actually be paid by the individual. While an increase in ratables would raise the amount of the State school taxes, the fact that this tax also comes back to the counties according to the ratables shows that we would get back as much as we pay, and the local school and other local taxes could be proportionately reduced. In fact we have everything to gain and nothing to lose by a change in policy. As the constitutionality of the railroad tax law was contested in the courts and only decided this year, we have not before had the benefit of this money, but now that the question has been settled favorably there should be no delay in making a radical change in our method of fixing valuations, and so put us in position to get our fair share of this tax, which we can only do by following along the lines of other progressive counties."

Amiable.

"Daughter, is your husband amiable?"

"Well, ma, he's just exactly like pa. When he gets his own way about everything he's just perfectly lovely."—Pathfiender.

H. L. Pierce, the New Market grocer, has been making extensive improvements to his property.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Funeral services of the late William D. Johnston were held yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the house. Rev. G. M. Shott, pastor of the Lyon Farms Baptist church, being in charge. The services although private were attended by many friends, as well as a delegation of twenty from Winfield Scott Post, G. A. R., of which he was a member; and the Master Builders' Association, he being president of the latter at the time of his death. Rev. Mr. Shott spoke of the man as he had known him when pastor of the Baptist church here, and offered words of sympathy and consolation to the stricken family and sorrowing friends. There were a number of floral offerings from relatives and friends.

Interment was made in the Baptist cemetery. The pall bearers were Winfield Jameson, Ernest Wilcox, John Ledley of Westfield; Clyde Bell, of Cranford and John Bornmann and Henry Keuhn, of the Plains.

Frank Allen, a former resident here, but now of Pasaic, was the guest of friends in town Saturday, and an interested spectator at the game.

The B. Y. P. U. meeting at the Baptist church last night, was led by Mr. Charles A. Vincent, subject, "Being a Christian."

The second team defeated a team from North Plainfield Saturday afternoon on the school diamond. Score 23-3.

The weekly meeting of the Epworth League was held in the class room of the Methodist church.

Mrs. John Smalley and daughter, of Plainfield, have been visiting Mrs. F. K. Clark, of Front street.

Rev. Mr. Atkinson preached at both services at the Baptist church yesterday.

As Good as a Porter.

It is curious how many people are in ignorance of simple little facts in connection with everyday life which would save them a large amount of unnecessary labor and fatigue. Take the case of carrying a heavy bag or portmanteau, for instance. We all know the annoying way in which it knocks against our legs and the almost intolerable ache in the arm that is suporting the burden. Few people are aware, however, that by folding in a couple of newspapers and putting them under one's armpit a large amount of the strain and inconvenience is immediately removed. Try it next time you are hurrying to catch a train.—Pearson's Weekly.

Moscow's Beggars.

Of the beggars so charactistic of Russia's ancient capital a writer says: "The old city of Moscuw could not easily be dissociated from the 50,000 beggars who haunt its streets. The city belongs to them. If the city rats own the drains, they own the streets. They are part of the city; they are in perfect harmony with it. Take away the beggars and you destroy something vital. Some are so old and weather battered that they make the Kremlin itself look older, and of those who lie at the monastery doors some are so fearfully pitiable in their decrepitude that they lend power to the churches."

An Esperanto Cabman.

M. Pelletier, a Paris cabman, is the first of his calling to become an Esperanto adept. He can be recognized on duty by the Esperanto star badge he wears. The police of Paris and Stockholm are receiving instructions in the system, and in view of the congress in Dresden in August next the police of that city are also being taught the language.

BIG CIRCUS FAILS TO DRAW CAPACITY HOUSE

Ringling Bros.' circus, now conceded to be the largest in the country, pulled away from the Richmond street yards, early yesterday morning, with a black mark chalked up against Plainfield. Although Saturday was the first clear day the aggregation had encountered in several weeks, the business done at the afternoon performance was the poorest the show has had since 1906. To the ordinary observer the crowd at night was a big one but the circus people described it as "fair."

In conversation with a Daily Press reporter just previous to the evening performance, John Ringling, manager of the big combination, ascribed the low attendance mark in the afternoon to the disturbed condition in the industrial world and also to the fact that the Ringling show is new to most Plainfielders. Though it has been on the road for twenty-five years it had never visited this city before and a great many were unaware of its size. It might be said that the performances were the best of the kind ever seen in town.

The Ringlings are now the American circus kings, as beside the show bearing their name, they are the owners of Barnum & Bailey's, the Forepaugh-Sells Brothers and control Buffalo Bill's Wild West. The Barnum show is transported on seventy-nine cars while the Ringling enterprise requires eighty-five, one train alone being used for the 1,150 people employed. A little more than twenty-five years ago, the Ringling Brothers conducted a wheelwright shop at Bariboo, Wis., and got into the circus busines by taking a small show in payment for some wagons.

The Ringling combination came down to Plainfield from Easton and went back the same way to Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and after stopping at Binghamton, Elmira, Canandiagua and Buffalo, N. Y., in turn, makes a big jump next Sunday to the middle west, where it holds the same reputation as Barnum show does in the East.

JUDGE MOORE'S HORSES ENTERED IN LOCAL SHOW

The announcement made today that Judge Moore will be one of the biggest exhibitors at the Plainfield Horse Show has aroused great interest in the forthcoming event. Judge Moore has the largest stable of show horses in the country and up to the present time has only exhibited at the largest shows, such as the National in Madison Square Garden and Philadelphia. His decision to come to Plainfield following the Philadelphia show, will more than make up for the absence of the Avondale Farm exhibit and will result in great rivalry among the many high-class horses to be shown. He will be an important factor in the competition for the Thomas W. Lawson cup and the "Official Blue Book" cup.

Judge Moore has made over seventy entries and will show twenty different horses in the various classes. This will put Plainfield in the foremost rank in the horse show world and will afford the people of Plainfield and elsewhere an opportunity of seeing the finest string of thoroughbreds obtainable.

The entry list for the horse show closes with a larger number of entries than ever before in the history of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club and gives promise of being one of the best shows in the country.

The White Evening Waistcoat.

Anything that breaks through the gloomy, funereal, waiteral aspect of male evening dress is to be commended. Practically, as a general rule, the white evening waistcoat cannot be effectively worn much after the age of twenty-one. Black, it is well known, diminishes the proportions, but white undoubtedly increases them. I see men whom I have hitherto considered to be slim appear in white evening waistcoats and look absolutely corpulent.

—London Graphic.

The Hat He Had.

"Mamma, if I had a hat before I had this one, it's all right to say that's the hat I had had, isn't it?"

"Certainly, Johhny."

"And if that hat once had a hole in it and I had it mended I could say it had had a hole in it, couldn't I?"

"es; there would be nothing incorrect in that."

"Then it would be good English to say that the hat I had had had had a hole in it, wouldn't it?"

His View of it.

A little boy had been sent to the dairy to get some eggs, and on his way back he dropped the basket containing them.

"How many did you break?" asked his mother.

"Oh, I didn't break any," he replied, "but the shells came off some of them."

AMUSEMENTS.

If business conditions may be considered an indication, then Wagenhals and Kemper's production of the season's sensational dramatic success, "Paid In Full," is a full brother to the book which in story and song gives promise of running on forever. At the Astor theatre, where Wagenhals and Kemper produced this play some four months ago, business continues to tax the capacity of the theatre. The bargain matinees given each Wednesday, with the best seats selling for one dollar and fifty cents, is one of the magnets which serves t odraw the suburban dweller to New York and unquestionably "Paid In Full" is one of the delights of modern life today. The intensely human trend of the story has served as a marvellous incentive to draw people to the Astor and in Chicago on Sunday last, where at the Grand Opera House Wagenhals and Kemper presented a special cast in this play, the phenomenal success of the offering but served to illustrate the great drawing power the play possesses.

The song numbers that punctuate the performance of "The Yankee Prince," Geo. M. Cohan's latest musical creation now running at the Knickerbocker theatre, New York, includes over twenty popular hits among those that will be whistled and sung for some time to come are: "Come on Down Town," "I'm Going to Marry a Nobleman," "Think It Over Carefully," "Yankee Doodle's Come to Town," "The A-B-C, of the U. S. A.," "I'm Awfully Strong for You," Cohan's "Rag-Babe," "Villains in the Play," "A Song of the King," "I Say Flo," "From the Land of Dreams," "M-o-n-e-y," "Tommy Atkins You're All Right." Then there is "The Yankee Prince" march and "The Yankee Prince" waltz, which is played between the acts of Mr. Cohan's new composition and which are destined to become as popular as Mr. Cohan's other composition entitled "Popularity," or "The Merry Widow" waltz.

When Clyde Fitch wrote "Girls," the comedy which the Shuberts are offering at Daly's theatre, New York, he turned out by far the best piece of humorous writing that ever came from his prolific pen. The story of "Girls" is light and airy and does not require any severe case of mental training to be able to enjoy the good nature satire on the fair sex with which the piece abounds. Three very human girls come to New York, imbued with a determination to forge ahead in their careers independent of man's aid. Their adventures and misadventures from the basis on which "Girls" is built and the appeal of the piece, which has caught on with New York theatregoers as no other comedy this season has succeeded in doing, is found in the fact that everything that happens is so natural and true to everyday standards that the audience feels its collective self nudging the ribs of his or her next door neighbor, with "I Told You So." The three bachelor girls are played by Laura Nelson Hall, Amy Ricard and Ruth Maycliffe. The run of "Girls" is indefinite and will continue until well into the summer.

RUTGERS HONOR MEN.

President Demarest Announces Faculty's Selections.

New Brunswick, May 25.—President Demarest announced Friday that the following honors had been awarded by the Rutgers College faculty: George Conde Lawsing, of Linlithgo, N. Y., first classical honor; Bergen S. Merrill, of Monroe, Pa., first scientific honor; Elmer W. Kent, of Metuchen, second scientific honor; John W. Moffett, of Metuchen, third scientific honor.

He also announced that the new Vanderpool Fellowship had been awarded to Charles Tiers Thompson, of Freehold. This is the first year of the fellowship, and the first of its kind in the history of the college. It was founded by the late John A. Vanderpool, and consists of a $500 scholarship, which is given to the senior best fitted to pursue graduate work at Rutgers for one year, especially in chemistry.

Rutgers seniors held their farewell banquet last night, and this morning assembled in chapel for the last time as students of the college and listened to a farewell address by President W. H. S. Demarest. They have been dismissed until commencement week, in the week of June 14.

PRISONER'S UNUSUAL REQUEST.

Asked to be Allowed to Work for Week to Get Money to Pay Lawyer.

Elizabeth, May 25.—In the Union County Court Friday, before Judge Atwater, Frank Balling was arraigned on a charge of stealing ten bags of oats from Oscar Blub, of Elizabethport. The prisoner pleaded not guilty and when asked if he had a lawyer replied that he was too poor to hire one, but if the court would let him go to work he thought that in a week he could earn money enough to pay for a lawyer.

Judge Atwater was amazed at the request and said the court did not do business that way. A lawyer would be assigned to defend him, but the prisoner objected to this. Judge Atwater then set down the case for trial next Thursday and told Balling if he had no lawyer the trial would proceed anyhow.

Damage Suit Cost County $272.

Elizabeth, May 25.—The two days' trial in the Union County Court of the suit of Hermann Spitalny against Julius Hague on a charge of alienating the affections of his wife, and in which the jury awarded the plaintiff only six cents damages, has cost the county of Union more than $270. The entire time of the court on Monday and Tuesday was given up to this case, no other business being transacted, and what with jurymen and constable fees, together with those of the judge, sheriff, county clerk, stenographer and court crier, the total expense which the county taxpayers must bear for this suit is about $272.

"Mr. Hartley, there is one thing I must ask you. You paid Dennis the five dollar prize he won at the race that day. Did you collect it from the judges?"

"Oh, that's all right," he answers, fidgety. "I think probably I did. I don't remember."

"I thought not," says she. "Now you must permit me to pay it to you. The boy is under my charge and I shall insist upon it."

He was pretty short and sharp, I thought. "No, really," he said, "I've forgotten the affair entirely. No doubt I've been paid already. It was nothing, of course, and the boy was plucky and I took a fancy to him."

She insisted, but he wouldn't give in. At last she says, looking hard at him:

"I think," she says, "that your simple life is doing a great deal for you. You have improved in many ways. I have heard things—good things—about you that surprised me. I'm very glad."

He didn't answer. Just then the valet brought the carriage up to the door and 'twas time to say good-by.

I was pretty tickled with the day's work, take it altogether. Eureka got after me soon as we was back to the island, and she asked a couple of ton of questions. She wanted to know all about the school and especially about the Page girl and her chum.

"You ain't told me all you know," says she, finally. "Tell the rest of it. What relation is this Agnes Page to Mr. Hartley?"

I said she wa'n't no relation. At last, sort of in self-defense, I told the whole yarn about the engagement—Van's engagement, I mean.

She bobbed her head. "I thought so," says she. "I don't care if Mr. Van Brunt is engaged to the Page one. He ain't in love with her. And Mr. Hartley is."

"What are you talking about?" says I, soon's I could get my breath.

"Just what I said. He's in love with Miss Page. And I'm going to help him get her."

"Humph!" says I. "You be, hey? Well, how about poor Van? What do you want to shove him out into the cold for? He ain't done anything to you, has he?"

She shook her sunbonnet and looked wise. "That's all right," she says. "I've got my ideas about him, too. Anyway I'm going to help Mr. Hartley."

I thought and thought. And then, without exactly meaning to, I spoke my thought out loud.

"I believe I'll help you help him," says I.

She wa'n't a bit surprised. "Humph!" she says. "That's no news. You've been trying to help him for ever so long."

What do you think of that? There wa'n't anything slow or dull about that Sparrow girl—not enough to fret yourself over, there wa'n't.

CHAPTER XIII.

The Lawn Fete.

It was August now. The nice weather held out right along and one day on Ozone island was a good deal like the next.

And yet it seemed to me that there was little changes. For instance, take the matter of reading. When we first arrived 'twas nothing but that Natural Life book; the Heavenly Twins was at it continuous, and such a thing as a newspaper or magazine was what Van Brunt called an "abomination." I couldn't get a paper even to kindle fire with; had to use poverty grass for that. But now the Natural Life sermon laid on the dining room mantel piece most of the time, with a layer of dust on it, and Scudder fetched the Boston and New York newspapers every day. And magazines and books begun to come in the mail.

I remember one day Hartley set reading the New York Evening Post, that part of it he called the "financial page." All at once he spoke.

"By Jove! Van," he says. "Consolidated Tea Lead is up three points from last week's quotations. There must be something doing."

Van looked at him, kind of sad and disappointed.

"Martin," says he, "are you falling from grace? Get thee behind me, Satan. Give me that financial sheet."

Hartley laughed and tossed it over.

"There!" says his chum, crumpling it up and shoving it into his pocket. "That disturbing influence is out of the way. Let us discuss the simple and satisfying subject of agriculture. There is an article on 'The Home Garden' in this month's number of The Rural Gentleman, which should be instructive to our friend Mr. Pratt, plower of sea and soil. Skipper, lend me your ears. I'll return them shortly."

Then he commenced to read that magazine piece out loud to me, very solemn, and stopping every once in a while to chuck in some ridiculous advice on his own account. This had got to be a regular thing. Every bit of farm news I had to hear. The garden was Van's pet joke.

"What," says he, when the reading was done, "is the latest crop bulletin, Sol?"

"I have the honor to report," says I, "that from the present outlook we'll have two cornstalks, one tomatter vine and three cucumber plants really in sight by to-morrow morning. That is, if the sand don't blow in and cover 'em up in the night."

"Good!" he says. "I move that the report be accepted. Martin, don't let me see you wasting your time on the frivolity of the street when there are such serious matters to claim our attention."

Which was all right, only that very afternoon I saw him, himself, out behind the barn, reading that Post financial page and looking mighty interested.

They were more anxious to be doing things than when they first come. Hartley's health was improving all the time, and that probably accounted for his liveliness. I took 'em sailing 'most every day and they wanted to fish and shoot and the like of that.

Once we went on a cruise after shore birds. I bagged a few, but the Twins couldn't hit a flock of balloons with a cannon, so they didn't have no luck. But a little later Van went out alone with Nate Scudder and I'll be blessed if he didn't come back with a dozen peep and ring-necks. Then the way he crowed over me and Martin was scandalous, till, a week later, Hartley himself went gunning with Nate and fetched home 15, bigger and better than his chum's. And after this, of course, 'twas nothing but what a great hunter Scudder was, and rubbing it into me.

The hotel boarders and the town folks was mighty interested in the Ozone islanders by this time. The picnic boats from the Old Comfort house generally sailed close to our point to give the passengers a chance to look our outfit over. Sometimes the boats stopped, and then the Twins would take an observation from an upstairs window, and, if they liked the looks of the crowd, would come down and keep what they called "open house." "Open house" always meant more work for Eureka and me. Lucky for us, 'twas pretty seldom that the Heavenlies liked their callers' looks well enough to open up.

The Baptist minister and his wife came over to call. There was going to be a "lawn fete and sale" at the church pretty soon, and the idea was to get the Twins to "donate" something. Van Brunt was full of his high jinks that day, and he took that poor parson and his wife in tow.

First he carted 'em out to the henyard. He paraded up and down in front of the coops, pointing out the scraggly Plymouth Rocks as if they was some kind of freaks, like ostriches. He said they ate a bag of corn a day and laid one egg a week, so he figgered that every egg was worth five dollars or so. What did the parson think of a donation of half a dozen of them eggs?

"Not to eat, you understand," says Van; "but as rarities, as curiosities."

The minister was a young feller, not long out of college, and pretty straight-laced. But he had some fun in him.

"If I might suggest," he says, "I think one of the hens themselves would be more acceptable and profitable. Among our summer people there is a great demand for 'antiques.' Now one of those hens—"

That tickled Van. He told Hartley afterwards that the minister was a trump. He donated liberal—not with eggs nor poultry neither—and promised that he and Hartley would attend the sale.

And they did. And so did Eureka and me. The lawn fete was held in the meeting house front yard, and 'twas all rigged up fine with flags and tissue paper and bunting. There was a a grab bag and a cake table and a fancy goods table, and I don't know what all. All the summer folks was there, and most of the town women and girls, and the prices charged for things would have been highway robbery if it hadn't been a church that was charging 'em.

The Heavenlies bought and bought and bought. They bought everything—the foolishest things. Van bought three pair of embroidered suspenders and a crocheted tidy and a pin cushion, and Martin got a worsted afghan and a hand-painted soft pillow, so fresh that the paint come off on your hands when you touched it. And 'twa'n't any quiet colored paint neither. And when you rubbed off one layer there was another underneath. Luretta Daniels' daughter had painted it; she was taking lessons and her ma said that she'd painted that pillow over much as a dozen times, because the colors wa'n't "blending right" or the subject didn't suit her. 'Twas so stiff with paint on top that 'twould have been like ramming your head into fence to lay on it.

We stayed till most everything was sold but a log cabin bed quilt that the Christian paupers at the poorhouse had made. Nobody seemed to want that, although they was gay rags enough in it to build a rainbow. The minister's wife said she was so sorry. The poor things at the almshouse had worked so hard.

"You wait a minute," says Van. "I'll get rid of it."

He took out his vest pocket memorandum book and tore about ten pages into little squares. Then he made numbers on these squares with a pencil. Half of these he put into his hat, and, the next I knew, he was standing on a chair, waving the bedquilt with one hand and the hat with t'other.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he shouts. "Here is positively the last chance to secure this magnificent—er—er—lambrykin, made by the deserving poor to cover the restless rich. Competition has been so strong that no one person has been able to buy it. The only solution would be a syndicate, and the almshouse is opposed to trusts. Therefore I am authorized to"—then he bent down and whispered: "Mr. Morton, kindly give me whatever small change you have left."

The minister looked puzzled, but he handed up a half dollar. Van Brunt reaches into the hat and takes out one of the folded slips of paper.

"Here you are sir," says he. "Treasure that as you would your life. Now, then, ladies and gentlemen, this is a raffle. The minister starts it. Tickets are anything you please, provided it's enough. Come early and avoid the rush."

There was a kind of gasp from all the church people. The members of the sewing circle looked at each other with the most horrified kind of faces. The parson, Mr. Morton, run forward.

"Just a minute, Mr. Van Brunt, if you please," he sings out.

But Van waved him away. The summer folks come after them tickets like a whirlwind, laughing and shouting and passing up dollar bills. 'Twa'n't hardly any time afore the hat was empty and the Twin's jacket pocket was full of money. Then he fills up the hat with more pieces of paper.

"These are duplicates of the numbers sold," says he. "The drawing will now take place. Here, Bill!"

He grabs a little shaver by the coat collar and lifts him up to the chair. Old lady Patterson, the deacon's wife, set up a scream.

"Stop!" she yells. "My child shall not—"

"It takes but a moment, madam," says Van, waving to her, calm and easy. "Now, Julius Caesar, please take one of those numbers from the hat."

"Here Is Positively the Last Chance to Secure This Magnificent—er—er—er—Lambrykin."

The boy reddened up and grinned and looked foolish, but he stuck a freckled paw in and took out a piece of paper.

"Number 14," shouts Van Brunt. "Number 14 secures the—the tapestry. Who's the lucky one?"

Everybody unfolded their papers, but there didn't seem to be any 14. Hartley had three, but he wa'n't in it.

"Number 14," Van calls. "Who is 14? Mr. Morton, you began this. Where is your ticket?"

The minister looked dreadfully troubled. "Really," he stammered, "I—I—it was a mistake. I—"

"Here's yours, Mr. Morton," says a little girl. "You dropped it on the ground."

The parson looked pretty sick. He reached for it, but Van got it first.

"Number 14 it is," he says. "Our esteemed friend, Rev. Mr. Morton, secures the prize. That's as it should be. Three cheers for Mr. Morton!"

The summer folks give the cheers, but the church folks looked pretty average wild, I thought.

I forgot how much was in Van Brunt's pocket. That bedquilt fetched in enough money to pretty nigh buy the poorhouse itself.

The Twins felt good. They figgered that they'd made a hit at that "lawn fete."

"Great success, my raffle idea, wasn't it, skipper," says Van Brunt, on the way home.

I didn't answer right off. Eureka spoke up.

"Well," she says, "it sold the bedquilt, but I wouldn't wonder if it made the new minister lose his job. You see, 'twas gambling, and that church is dreadful down on gambling. Mrs. Patterson told me that she should have her husband call a parish meeting right off. I guess you won't be invited to no more sales this year."

And we wa'n't. Poor Morton had an awful time explaining, and the only way he could get out of it was to lay it heavy on the Twins. He had to preach a sermon giving gambling fits, and all around town 'twas nothing but how dissipated and wicked the Heavenlies was. We wa'n't fit for decent folks to associate with.

But I ain't been able to learn, even yet, that the bedquilt money was returned to the ticket buyers.

Van got a long letter from Agnes Page a little later, saying that she had heard of him as a "disturbing influence" and that she was shocked and grieved. He thought 'twas a great joke and didn't seem to care much. Nate Scudder was glad of the whole business. He didn't want nobody else to be milking his own pet cows.

Me and Eureka was glad, too, in a way. We judged that Van's being in disgrace with his girl would help Hartley's side along. And in a few days another idea begun to develop that, when I found it out, seemed to me likely to help him more.

Eureka told me that she'd seen a dress pattern at the church sale that she wanted awful. I asked her why she didn't buy it and she said 'twas two dollars and a half and she couldn't afford it. Hartley heard her say it and he loafed out into the kitchen and begun to ask questions, pumping her, sort of quiet, to find out what she done with her money. After she'd gone home he says to me:

"Skipper, that girl is robbing herself to support that old loafer, her father."

"That's right," says I. "It's my opinion that she ain't never told him that she ain't getting that extry two dollars a week. I guess she pays every cent into the house."

"It's a shame!" says he. "Can't we make the old vagabond earn his own living?"

"When you do," I says, "I'll believe that black's the blonde shade of white. Making Washy Sparrow work would be as big a miracle as the loaves and fishes."

He thought a spell. "Well, I mean to look into the matter," he says. "Sol, I want you to find out who owns that apology for a house they live it. Don't ask Eureka. We must keep it a secret from her or she'll interfere. And we may as well not tell Van, either. He's so careless that he might give it away."

"All right," says I. "I'll ask Scudder. He knows 'most all of everybody's business and Huldy Ann knows the rest."

So when Nate come, after breakfast next morning, I asked him.

"What do you want to know for?" says he, suspicious as usual.

"Oh, nothing. Just curious, that's all."

"They ain't going to move out, are they?" He seemed mighty interested.

"No, no!" says I. "Where'd they move to? Think they're going to Washington to visit the president or the diplomatic corpse?"

"Well," he says, "you needn't get mad. I didn't know but they might be coming over here. I don't mind telling you. Huldy Ann, my wife, owns the place, if you want to know."

I was surprised. He was a regular sand-flea for bobbing up where you didn't expect to him.

"She does?" says I. "Say, Nate, for the land sakes how much more of this country belongs to you and Huldy? And how much did you pay for it?"

He went on with a long rigmarole about a mortgage and a second mortgage and "foreclosing to protect himself," and so on. All I see in it was more proofs that lambs fooling with Nate Scudder was likely to lose, not only wool, but hoofs, hide and tallow.

When I told Hartley he seemed real pleased.

"That makes it easy," he says. "Scudder will accommodate me by doing a little favor, won't he?"

"Sure thing!" says I, sarcastic. "Ain't he been accommodating you ever since you struck town?"

"Yes," he says, "he has. Scudder is a generous chap."

And he meant it, too! Why the good Lord lets such simple innocents as him and his chum run around loose for it—but there! No doubt he has his reasons. And what would become of the summer hotels without that kind?

Him and Nate was pretty thick for the next few days. Something was up, though as yet I wa'n't in the secret. Hartley made one or two trips to the village and he took neither me nor Van with him. He asked me where the doctor lived and a lot more questions.

Van Brunt, too, was getting pretty confidential with Nate. I caught the two of 'em off alone by the barn or somewheres quite a good many times. They was always whispering earnest, and when I hove in sight they'd break away and act guilty. There was something up there, too, and again I wa'n't in with the elect. I begun to feel slighted.

Y. M. C. A. WON IN TENTH

Local Association Nine Defeats Summit Team by Score of 6-5.

ERRORS HELP IN RUN GETTING.

Pitcher Scott, Hurt in Ninth, Replaced by Conover—Captain Schoonmaker Scores Winning Run.

The Y. M. C. A. nine started the struggle for the State association baseball title Saturday afternoon, when the local players defeated the association team from Summit by a score of 6-5 on Crescent Oval. It took ten innings to decide the game, which included good, bad and indifferent baseball by both teams, but demonstrated that the local nine "has something" this year.

A wild throw to third base by the Summit catcher gave Plainfield the game in the tenth. Ralph Schoonmaker got his base on balls and stole second. Miller, the next batter, was hit by the pitcher. Schoonmaker stole third, and Foster, winging the ball down from the plate to catch him, threw low and wide, enabling the captain of the local team to score the winning run.

Dennis, the tawny southpaw on the slab for the visitors, pitched good ball up to the sixth, and fanned six batsmen in course of the game, giving three pases. Scott was unsteady at the start, but pitched a heady game, though at times his support rocky. He struck out three men and did not give a single base on balls. The summaries:

DUNELLEN NINE BEATS LOCAL JUNIORS, 3 TO 1

The Dunellen Field Club nine defeated the local Jr. O. U. A. M. nine at Dunellen Saturday afternoon, by a score of 3-1. The game was won in the eighth, when two errors by the Plainfielders netted two runs for the home team, breaking the 1-1 tie. The Dunellenites started the scoring in the second when Garretson crossed the plate. Kister scored the only run for the Juniors in the fifth.

Harney, of Bound Brook, pitched gilt-edged ball, allowing but two hits. He gave but a single pass and fanned five of the lodgemen. Van Arsdale, who was on the slab for the Juniors, was touched up for nine hits an fanned three. The summaries:

LARGE FIELD OF GOLFERS IN WEEKLY COMPETITION

Despite the counter attractions on Saturday there was a large field of golfers out at the Plainfield Country Club, many taking part in the weekly competition for the Spring Handicap cups for the two classes A and B. There were a few absentees, some of the players journeying to Baltusrol, where the Metropolitan championship was finished. The heavy rains of the past month has given unusual growth to the grass, but by hard work it has been possible to keep the course in excellent condition.

In Class A, W. T. Glenney won first three points with a net score of 70, about the lowest of the season. His 79 gross showed that he was playing a fast game. Arthur Murphy finished second with a 72, his gross 83 being very good. S. D. Lounsberry received the one point with a 75 net, his gross score being but one point higher than that of Murphy.

The point winners in Class B were A. G. Henderson with a 77; A. E. Barclay with a 79 and James P. Murray with an 80, all good scores. These cards were returned in the two classes:

Class A—W. T. Glenney, 79, 9-70; Arthur Murphy, 83, 11-72; S. D. Lounsberry, 84, 9-75; Dudley H. Bardows, 82, 4-78; Percy H. Stewart, 94, 15-79; C. B. Morgan, 88, 7-81; W. Lester Glenney, 87, 4-83.

Class B—A. G. Henderson, 97, 20-77; A. E. Barclay, 100, 21-79; J. P. Murray, 98, 18-86; George S. Clay, 108, 27-81.

PARK GOLF CLUB'S SEASON HAS OPENED

The opening of the active season at the Park Golf Club on Saturday was marked by pleasant weather and a good condition of the course which attracted a large number of golfers. The initial play for the President's and Golf Clubs cups, weekly competition, brought out many contestants and the scores were generally quite good, considering that it was the first play for several members.

The point-winners for the President's cup were Charles A. Reed, with a net score of 94; Charles B. Morse and W. R. Faber, who returned a net score of 101. For the scratch cup the point-winners were Charles A. Reed, with a gross score of 104 and C. B. Morse and W. R. Faber, who each returned a score of 111 gross. These cards were returned for both cups:

Charles A. Reed, 104, 10-94; Charles B. Morse, 111, 10-101; W. R. Faber, 111, 10-101; Leon R. Thurlow, 112, 10-102; W. V. Byard, 112, 10-102; Walter McNaughton, 119, 15-104.

ELIZABETH TEAM STRONG.

Mathey and West Will Be Formidable Opponents for Local Teams in Last Two Rounds.

Plainfield Country Club players made a strong showing in the opening rounds of the men's doubles tournament of the East Jersey Lawn Tennis Association at the Club courts Saturday afternoon. Play was continued up to the semi-final round and of the four pairs still in the tournament, three are club teams. These are Wylie Brown and C. M. Crapo, H. J. Cochran and A. D. Beers, and W. B. Cragin, Jr., and Willard Wadsworth. The fourth team is Dean Mathey and R. A. West, from the Elizabeth Town and Country Club. Teams from the Park Club and Fanwood Club and the Ilderan Outing Club were put out in the early rounds.

With three pairs in the semi-finals, the local club's chances for points look good for the finish of the tournament next Saturday. Mathey and West will meet Brown and Crapo in the semi-finals Saturday morning, and the result of this match will decide whether the finals are to be between Plainfield Country Club teams or whether the Elizabeth players will appear in the finals as opponents of the winners of the match between Cochran and Beers and Cragin and Wadsworth. The local club is sure of two points, with a possibility of seven, for the winning team gets five points and the runners-up two.

Mathey and West played fast tennis Saturday, fighting their way through the tournament by skillful play at all times. The surviving Plainfield teams all play classy tennis and good matches are assured for the final rounds. The summaries of Saturday's play:

Dean Mathey and R. A. West, Elizabeth Town and Country Club, beat T. M. Day and T. M. Day third, Plainfield Country Club, 6-2, 6-0; W. Long and E. M. Daniel, Park Club, beat S. W. Merrihew and Arthur Lovell, Plainfield Country Club, 7-9, 6-4, 6-3; W. Brown and C. M. Crapo, Plainfield Country Club, beat H. McK. Glazebrook and G. B. Littell, E. T. C. C., 6-4, 2-6, 6-4; B. Berry and L. Dunham, Ilderan Outing Club, beat H. A. Colby and A. L. Otterson, P. C. C., 6-4, 4-6, 6-4, and won from M. S. Charlock and S. A. Westfall, E. T. C. C., by default; W. Barlow and Vaughan McGee, Park Club, beat C. W. Case and N. F. Charlock, E. T. C. C., 6-4, 6-3; H. J. Cochran and A. D. Beers, P. C. C., beat Barlow and McGee, Park Club, 6-3, 6-1; H. Brown and H. Brewer, P. C. C., beat C. H. Kyte and E. C. Moody, Fanwood T. C. C., 6-4, 6-0; W. B. Cragin, Jr. and Willard Wadsworth, P. C. C., beat John Kyte and H. H. Knight, Fanwood T. C. C., 6-2, 6-3; H. H. Foster and E. S. Weeks, E. T. C. C., beat R. S. Rowland and Elliott Cutter, P. C. C., 4-6, 6-4, 6-2.

FIGHTS THE FEATURE OF THIS BALL GAME

Although Scotch Plains defeated the Clinton Avenues on Saturday by the score of 3 to 2, twelve innings, it was not accomplished until the players engaged in several scraps over the decisions of the umpire. The first dispute arose in the fourth inning. Schott was at the bat and after he had two strikes on him he hit a foul tip which struck H. Alberts on the knee. The umpire called it a ball and then changed his decision, declaring the batsman out. He refused to change his decision again despite the earnest protest of the visitors.

Play was resumed, but in the fifth inning there was a more serious outbreak in which Jack Martin and his brother, Brit Martin, who attempted to separate him from George Frentz, received a black eye. Other players finally jumped in and stopped further trouble.

The "punch-fest" was the result of another decision by the umpire. Jack Martin was on second and his brother, Brit Martin on third, with Emery at the bat. Two balls had been called on him when the next ball struck him on the elbow, leaving a bad bruise. The ball rolled fair and Joe Alberts threw it to first, whereupon the umpire called Emery out. This precipitated a small roit in which Jack Martin, who made an uncomplimentary remark about the 'Plains team, was attacked by George Frentz. The umpire refused to change his decision, so by the consent of both teams Dave Smith was persuaded to handle the indicator for the rest of the game and there was no further trouble.

Monos Defeat Climax A. C.

One of the best games of the season here was played Saturday afternoon on Hope Common when the Mono A. C. defeated the Climax A. C., in a ten inning contest by a score of 1 to 0. A feature was the brilliant work of Evans at short-stop for the winning team. The contest was played in one hour and five minutes. The score by innings:

Plainfield A. C. Defeated.

The New Market Field Club defeated the Plainfield A. C., Saturday afternoon by a score of 12 to 4. The game was uninteresting owing to the heavy hitting of the New Market team, who batted Lutherman out of the box in the fifth inning. Cooney, of the Highland A. C., replaced him, but he could not stop the batting. The score by innings:

N. Market F. C. 3 1 0 4 3 0 0 1 x—12

Batteries—Fulton and Nelson; Lutherman, Cooney and Clinton.

Both local clubs will enter players in all of these tennis events.

Beeken P. H. S. Track Captain.

In accordance with instructions given him by Judge Runyon, Saturday, Thomas Waldron, colored, appeared in the city court, this morning, with his two daughters, charged by the truant officer with remaining away from school. The girls acknowledged that they had "played hookey" and they were warned not to repeat the offenses if they care to remain out of an institution. Both gave a solemn promise that they would attend school regularly.

Addison Moe, an old and well known resident of this city, died at his home on West Fifth street at noon today. He was about seventy years old and had been ill for the past month.

A CRAZY MAN LOOSE AT COONTOWN

The whole countryside in the vicinity of Coontown was aroused yesterday by the presence of an apparently crazy man, who had evidently escaped from a lunatic asylum. The stranger after wading the Dead river traversed the whole section about Coontown, frightening men, women and children. Among those he met was Martin Blazier, whom he chased for over a half-mile. Mr. Blazier finally made his escape at the home of Widow Ralston, where he remained until the stranger disappeared.

The constable at Warrenville was notified of the presence of the man and he has since been conducting a search for him, assisted by a posse of citizens from that vicinity. It was learned late last night that the man's hallucination is that he has a brother living near Coontown and he pretends to be looking for him. So far as can be learned the man has no relatives in that section and was never seen before. He is well dressed and has every appearance of being well fed. At the sight of anyone he quickly gives chase and nothing seems to tire him out.

Art in Market Place.

Every one who is at all interested in the cause of the arts of design in America realizes that little progress will be made in a wholesome direction until design has been applied artistically and sanely to the ordinary commercial usages. One of the happiest illustrations of the application of a really artistic design to the commonest features of architectural practice nowadays is to be observed in the completed portion of the new Grand Central station at New York. Here the architects have worked out in wrought iron two simple designs in angles and curves that without being either finicky or tending toward structural weakness add materially to the artistic appearance of the whole facade. This is probably the first instance in the architecture of New York when the ordinarily clumsy steel work on the facade of a building has been fashioned into an artistic design.

Gives Powerful Light.

The electric arc from the incandescence of carbon electrodes converts into light only about one per cent. of the energy, and the so-called "flaming arc" is an attempt to gain efficiency by adding to the carbon substances that produce a luminous flame. Reporting the latest results, Prof. A. Blondel, the French electrician, states that salts of the calcium group have proved suitable materials. The pure chemicals may be used for electrodes or employed in a homogeneous mixture with carbon, but electrodes of carbon with a core of the chemicals give powerful light.

Will Develop Coal Lands.

About 8,000 acres of coal lands in Monterey county, California, about 200 miles from San Francisco, are about to be developed in an extensive manner. Most of the coal of this section is lignitic in character, but this tract is said to contain a vein of semi-bituminous fuel.

WANT PAPER BALLOT BACK

Union County Democrats are Aiming to Get Rid of the Voting Machine.

TO WAGE A STUBBORN FIGHT.

They're Up Against It, However, for Law Provides for Shifting Machines.

In spite of the fact that the new voting machine bill does not pave the way for the entire abolition of the polling contrivances, Democrats who are interested in securing the necessary referendum votes in this county are coming to realize that there are still a few strings on the legislation by which the reform is to be brought about. The law spells ultimate defeat for advocates of the machines, but the ramifications to be found in the measure indicate that the desired results will be obtained only through devious and persistent methods.

As it becomes necessary under the law to abolish the machines by a vote in each district of any municipality without regard for adjoining sections of the city, it is admitted that machines may still be held in use for some time by a shifting process. In the event of a vote that will cast the apparatus out of any one district in this city the machines affected may be moved into a district where they have not previously been in use, according to the most reliable interpretation of the law, and until each district has been given an opportunity to pass the machines on it will not be possible to entirely weed them out.

Democrats see in this provision an obvious effort on the part of the present administration to satisfy public sentiment without allowing for any particularly destructive movement by the Democratic forces at this time, and it is evident that if there is to be any sweeping reform through the new law it must come as a result of the most determined and consistent work by Democrats throughout the county.

At present there are four voting machines in use in this city, one in each ward. As the law is now interpreted, the machine in any districts referred to could be moved into one of the other districts in the same ward if it should be voted out of its present location.

It is stated that the Democratic County Committee has taken this provision into consideration in laying plans for a crusade against machines, and that petitions to cover every district where the machines are now in use will be placed in circulation.

ITALIANS VICTIMIZED BY AN ORIGINAL METHOD

Fifteen Italians who live in the vicinity of Berkeley Heights and Union Village are making determined efforts to find an unknown man who robbed them of $2 each by an original scheme Saturday.

The victims had been working on a building at West Summit and were laid off. The stranger chanced to meet them and declared he needed a lot of men for just such a contract but that it would be a week or two before he would be ready. In the meantime, he said, if they wanted to keep busy he could put them at work picking stones off his farm at Union Village, agreeing to give them $1 a day.

The Italians accepted the offer and walked four miles to Union Village to start in. The stranger took them to the farm of John Davis after he had gone ahead and asked permission to gather the stones, stating that he wanted to use them in mixing concrete. At noon time he told the stonepickers that he would have to return to West Summit for some tools and demanded that each of the fifteen men give him $2 as a guarantee that they would remain on the job. Everyone paid up but the stranger hasn't been seen since.

The Italians kept picking stones until late Saturday afternoon when it gradually dawned on them that they had been "stung." No one knows who the swindler is and they have but slight hopes of getting their money back, let alone the pay for picking stones.

DELIGHTFUL MUSICALE AT MRS. G. P. MELLICK'S

Mrs. George P. Mellick, of East Seventh street, yesterday afternoon, gave an informal piano recital at which the performers were Miss Edith Mellick and Manfred Malkin. Miss Mellick has been studying since November under Mr. Malkin with a view to entering the Paris Conservatory in the fall, and her progress has been marked. For so young a pupil her playing is brilliant and the improvement in her technique and her facility as well as in her expression and her phrasing is noticeable.

The program consisted of selections usually attempted by virtuosos only and her rendition was not only pleasing, but remarkable. Those who heard her thoroughly enjoyed her music and predict a brilliant future. Mr. Malkin added to the pleasure of the guests by playing some selections from Chopin and Liszt's Twelfth Rhapsodie. Miss Mellick's selections were a Mendelssohn etude, a waltz by Moskowski and a Volpe waltz.

FIRE EXTINGUISHERS FOR BOROUGH SCHOOLS

The North Plainfield Board of Education, at last night's meeting, voted to purchase six hand fire extinguishers to be placed in the borough schools. The order will be given at once, and four of the extinguishers will be placed in the Somerset Street School while the other two will be put in the Watchung School. Members of the Board discussed informally the action of the Borough Council in rejecting the petition of the school fathers for a fire alarm box at the Watchung School. The box at this point is considered a necessity by the Board for the school protection, for the nearest boxes are a block away.

In the absence of President James R. Joy of the Board, Dr. J. H. Cooley was in the chair. Other absentees were Messrs. Nichols and Rushmore. Bills amounting to $3,216.62 were ordered paid.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION OF BUSINESS COLLEGE

"The Founding of the Colonies" was the topic of an illustrated lecture by former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer at the entertainment at the Plainfield Business College last night, when the faculty and pupils of the school celebrated the first anniversary of the institution in their new home in the Woodhull & Martin building. Mr. Swackhamer's remarks were of an educational nature, and he traced the experiences of the early American settlers in the New England colonies from the landing of the Mayflower through the witchcraft troubles up to the Revolution. The assembly room was taxed to its utmost seating capacity and the audience numbered nearly 400, including many graduates of the school and friends of the pupils.

The pictures shown in connection with the lecture were projected on the screen by a triple steriopticon lantern belonging to Thomas Schaefer. Mr. Schaefer also showed a series of handsomely colored dissolving pictures of general interest. In connection with the program of entertainment, Elmer Cutting sang several selections, "Under the Acorn Tree," and "When you know you're not forgotten by the girl you can't forget."

Principal A. S. Herr of the school spoke briefly in welcome to the gathering and Mr. Swackhamer later told of the fundamental ideas represented in the school. He spoke of the aim of the institution in character development as well as curriculum work, stating that knowledge is not everything to the pupil.

PLACE BAN ON BOOKIES

Watchung Hunt Club Takes Action to Prevent Book-Making at Steeplechase.

MIDDLESEX OFFICIALS TO AID.

Unpleasant and Undeserved Notoriety After Last Year's Event, Prompts Club to Act.

Not desiring a repetition of the unpleasant notoriety foisted upon it last year through no fault of its own, the Watchung Hunt Club has taken advance steps to prevent book-making at the steeplechase meet next Saturday afternoon. The officials have appealed to Sheriff Church and Prosecutor Berdine, of Middlesex county, to assist them in supressing the practice and they have been assurred that any attempt to receive wagers will result in arrests.

At the club's meet, last May, a dozen or more professional race track followers came out from New York and set up their blackboards in plain sight of the grandstand. Odds on the various horses were chalked up and bets were received despite the protests of the stewards of the meet and other members of the hunt organization. Policemen were on the grounds but they were powerless to make arrests as the Driving Park is located in Middlesex county, consequently the "bookies" refused to recognize any orders to vacate.

Stories of the betting that took place were circulated the next day and a well meaning but overzealous Plainfielder succeeded in getting the New York newspapers to take the matter up as a basis for sensational articles. The majority of them contained numerous falsehoods and the names of innocent people were frequently mentioned. The Hunt Club deplored the whole affair but was powerless to stop the flippant way in which it was treated and the agitation continued for nearly a month.

It was through this occurrence that the club members determined that they would go to any length to prevent the book makers working at the track on Saturday and the cooperation of the county authorities was sought. From indications the meet will be attended by a record-breaking crowd.

SCHOOL HEAD WANTS ASSESSMENT INCREASED

As County Supervisor of Somerset County public schools, Henry C. Krebs, of North Plainfield is taking active part in the general reform of tax assessing methods of the county, along with Mayor Samuel Townsend and the county officials. In a letter sent out by him to all township collectors in the county, Mr. Krebs explains the value of increasing the tax valuation, explaining that with an increase of the assessed valuations will come an increase in the money received by the county schools under the Perkins' law. Mr. Kreb's letter follows:

"The railroad tax apportionment is made annually in proportion to the assessed values of each county. The higher the assessments of the county, the more money received from this railroad tax.

"Union county receives $150,000 of this tax money this year, while Somerset gets only $32,000. Last year Union county doubled its assessed valuations and hence gets $150,000 instead of $75,000 as it would under the former valuation. Somerset county, on the contrary, raised its valuations but very little. If Somerset had done what Union did, (doubled its assessments), we would get $64,000 instead of $32,000. If the assessments were doubled, school districts could do away with the local school tax almost entirely."

JOHN YOUNG RECOVERS $1,200 FROM THE P.S.C.

John Young, of West Front street, dho sued the Public Service Corporation in the Union County Court, yesterday for $5,000 damages, the result of injuries received in an accident on the evening of October 19 last, was given a verdict for $1,200, the jury remaining out about three-quarters of an hour.

According to the declaration, Young was driving along West Front street and had to keep on the trolley tracks because of another wagon nearby. He attempted to drive off the tracks, but before he could clear hte rails, the car crashed into his wagon, overturning it and pitching him headlong in the street. He received such injuries about the head and shoulders that he was laid up for long time.

The wagon that Young was seated in was of a peculiar make, the front wheels being so high as to make it impossible for him to turn as readily as he might otherwise have done. He claimed that although the motorman saw him on the tracks, he made no attempt to sound his gong or to slacken the speed of the car. The defense was contributory degligence on the part of Young. The plaintiff was represented by J. A. Kiernan, of Elizabeth, while A. A. Clark, of Somerville, was counsel for the company.

JIMMIE" DOUGHERTY HAS PASSED AWAY

James Dougherty, known to the patrons of the Kensington hotel and all his many acquaintances about town as "Jimmie," died Sunday night at his home, 4126 Manyunk avenue, Roxborough, Philadelphia. The funeral will be held in the Roxborough church tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

"Jimmie" came to Plainfield from Philadelphia seven years ago to work at the Hotel Keinsington. He was brought here by the then proprietor, J. A. Staats, who was attracted by his sunny disposition and habit of singing at any and all times. He possessed a rich baritone voice and was something of a comedian though not possessing the talent of his brother, "Hughie" Dougherty, one of the principal funmakers in Dumont's Philadelphia minstrels. "Jimmie" remained here until a few months ago when he fell victim to tuberculosis and Mr. Staats had him entered in the Glen Gardner sanitarium for treatment. After staying a week, he expressed a desire to return to his old home and he was immediately sent there.

News of "Jimmie's" death was received in town last night and there were many expressions of regret. Everybody he met became his friend and when he went away inquiries as to his welfare were made by the score. He was about forty years old and had always lived in Philadelphia before coming to Plainfield.

ARRESTED AS EMBEZZLER

F. A. Long Committed to Jail on Employer's Charge that He Stole $1,800.

FORMERLY A PLAINFIELDER.

New Brunswick Hardware Dealer Accuses His Confidential Clerk of Betraying Trust.

Firman A. Long, for many years a well-known resident of North Plainfield, but more recently of New Brunswick, where he was employed by Philip Weigel, Jr., a hardware dealer, was arrested in that city yesterday afternoon and committed to jail on a charge of embezzling $1,800 in small amounts covering a long period from Mr. Weigel, for whom he had been confidential clerk since 1900, at which time he moved to New Brunswick from Plainfield.

According to Mr. Weigel's story he caught Long helping himself to the cash last February, and spared him arrest at that time upon his promise to pay back the money. Long then paid $500 on account, but his failure to pay any more led to his arrest yesterday.

Since living in New Brunswick Long has been a prominent worker in Pitman M. E. church, but immediately following his trouble with his employer he withdrew his membership without publicity, the official board of the church requesting him to do so. Long's family has been held in high respect in New Brunswick.

While a resident of this city, Long was very prominent in Jr. O. U. A. M. circles, being an officer in Franklin Council, No. 41, of that order, and in addition holding several State offices. He was not especially active here in church circles. He was employed here as a clerk in a hardware store before going to New Brunswick.

DIVIDE AUTO FEES ON MILEAGE BASIS

Attorney General McCarter has given an opinion to State Road Commissioner Gilkyson, holding that the amendment to the automobile law passed by the legislature of 1908 divides the income from motor vehicles among municipalities in proportion to their mileage of improved roads. Heretofore the division has been based upon the state aid amounts. It is estimated that the receipts this year will be about $82,000, or nearly $26,000 more than last year.

Under the new method of distribution Middlesex and other counties which have built their own macadam roads will be the gainers. Improved roads under the motor vehicle act do not include streets paved with cobblestones, Belgian blocks or asphalt.

The distribution of the automobile fund in 1907 was as follows: Atlantic, $3,896.43; Burling., $8,850.75; Camden, $3,724.60; Cape May, $1,158.66; Cumberland, $62.96; Essex, $4,598.27; Gloucester, $3,864.70; Hudson, $125.91; Mercer, $5,987.02; Middlesex, $6,015.14; Monmouth, $4,345.89; Morris, $3,122.15; Ocean, $1,695.63; Passaic, $2,540.71; Salem, $1,146.95; Somerset, $3,104.61; Sussex, $341.50; Union, $176.98; Warren, $1,719.98.

AUTO SMASHES HYDRANT; STREET FLOOD FOLLOWS

An automobile driven by Elvin Hoffman, of Whitehouse, was speeding along West Front street at a fast clip yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, when it struck a wet spot in the macadam near Lafayette place. The machine swerved suddenly and dove straight for the sidewalk, bringing up with a bang against a fire hydrant. The onslaught was more than the hydrant could stand and it broke off close to the ground.

The auto kept right on going after the collision and by so doing escaped a drenching from a miniature geyser that sprang up. Inside of a few minutes the street in that section was flooded so badly that traffic was interfered with. The police notified the water company and Superintendent Andrews shut off the main feeding the hydrant.

Despite the force of the impact, the auto was but slightly damaged and Hoffman was able to proceed after a few minor repairs.

BAVARIAN OPERA STAR FORMERLY LIVED HERE

Miss Josephine Schaffer, formerly a resident of the borough, is meeting with great success as an opera singer in Augsburg, Bavaria, where she recently signed a two years' contract with the management of the Augsburger City Theatre.

Miss Schaffer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schaffer, who moved from the borough to Brooklyn several years ago. During her residence in this city, she sang in the choir at St. Mary's church. Subsequently she went to New York to study music as a pupil of Emma Thursby, the Metropolitan opera singer and went from there to Bavaria. The foreign press is enthusiastic about her voice, for though she has what the Bavarians term "a slight foreign accent," she is commended for her clear intonation, and thorough technical accomplishment. Miss Schaffer sings as "Leonore" in Verdi's "Troubador" and as "The Countess' in "Ill Trovatore."

CITY TO SEND KIELY TO CHIEF'S CONVENTION

The Councilmanic Police Board held a special meeting last night, when it was decidled to send Chief-of-Police P. S. Kiely to Detroit to attend the annual convention of the Police Chief's Association of the United States and Canada. The convention will be in sesion for one week commencing Monday, and it is the intention of Chief Kiely to leave here on Sunday. Councilman Frank DeWitt Randolph expected to accompany the chief, but finds it impossible to get away at this time.

The board also decided to increase the regular force by three men if the right kind of material can be found. Applications for the positions on the force will be received either by Chief Kiely or members of the board. In view of the fact that there are so many men out of employment the board believes that there will be no trouble in getting the required number.

There was a discussion regarding the new police headquarters' building and Chairman Randolph with Councilman Robert E. Hall were appointed a building committee to see that the structure is completed in strict accordance with the plans and specifications.

MOTORMAN BADLY HURT

Thrown from His Car Last Night, Patrick Boylan Lies Unconscious at Hospital.

MYSTERY IN THE ACCIDENT.

Probably Hurled From Platform by Striking Turnout in thick Fog—Lives on West Fifth Street.

Patrick Boylan, of West Fifth street, a motorman employed by the Public Service Corporation, lies in Muhlenberg Hospital in a serious condition, suffering from concussion of the brain, the result of a fall from his car while making his trip to the Dewey Park car barns, at 12 o'clock last night.

Boylan's run extends from Raritan to Bound Brook, but he had finished work and was bound for the barns with an empty trolley when the accident occurred. It was very foggy at the time and the car was making good time, when suddenly conductor Biles noticed that Boylan was not on the front end. He pulled the pole off the wire and brought the trolley to a stop as quickly as possible. He then made a hurried search and found the motorman lying alongside the tracks in an unconscious condition. While he was trying to get the man on the car a train the trolley came along eastbound and he was taken aboard and brought to Plainfield with all possible speed.

When this city was reached the police patrol was summoned and Boylan was removed to the hospital, where his condition is said to be serious.

Just what caused the accident is not exactly known. One explanation which seems likely is that Boylan was runnning his car at good speed and in the fog failed to slow down for a turnout, the trolley striking it with such force as to throw him out. An examination showed that he was considerably bruised about the head. The company officials speak well of Boylan's reputation, declaring that he is a careful man. He and the conductor were alone on the car when the accident happened.

REALTY MEN INVADE "THE CITY BEAUTIFUL"

Members of the Board of Governors of the New Jersey-New York Real Estate Exchange, the real estate writers on nearly all of the Metropolitan newspapers, together with Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of this city, and Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield, and members of the Board of Trade, are spending the afternoon touring Union county in seventeen automobiles. The party reached Plainfield about 12:45 and went to Truell Hall, where lunch was served to sixty people.

Following the lunch some time was devoted to speechmaking, among those responding being Mayor C. J. Fisk and Mayor Samuel Townsend, as well as Otto Kempner, president of the real estate exchange and members of the Board of Governors.

About 2:30 a start was made from Truell Hall for a tour of Plainfield. The trip, while it included the city in general, covered that part which is in line for development. The visitors expressed themselves as being well pleased with the prospects here for substantial growth.

From this city the party went to Fanwood, Westfield, Cranford, Kenilworth, Roselle and Elizabeth, where they had an excellent opportunity of seeing for themselves the chances for future building and otherwise improving Metropolitan Jersey. The whole affair is in charge of a committee of which Elston M. French is the chairman, and which includes representatives of the Board of Trade.

To Test Apparatus.

During the forthcoming carnival to be given in Jersey City for the benefit of the Jersey City firemen's pension fund there will be daily exhibitions of the working of new lifesaving appliances. These exhibits will be furnished by members of the fire department, and will include tests of a number of newly patented devices in the way of nets, so constructed as to obviate to the minimum the shock to the people jumping into them. The carnival will continue two weeks.

Christian Science Meeting.

Judge Septimus J. Hanna, C. S. D., will give a free lecture on Christian Science at the New Plainfield theatre Monday night. The local society, which holds regular services in its rooms in the Babcock building, is preparing to receive a large congregation and all are invited to hear Judge Hanna's address.

More Money for Road Fund.

State Road Commissioner Frederick Gilkyson has received from Attorney General McCarter an opinion which holds that under the amendments to the Frelinghuysen automobile law, which was passed last winter, the income derived from motor vehicles must be divided among the various municipalities of the State in proportion to the mileage of improved roads in each. In the past the revenues from this source have been apportioned only on the basis of roads in which the State shared the burden of construction. Under the new method of distribution Union county will receive a liberal sum from the State fund as one of the counties building its own macadam roads.

Hans Lobert doesn't want to go to St. Louis a little bit.

Tim Murnane says Hobe Ferris looks better than for years.

It isn't so much having strong players that wins pennants as having players who will keep hustling.

The result of the New York-St, Louis series in the Mound City did not plunge Billy Gilbert into uncontrollable grief.

Midget Miller Huggins is right in the game for the Reds in all departments these days. That little man's consistently good playing deserves to land him on a pennant winner.

Three American League managers—Griffith, Jones and Jennins—now have the unenviable distinction of having been indefinitely suspended by Ban Johnson for kicking tactics.

Victor Willis figured in two shutout victories for the Pittsburgs and the next time out was batted out of the box. Of such ups and downs are the lives of our diamond notables made up.

DETECTIVES INVESTIGATE THIS DROWNING CASE.

It was learned from an authoritative source at Princeton last night that two negroes were likely to be placed under arrest shortly on suspicion of having been implicated in the drowning of Miss Bertha Vanderbilt, who lost her life in the canal near Princeton on May 13.

The two New York detectives employed by A. R. Vanderbilt, of Amsterdam, N. Y., father of the dead girl, now believe that she met with foul play and that she did not accidentally fall into the canal, as was at first believed. The detectives have been working on the case since the day after Miss Vanderbilt was reported missing and claim that they have secured enough evidence to warrant one arrest at least.

Suspicion points, it is said, to two negroes, who live in the vicinity of the aqueduct, where the girl was drowned. It was learned yesterday that Miss Vanderbilt asked one of the negroes where a certain bridge was located along Carnegie Lake on the day she met her death.

What happened at that time is being kept a secret by the authorities. At anyrate, the detectives have learned enough about the case to cast suspicion upon the negroes. The officers have been sworn in as deputy sheriffs, both in Middlesex and Mercer counties.

This action was taken so the officers could make an arrest in either county. The negroes live near the dividing line of the counties.

That section where the drowning took place is a very lonely one even in the daytime and many tough characters have been seen in that locality. The negroes under suspicion have bad reputations. One of them has served a term in the State prison for murder.

What would be the motive for doing away with the girl is not known. When she went to the Aqueduct on the fatal day she carried no money or jewelry. All her valuable were left in her room.

In the morning the cemeteries in Bound Brook, Millstone, Somerville, Raritan and other places will be decorated.

Firemen Wear New Style Hats.

The members of the fire department today donned the regulation style of headgear, similar to that worn by the members of the New York Fire Department. The change is such a radical one from the former style that it has caused considerable comment.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will attend divine service at Trinity Reformed church Sunday night, when Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson will preach a patriotic sermon.

"Christ and His Choice of the Men to Whom He Would Trust Himself," will be the subject of the mid-prayer meeting at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tomorrow night.

Rev. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the First M. E. church, who has been attending Generaly Conference of the Methodist church at Baltimore, as a delegate, is expected to return home in time to occupy his pulpit the first Sunday in June.

Under the auspices of the Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church a strawberry and ice cream festival and entertainment will be given at the church Friday afternoon and evening. The entertainment will be given in the evening.

The regular prayer meeting of the West End Tabernacle will be held tomorrow night instead of Thursday night. The services will be conducted by the members of the Plainfield Rescue Mission. Special music will be a feature. Everybody is welcome.

The members of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church are preparing a box of warm clothing for men, women and children to be sent to the Labrador Mission, conducted by Dr. Grenfell. Gifts of money may be sent to Mrs. Isaac Miller, of Watchung avenue.

UNITED PRESBYTERIANS MAY JOIN PRESBYTERIANS.

Exceeding in importance all previous meetings of the denomination, the General Conference and semi-centennial celebration of the United Presbyterian church will begin its deliberations in Pittsburg next Wednesday.

Foremost among the important matters will be a discussion of union with the Presbyterian church.

The United Presbyterian church was born in Pittsburg on Wednesday, May 26, 1858. The manner in which the consolidation was brought to a conclusion was most interesting. The Synod of the Associate church was meeting in the First church, Pittsburg, and the General Assembly of the Associate Reformed church was holding its meeting in the First church, Allegheny, across the Allegheny river. The Associate Reformed Synod, marching in a body, crossed the river and met the Associate Synod coming down Seventh avenue, Pittsburg. A member of the Synod took the arm of an ember of the other Synod and thus formed a double line, the two Moderators and the professors of theology at the head, the rest following in order of tehir age, and marced in procession to the old City Hall, where appropriate services were held.

For the purpose of stimulating the missionary and educational interests, and a plan for a larger United Presbyterian church, a commission appointed by the General Assembly has been laboring for years to present on htis jubilee occasion a free-will offering of $2,000,000. It is not known just how much money has been pledged, but it is said it will reach $1,250,000.

DEADLOCK IS BROKEN AT METHODIST CONFERENCE.

The breaking of the long deadlock in the balloting for Methodist bishops, at Baltimore, which resulted in the election of Dr. William A. Quayle of Chicago, has made the matter of elections to the four remaining vacancies somewhat easier, and it is generally considered probable that the balloting will be completed today. The twelfth ballot, announced yesterday afternoon, resulted in the election of Dr. Charles W. Smith, editor of the Pittsburg Christian Advocate. At the same time the Rev. Edwin Hughes of De Pauw University and the Rev. W. S. Lewis of Morningside College, Sioux City, Ia., were within a few votes of election.

Dr. Eugene Allen Noble, president of the Centenary Collegiate Institute of Hackettstown, N. J., was yesterday chosen president of the Woman's College of Baltimore by the trustees of that institution. He will begin his new duties as soon as he can be released at Hackettstown.

STOPS SUNDAY GOLF GAME.

Mayor of Collingswood, N. J., Refuses Permission to Make Test Case.

Sunday golf playing was stopped yesterday at the Camden Country Club. When a dozen members of the club appeared at the clubhouse Sunday morning and tied up, the Collingswood police appeared and told them that Mayor Collings had said, "No more Sunday golf."

Among those who had gone to the grounds to play fas former Judge Harrison H. Voorhees. Thinking an appeal to the Mayor might soften the stern decree, Judge Voorhees called him on the telephone.

"We would like to make a test case of this law," said Judge Voorhees, "and would like to have you take the names of two or three who play and let the courts decide the issue."

"No, I guess not," replied the Mayor. "This is my day today; you can't play golf today." There was no golf.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Michael Cronin, Peter Rickett and William Brennan, three boys in their 'teens, were arrested by Marshal Bambach Saturday night for ridiculing Borough Recorder David S. Campbell on North avenue. There were others in the party, and the boys made a point of ridiculing and jeering at passers-by. The failed to recognize the Recorder, and passed out a few mocking remarks as he passed. Marshal Bambach was notified and three of the party were caught and brought before Mr. Campbell. He gave them a severe lecture and dismissed them with a warning.

Music will be by Broshart's orchestra, and the floor committee is headed by C. T. Voorhees and C. H. Dodwell.

It seemed that the Bridgeport management had too many catchers on the staff, and they released Nelson. On Saturday, he played in the field for the Bound Brook team against the "Outlaws" of this city. He will probably play with the New Brunswicks on Saturdays. His work about here has been excellent both behind the bat and at the bat, and local fans are nuable undrestand why he was released.

Walter Nelson, the former Rutgers catcher and captain, who this season joined the Bridgeport team of the Connecticut League for a try out as a catcher is back at his home in New Market.

CONVICT'S "BLUFF" GETS HIM INTO TROUBLE.

Trenton, May 26.—Charles Diggs, a Camden negro, serving a seven-year term in the State prison for breaking, entering and larceny, is confined in a lonely cell with a ball and chain attached to his leg, while Charles Clayton, a deputy keeper in the prison, is taking an enforced vacation of two months as a result of Digg's latest effort to escape.

Diggs used two clock springs for a saw and cut his way through the steel bars of his cell after three weeks of laborious effort, only to walk into the arms of a keeper when he stepped into the corridor and planned for flight. Investigation showed that the fellow had no hope of getting outside the walls and was evidently only playing one of the practical jokes for which he has been noted ever since he was received in the prison. The authorities, however, failed to appreciate the joke.

Diggs was regarded as an ignorant negro when he was committed some months ago, but he soon created consternation by dropping from the line and hiding for two hours behind a pile of goods while the deputies searched high and low for him Then he walked out and laughed for an hour. Some weeks later he hid in anisolated cell for half a day while the whole force of keepers was searching for him.

THE MEN INJURED IN PENNSY HEAD-ON CRASH.

Jersey City, May 26.—One man was perhaps fatally injured and two others were severely hurt in a head on collision between freight trains near the Greenville bridge of the Pennsylvania Railroad Saturday. The injured are:

Carl Imley, twenty-five years old, of Trenton, skull fractured.

Michael Morgan, thirty-six years old, of Williams avenue, this city, scalp wounds.

Henry Beans, thirty-five years old, of Edgemore, Del., hip injured.

It is believed that there was a misunderstanding of signals, which resulted in a head-on smash between engine No. 2047 and engine No. 2158. The latter toppled over when the collison occurred and knocked over engine No. 1070, which was running on a parallel track.

Beans and Morgan, who are railroad employes, as is Imley, had thier injuries dressed by a physician and went to their homes. Imley is in the City Hospital here, and there is little likelihood that he will recover from his injuries. He was on one of the engines and was thrown under it when it toppled over.

SLIP IN AUTO TEST CASE.

Writ Dismissed in Hearing on Technicality.

United States Judge William M. Lanning, late yesterday afternoon dismissed the application for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of Richard H. Johnson of New York, who was arrested at Trenton last Friday while en route from New York to Philadelphia at the instance of the White Automobile Company to test the constitutionality of that feature of the Frelinghuysen Automobile law, requiring all persons touring in this State, whether residents or not, to have New Jersey licenses.

Capt. John J. Cleary, who made the arrest, testified to serving the warrant, and that Police Magistarte Harris had held the prisoner in $200 bail. He testified that no bail was furnished, but that he had not detained the prisoner. The court refused to go further, saying that the case was not one for habeas corpus proceedings. So this attempt to test the autimobile law in the Federal courts came to a sudden end.

Biggest New York Policeman Quits.

New York, May 26.—Lieutenant Archibald Taggert, the biggest policeman in New York, six feet six inches tall and 300 pounds in weight, has retired after twenty years on the force. He will become a butcher. Taggart earned several medals for bravery. He comes of a Newburg family noted for the number and size of itsh members. There are tight sons and three daughters, whose total weight is 2,344 pounds, an average of 213 pounds, and whose total height is sixty-eight feet three inches an average of six feet two and one-half inches. The father, now dead stood six feet in height and weighed more than 300 pounds. The mother is of average size.

Socialist Speakers Discharged.

Henry R. Kearns and Frank Hubschmitt, who were arrested on Saturday night in Hackensack when they attempted to address on open air socialist meeting, appeared before Recorder Carroll today. They were told they had violated both the state law and the ordinance which prohibits street meetings unless a special permit is granted by the Mayor. The Recorder suspended sentence. Mayor McBride says he is determined to put a stop to such meetings in the streets.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Lewis Rambonio, charged with shooting at Mrs. Reitz, as she sat in her home at Malaga, was found guilty in the Gloucester County Court.

Speaker Frank B. Jess, chief examiner of the State Civil Service Commission, entertained a number of political friends at a planked shad dinner at Washington Park, Saturday.

The suit brought by Squire Joseph R. Brown, of Cassville, against former Senator George L. Shinn, of New Egypt, to collect money said to have been expended in Shinn's behalf in providing dinners for voters at the last election, is said to have been abandoned.

George H. Barlow, a Trenton policeman, has begun suit in the Court of Chancery for divorce, charging that his wife, formerly a Miss Wilcox, of Beaver Falls, Pa., deserted him seven years ago, leaving behind two small children, one only a few weeks old, and returned to her former home.

The body of Edward Lally, thirty-seven years old, was found yesterday morning by churchgoers beside the tracks of the New Jersey Central Railroad, on the outskirts of Vineland. It is supposed that he was killed by a freight train during the night. Coroner Halsey is investigating the case.

The body of a woman, about thirty-five years of age, was found in Big Timber Creek near the drawbridge yesterday. It is possible that she met death by trying to cross the bridge after dark, Saturday night. She was clad in a dark skirt and jacket and a white shirtwaist. The body, which was taken to Woodbury, has not been identified.

When the Camden police raided the alleged disorderly house of William A. Burton, at Branch and Sixth streets, early yesterday morning, one woman jumped out of a second-story window on the shoulders of another woman and the pair fell in the arms of a policeman. With Burton the women were taken to the city jail.

The Camden Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has had its attention drawn to the many traps set in alleys for cats. These are placed there by boys and baited with meat to lure the tabbies to their fate, for the boys get twenty-five cents for each cat hide, and the business is a paying one. The disappearance of pet cats has caused sadness in many Camden homes.

While fishing with his father near the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad, May's Landing, yesterday, seven-year-old Edmond Tarlecke started across the tracks in his bare feet. He tripped, struck the third rail and received the terrible electric charge. His father sprang to his rescue and was also shocked. Dr. Sauisberry, who is attending the lad, says that while he is badly burned, he will recover.

When called up on the telephone and informed that her mother was dead, Mrs. Charles M. Kessler, of Chelsea, dropped the receiver and fell in a swoon, from which she recovered in two hours to learn that the shocking message was a hoax. Detectives employed by Kessler learned yesterday that the message was forwarded from an Acrtic avenue shop by Charles W. Armstrong. He was arrested and committed to jail on a charge of disorderly conduct. Armstrong tried to explain to the police that it was a joke.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

It is not easy to translate into English the exact meaning of "Divorcons," the French title of the great Sardou comedy in which Miss Grace George will be seen on Saturday, afternoon and night, in the New Plainfield theatre. The word is French, and is idiomatic. Perhaps the best rendering it can have in English is "Let's get divorced," spoken sharply, angrily, impatiently, as an exclamation. It is usual, when a play with a French or foreign title is translated into English for use in Great Britain or the United States, to translate the title, as well; but this was never undertaken in this country until after the play had become so well known by its original title as to make commercially risky the venture of changing it. The late Emily Bancker, however, tourded for a season in av ersion of the play which she called "The Divorce-Cure." In Great Britain, until Miss George gave the play there, it was always known by another title, such as "Today," "Mixed Relations," and "The Queen's Proctor."

Bazaar at Christian Church.

A three nights bazaar will be held in the Christian church on Grove street, beginning tonight. The opening will be marked by an entertainment, a supper will be sreved Wednesday night and on Thursday the articles remaining from the booths will be sold at auction. There will also be an entertainment at the close.

Rector Sailed Today.

Rev. A. S. Peck, rector of St. Stephen's church, sailed yesterday on the Kaiser Wilhelm II for Cherbourg, and will spend the summer abroad. He will return in the fall on one of the steamers of the Italian Line. He purchased his tickets through the agency of Mulford Estil.

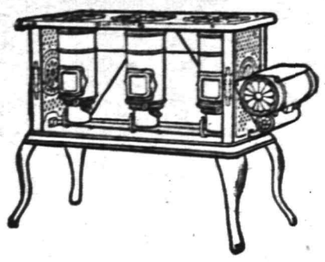
Don't Heat the Kitchen



All the necessary family cooking may be done as well on a New Perfection Wick, Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove as on the best coal or wood range.

By using the "New Perfection" Oil Stove, the annoyance of an overheated and stuffy kitchen is entirely avoided, even in midsummer. The construction of the CITY JOTTINGS.

—All bills against the city must be in the hands of the city clerk by tomorrow night to insure payment at the June meeting, Monday night.

—Under the auspices of the Groszmann School a May party was held at the school on Saturday afternoon. Parents from New York and vincinity attende the exercises, which consisted of a May-pole dance, recitations and songs by the school. At the close refreshments were served.

—Max Kaufmann, the only one of a number of circus followers held over after arrest Saturday, was arraigned in the city court yesterday morning, on ac harge of selling balloons and whips without a license. As he had been locked up since Saturday morning, the judge deemed the punishment sufficient and let him go.

—Several dogs belonging to a neighbor, entered the hennery of David Mundy on upper Somerset street, Saturday night, and started to end the existence of all the chickens in the place. They had killed forty when Mundy was attracted by the racket and stopped the slaughter by shooting three of the canines. Two others made their escape before the lead could reach them.

—The pupils of the Stillman Grammar School netted $100 from their play, "Mr. Bob," given at the High School last Thursday night and the money will be used to purchase pictuers. Entire credit for the fine performance is due Miss Helena Pope, of Clinton, Mass., who will be the instructor in English at the High School next year. She coached the pupils for the play.

—A twenty-five pound "snapper" turtle was caught in the upper pond of the Plainfield Ice and Cold Storage Company at Watchung, Saturday morning, by a colored man employed by John Morton. He spied the turtle close to the bank and by the aid of a long grappling hook succeeded in landing him. The turtle was disposed of to Henry Windham, of the Waldof Hotel.

"Talking" Pictures This Week.

The marvelous "talking" pictures, that are becoming the fad in the moving picture line, will be shown at the New Plainfield theatre all this week with the exception of Saturday, when Grace George appears. Manager Counihan has secured a fine line of subjects, every one different than has been seen here before. As an additional attraction, amateur numbers will be given Friday night and entries may bel eft at the box office.

Mrs. Ella Thompson, wife of George Thompson, colored, died at her home on East Third street Saturday night. She was forty years old and had lived in this city for a long time. The funeral was held at the residence this afternoon at 2:30.

but in a little while Hartley's secret come out. One day Van took a notion to go down to Half Moon Neck gunning after peeps. He wanted Hartley to go with him, but Martin said no. He said he didn't feel like it, somehow. Why didn't Van put it off? But Van wa'n't the put-off kind. He was going and going right then. He wanted Scudder to sail him down, but Nate was too busy, so he hired Eureka's brother, Lycurgus. The two sailed away in the Dora Bassett to be gone all night. I wa'n't invited. The Twins had no use for me as gunning pilot.

That afternoon late Hartley comes over from the main, rowed by Scudder. The pair of 'em seemed mighty tickled about something.

"Well, Mr. Hartley," says Nate, "we'll see you to-morrow morning. It'll work all right; you see."

"Will he work?" laughs Hartley. "That's the question."

"I cal'late he'll make the bluff," snickers Scudder. "I don't know where he'll sleep nights if he don't. Land of love! Did you see his face when you sprung it on him? Haw! haw!"

When we got to the house Hartley calls in Eureka.

"You're going to stay here to-night," he says to her. "Mr. Pratt and I have an errand ashore early in the morning and Mr. Van Brunt will be back soon after, and hungry, I imagine. So you must be ready with his breakfast. It's all right. Your father understands."

Eureka was some surprised, but she said she'd stay.

All through supper Hartley was laughing to himself. Just afore bedtime he calls me out on the porch.

"Sol," he says, "what would surprise you most in this world?"

"To see Mr. Van Brunt shoot at a bird and hit it," says I. Leaving me out of all these gunning trips jarred my pride considerable.

"Humph!" he says. "He shot a dozen the other day."

"Yes, but I didn't see him shoot 'em."

He laughed. "You countrymen are jealous creatures," he says. "Well, this is more surprising than that. What would you say if Mr. Washington Sparrow consented to go to work?"

I looked at him. "I wouldn't say nothing," I says. "I'd send for a strait-jacket. What are you talking about?"

He turned around in his chair.

"You remember I told you I was going to try to make him?" he says. "Well, I think I've succeeded. Come with me to-morrow morning and see. I'm doing it for the sake of that plucky daughter of his, and it has required some engineering and diplomacy. But I think I win. Don't mention a word to Eureka, though."

I promised to keep mum. I tried to get him to tell me more, but he wouldn't. "Wait and see," was all I could get out of him.

I turned in a kind of trance, as you might say. Washy Sparrow work! Well, I'd have to see him doing it with my own eyes. I wouldn't believe even a tintype of the performance if 'twas took by Saint Peter.

CHAPTER XIV.

"The Best Laid Plans."

We left the island early next day. I rowed to the main and anchored the skiff. Then me and Hartley walked up to the Neck road. I didn't ask no questions. He could speak first or be still. I'd had my dose. Nobody can call me nosey.

He did speak first. "Well, skipper?" he says, finally.

"Well, Mr. Hartley," says I.

"Why don't you ask me what my scheme is? Aren't you curious?"

"Scheme?" says I. "Scheme? I ain't much of a schemer, myself. Nice weather we're having, ain't it?"

He laughed. "Sol," says he. "I like you. You're the right sort—you and Scudder."

Drat him! Why did he want to spoil it all by that last?

"Virtue must be its own reward, then, far's I'm concerned," I says, pretty average dry. "I don't seem to be getting no other kind. Pity me and Nate couldn't divide the substantials more equal."

His face clouded right up. "Money!" he says, disgusted, kicking a stick out of his way. "Don't you for one minute believe that money means happiness."

"All right," I says. "I ain't contradicting you. You've had more experience with it than I have. Sometimes it seems as if I could manage to bear up under a couple of thousand or so without shedding more'n a bucket of tears; but I'm open to conviction—like the feller that said he stole the horse, but they'd got to show proof enough to satisfy him."

'Twas some minutes afore he come out of his blue fit. Then he says:

"The scheme is this: I determined to see what could be done to make things easier for the Sparrow girl. The only solution seemed to be the getting rid of papa."

"If you'd waited long enough," I says, "maybe his consumptive dyspepsy would have saved you the trouble."

"I wish I had your faith," says he.

"You have. The same kind. Washy's is different. His doctrine is faith without work. Go on."

"So I tried to think of some way to bring it about. When you told me that Scudder owned the Sparrow place I saw my chance. Scudder and I consulted. He was willing to lose his tenants provided he didn't lose the rent. The rent was nothing; I promised to make that good until our season here was over and Eureka could return home. But I made it clear that when she did return home her father mustn't return with her. He must be provided for somewhere else. Then we saw the doctor and Morton the minister. Morton was somewhat prejudiced, owing to Van's raffle, but he's a pretty decent fellow and seemed to think what he called a good action on my part might offset even a bedquilt gamble. So between us we fixed it up.

"Old Sparrow is offered a job as general shoveler and brick carrier over there at the hotel. They're building a new addition, you know. Brown, the manager, said he'd take him on, as a favor to me. He has been offered the place. If he doesn't accept, why, out he goes. Scudder has told him he can't stay in his house any longer. You should have seen him when we broke the news last night."

"S'pose he don't accept," I asks. "What about the children?"

"They'll be looked out for. Lycurgus will board at Scudder's. Eureka will stay with us. Editha and the baby will be roomed and fed by the minister. The others are to have good boarding places and go to school. Every one is willing to help the family, but they won't keep the old rascal. It has worked out beautifully."

"Hold on a minute," says I. "It's all right, as a clam. But Eureka won't let her dad suffer even though she knows there ain't nothing really the matter with him. And who's going to pay all the young ones' board? She can't."

"I'll attend to that," says he, impatient. "It isn't enough to signify. And it will be all settled before Eureka knows it. The old man will take the job."

"I'll bet a cooky he don't," I says. "But it'll make him scratch gravel one way or 'nother. Bully for you, Mr. Hartley! I'm glad I'm along to see the fun."

"The fun was last night," says he. "Caesar! how he did cough and groan. And then swear! But here's the rest of the crowd."

They were waiting for us on the corner. Dr. Penrose was there, and Mr. Morton, and Cap'n Benijah Poundberry, chairman of selectmen, and Scudder, and Peter T. Brown, manager of the Old Home house. They was all laughing, and thinking the whole thing a big joke.

"Mr. Hartley," says the doctor, "I wish you were to be a permanent resident. There are a few more more cases of this kind I'd like to have you tackle."

We walked on together the rest of the way, laughing and talking. Nobody took the business serious at all. They all thought Washy would go to work when he found 'twas either that or get out and hustle for a place to put his head in.

We marched into the Sparrow yard like a Fourth of July parade. Hartley knocked at the kitchen door. Editha opened it.

"Is your father in?" asked the Twin.

"Yes, sir," says Editha. "He's in. I s'pose you'd like to see him, wouldn't you? Pa, here's Mr. Hartley."

There was a groan from the dining room. Then some coughs, like a string of small earthquakes. Finally a dreadful weak voice orders us to step right in. The rest of the crowd went on ahead. I stopped for a jiffy to speak to Editha.

"Where's the rest of the children?" I asks.

"I sent 'em over to the grocery store on an errand," she says. "I thought you'd be along pretty soon. They took the baby with 'em."

"How's your dad been since he heard the news?" says I.

"Oh, he was going on terrible last night. Had nerve spells and fired the chairs around and carried on so we was all scared. But he went out about nine o'clock with a letter he'd wrote, and this morning he seems better. Say, Mr. Pratt," she whispers, eager, "is it true that me and Dewey are going to live with the minister's folks?"

"Maybe so," says I. "Why?"

"Oh! I hope so," she says. "Then I could go to school, and pa wouldn't be 'round to jaw us, and Reky'd have a little rest. She does need it so."

Think of a 12-year-old young one talking like that. But the children was all grown-ups in that family.

I went into the dining room. The delegation was gathered on one side of the table, and Washy was crumpled up in his rocker on the other. He looked some scared.

"Well, Mr. Sparrow," Hartley was beginning when I come in, "have you made up your mind about the position which this gentleman has been kind enough to offer you?" He pointed to Brown as he said it.

"Hey?" asks the invalid, feeble.

Martin said it all over again; he had to stop in the middle so's to give the candidate for the job a chance to cough and turn loose a few groans.

And all that Washy said when the Twin had finished was another "Hey?"

Hartley begun to lose patience. "You heard what I said," he snaps, sharp. "Have you made up your mind?"

"Don't get mad, Mr. Hartley," pleads the sufferer, sad and earnest. "Please don't. My nerves is dreadful weak this morning and I ain't able to stand it. I've had coughing spells ever since I got out of bed. Well, I won't have to linger here much longer. Pretty soon I'll be laid away, and—"

"Have you made up your mind?" interrupts Martin. "Answer quick. The time of these gentlemen is valuable."

"Don't, Mr. Hartley. Please don't. How can you cruelize a poor feller this way? Don't you know that any kind of stir and rumpus is the worst thing for me? Any doctor'll tell you that—"

"Bosh!" 'Twas Dr. Penrose that said it, and he stepped forward. "Bosh!" says he again.

"What's that? Why, if it ain't my old friend the doctor! I never noticed you was there. I'm awful glad to see you, Doc. Seems just like old times. You'll excuse my not getting up, won't you? I've wasted away so since you was here that—"

"Bosh!" says the doctor again. "You're fatter than ever. There's nothing in the world the matter with you but pure downright dog laziness. Don't cough on my account. I don't care to hear it."

Washy looked at him as reproachful and goody-goody as a saint.

"I forgive you for them words, doctor," says he. "I realize I ain't been able to pay my bill to you, and so I can make allowances."

"Allowances! Why, you confounded impudent loafer! I've a good mind to—"

He was purple in the face. Peter Brown caught his arm.

"Ain't this a little off the subject?" he says. "Look here, Sparrow. We need a good husky man about your size at the hotel. We'll pay him ten dollars a week. I've offered you the job. Are you going to take it?"

"There ain't nothing in the world I should like better, Mr. Brown. I like to work, and—"

"All right, then. Get your hat and come along."

"Come along! Why, how you talk! If I was to stir out of this house 'twould—"

'Twas Scudder's turn. "You'll have to stir mighty quick," says he. "I won't have no do-nothing tramps in a house of mine. Either take this chance or out you go next Saturday, bag and baggage."

"Why, Mr. Scudder! Why, Nate! How can you talk so! Just for a little matter of rent. You don't need it. Ain't you been telling me that you had a couple of soft rich folks over to Horsefoot Bar that was paying you a good living and more, too, all by themselves. Don't you remember you said—"

"Shut up!" 'Twas Scudder who got purple now. It looked to me like the invalid was having all the fun. He seemed to be expecting something and playing for time. I guess Hartley thought so, too, for he says:

"That's enough of this. It's plain that he doesn't intend to accept. Mr. Scudder, you have given him formal notice. Come on."

Then Washy broke down. He sniffed and half cried and wanted to know things. The work would kill him in a day or so, of course, but he didn't mind that. When he thought of his poor fatherless children—

"The children will be provided for," says Martin. "I told you that. Mr. Morton will care for Editha and the baby."

"Mr. Morton? Morton? Seems to me I've heard that name afore. Ain't he the gambler? The one that come near being run out of town for stealing a bedquilt from the poorhouse, or something like that? Is he the man to trust with innocent little children?"

"I've Heard Enough," She Says, Cold as Ice.

There it was again. The minister was red as a beet and stammering about "impertinence" and "blackguardism." I thought he'd lick that consumptive right then and there. It took another five minutes to calm him down. And so far we hadn't gained an inch.

And just then a horse and buggy come rattling into the yard. The horse was all over lather, like he'd been drove hard, and the buggy was white with dust. Everybody looked out of the window. Sparrow looked and his face brightened up. I cal'late 'twas exactly what he had been hoping and waiting for. Martin Hartley looked and his eyes and mouth opened. So did mine.

'Twas Lord James that was driving the buggy, and there was a young woman with him. The young woman was Agnes Page.

Agnes jumped from the step and run to the kitchen door. In spite of the dust and her clothes being rumpled and her hat shook over to one side she was as pretty as a picture. The next minute she was in the room, staring solemn at all us men. And her eyes seemed to look right through a feller.

"Why, Agnes—Miss Page!" exclaimed Hartley. "Why are you here? What's the matter?"

She didn't answer him. Just turned to Washy. And says she:

"Am I in time, Mr. Sparrow? I didn't get your letter until nearly nine, because James was delayed at the office. But I hurried right over. I was so afraid I would be too late. Am I?"

The invalid looked at her. And, if he'd been the picture of misery afore, he was a whole panorama of it now. He coughed afore he answered. She shivered, kind of, at that cough, and I don't wonder. If ever there was a graveyard quick-step, Washy Sparrow's cough was it.

"No, ma'am," says he. "I guess not, but I don't know. The shock of it, and—and all, has pretty nigh finished me up. I'm afraid I don't cal'late I'll pull through, but I may. Let's hope for the best, anyhow. But, ma'am, if you'd heard the things that's been said to me!"

She whirled around on us and her eyes flashed chain lightning.

"Ain't you ashamed?" she says. "Great strong men, every one of you, and all banded together to torture a poor helpless invalid."

A feller's conscience is the biggest fool part of his insides. Now I knew that what we'd been doing was exactly the right thing to do, but I felt as mean and small as if I'd been caught stealing eggs. I kind of shriveled up as you might say, and tried to scrouge back into the corner. Maybe I'd have got there, only the rest of the crowd was trying to do the same thing.

All but Hartley. He was a lot set back, but he spoke up prompt.

"Miss Page," said he, "I'm sure you don't understand. We—"

She was back at him afore he'd begun.

"I think that is exactly what I do—understand," she says. "At any rate, I mean to understand thoroughly. Mr. Sparrow, what have they said to you?"

Washy cleared his throat. When he answered 'twas in a sort of beg-pardon voice. You could see how he hated to speak ill of anybody. He wouldn't hurt nobody's feelings for the world. Bless him! he was a cute shyster, if ever there was one.

"It's like I wrote you, ma'am," says he. "They've offered me a place to go to work, and I've been awful tempted to take it. I want to take it. My land! how I want to! But I don't feel able to dig cellars. I wouldn't last at it more'n a few days and then what would become of my fatherless children with nobody to look after 'em? And because I think of these things and can't bring myself to—to—passing away from 'em so soon, I'm going to be put out of my house and home. My little home, that I've thought so much of—"

He had to stop and wipe his eyes. Agnes' eyes were wet, too, and her feet patted the floor. "But why?" says she. "Why?"

"I don't know—that is, for sure, ma'am. You see I ain't been able to earn nothing for some time. Eureka, poor girl, she's had to look out for us all. And I b'lieve the doctor there, his bill ain't been all paid; and we owe Mr. Scudder some rent; and I s'pose likely Eureka would be able to give more of her time to the Island work, and maybe for less pay, if—"

Baseball and General Sports

BASEBALL.

Joss has now won eight straight games, and if he gets past Washington he has hopes of going considerably further. The Washingtons, for some reason or other, are a hard team for Joss to win from.

The Philadelphia players say Eddie Grant is the fastest man in the National League in getting down to first base. The team mates of Geo. Browne and Billy Maloney may differ from that opinion.

Augie Moran, the Eastern League umpire, not only put a couple of players out of the game in Buffalo the other day but also ordered the exile of a spectator who had yelled something objectionable at him.

Richie of the Philadelphias is the hard luck pitcher of the National League so far. He has gone to the mound often, but won only one game. The hard luck of it is that he has pitched some ball that was deserving of better results.

The record of Camnitz of the Pittsburgs this season is worth looking over. In seven games in which he has pitched opponents have made a total of only nine runs. In one game they did not score; in five games they made one run a game, and in the other contest they made four runs.

By the latter part of June the Eastern teams of the American League will have completed their first Western trip and the Western members of the National League their first Eastern trip. It will be time enough when these road tests are completed to size up pennant probabilities with something real substantial to go on.

Both the Cleveland and Detroit were euchred out of a goodly slice of coin in New York by the weather. Both, however, went away from here with bank accounts increased largely. The Clevelands in three games played to a total attendance of 25,000 and the Detroits in three games to a total attendance of 35,000. That is to say, the total attendance at American League Park for the last six games has been about 60,000.

Gains and losses in the big leagues last week were as follows: American League—New York, lost 24 points; Philadelphia, lost 52; Cleveland, gained 21; St. Louis, lost 16; Chicago, no gain or loss; Detroit, gained 22; Washington, gained 4; Boston, gained 47. National League—Chicago, gained 25; Philadelphia, lost 12; Pittsburg, lost 51; New York, lost 82; Boston, lost, 16; Cincinnati, gained 81; Brooklyn, gained 54; St. Louis, gained 50.

While the baseball world has been stirred up over the report that Rube Waddell has quit the St. Louis Americans for good and signed a contract with the Philadelphia Union League team, there is little credence placed in the story. Though Waddell remained in Philadelphia and did not go to Boston with his team, it is the general belief that the eccentric twirler will join the Browns before many days. President Al Lawson, of the outlaw league, yesterday officially stated that Waddell had signed a contract with the Philadelphia club and would pitch for the Quaker City team tomorrow against Allentown. If such turns out to be the case, and Waddell plays with the outlaws, it will probably result in his expulsion from organized baseball for life.

According to newspaper reports, Waddell has been celebrating his notable victory of last Tuesday over the Athletics in hilarious fashion. The "Rube" has been spending some of his time in New Jersey suburban towns. Last night, according to a dispatch from Laurel Springs, this State, Waddell played the role of a fire-flighter in that hamlet. The "Rube," the story goes, led the village fire department in fighting a barn fire, and while the flames eventually won, Waddell is credited with rendering valiant service.

The next State Y. M. C. A. League game to be played by Plainfield will be on Saturday, June 6, when the team will cross bats with the Newark association nine at Newark.

The Clinton Avenues will play the Juniors Saturday morning on Hope Common. In the afternoon Manager Dorflinger's aggregation will meet the Y. M. C. A. team.

GOLF.

The millionaires' golf course near Shinnecock Hills, Long Island, C. B. Macdonald's pet scheme, is gradually assuming attractive lines. Articles of incorporation are also being drawn up, and the organization will be known as the National Golf Club of America. The directors are as follows:

Washington B. Thomas, of Boston; James Deering, Chicago; Robert Lincoln, Chicago; H. M. Atkinson, Atlanta; W. D. Sloan, Lenox; J. M. Bowers, David Chauncey and Charles B. Macdonald, New York.

The number of founders has been limited to seventy and there are already sixty. There is an associate membership, calling for an initiation fee of $100 and $30 a year dues, but when a person joins and pays his membership fee he will not be called upon for dues if he does not play there during the year.

The land purchased consists of 205 acres, with a mile of sea front. About $20,000 has already been expended on the course proper and $5,000 more on pumps and piping. Arrangements have been made by a number of persons chiefly interested to visit this golfer's paradise on Memorial Day.

As devotees of the game know, the plan has been so far as possible to reproduce famous holes abroad, and if the opinion of those who have been over the ground counts for anything there is little doubt that the National course will be in a class by itself in this country. It will not be formally opened for at least a year.

The competitive attraction hereabouts this week is the ninth annual championship tournament of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association, to begin today over the links of the Essex County Country Club. As usual every effort has been made with a view to the comfort of the contestants, and the fact that only one championship round will be played each day makes it impossible for the four days of golf to become burdensome.

As only the makers of the best eight scores will qualify for the title in an eighteen-hole medal play round this qualification test is bound to be somewhat uncertain. For those who fail to get within the first eight, however, prizes have been offered for second, third and fourth eights. There will also be side attractions each afternoon.

The field will be thoroughly representative, as among those who have sent in their names are Miss Georgianna Bishop, of Brooklawn, the present champion; Miss Julia V. Mix, of Englewood, runner-up in last year's Metropolitan; Mrs. S. F. Lefferts and Mrs. E. F. Sanford, Englewood; Miss Isabelle Irving, Richmond county; Miss Helen Rosencranz, Ridgewood; Mrs. Charles L. Tiffany, Nassau, and Mrs. L. D. Callan, Englewood.

Plainfield A. C. Victors.

The Plainfield A. C. defeated the Lincoln A. C., on Saturday by a score of 17 to 6, gathering in nineteen hits off of Meyer and Harny, who were on the slab for the Lincolns. The score by innings:

Lincoln A. C... 0 0 0 0 4 2 0 0 0— 6

Batteries—Mullen, Jeagar and Clark; Meyer, Harny and Gilles.

ENTRY LIST WILL BE A LARGE ONE.

It was decided last night to allow the entry list for the annual Irvington-Millburn road race to remain open until tonight. Up to the time the last mail was received last night ninety-eight names had been sent in. It is expected by the committee that the contestants will number at least 120.

Among the recent riders to announce their determination to try for honors in the famous race are Fred Hill and Peter Drollbach, the Boston amateurs, who are regarded as likely candidates for the amateur track championship; Charles Mock, the famous Long Island rider and holder of many distance records; Wally Smith and Tom Smith, of the National Turn Verein Wheelmen; Daniel M. Adee, a strong rider from Long Island, and son of Daniel D. Adee, president of the National Cycling Association; Clint Ayres, of the Bay View Wheelmen, second place winner in 1906, and Jack Husse, last year's captain of the Bay View Wheelmen's team.

Ten riders will compete from the Bay View Wheelmen, twenty-one from the National Turn Verein Wheelmen, twelve from the Empire City Wheelmen of Brooklyn, six from the Brower Wheelmen of New York city, eight from the Century Road Club of America, nine from the Century Road Association and three from the Hudson Wheelmen.

The prize list is a long one, headed by an Indian motor cycle and six racing wheels.

Memorial Day Games.

There has been a change in the plans for baseball here on Memorial Day, the management of the Clinton Avenues and Y. M. C. A., agreeing to play on Crescent Oval in the morning and in the afternoon the Clinton Avenues will open the season at Somerville by meeting the West Ends. The Y. M. C. A. nine expect to play the Trenton Y. M. C. on Crescent Oval in the afternoon.

Leal's School Track Meet.

The annual athletic meet of the Leal's School Athletic Association will be held tomorrow at the Plainfield Driving Park on Park avenue. Events will be run off in three classes, seniors, juniors and sub-juniors. Medals and ribbons will be awarded the winners.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Welch, members of Martha Washington Council, No. 23, Daughters of America, have received from the Funeral Benefit Association the death claim in full, following the death of their daughter, Miss Florence Welch, on April 23 last. She was a member of the Council.

Each team will have its strongest lineup in the field tomorrow, and Murphey and Smith are slated as the opposing pitchers.

His Girl and His Savings Gone.

Peter Kardice, of No. 162 William street, Newdark, told the police of that city yesterday that Mary Batoni, sixteen years old, to whom he was engaged, has disappeared, had $200 saved in anticipation of their marriage next October, which he had placed in Mary's name in a bank. Inquiry at the bank showed that Mary had drawn it. Peter boarded with Mary's family, they having been friends in Italy. Some of Mary's friends say they have seen her in the street since she disappeared wearing fine clothes, an abundance of jewelry and a big merry widow hat.

Party Entertained at Truell Hall Where Mayor Fisk, Mayor Townsend and Otto Kempner Make Addresses.

Touring in eleven automobiles as the guests of the Plainfield Board of Trade and the New Jersey-New York Real Estate Exchange, twenty four members of the exchange, accompanied by more than a score of local real etate men, went sight-seeing in "Plainfield, the City Beautiful" and near-by towns between here and Elizabeth yesterday afternoon. There were sixty in the party and it was realty day for Plainfield, for all those interested in the development of the vicinity were with the party and the trip was spent in discussing the future of Plainfield and the nearby towns.

Mayor Fisk and Mayor Townsend, as the guests of Elston M. French, member of the local committee for the Exchange, were in the first automobile in its tour of city and borough and spoke at the luncheon tendered the realty men at Truell Hall before the trip. Mr. Fisk's remarks at the hotel were in welcome to the real estate men. He pointed out that Plainfield development has been a steady growth, not the result of a real estate boom. Mr. Townsend, the borough's Mayor, hinted at consolidation when he said that the day would soon come when the two municipalities would be united in their work. Otto Kempner, president of the metropolitan exchange spoke o the trip as a move in the campaign of educating the people of the cities to the value of suburban homes. He spoke of the trip as the second in a series planned by the Exchange "to enable Jerseyites to learn about New Jersey."

After being photographed by a "Site Seeker" representative, the party entered the automobiles and were taken through the city. Passing through Central Park, a stop was made at Holly Park, a tract being developed by Milton Mendel, promoter of the Plainfield-South Plainfield auto bus line, and from there the cavalcade went through the residential district in the western part of the city, crossed to North Plainfield by way of West End avenue and drove through the Park to Washington avenue and Front street. Highland Park was next visited before the machines started for Westfield, where Mr. Fisk and Mr. Townsend left the party. The auto caravan went from there through Cranford, stopping at Kenilworth Inn, from there to Roselle Park, Roselle, Lorraine and El Mora, where the party broke up with a reception at the offices of the El Mora Land Company. This was at about five o'clock, and several of the New Yorkers took train from there to New York, the others going by motor to Elizabeth for a later train.

The Board of Trade committee in charge of the affair consisted of L. B. Woolston, J. T. Vail, J. Fred MacDonald and Edmund Rushmore. Elston M. French was chairman of the reception committee of the Exchange Board of Governors. Acting with him were Charles H. Hand, Edmund Rushmore and H. W. Welles. The New Yorkers in the party were president Otto Kempner, of the Exchange; George J. Baylis, W. Irving Scott S. D. Hirechman, William M. Whitelaw, E. H. Lambert, L. A. Pasget, D. H. Snyder, Joseph Doolittle, H. W. Fairfax, W. J. Scott, W. M. Sperry, F. A. Stumm, Thomas A. Ryer, Louis A. Praight, F. M. Welles, J. F. Cline, I. Walski, Harvey Lambert, W. A. Lambert, J. B. Roberts, L. W. Naylor, S. T. Dailey, F. R. Wood.

Plainfield: Mayor Charles J. Fisk, Mayor Samuel Townsend, William Jeffrey, vice-president of the Exchange, Milton Mendel of Holly Park, Elston M. French, Charles H. Hand, Ernest Sharpe, J. T. Vail, John I. Brower, H. R. Linbarger, Amos Andrews, Isaac Schwed, A. S. Herr, secretary of the Board of Trade; L. B. Woolston, F. A. Duttenhofer, J. F. MacDonald, Charles S. Woolston, David T. Kenney, Morris Brothers, president R. I. Tolles of the Council and J. P. Emmons.

Westfield: Herbert Abrams, E. S. F. Randolph, and John Coger; R. L. Pierce, of Dunellen and C. H. Vail, of Elizabeth.

The expense of the affair was borne by the Realty Exchange.

After a short wedding journey the couple will reside at Sycamore and Myrtle avenues, North Plainfield.

SOMERSET BANKS TO FORM ORGANIZATION

At the instance of Wm. H. Taylor, cashier of the First National Bank of Somerville, a meeting of representatives of the five national banks of Somerset county was held at Mr. Taylor's bank recently. It was called for the purpose of considering some uniform plan for the taxation of bank stock under the recent decision of the State courts, which permits deductions to be made for non-taxable securities held by banks.

C. L. Roberts, president of the Bernardsville National Bank, was made chairman and Charles L. Voorhees, president of the Second National Bank of Somerville, secretary. No definite plan of action was agreed upon, but it is probable that when the County Board of Assessors meets representatives of the banks will be present with some suggestions to make.

With the view of having a permanent Somerset County Bankers' Association R. H. Brokaw was elected chairman, with power to call the next meeting.

ALEXANDER GILBERT DOESN'T FEAR PANIC

Leading bankers said yesterday that there was no necessity for the emergency currency bill which it was proposed to rush through Congress in the closing days of the session on the plea that some provision must be made to avoid a money stringency and to prevent a repetition of the panic next fall. They said there was nothing in the outlook to indicate such a condition of affairs next autumn, but, on the contrary, everything pointed in the direction of unusual ease in the money market to meet the crop moving demand and other calls upon the banks in what is generally the period of tight money.

Some of the bank presidents were emphatic in their statements that no relief was needed of the kind Congress has been appealed to to give, and said that if the Aldrich bill was passed it would be in spite of the protests of contrary to the desires of the banking interests.

Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, of this city, president of the New York Clearing House Association and of the Market and Fulton Bank, of New York, said that he was at a loss to understand how any one could become really alarmed about the need of providing "relief measures" in the autumn; that no relief would be needed and there was not the slightest basis for supposing that the New York banks would be in a position where they would be obliged to call for treasury assistance.

UNION COUNTY POLITICS

A Strong Probability That Ackerman will be Renominated for Senate.

CAPT. KIRKLAND FOR SHERIFF.

Popular Elizabeth Leader Likely to Succeed Dr. W. B. Lawrence —Three for Assembly.

"In Union county, besides the annual nominations for the Assembly, two other important offices are to be filled this fall," says the Elizabeth Journal. "Union is one of eight counties this year that will elect a State Senator. Senator Ernest R. Ackerman will probably be a candidate for renomination. There is a suspicion that Mr. Ackerman would like to seek the comparative quiet of his private activities again, but if there is a popular demand for him he will surely not resist the call to return to the Senate for three years more. Mr. Ackerman's political career has earned him many admirers. His influence in the legislative halls has been distinctively good. He has served his constituents faithfully and with marked ability. He has been independent and aggressive.

"The second nomination will be for the office of sheriff. Elizabeth has a candidate in the field in the person of Robert J. Kirkland. Others have their lines out for the place and probably more will appear with a like ambition. Tactical consideration might make it advisable to have the nominee come from Elizabeth, as the selection of a strong man from this city would go a long way toward helping the local ticket. The nomination of Kirkland would not aid the municipal ticket alone, but would give the whole county ticket a strong lift. Apart from any considerations of that kind there are good reasons for his nomination. He possesses the confidence of his fellow citizens and would be ambitious to retain it. As far as can be predicted of any candidate it is safe to say that he would undoubtedly give an administration of the sheriff's office that would at all times be in the interests of right and justice, irrespective of his political affiliations.

"If men are entitled to political reward for party service Mr. Kirkland's claims are powerful. He would have been the candidate of his party for that office before this had not the despotism of sectional politics decreed otherwise."

BABE'S BODY IN POND

Patsy Callahan, Jr. Makes Gruesome Find While Walking by Tier's Pond.

NO CLUE TO ITS IDENTITY.

New-Born Girl's Body, Found by Elm Street Bridge, Had Been in Water More Than a Week.

The body of a new-born girl baby was found in Tier's Pond, near the Elm street bridge, early last evening by Patrick Callahan, Jr., who noticed it from the sidewalk and notified the North Plainfield police at about 6:30 o'clock. Although the borough and county police are working on the case, no clue as to the identity of the child has yet been found. The condition of the body is such that County Physician Long is unable to tell whether it drowned, was killed or was dead when put in the water. It had apparently been in the water a week or ten days.

Upon making his gruesome discovery, Callahan went at once to borough police headquarters and reported that he thought there was a body in the pond. Marshals Keller and Pope went back to the spot and found the babe in the water near the shore. They took it to police headquarters and Chief Marshal George Weiss summoned Dr. Dundon and telephoned for County Physician Long, of Somerville. Dr. Long arrived at about 10 o'clock and after an examination declared that the child was only about a day old.

Green Brook has been so swollen with the recent rains that it is impossible to tell where the body was put in the water, for it might have floated several miles before its discovery. The body has been removed to a local undertaker's office and was interred this afternoon in the North Plainfield cemetery. Prosecutor John F. Regar, and Detective Totten of Somerville have been notified, and are working up the case with the North Plainfield police.

LOADED STONE WAGON UPSETS INJURING RUNAWAY HORSE.

Bolting down the steep hill near Smalley's stone crusher, yesterday a team of horses attached to a loaded stone wagon belonging to George Giddes, of Regent street, ran wildly for a half mile and then crashed off the roadway, overturning the wagon, and throwing one of the horses, which was badly cut. The driver, a colored man, was uninjured, but the heavy wagon was badly strained.

At the crest of the hill, the team, which was being driven south, balked and finally started on the run down hill. The driver lost control of the horses, who were forced over the side of the road and into a field by the weight of the loaded wagon on a turn. The driver jumped and was unhurt, but when the horses fell one of them was severely cut and bruised.

FISK AN EXCISE PROBER

Governor Names Plainfield's Mayor as Chairman of Important Commission.

THERE ARE SEVEN IN THE BODY

Head of Commission Hails from "Best Regulated Place in New Jersey on Excise Question."

In announcing his appointments yesterday Governor Fort said:

"In selecting the various commissions which have been appointed today by authority of the Legislature, or otherwise, it has been my purpose to secure men of entire independence along lines and who were free from any complications or prejudices.

"On the Excise Commission, Mr. Fisk is Mayor of Plainfield, and that city is probably the best regulated place in New Jersey on the excise question; J. Kearney Rice is a former judge of Middlesex County. George G. Smith is a former Senator of Ocean county. John Howe is one of the tax receivers of the city of Newark. Mr. Whitbeck is editor of the Hackensack Record. Frank Appleby is the present Mayor of the city of Asbury Park. Peter Backes was placed upon the commission because of his familiarity with the "bishop's bill."

"The Republican party stands committed to the 'bishop's bill' and are pledged to maintain it. It is essential, therefore, that whatever this commission may be, it shall know exactly what the 'bishop's bill' is, and avoid any possible complications or otherwise from any legislation which might conflict with it. So far as I know, not a single member of this commission has prejudged the subject in any way or will bring to the consideration of the question or the investigation any prejudice or preconceived notices.

"The commission on dependency and crime is probably the most important commission which I have been called on to appoint. This commission is authorized by an act of the Legislature of the present session, and a special appropriation has been made to meet its expenses. It has before it a duty which will require considerable work in taking of testimony and general inquiry as to the causes of crimes and dependency. Incidentally, this commission could inquire along all lines, and may find it necessary to do something which the Excise Commission seems to be authorized to do. The act gives it full power to subpoena witnesses, employ experts and generally conduct an efficient examination. Its report will, if the work is thoroughly done, be of great benefit on the questions under consideration as to future legislation relating thereto.

"It will be noted that on any of these commissions authorized by the Legislature there cannot be members of the Legislature in view of the opinion of the attorney-general that such commissions cannot have upon them members of the Legislature creating the commission. The attorney-general's opinion is as follows:

"I have given considerable reflection and examination to the question whether paragraph 1, Section 5, of Article 4 of the constitution of this State, which reads:

"'No member of the Senate or General Assembly shall, during the time for which he was elected, be nominated or appointed by the Governor, or by the Legislature in joint meeting, to any civil office under the authority of this State which shall have been created, or emoluments whereof shall have been increased, during such time.'"

At the request of Governor Fort, the members of the Excise Commission will meet at the executive chamber of the capitol at Trenton on Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Miss Helen Maher, of Trenton, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Maher, of Arlington place, returned home today.

JOS. KINGSTON'S CASE AT LAST IS SETTLED

The case of Joseph Kingston against the Union County Board of Freeholders was called for the third trial in the district court, this morning, but before the case was begun, a settlement was effected, whereby Mr. Kingston, rather than incur additional expense offered to accept $40 for the work he did on a bridge in the East End of the city. The original bill was $50. At the first trial the verdict was set aside on technical grounds and at the second trial the jury failed to agree.

The suit was the result of a dispute between Mr. Kingston an the Freeholders, the latter claiming that the former did not fulfill his contract in the repair of a bridge. Mr. Kingston was to do the work for $50 but Freeholder Wilbur was not satisfied with it and the claim was contested. W. R. Codington, of the firm of Codington & Swackhamer, represented the Freeholders as county attorney, while V. W. Nash, Jr., was counsel for Mr. Kingston.

The cast was made up of the following members of the club: Mrs. Richard Boardman and Mrs. Harold Pender and the Misses Margaret W. McCutchen, Harriet Goddard, May Batchelor, Helen Moody and Helene Pope. The characters were exceedingly well taken and the situations so mirth provoking that none saw them but to laugh.

Mrs. Allen Cowperthwait, Miss Munger and Miss Suffern were active assistants in the management of the stage and accessories of the play, which was given for the benefit of the scholarship fund.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the entertainment, Mrs. Henry C. White, Mrs. Charles L. Goodrich and Miss Ethel Titsworth having them in charge.

REPUBLICAN WORKERS GUESTS OF F. H. SMITH

Fifty friends and admirers of County Chairman Frank H. Smith, including a goodly number from the Gettogether Club and political leaders from Elizabeth and other parts of the county were his guests at his new home at Sixth and Madison avenue last night. All of the principal officials of the county as well as the local municipal officers attended the house-warming.

Speeches were tabooed and there was a merry time for all. Refreshments were served during the course of the evening. Captain Robert Kirkland, the popular Elizabeth leader, was on hand and was generally hailed as the next sheriff of Union county. County Clerk James Calvert was the most enthusiastic rooter for Kirkland.

LOCAL POLICE GET CURTIS

Loses in His Fight Against Extradition and is Brought to Plainfield.

HAS LONG RECORD OF CRIME.

Will Stand Trial in Union County on Two Charges of Swindling First National Bank.

After giving the local police one of the hardest fights they have ever had in getting ap risoner to New Jersey from another state, Charles C. Curtis, charged with complicity in swindling the First National Bank on forged checks, was brought to this city from New York last night. He was locked up at the Sycamore street headquarters and following the customary photographing and necessary formalities, will be transferred to the county jail pending his arrangement on two indictments found by the grand jury.

Curtis is under indictment in Passaic and Camden counties as well as in Union and is also wanted in various other cities and states for swindling and thievery. The Plainfield police have the first "call" upon him as it was through their efforts that he was captured and kept in custody despite a determined effort to obtain his freedom an technicalities. There are two counts against him here, conviction on which would make it possible for him to get ten years in prison and fines aggregating $2,000.

The crimes Curtis is alleged to have committed in this city were accomplished on January 28 and 29, of this year, when he secured $90 and then $100 from the First National Bank by forging the name of W. F. Wilson to checks. He was assisted at the time by Frank McGinness, alias "Browning," who was caught here at the time and who is now serving a year in the Trenton prison. He made a complete confession of his part in the transactions and verified the suspicions of the police that he was one of an organized gang that had been operating through the Middle Atlantic and New England states.

Chief Kiely secured enough information from his prisoner to establish the identity of his pal as Curtis and from then on a systematic search for him was conducted. He was picked up on the chief's complaint at Sixth avenue and Twenty-third street, New York, May 13, a Central office detective recognizing him. He was locked up at the Tombs and the Plainfield authorities were notified but it meant only the beginning of a legal battle to get him to New Jersey.

As soon as he was arrested, Curtis engaged the law firm of Slade & Slade to defend him and they demanded an immediate hearing for their client. This was granted but Chief Kiely was on hand and furnished sufficient evidence as to his guilt to have him remanded for a week pending the securing of extradition papers. While this was being done, the lawyers sought to get Curtis out on a writ of habeas corpus and other methods but without success.

When trial was called for a hearing on the New Jersey charges, the prisoner denied being in Plainfield on either January 28 or 29. He had his wife, her sister and a brother placed on the stand to swear that he was at his home, 325 West Twenty-third street, on those dates, being confined to the house by illness. Chief Kiely's side was presented by Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., and he produced Detective-Sergeant John Flynn and Patrolmen John Kelley to prove that he was in Plainfield and that they had seen him. Justice Greenberger ruled that his identity had been proved and ordered that he be turned over to the New Jersey police.

Curtis' lawyers refused to admit defeat and then attacked the legality of Governor Hughes' extradition warrant. They advanced numerous points of law to sustain their action but each one was overruled in turn. They found no other recourse and with the obstacles removed, Chief Kiely took charge of the prisoner.

Since his arrest, it has been learned that Curtis has a record of crime extending over a period of twenty-eight years. He has traveled under aliases of Douglas Curtis, Walter Buckley and Charles Fuller and his law-breaking ranges from embezzlement and forgery to horse stealing. He was arrested for the latter crime in Westchester county, New York. His check operations were principally in New York, Philadelphia, Boston and the larger cities in New Jersey. He recently made good hauls in Camden, Trenton and Paterson, according to the wife of McGinness who heard them discussing their operations in her flat. He served a term in Philadelphia for forgery and two of his pals were caught in Massachusetts last year.

John Early, of Clayton, lost two valuable Guernsey heifers by poison, supposed to have been given them by an enemy.

Hospital surgeons in Atlantic City found a six-inch sliver of plate glass sticking in the back of George Smallwood, after he had stumbled and fell through a showcase in a cigar store.

William Palmer, a carpenter, was thrown to the ground by the breaking of a scaffold on which he was at work, at Edgewater Park, yesterday, and he was badly hurt about the back and hips.

Angry because he was refused credit for a kettle of beer, Bernard Sneider hurled a brick at Kolman Goldstein, a saloon-keeper, at 629 Ferry avenue, Camden, yesterday, and was sent to jail for a month.

Caught between a platform and an ice wagon at Second and Erie streets, Camden, yesterday, Edward Whalen, seven years old, of 214 Burns street, sustained a fracture of the left leg and was taken to Cooper Hospital.

In his report to the Camden Board of Health yesterday afternoon, Dr. Izard, food and drug inspector, said he expected to watch closely all canned goods delivered in Camden, because he had learned of poisonous conditions.

Major C. A. Flagler, U. S. A., Engineer Corps, visited Toms River yesterday to look over proposed improvements, which include a five-foot channel, 100 feet wide, from Main street to Cedar Point, a distance of about three-quarters of a mile.

A solid stretch of macadam will be laid over the centre of the meadow boulevard, Atlantic City, for use of automobiles as a result of the enthusiasm aroused among members of the Board of Freeholders during a trip over country roads in big machines belonging to the Atlantic Automobile Club.

Walter Dobbs, who was so badly injured at Gloucester a few weeks ago, when a West Jersey and Sea Shore electric train struck a carriage in which he was riding, has commenced suit for $20,000 damages from the company. He was discharged from Cooper Hospital, Camden, two weeks ago and is now in a private sanitarium at Collingswood.

Two men at work digging on a commons attracted the attention of O. E. Barker, a watchman employed at the Camden Iron Works, yesterday, and when he started an investigation the men disappeared. They left about 200 pounds of brass wire which, it developed later, had been stolen from the car barn of the Public Service Railway Company.

Arrested on a warrant by Detective Painter in a boat on the Delaware yesterday, George Vanderslice, of Gloucester, was sent to jail in default of $1,500 bail by Recorder Stackhouse, in Camden, on a charge of keeping a disorderly house. The Camden police claim the boat was stolen from Gloucester and expect additional charges against Vanderslice.

Lying behind the stable of Councilman Robert Gordon, Second and Pine streets, Camden, the dead body of former Policeman Michael T. O'Brien was found yesterday. For a time it was thought that he had been a victim of foul play, but an investigation by Coroner Fithian showed that the man had died from apoplexy. O'Brien was forty-six years old, and at one time was prominently identified with Democratic politics.

No more emergency appropriations are to be made by committees of Camden Council until they are first submitted to the Finance Committee for investigation. The matter was discussed last night by the Finance Committee, when City Counsel Bleakly rendered an opinion that the action of the Lighting Committee in ordering about 2,000 more electric lights from the Public Service Corportion, to be taken out of the new appropriation, is illegal.

German Art Exhibit for New York.

New York, May 27.—Arrangements have been completed for an exhibit in the Metropolitan Museum of Art next winter of a collection of German paintings and sculpture to be sent from Germany for that purpose. The proposal was made to the directors of the museum by the German Consul-General, Karl Buenz. In his letter to the directors the Consul states that he is authorized to make the offer of the exhibit by his government, and further states that the plan has the special sanction of the German Emperor. The exhibit will consist of between 125 and 150 paintings and the sculptures in marble and bronze necessary to properly decorate the rooms in which the pictures will be placed.

Odd Tribute to "Pittsburg Phil."

Pittsburg, May 27.—The $12,000 mausoleum which George E. Smith, or "Pittsburg Phil," built for himself here years before he died, will on Memorial Day be adorned in a most unusual way. William Smith, of New York, a brother of the dead man, is having made here a life-size floral horse, which will be mounted on his brother's tomb next Friday and dedicated by Mr. Smith and some New York friends on Saturday morning. One of the specifications for the floral horse is that it shall contain not fewer than 3,000 white carnations.

Umpire J. J. O'Brien was fined $25 in New Orleans for punching John Baxter, a Memphis player, during a fight in a recent game in New Orleans. Baxter was fined $10.

Manager Jack Dunn of the Orioles, is carrying on negotiations with Zanesville for the sale of frst baseman Fred Hunter.

Because of several managers in the Connecticut League refusing to permit certain umpires to officiate on their home grounds a big row has broken out in that organization. President William J. Tracy, as a result of the trouble, has notified all managers that a fine of $50 will be inflicted on any manager in the future refusing umpire assignments as made by him.

Five of last season's Williamsport players are now in major league company. The Yankees have Walter Manning and Walter Blair; Joe Delehanty and Charles are with the St. Louis Nationals, and Rube Vickers is with the Philadelphia Athletics.

If Pitcher Graham of the St. Louis Browns, and Catcher Graham, of the Boston Red Sox, were on the same team it is a certainty that some wag would dub the pair the "wafer battery."—Detroit Journal.

Hereafter, at Rochester, the name of the pitcher of the home club, who is billed to officiate in the game, will not be made public until the start of the game by the umpire. President Chapin and Manager Buckenberger have adopted this policy, in lieu of the custom of advertising the battery a day previous to the game.

Addie Joss is pitching phenomenal ball for Cleveland. Joss has won eight out of nine games thus far this season. In the nine games he pitched Joss gave but four bases on balls, a record for effectiveness never approached, save by "old" Cy Young.

O'Leary, the Detroit shortstop, is playing better in the infield than he ever did before. He is short, and loses line hits that sail too high for him, but there is nothing on the ground which he will not face, and, although he has a peculiar way of getting rid of the ball when he throws, he manages to get it to first in a hurry.

"If Jimmy Casey should win the Eastern League pennant this year his job might be good for about six billions of acres of pasture lands in the Canadian Northwest. Some influential government officials are directly interested in the Royals. Jimmy might as well have it as the Grand Trunk Pacific."—Washington Star.

The Philadelphia National League Club has turned over Pitcher Harry Hoch to the Wilmington Interstate Club.

Hugh MacKinnon, owner of the Allentown franchise of the defunct Pennsylvania-New Jersey League, has purchased the Paterson franchise in the Union League and will transfer the Paterson team to Allentown.

GOLF.

By Saturday everything will be in full swing at the Plainfield Country Club, numerous golf and tennis events being scheduled for the day. This is one of the gala occasions at the club, as it is one of the few times during the season when a majority of the members are at home. In golf there will be a 36-hole, medal handicap competition all day.

There will be the usual holiday attractions at the Park Golf Club on Saturday, including stated play for the Holiday cup, approaching and putting contest. There will be social features at the clubhouse and during the afternoon tea will be served. The new tennis courts will also be opened that day.

Special holiday attractions are scheduled for the Westfield Golf Club on Saturday. There will be play on the course all day and in the evening there will be social events at the clubhouse.

BARELY ESCAPES DEATH WHEN TRAIN HITS AUTO.

Summit, May 27.—Dr. R. D. Baker, with his chauffeur, George Payne, had a narrow escape from death yesterday at the Hillside avenue crossing of the Lackawanna Railroad in Chatham. The physician was seated beside the chauffeur in an automobile when they drove up to the railroad crossing, at which the gates were raised.

As the chauffeur attempted to cross the tracks Dr. Baker saw a westbound train approaching and the chauffeur attempted to back off the crossing, but the gateman suddenly lowered the gates closing in the machine. The engine struck the front end of the automobile, tossing it alongside the tracks. The steering gear, lamps and front portion of the car were battered, but the physician and chauffeur jumped, escaping uninjured.

The gateman, who was an Italian, was rendered speechless from fright, and it required several minutes work by Dr. Baker to restore him.

GIRLS SAVE LIFE AS WOMEN ARE SCREAMING.

While women pranced about in hysterical helplessness, Carrie Frederickson and Bertha Wilcox, each 10 years old, pluckily formed a human chain in New Brunswick, and saved the Ferderickson girl's six-year-old sister from drowning in the Raritan River. The three children were playing along the river bank, their parents being nearby with a number of other women out picknicking. The youngest child slipped from a plank across a narrow inlet and sank from view.

Carrie immediately lowered herself head first until she was in the water up to her shoulders, the Wilcox girl lying on the plank and holding Carrie's feet. When Annie arose Carrie grabbed her by the dress and the two brave little rescuers pulled her to safety.

S.S. TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

Charles D. Meigs, of Indianapolis, Makes Chief Address at Annual Meeting.

W. D. MURRAY ALSO SPEAKS.

Interesting Program at Afternoon and Evening Sessions of Junior and Primary Teachers.

Improved methods and helpful suggestions in Sunday-school work were discussed at the thirteenth annual institute of the Plainfield Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union in the First Baptist church, yesterday afternoon, and at the first annual institute of the Plainfield Sunday-school Teachers' Union held at the same place last night. Both meetings attracted a large number of officers and teachers. The feature of the afternoon and evening was the presence of Charles D. Meigs, of Indianapolis, who in addition to making two addresses, also gave talks on "How to Study the Bible."

Miss Nettie Beeching, president of the primary and junior organization, was in charge of the program at each service. In the afternoon, Mrs. F. R. Baker conducted the devotional service, after which Mrs. R. W. Barnes, as secretary, gave a brief resume of the past year's work, telling of the increased interest.

"The Cradle Roll or Fishing for Minnows," was the subject of a helpful talk by Mr. Meigs. He said that during the thirty years he had been in Sunday-school work he had come in contact with every phase of it and had discovered four essential things a primary teacher should know: First, that she cannot be prompted; second, that there is as much divinity in a three foot cradle as in a seven foot bed; third, that she is probably the best teacher a child ever had, and fourth, that it does not require much knowledge to have much faith.

In the opinion of the speaker it is not necessary for a child to know everything in the Bible to be saved, and the primary teacher should be a great believer in child conversion. Boys reach the years of diversion easier than they do the years of discretion and it was his belief that a child does not have to accept Christ any better than it knows how. The speaker emphasized the importance of catching the children young and placing them on the cradle roll which he declared resulted in giving the child a better mother. During his talk he related many incidents to substantiate his opinions.

"The Influence of Birthday Letters," was the topic assigned to W. D. Murray, superintendent of the primary department at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Sunday-school. He presented five reasons why a teacher should write such letters to her children: First, they take the place of a visit; second, they impress upon the child the importance of a lesson; fourth, they give the Sunday-school a place in the life of the child; fifth, they help the teacher to reach the parents. Mr. Murray told some of his interesting experiences in writing birthday letters and the excellent results. He said that he writes 150 such letters every year and draws about 250 pictures.

Miss Nettie Beeching, Mrs. J. A. Powlison, Mrs. F. R. Baker, Miss Ida Spicer, Miss Lounsbury, Mrs. Nathan E. Lewis, Mrs. Arthur E. Crone, Mrs. L. R. Schofield and Mrs. Harold Serrell who have had similar experiences gave helpful incidents along this line.

Mrs. J. A. Powlison, primary superintendent of the First Baptist church Sunday-school, taught a "Children's Day Song," with the assistance of Mrs. Dudley S. Miller at the piano.

There was a piano duet by Lawrence and Elmer French, after which Mr. Meigs instead of teaching the Sunday-school lesson for net Sunday, gave an interesting talk on "How to Study the Bible."

Adjournment was taken for a social hour, during which members of the Union served supper in the Sunday-school room. This was in charge of Mrs. Harold Serrell, Mrs. Frank W. Jones, Mrs. S. W. Dunning, Mrs. Elvaine Van Name and other women conected with the organization.

The evening service attracted members of nearly every Sunday-school in Plainfield and vicinity, including many superintendents and teachers. The prayer and praise service was in charge of Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, after which Mr. Meigs gave another talk on "How to Study the Bible," during which he related the interesting story of Zacheus and Christ, applying the principal points to present-day Christianity, showing what a man will do when once he becomes a Christian and knows Christ.

After a brief review of the past year's work of the Plainfield Sunday-school Teachers' Union by the secretary, Miss Minna Bock, and the offering, during which Miss Voorhees played a piano selection, Mr. Meigs delivered an address on "Fishing for Deep Sea Bass." His talk was intended chiefly for men and he laid great stress on the importance of organization as a means to attain success in Sunday school work. He dwelt at great length on the necessity of getting the men into Bible classes and related several incidents to show what the men in other parts of the country have done, starting with a membership of two or three and growing to thousands in membership. Among such organizations mentioned was that of the Baraca movement, which was started by Marshall A. Hudson, of Syracuse, N. Y. He also referred to the gretest baseball league in the world composed entirely of members of Bible classes in Cook county, Illinois.

In conclusion a few remarks were made by J. E. Church, of this city, who is State president of the adult department of the New Jersey Sunday-school Association. He explained the method of organization and urged all the Bible classes to join the State movement. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Dr. Herring after which those present remained for a social time.

STORING FURS FOR SUMMER.

A cedar chest makes an excellent receptacle for all winter garments.

Either turpentine or chamhor serves as an excellent prohibition against the attentive moth.

The furs should always be first wrapped in layers of tissue paper.

White furs must be laid in blue tissue paper, as white causes them to assume a yellow tinge.

Camphor should not be used on either sable or chinchilla, as it spoils the color of both.

Black furs do not require the same tender care as do gray, brown or white ones.

It is a mistake to put away white or gray furs when they are soiled.

Powdered chalk or cornmeal shaken well in and dusted out the next morning will cleanse the fur.

A Delicious Blanc Mange.

Half a pint of milk, half a pint of strong, clear coffee, two ounces of cornstarch, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one tablespoonful of butter, half a teaspoonful of vanilla extract.

Put the coffee and half of the milk into a saucepan to heat. Mix the cornstarch smotohly with the remainder of the milk and add to it the hot liquid in the saucepan. Stir over the fire until boiling and boil slowly about ten minutes. Add the butter, sugar and vanilla and mix well. Pour into a wet mold and set aside until cold. A little cream added to this is an improvement. The coffee used should be very strong and clear.

A Center of Discussion.

"There is one bad feature about Nasaltwang's singing."

"I should say so. He sings through his nose."

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH LACKS MEN FOR MINISTRY.

An unsolved problem before the general assembly of the Presbyterian church at Kansas City, is the scarcity of men for the ministry. In the discussion of the matter by the assembly some of the speakers blamed state university and others undenominational institutions of learning for turning the thoughts of students from religious to commercial currents.

Fathers and mothers, said Dr. Sneed, of Pittsburg, should be taught that it was wrong to take their children to baptism with the mental reservation that they should never enter the ministry.

WOMEN SAY THEY ARE NOT LIKE LOT'S WIFE.

Angry wives of the attendants at the new "Men's Church," at Atlantic City, where smoking is permitted, are preparing to demand a retraction from the Rev. Sydney Goodman, who, in speaking of Lot's wife turning to look back and becoming a pillar of salt, said:

"Woman is a creature who cannot resist the commands of curiosity." The wives say they will make the minister apologize.

Naturalized Through Baseball.

Norristown, Pa., May 27.—Because he knew the positions of all the clubs of the two major baseball leagues the Naturalization Court judges, sitting here yesterday, considered Edward Wilhelm Lawrence sufficiently versed in American institutions to be worthy of full citizenship. Oddly, too, despite his middle name, Lawrence is a native of Ireland, from which country he came thirty-six years ago, and has been living in Norristown the greater part of that time. Having answered the test questions propounded by the government expert, and having manifestly acquainted himself with general affairs, the baseball situation was taken up, and Lawrence made a home run in proving that he was a good American.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—The Common Council will hold its next regular meeting on Monday night, June 1.

—W. J. Buttfield, of the borough, who has been attending the Philadelphia Horse Show, has returned home.

—George Miller, of West Front street, will soon open a confectionery and ice cream parlor on East Front street opposite the Woodhull & Martin block.

—The S. S. S. Society, of this city, will enjoy a strawride to Westfield tonight. The members will have supper at the latter place before returning home.

—L. E. Waring, of West Seventh street, who is one of the judges at the Philadelphia Horse Show, will return home on Friday for the meet of the Watchung Hunt Club, of which he is the master.

—Watchung avenue, between North avenue and Fourth street, was closed up by the brick pavers yesterday and nothing remains but the grouting process at that point. There is still a section at Watchung avenue and Second street to be paved, while West Front street is not quite completed.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Miss Grace George will bring with her next Saturday afternoon and night to the New Plainfield theatre, in "Divorcons," the same brilliant company that supported her during her enormous success in London in that play last summer. The English critics said that the company that appeared there in the Duke of York's theatre with Miss George was the best ever sent from the United States by an American manager. Frank Worthing will be seen in the principal man's role, that of the easy-going husband, Des Prunelle. The comic role of the young fool of a captain, Adhemar, will be acted by Douglas Garrard, a newcomer here, but said to be a light comedian of uncommon skill. Max Freeman, one of the best of our actors of strongly-marked comic character, will be seen in his famous role of Joseph, the knowing head-waiter of the quiet cafe where Cyprienne (Miss George) and her husband repair for their clandestine dinner; and such capable artists as A. H. Stuart, Charles Stanley, Edward Fielding, Richard Wilson, Mrs. Reginald Carrington, Miss Laura Lemmars, Miss Angela Ogden and Miss Justine Cutting will appear in suitable roles.

SHADOW LAWN, $208,000.

McCall Place at Long Branch May Be Casino of Bungalow Colony.

Shadow Lawn, near Long Branch, formerly the property of John A. McCall, when he was president of the New York Life Insurance Company, was yesterday sold at sheriff's sale to Myron H. Oppenheim, of New York, for $108,000 above the $100,000 mortgage held by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

Abraham White, the present occupant, a week ago asked for a week's extension, and said he would be able to take care of the mortgage. Mr. Oppenheim said last night that if Mr. White made good he would let him redeem the property; if not he would start a bungalow colony, using the McCall cotatge as a casino.

BILLIARDIST MYERS A SUICIDE.

Shoots Himself at Railway Station After Visit to His Parents.

William Myers, ex-amateur billiard champion and once a well-known baseball player, died yesterday from a bullet wound in the head. He shot himself last night in the railway station in Haddonfield. He had been visiting his parents, and when he left them was apparently in het best of spirits. Just as a train drew in hes hot himself.

Constable Elwell, of Haddonfield, said yesterday that he had been notified to look out for Myers as there were warrants out for him in this city and Philadelphia.

Myers was divorced from his first wife, an actress, and recently married again.

State Building and Loan Receiver.

Vice-Chancellor Leaming appointed at Camden yesterday, George Bergen, a former trustee; Samuel K. Robbins, a former state Senator, and Thomas M. French, all of Camden, receivers for the State Mutual Building and Loan Association, which failed about a year ago and has since been in the hands of the trustees. When the trustees first took charge some of the dissatisfied stockholders, who wanted receivers appointed, carried the case to a higher court. The report of the trustees, handed in last week, shows that settlements of about $750,000 still remain to be made.

Hungarian Flag Above American.

A Hungarian flag displayed above the Stars and Stripes as new Brunswick, aroused the ire of Boggs-Janeway Post, G. A. R., which was on its way to a Memorial Day sermon Sunday night. The offending display was on a Hungarian tenement house in Throop avenue. Adjutant Joseph Sedam, of the G. A. R., sent a detachment to order the flag removed. The Hungarians removed their flag, leaving the star spangled banner waving in solitude as well as triumph

GUIDES HORSE INTO APPROACHING RUNAWAY.

Somerville, May 27.—William O. Davis, an electrician on the estate of James B. Duke, and five-year-old Harriet Applegate were badly injured in a runaway accident between this place and Raritan Sunday evening.

A spirited horse which Davis was driving took fright at a trolley car and bolted to the sidewalk. The carriage was overturned, but Davis held fast to the reins and was dragged until his clothes were torn off and he dropped from exhaustion. The little girl became entangled and was dragged for a quarter of a mile to the subway of the Jersey Central Railroad at Somerset street. At this point John Gallagher, an ice dealer, was driving in the opposite direction from the runaway horse. When he saw the girl being dragged in the road he guided his horse head-on against the runaway.

There was a terrific collision between the animals and the runaway was knocked over against a fence. Gallagher sprang from his carriage and captured the horse. The girl was picked up unconscious, her flesh being badly lacerated.

SUMMIT BUILDER FAILS.

Seaman L. Wright to File a Petition in Bankruptcy—Employes Among Creditors.

Summit, May 27.—Seaman L. Wright, a local building contractor, yesterday announced his insolvency, and through his counsel, Guild and Martin, of Newark, will file a petition in involuntary bankruptcy. Wright could give no estimate of his assets or liabilities yesterday., but it is known, however, that the liabilities will reach several thousand dollars, with the T. B. Miller Company, local building material dealers, as the largest creditors. Their claims, it is said, aggregate about seven thousand dollars.

About forty-five carpenters and masons employed by Wright also have claims for wages amounting to several hundred dollars, the workmen securing liens yesterday against several buildings which their employer has built. The business conducted by Wright was established forty years ago by his father, the son taking it over about five years ago.

The depression in building work is given by Wright as the cause of his failure, but he declared this morning that he hoped to resume, and that if one of his creditors had not pressed him he would have been enabled to continue.

BURGLAR BEARS CHARMED LIFE

Five Times Detected Entering Houses at Somerville He Escaped Despite Precaution.

Somerville, May 27.—A persistent burglar, over six feet tall and very slender, who can run like a deer, has been leading the police a lively chase during the past week. He has been detected by the police no less than five times as he was about to enter residences about town. He has been repeatedly fired upon at close range, but he seems never to have been hit.

Sunday night the tall burglar was surrounded by four policemen as he was about to enter the residence of Philip Tunison, on Grove street. When he saw the he was cornered he made a phenomenal handspring and went over the head of a policeman who was closing on him. Julius Saulter, the crack shot of the force, who was formerly a marine in the United States Navy, emptied his revolver at close range at the fleeing burglar, who made a zigzag across lots in the dark, and escaped apparently uninjured.

He was pursued by Joseph Hanlon, the prize sprinter of the police force, but Hanlon failed to capture him.

There will be a parade of the delegates in the morning and a banquet at the Hotel Sterling in the evening. Among the guests will be E. H. Thorpe, Washington, D. C., superintendent of the free delivery; William Kelly, of Brooklyn, president of the National Letter-carriers' Association; Edward J. Campbell, Washington, D. C., secretary; United States Senator Briggs, Congressman Wood, Postmaster Yard, Colonel George L. Forman, superintendent of the local carriers; Mayor Madden, William Atkinson and James J. Gallagher, of Jersey City, members of the national executive board.

Two Battleships to Drydock.

Seattle, Wash., May 27.—The Missouri has been detached from the second squadron and has sailed for San Francisco to enter the Mare Island Navy Yard to undergo slight repairs. The battleship Ohio is under orders to sail today for Bremerton, where she will take on stores and sail for San Francisco to go on the drydock at Hunters Point May 27.

Brooklyn Bridge 25 Years in Use.

New York, May 27.—Twenty-five years ago Sunday there occurred one of the wonders of the world. It was the opening on May 24, 1883, with a great demonstration, of the Brooklyn Bridge. In commemoration of that event American flags were flung to the breezes Sunday from the top of the great stone towers.

Patience is a virtue when it isn't simply laziness.

"I see," says Miss Page, scornful. "I see. And so, for a few dollars you are to be turned out of your home. You, a poor sick man! Oh! I can hardly believe there are such people in the world. And yet, I have had some experience."

She flashed a look at Martin as she said it. He turned white under his sunburn.

"Miss Page," he said, "you do not understand. I must insist that you hear our reasons for this proceeding."

"It is not necessary," she says, cold as ice. "I have heard enough."

The minister plucked up spunk to speak. But she snapped him up short as pie crust. Then I tried it—and got my medicine.

"Mr. Sparrow," says she, "let them do their worst. The children shall come to my school. As for you, I mean to—" Then she turns to me.

"Does Mr. Van Brunt know of this?" she asks. Course I couldn't say nothing but I believed he didn't.

"Thank goodness!" she says. And just then who should walk in but Van himself.

"Hello!" says he, surprised. "Eureka told me you were at the village, Martin, so Lycurgus rowed me across. One of the children said you were here. What is this, a surprise party? And Agnes, too! Am I too late for the refreshments?"

He smiled, but nobody else did.

"Edward," says the Page girl, "will you do a great favor for me?"

"Yours to command, of course," he answers, puzzled.

"Will you find a boarding place for Mr. Sparrow?"

"Who? Eureka's father? Why, certainly. What's the trouble? Is it time for the Sparrows to nest again? He can come over to the Island with us. There's plenty of room. Hey, Martin?"

"Never mind your friend, please," says Miss Page. "If he comes will you protect him and treat him kindly? Thank you. Then that is settled. Gentlemen, I believe there is no necessity for your further inconveniencing yourselves. Your several bills will be paid."

I looked at the doctor and he looked at Poundberry. The minister and Brown and Scudder looked at each other. Maybe it seems queer that we didn't speak up and make her hear our side—the right side. It does seem strange now, I'm free to say, but, as for me, I couldn't have faced her then no more than the boy with the jam 'round his mouth could face his ma.

Hartley was the only plucky one. He says, swallowing once, as if he was gulping down his pride, "Miss Page," says he, "you are treating me most unfair. To judge without a hearing is not—"

She held up her hand. There was a kid glove on it, and even then I noticed how well that glove fitted.

"Mr. Pratt," she says to me, "I want to ask you one question. Who is responsible for this? Whose idea was it?"

I hemmed and hawed. The other fellers might not have meant to do it, but somehow their eyes all swung round to Hartley.

"I see," she says. "I thought as much. There is a proverb, I believe, concerning what is bred in the bone. Thank heaven, to me there are some things in this world which outweigh my personal convenience and—money. You needn't answer, Mr. Pratt. He pays your salary, I believe."

My, but she said it bitter and scornful. Hartley was white afore, but now he was like chalk. He bowed to her, stuck his chin into the air and marched out of that house as proud and chilly as a walking icicle. The rest of us, all but Van and Agnes, trailed along astern, like a parcel of kicked dogs.

Washy sung out to us as we went: "Good day, gentlemen," he says; "I hope you'll come and see me sometimes while I'm over to Horsefoot. I forgive you free and clear. I haven't no doubt you meant for the best."

The doctor and the rest was brave enough when we was out of Agnes Page's sight and hearing. They was talking big about what they'd do to Sparrow when they had a chance. But I noticed none of 'em said much to Hartley. He marched ahead, stiff and white and glum. Peter Brown's last word to me was this:

"Pratt," says he, "if you see a hole in the sand anywheres 'tween here and the beach, mark my name around it, will you? The way I feel now I'd like to crawl into it and pull it after me. One about the size of a ten-cent piece would do, and even then I guess there'd be room and to spare for the rest of this gang."

When I got down to the skiff Van comes running to catch up. He caught me by the arm and hauled me to one side.

"Skipper," says he, "what the devil's the matter?"

I told him in as few words as I could. He roared. "That's all right," he says. "I'll fix that."

He went over to his chum and slapped him on the back.

"Brace up, old man," he says; "it's a mistake, and a mighty good joke on you, isn't it? Of course I'll square you with Agnes."

Hartley turned on him so quick that he jumped.

"If you please," says Martin, cutting and clear as a razor, "you will perhaps be good enough to mind your own business. If you mention one word concerning me to that lady you and I part company. Is that thoroughly plain?"

'Twas the first time I'd ever heard them two have a hard word. The trip to Ozone island was as joyful as a funeral.

CHAPTER XV.

The White Plague.

The fat was all in the fire. Hartley's great scheme that he thought was going to help Eureka, and that I cal'lated would be one more big boost for him in the Page girl's eyes, had gone to pot to see the kettle bile. Instead of getting rid of Papa Sparrow, it had fetched that old hypocrite right over to eat and sleep and groan under our very noses. And, instead of helping Martin's love business, it had knocked the keel right out of it and left him stranded with a bigger reputation than ever for cold-blooded, mercenary money-grabbing. Sweet mess, wa'n't it?

I snum, I did hate to tell Eureka! And yet of course she was bound to find it out for herself. When she went home that night, thinks I: "I'll catch it to-morrow morning." And, sure enough, next morning she was laying for me.

She come out to the garden, where I was trying to fool myself into hoping that six inches of green string, with a leaf or two hung along it, might bear a cucumber some day, and down she sets in the heap of dry seaweed by the pig pen.

"Now, then," says she, sharp, "I want to know all about it."

"Oh!" says I, looking innocent at the cucumber string; "I ain't give up hope, by no manner of means. If the loam don't blow off, and I'm able to lug water enough, we'll have as much as one jar of two-inch pickles off this plantation by the time the Heavenlies are ready to quit."

"Humph!" she sniffs. "You ought to pickle that understanding of yours. It's too fresh and green to keep long, out in this sun. Now you look me in the eye and tell me all about it."

"About what?" I asks, not looking at her, however.

"About the doings at our house yesterday. Why is pa coming over here to live? And what makes Mr. Hartley so blue and cross? And how come that Agnes Page to be mixed up in our affairs? Out with it. It's my family business, and I want to know."

So I had to tell her. She was pretty mad, and mighty sarcastic.

"I thought so," she snaps. "Didn't you know no better than that? Didn't you know that a girl who's as far gone with charity as Miss Page is would be sure to go and see pa and want to do for him? I've found out that she's been giving him money for medicine and things for over a week. Why, a sentimental city woman is pa's best holt; he can tie 'em in bow knots round his finger. I s'pose you thought you could fetch Hartley and his girl together all by yourself. Well, you've done a good job. Now I've got to begin it all over again."

"It ain't no use now," I says. "She's down on him for good."

"Rubbish! Don't talk so foolish. It'll be my turn next, and my plans won't go backside frontwards, like a crab. And I've got to fix pa, too. I've been working out a notion about him for two or three days. I guess it's time to be starting it a-going."

She wouldn't tell me what the notion was. 'Twas her turn to have secrets. She seemed pleased to have Editha and the children go over to the Fresh Air school, because there they could be studying their lessons with somebody to look after 'em. She liked the idea of Lycurgus' hiring out to Nate Scudder, too, though she did say that she guessed he wouldn't wear out his pants' pockets carting his wages around.

Next day she stayed at home and shut up the house, and that night she and Washy come to the island to stay all the time. They had rooms in the back part of the house, three flights up, and Scudder sold the Twins bedding and truck enough to more than make up for losing the rent of the Sparrow house. Van put the wax wreath and Marcellus' picture and the rest of Nate's "presents" up in the invalid's room. He said he thought they was kind of appropriate. Washy didn't mind. He said they was lovely and made him think of his "future state." 'Cording to my notion the cook stove would have been better for that.

Martin and his chum was pretty cool to each other for a while, but they soon got over it. Hartley was different, though, from what he'd been afore. He was more reckless and his "don't care" manner was back again; only, now that his health was so good, it showed in other ways.

The two of 'em took to raising the very Old Boy. They must be up to something all the time. The island wa'n't big enough to hold 'em and they was crowded over into the village, so to speak. They got mixed up with some of the men boarders at the hotel and 'twas "Whoop!" and "Hooray!" all the time.

They and the boarders got horses out of the livery stable and had races right through the main street; going it licketty-cut and scandalizing the neighbors and scaring old women into conniption fits. Deacon Patterson had a new horse and the deacon happened to be setting in his buggy in front of the Boston dry goods and variety store when the racers went by. The racket scared the critter and he bolted, and there was the deacon going down the road in the middle of the race, hollering "Whoa!" to beat the cars, with his hat off and his hair a-flying. Lots of the sewing circle women saw him and 'twas town talk for weeks. The deacon was going to have the Twins took up and sent to jail, but he didn't. He prayed for 'em in meeting instead.

Van Brunt got another letter from Agnes pretty quick after the race. She'd heard about it and she give him fits. Why was it necessary for him—she didn't mention Martin—to shock the community and public opinion? She wanted to know that and other things similar. He read a little of the letter to Hartley and that's how I heard it. I'd have heard more, probably, only Hartley got up and walked off. And he was blue as a whetstone for the rest of the day.

I guess the Talford girl wa'n't quite so shocked. Anyhow me and Van met her up in the village one afternoon and she wanted to know all about the race.

"I should like to have seen that old Mr. Patterson," says she. "He is always so very solemn and pompous. It must have been k'lingly funny."

Van told her the yarn, trimming it up fine as usual, and they laughed and had lots of fun over it. He went around with her shopping all the afternoon and I was forgot altogether. I didn't mind. I don't hanker for famousness, and the way the small boys followed Van Brunt around and pointed at him and snickered was too popular altogether. I cal'late he'd been preached up to them young ones as a horrible examp le till they envied him 'most as much as if he was a pirate.

Ozone island was chock full of secrets and whisperings by this time. Van kept up his little side talk and backyard confabs with Scudder; and Hartley seemed to have caught the disease. I see him and Nate looking mysterious at each other and meeting together in out of the way places time and time again. And the mail was getting heavier and there was half burned telegram envelopes in the stove ashes more'n once. But nobody ever mentioned getting a telegram.

There was so much reading matter 'round the place now that Eureka was in her glory. She read when she got breakfast, with a book propped up on the kitchen table. She read when she dusted, holding the dust cloth in one hand and a magazine in t'other. She read when she ate. She went upstairs at night reading; and I wouldn't wonder if she read in her sleep.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.

Health Is Worth Saving, and Some Plainfield People Know How to Save It.

Many Plainfield people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Plainfield citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. M. Newman, of 536 West Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "For some time I was a constant sufferer from various kidney ailments, among which were violent headaches and a continuous pain in the limbs, which gave me no rest, day or night. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, and sent to Randolph's pharmacy for as upply. They seemed to take effect at once and soon after I began using them my head got better, and the pain and stiffness left my limbs and joints. I heartily recommend Doan's Kidney Pills for such troubles as mine."

IF IT'S A QUESTION OF DOLLARS.

We may be able to help you out. At any rate if you'll inform us of your needs, we'll try. The winter months just past have raised the expenses of the average householder to their highest point and many of us have been unable to meet all of our obligations as promptly as we would like to and consequently find ourselves in debt.

SUPPOSE we were to advance you sufficient funds to meet your obligations. Do you not think you would be more satisfied to have only one payment to look after on pay day?

There is no place where money will be advanced you more willingly or where you will receive more courteous treatment than from us. It's worth investigating.

The possession of household goods, horses and wagons is sufficient evidence of your ability to pay. Call, write or 'phone.

GOLF.

To furnish satisfactory playing conditions for the large number of competitors in the British open championship, to be played at Prestwich beginning June 16, a new method of play has been devised. One-half of the entrants will be drawn, each set to play two qualifying eighteen-hole rounds, and the first thirty players in each set, including all ties for the thirtieth place, will be drawn for the championship seventy-two-hole medal play contest. The draw for the qualifying rounds will be made June 11.

A prize offered by Mrs. B. F. Reinmund will be played for on Saturday by the women of the Englewood Golf Club.

The annual baseball game between the senior class nine of the Plainfield High School and the school faculty and members of the Board of Education will be played on Crescent Oval tomorrow afternoon. It was scheduled for last week, but postponed on account of the rain. The faculty team will include among its players Principal B. K. Phelps, of the North Plainfield. The teachers' nine will, wear grotesque costumes instead of baseball suits and will play a style of baseball all their own from a pedagogic interpretation of the rules.

Illness of One Accused Postpones Trial of Those Charged with Causing Girl's Death.

The trial of J. Irving Van Horn, of Hope, Dr. Herman A. Glatzbeyer, Mrs. Sadie M. Dodge and Mrs. Caroline Zahn, for causing the death of Miss Mary E. Vliet, of Blairstown, March 26, was postponed by Judge Ten Eyck at Newark, yesterday, until the September term of court.

Michael T. Barrett, counsel for the defendant, requested the adjournment and explained that Mrs. Dodge was so ill with appenditcitis she could not appear. Mr. Barrett said that besides being one of the defendants, Mrs. Dodge would be an important witness for the defense.

Dr. Walter S. Washington appeared and explained that Mrs. Dodge would probably have to undergo an operation.

Back Draught Leads to Fire Alarm.

A back draught in a chimney at the home of Daniel Webster, 429 West Second street, filled the house with smoke shortly after 8 o'clock this morning and led to the belief that the place was on fire. An alarm was turned in from box 46 and the trouble was located when the department apparatus arrived.

CITY FIREMEN TO HOLD A CARNIVAL

With the sanction of the fire committee of the Common Council, the members of the city fire department have contracted to bring the J. S. Berger Amusement company's carnival to this city for a week's stay, beginning June 15. It will be located at Fourth street and Darrow avenue and will be conducted in a manner similar to those arranged for the hospital and the Knights of Columbus.

The firemen will share in the profits from the carnival and the money will be added to the pension fund conducted by the department. It is used for the maintenance of any member injured while in the performance of duty or to assist his family in the event of his being disabled permanently. The fund is small at the present time and the Councilmen readily gave consent to the carnival plan to enlarge it.

A meeting the firemen, including the callmen, will be held at headquarters tonight when the various committees will be appointed. Tickets for the various attractions will be sold in advance and this will mean more profit for the sellers, an extra percentage being granted.

NEGRO SUSPECTS IN BUSSI CASE RELEASED

The large number of negroes who were held in the Somerset county jail at Somerville on suspicion that one of them might have been the one who murderously assaulted John Bussi, the aged Mount Bethel farmer, who died three days after the beating, were, with the exception of one, released from custody yesterday, on the certainty that none of them had a hand in the murder. The other is held for identification by Mrs. Bussi, when her condition improves.

It was thought that Mrs. Bussi would be taken to Somerset Hospital in Somerville for treatment, but she refused to go, preferring to remain at her own home.

TALKING PICTURES PROVE A BIG ATTRACTION.

The marvelous talking pictures, which are being shown this week at the New Plainfield theatre, were brought direct from the Manhattan theatre, New York, where they have been a great feature for several weeks. The idea is an entirely new one and gives a sense of realism to the subjects otherwise impossible. Since their introduction here they have been greeted by large audiences.

The pictures will be changed every other night and on Friday the program will be lengthened by the addition of amateur numbers, similar to those held during the winter. Entries may be left at the box office.

Christian Church Bazaar Opens.

Owing to the threatened shower last evening, the bazaar at the Christian church opened with a small attendance. A short program of vocal and instrumental music and readings was very much enjoyed by those present. Supper will be served this evening from six to nine, admission free. The bazaar will close tomorrow evening with an auction sale following an informal entertainment which is free also.

To Harden Flabby Gums.

If one suffers from soft, flabby gums great care must be taken or the teeth will loosen and eventually fall out.

Rinsing with lime water is helpful for this condition; also, by way of precaution, one should make a habit of chewing once or twice a day such plants as cress or sorrel, which are anti-scorbutic in their nature.

If the condition is serious a dentist should be consulted at once, as bad results may follow. There are a number of antiseptic washes which are excellent for soft gums; any reliable druggist should be able to tell you one that will prove useful.

Smiles.

There are many kinds of smiles, each having a distinct character. Some announce goodness and sweetness; others betray sarcasm, bitterness and pride; some soften the countenance by their languishing tenderness; others brighten by their spiritual vivacity.—Lavater.

After Disinfecting.

In entering a room in which a disinfectant has been burning for several hours one should cover the mouth and nose with a wet cloth to shut out the fumes.

Care should be taken that the windows were not locked before the sulphur is started, as otherwise they cannot be opened quickly and it is dangerous for a person to remain long in the stifling atmosphere.

If the windows are on a porch or roof they should be opened after disinfecting from the outside, thus avoiding all danger to the opener.

The Color of the Ermine.

It is a popular idea that the ermine sheds its brown summer coat and that on the approach of winter a covering of snowy white fur takes its place. This was a natural conclusion, as a possibility of a change in the color of the fur had not occurred to scientists. Experiments, however, have been made, and the brown coated ermine has been placed in a very low temperature. Almost immediately a change was visible in the color of the fur, and without shedding the creature became snowy white.

If you would life me, you must be on higher ground. If you would liberate me, you must be free. If you would correct my false view of facts—hold up to me the same facts in the true order of thought.—R. W. Emerson.

OPENING OF CONFERENCE

First Session of Eastern Association of Seventh-Day Baptists Began This Morning.

PROFESSOR DAVIS PRESIDING.

Fifteen Churches Represented by Delegates or Communications—Large Attendance Expected Sunday.

The Eastern Association of the Seventh-Day Baptist church convened with the local church of that denomination at 10:30 o'clock this morning, with a good attendance. The conference will continue up to and including Sunday night. While there are a number of churches represented in the association, it is not expected that there will be a very large attendance, except on Sunday, as a numbr of the churches are too far away to permit the presence of many members.

These churches will be represented by delegates or communications:

Berlin, N. Y.; Rockville, R. I.; Plainfield; Waterford, Conn.; Pawcatuck, at Westerly, R. I.; First Westerly, R. I.; Niantic, R. I.; New Market; Shiloh, Marlboro, Cumberland, N. C.; First Hopkinton, R. I.; Second, Hopkinton, R. I.; New York City and Second, Westerly, R. I.

Prof. Walter B. Davis, of Shiloh, who was elected moderator at the last conference, will preside at all sessions. The conference opened with a service of praise and devotional exercises, which was followed with words of welcome by Rev. Dr. Theodore L. Gardiner, editor of the Sabbath Recorder. At 11 o'clock the first sermon was preached by Rev. R. G. Davis, a delegate from the Central Association. This afternoon's session opened at 2:15 with a praise and prayer service, after which communications from sister associations were read, followed by reports of delegates, executive committee and treasurer; appointment of standing committees, and presentation of eleven questions for discussion from the "committee of fifteen," by Rev. Dr. A. E. Main. This will be followed by a short business session.

This evening at 7:45 o'clock the corresponding secretary's report will be read, following the praise and prayer service and the sermon of the evening wil be delivered by Rev. H. C. VanHorn, delegate from the Southeastern Association.

While throughout the conference some business will be transacted, the whole time wil be devoted largely to the spiritual side of the church life and all of the various departments, including Sabbath-school, tract, missionary and educational will have a share in the general discussion and presentation of papers, reports, etc. while sermons will be delivered every day by diffrent ministers. Arrangements have been made whereby the delegates wil be entertained at the homes of the members of the local church.

CHAUTAUQUA CIRCLE GROWING IN MEMBERSHIP.

The rapid progress and steady enthusiasm of the Chautauqua Circle, under the supervision of Rev. F. D. Tildon, of Bethel chapel, is bringing together a large number of the best class of colored citizens in the city. Meetings are held on Tuesday evening of each week, when matters pertaining to the growth and interest of the Circle are discussed. On Tuesday night A. J. Carey, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the list of officers and they were elected as follows:

President, Rev. F. D. Tildon; vice-president, A. J. Carey; secretary, Rev. Mr. Cannon; assistant secretary, Miss Viola Jones; treasurer, W. G. Wright.

On Tuesday, June 9, the reception committee composed of Miss E. Dorsey, Miss H. Dorsey, Mrs. Scipio Whindleton, Homer Thompson, Mr. Gainaway and Mr. Stevens will provide an entertainment and refreshments. Pastors of the colored churches are showing unusual interest in the movement and much is expected from those who have joined the Circle.

Want an Isolation Ward.

The Union County Board of Freeholders will hold a special meeting at Elizabeth today when the appropriations for the year will be decided upon. Freeholder J. Hervey Doane is especially anxious to obtain an appropriation sufficient to build an isolation ward at the county jail in Elizabeth. He is thoroughly convinced that sick prisoners should be separated from others and is making a strong fight to get the improvement. At present there is a prisoner ill with a possible contagious disease and being thrown among the others detained there is likely to cause a spread of the disease.

AUTOMOBILES CRASH AT WATCHUNG AVENUE CORNER

A Winton runabout, driven by George Bartone, of Lake street, crashed into C. Wesley Holland's landaulette at Fifth street and Watchung avenue early last evening, smashing in the front of the Holland car, driven by John Mottley. Mr. Holland and members of his family were in his car, but although they were badly shaken up, all escaped uninjured.

Mottley was running the landaulette east on Fifth street, close to the right-hand curb, but when Bartone's machine attempted to turn from Watchung avenue into Fifth street, the driver lost control and crashed squarely into the front of the east-bound car. Such was the force of the collision that the ardiator on the Holland car was badly damaged and the two cars were jammed fast together. Mr. Bartone acknowledged himself to be to blame for the accident and saw that the damaged car was taken to a garage for repair.

MRS. JULIA WARD HOWE PASSES 89TH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, of Boston, mother of Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of this city, was 89 years old yesterday. The celebration of her birthday was continuous from the time when she raose in the morning until she retired for the night. Emerging from her bedchamber, she found the whole house fragrant with flowers, gifts of her friends. As the day went on other beautiful floral tributes arrived. Notable among these tributes was a basket of Killarney roses from the Hellenic Society, the older members of which remember Dr. Howe and the part he took in the struggle for Greek independence. Among the hundreds of messages of congratulations which poured in from all parts of the country was one from Ambassador Bryce.

An informal reception took place in the afternoon at Mrs. Howe's house, 241 Beacon street. Mrs. Howe was assisted in receiving by her daughters and her granddaughter. Afterward there was a family dinner, at which Prof. Henry W. Howe of Columbia University, joined the group.

A very important guest, in Mrs. Howe's estimation, was little Julia Ward Howe Hall, well known to Plainfielders, the first great-grandchild, now 4 years old. Mrs. Howe has ten grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

A feature of the day was the publication of Mrs. Howe's songs, a copy of which was presented to her at the reception. These songs had not previously been put in print.

MIXER CAUSES A MIX-UP

Contractor Meeker Hired the Machine and Owner Brings Suit for the Rental.

CASE IN THE DISTRICT COURT.

Defendant Asserts the Apparatus Was a Failure and Ignored Bill for $225.

The session of the district court this morning was almost wholly occupied with the hearing of the case of the Ransom Concrete Company, of Dunellen, against C. M. Meeker, in which the plaintiffs seek to recover $225 for the rental of a concrete mixer to the defendant last fall, when he was using the machine in the work of putting down the brick pavement on Park avenue. The company was represented by W. A. Coddington, of the firm of Reed & Coddington, while Walter L. Hetfield was counsel for Mr. Meeker.

It was the contention of Mr. Meeker that a representative of the company interviewed him on the street one day while the pavement work was in progress and suggested that he try a mixing machine. He is said to have informed Mr. Meeker that the company had a second-hand machine, as good as new and in perfect order and that the use of it would save him considerable money over the method of mixing by hand.

Mr. Meeker visited the company's plant in a day or two and there made an agreement for the machine, also several carts for carrying concrete. After the machine was delivered to Mr. Meeker on Park avenue, he claims that it did not work as represented, that it broke down every day for a number of days, that employes of the company were called to repair it, and that it would not keep up steam. He finally abandoned the machine, he said, and notified the company to come and get it. Upon their failure to do so he removed it to a vacant lot on East Second street and some time later it was taken to the company's plant, after having been in Mr. Meeker's possession two months.

According to the terms of the agreement Mr. Meeker was to pay $100 for the first month's use of the machine, $75 for the second and $50 for every succeeding month. Thomas Fay was employed to run the machine. Mr. Meeker contended that the jar of the machine of the loosened the bolts and the roller broke, rendering it useless. Mr. Meeker admitted on cross-examination that he had never paid any attention to numerous bills and letters written to him by the company and the only communication he had with them was by telephone, when he notified them of the breakdown of the machine and asked them to take it home.

Isaac Randolph, who was an inspector for the city on the concrete mixing part of the brick pavement work and David Bowden, also employed by the city at that time, were called as witnesses for the defendant and practically substantiated what he had said.

Arthur Ransom and Otto Wiedmeyer, of the Ransom Concrete Company, were called as witnesses and testified as to their part of the deal for the machine. Counsel for the company by his cross examination tended to show that the machine was in perfect order when delivered, but that the engineer employed to run it was not comptent on that kind of a machine, having never run one before; that it was left in charge of Italians, who knew nothing about operating a mixer and frequently overloaded it which caused it to stop.

It was 11 o'clock when this part of the proceedings was reached and Judge Newcorn decided, after a conference with counsel to adjourn the case to 2 o'clock when several additional witnesses will be called.

Dunellenite Sent to Jail.

We've been doing it for thousands of others for nearly 50 years at this same old, well known "73 Market Street" address, and certainly ought to have the knack by now! There's a lot of good common sense reasons for using us, these among others:

1st—Immense stocks of latest styles in every good grade to pick from.

2nd—Whether purchase is one or a hundred dollars, your account is equally welcome!

3rd—Prices are always plainly marked—and always the lowest, owing to enormous purchasing power.

4th—As little as $1.50 a week or $6.00 a month pays for $100 worth of goods—other amounts in proportion.

5th—We want your trade—and cordially invite comparisons!

Franchise Granted to New Electric Company in Jersey City.

The Jersey City Board of Aldermen passed an ordinance last night granting consent to the Mutual Benefit Electric Light and Power Company to open all streets in Jersey City and to lay pipes or conduits and wires for the distribution of electricity for light, heat and power. Twenty-two aldermen voted in favor of giving the Newark concern a franchise. Alderman Frank Cox, an employe of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, which now enjoys an electric light monopoly, alone voted in the negative.

The ordinance provides that the new company shall furnish its customers with electricity at the maximum rate of eight cents a kilowatt hour, and give 5 per cent. discount on all bills paid within five days of presentation. The company also agrees annually to pay Jersey City 5 per cent. of its gross receipts. Two miles of pipes and conduits must be laid every year. The franchise will continue twenty years.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tonight and receive several propositions.

NEW JERSEY RIFLEMEN GO TO OHIO IN JULY.

New Jersey riflemen who wish to take part in the trials for the American rifle team that will be sent abroad to compete in the Olympic games next July, will have to go to Ohio on June 10, 11, 12 and 13. Captain Frank E. Evans, secretary to United States Senator Briggs, has been selected by the United States Marine Corps, together with Lieut. Thomas Holcombe, well-known in New Jersey(as the representatives for that organization.

It is probable that Major William B. Martin, of Elizabeth, will be one of the Jerseymen who will go to Camp Perry for the trials. It is not known yet whether or not New Jersey will have any other representatives at the trials, although the State has its share of first-class shots.

Lieut. Albert S. Jones, secretary of the National Rifle Association, and a former Jerseyman, says that the trials might have been held at Sea Girt, but that the communication of the association to the Adjutant-General of New Jersey was never answered, and therefore arrangements had to be made to hold the trials in Ohio on the range at Camp Perry, where the National matches will be held next August.

Somerville is to be represented on the diamond this season after all, although the West End Athletic Association would not put a team in the field. Bogart T. Conklin, manager for the West Ends last season, has secured the use of the grounds and has organized a strong home team, which will open its season Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock with the strong Clinton Avenues of this city. Manager Conklin will pitch "Eddie" Kraft, recently with the Trenton team of the Pennsylvania and New Jersey League. Justice will receive his slants. The other Somerville players will be Frech, Guy Noble, Ferry, Enright, Miller, Staats, Weill and Houston. A game will also be played Saturday morning between teams made up of West End and Somerville A. C. players.

Manager Listman of the Y. M. C. A. team, has closed with Trenton Y. M. C. A. for a game here Saturday afternoon. This will insure a fine contest and give the fans a chance to get a line on the teams for the league season. In the morning the association boys will play Clinton Avenue at Crescent Oval.

Clinton Avenue will play the West Ends of Somerville at the latter place Saturday afternoon and as this will be the first clash between these teams a red hot contest may be expected. Randolph will pitch against Kraft.

Lester German, the former New York Giant pitcher, was high gun in the annual trapshooting tournament of the Pennsylvania Sportsmen's Association at Bradford, Pa., Monday. German broke 145 out of 150 targets.

COURT MISINFORMED ABOUT WOOD TRIAL.

Judge C. T. Cowenhoven informed Judge Booraem, at New Brunswick, yesterday morning in court that he was all ready to try the cases of William and Andrew Wood, two young men accused of breaking into a Lehigh Valley car at South Plainfield.

"Why, that case cannot go on tomorrow," said Judge Booraem. "I was informed Tuesday, in a message purporting to come from your office, that you would not be ready for trial."

Judge Cowenhoven disclaimed all knowledge of the message, and said that on the contrary he had spent Tuesday getting ready for trial and summoning his witnesses. The mystery was not cleared up, but Judge Booraem said the case could not be tried because the jury had been notified not to return until next week.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT.

Non-Suit Granted in One Case; Others Settled Before Trial.

Charles A. Reed, of the firm of Reed & Coddington, submitted to a non-suit in the landlord and tenant case of Elston M. French against Caspar Sachar, in the district court, this morning, after the statement that the lease which was supposed to have been held by Caspar Sachar was in the possession of Sachar & Sachar and that the action should be against the firm. Francis J. Blatz represented the defendant.

The case of Sachar & Sachar against the New Jersey Central for $200 claimed as damages to goods in transit, was settled before going to trial. Francis J. Blatz represented the plaintiffs. The case of Alexander Kane against the Public Service Corporation, for $200 damages, was also reported settled before going to trial. The suit was the result of an accident at Rahway, where Mr. Kane was driving one night. The street was torn up and the company, it is said, had failed to place the proper danger signal there. In consequence his horse stepped into the excavation and was injured.

M. C. A. in Brooklyn, being located at the Seamen's Branch, which was founded by Miss Helen Gould. He has always been active in Y. M. C. A. work and was an officer and earnest worker in the Plainfield Association for a number of years. Both he and his wife have a host of friends in this city who will extend their best wishes for their future success.

McDonough anticipates a large entry list for the parade, which will probably be twice the size of that of last year; Phil Smith is arranging with several Plainfield bicycle clubs to take part in the wheel race, and expects to interest Plainfield oarsmen in the boat races. Entertainments will be given every half hour in Washington Hall and Percy Von Ohl will have charge of an outside tent where he will exhibit performing animals. A merry-go-round will probably be one of the attractions. The dinner committee reported that they were making most complete arrangements.

Detective Jenkins is having a busy time with the railroad hoboes. On Tuesday ten of them opened fire on him, and others that were with him on top of a freight car. They all escaped, however, before a capture could be made. Wednesday he caught five men but as they had nothing of a dangerous character on their persons and were found to have a little money between them, they were compelled to purchase railroad tickets and to leave the village. Three of them went to New York and two of them to Perth Amboy.

Alfred and Edward Springer, of Perth Amboy, are staying in the village for a few days for the purpose of improving their property on Lakeside avenue.

THE FORUM.

Are Plainfielders Patriotic?

Editor, Daily Press:

A stranger coming into our city would find a singular thing. Among the very first noticeable buildings is the hundred year old Friends' meeting house at Second and Peace streets. No, not Peace street, for the good old name has been relegated to the past, but Watchung avenue. That would seem to indicate some age for the place. Yet one may search it from end to end and from one side to the other, and push the same through North Plainfield, and not a sign will he find that its citizens have found anything in their country's history worthy of commemoration by statue or building. Washington Rock exists, of course, but the Daughters of the American Revolution have tried in vain for years to raise the small sum necessary to place a tablet on the rock to carry its story down to future generations. Perhaps we can rely on tradition to do that, as it has done to our time, but it is certainly no credit to us to allow the matter to rest as it is.

Some years ago there was an attempt to have a soldiers monument erected, and even a place was selected for it in one of the most sightly locations in the city, but the attempt was a failure, and now all that reminds us that there was a war and that some of our citizens were active in it is when a veteran dies and a few of his comrades follow him to his grave and give his corpse the honor dear to a soldier—or when on Memorial Day a few feeble men following the flag they loved and offered their lives for, go to decorate with flowers the resting places of those who have gone before them. Yes, if you will go to the cemeteries at that time you will find that each grave is marked and for a while bears a little U. S. flag, and so a few of us know that these things have been.

Is there really any love of our country's history left among us? If there is let us hear from some patriots. VETERAN.

Mixed Vegetables and Kerosene.

Four small boys were haled to court by the police this morning, on charges made by a Watchung avenue grocer that they had entered his store yard and strewn vegetables and kerosene about in conglomerate fashion. The culprits tearfully owned up to being guilty and were let go after a lecture that brought about a miniature Niagara on each of the four faces.

Gong Toots Due to Break.

A break in one of the circuits led to a succession of toots on the fire gong yesterday afternoon, leading to the belief that an alarm was being sounded from box 12. Chief Doane had the trouble quickly located and repaired.

—H. W. Marshall's American Steam Laundry will be closed all day Saturday.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning May 31, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Home missions—Alaska for Christ.—Isa. lx. 11-22.

The prophecy contained in this passage declares that the "gentiles shall come to the light." This prophecy has been fulfilled for centuries. In ancient Jewish times it was not an unusual thing for gentile to be proselyted to Judaism by obeying the Mosaic rites and ceremonies. In the time of Christ the gentiles turned toward Him as the light, and in apostolic days they came in still greater numbers, especially under the preaching of Paul, who has been called "the apostle of the gentiles." In the modern foreign missionary movement, instituted a little over a hundred years ago, they have come in increasing numbers. In our country as new territory and new peoples have been added to it the gospel has been carried to the people, who, being gentiles, have thus had this prophecy fulfilled in them. As gentiles ourselves and for those to whom in our own country we have sent the gospel we may thank God for His promises and their fulfillment.

Alaska is one of the gentile nations to which we have carried the light of the gospel. Alaska was purchased from Russia in 1867 under the influence of Secretary Seward. It was called "Seward's folly," but it has since proved to be Seward's wisdom. In his action he displayed more wisdom and foresight than the rest of his countrymen. Alaska is an Indian name and means the great land. And it is a great land in natural endowments, in mineral resources and in many parts even in its climatic conditions. And under the blessing of God let us hope that it will attain a high standard of morality and spirituality through the missionaries sent to the people. The area of Alaska is 500,000 square miles and one-sixth the whole area of the United States. Its coast line is 25,000 miles long and would thus entirely circle the globe.

The Alaskans under Russian rule were directed and controlled by the Russian or Greek church. But when Russia withdrew her flag and soldiers she also took away the Russian priests. The people were left churchless and practically without divine instruction. The native religion was superstitious and insufficient, resembling in some respects all Indian belief. It bred darkness and was lifeless and hopeless, and these people under such religious conditions were left alone for twenty years by the Christian people and churches of the United States.

One of the pioneer missionaries to Alaska was a woman, Mrs. A. R. McFarland. For seven months she was the only white teacher in Alaska and for five months longer the only one at Fort Wrangel. She was under the direction of Dr. Sheldon Jackson, who was afterward governor of the territory. But gradually the work advanced and schools were established and churches erected. And when gold was discovered the church followed crowds to the gold fields, not to enrich itself, but to save the souls of those there, not only native Alaskans, but the souls also of the American gold seekers. A good work has been done. Mrs. McFarland, who labored for years amid most serious difficulties, should inspire us all to do all we can to win Alaska for Christ.

St. Paul's C. E. President.

We are going to hear much during the next two years of the St. Paul (Minn.) Christian Endeavor union, which is to entertain the next international convention. We are glad to present here the picture of the president of this important union, Mr. Harold G. Lains. Born in 1878, he graduated from the Mechanic Arts High school of St. Paul and received two degrees in a law course at the Minnesota State university. Since 1898 he has worked in St. Paul for the largest law book publishing house in the world. Here he has in charge 135 workers, being assistant foreman in the mechanical department. Mr. Lains is a Presbyterian and a long time Endeavorer. He has already served one term as president of the St. Paul union, and his services were so thoroughly appreciated that he has been called to office again after a brief interval.

HAROLD G. LAINS.

No Endeavor Is Vain.

No endeavor is in vain:
Its reward is in the doing
And the rapture of pursuing
Is the prize the vanquished gain.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Miss Grace George did not stage her now famous revival of "Divorcons," in which she will be seen here next Saturday afternoon and night in the New Plainfield theatre, until the season of 1906-07 was well-nigh at an end. She put the play on for two or three trial performances in the course of her Philadelphia engagement in her last season's hit, "Clothes," mainly with a view of ascertaining how well she had cast the parts and to see which of her players might be retained for the following season.

Now, the Philadelphia critics, like the critics of most large cities, had seen many performances of "Divorcons;" for the play was as old in this country as 1882, when it was first acted here by Alice Dunning Lingard, the English comedienne. But they were swept off their feet by the brilliancy of Miss George's performance as Cyprienne, and were agreed that her revival of "Divorcons" furnished the very best example of good comedic acting that had been witnessed on the Philadelphia stage in many years. Moreover, the several audiences were so enthusiastic that Miss George was impressed with the idea that she had made no mistake in reviving Sardou's masterpiece.

Then, at the fag end of the season, the failure of a play in Wallack's Theatre, New York city, left that house open, and Mr. William A. Brady, Miss George's manager, at once took the house, and installed her therein as late as April 15. She remained there, playing to packed audiences, for nine weeks, and gave up the run only because Charles Frohman had cabled to Mr. Brady to ask that Miss George be sent over directly to the Duke of York's Theatre, London, where "Strongheart" had failed. Miss George closed her Wallack's engagement on Saturday, and sailed the following Tuesday for London. Eight nights later, on Wednesday, June 12, she made her debut in London as Cyprienne, and remained there twelve weeks, playing to the largest audiences ever attracted by an American star in the British metropolis.

Laughter will be the predominating feature of the splendid program arranged for the delectation of the patrons of Proctor's Newark Theatre during the week of June 1st.

Fred Karno's famous London Comedy Company will offer this side splitting farce "A Night in London Slums." This clever company of pantomimists are without peers in this variety entertainment. Mr. and Mrs. Gene Hughes, the well known farceurs will appear in a brand new sketch entitled "A Matrimonial Substitute." Bellclaire Brothers, two of the worlds greatest exponents of physical culture, will display their wonderful strength and skil in a series of marvelous feats. Geiger and Walters, two newcomers here are a duo of musical artists, with excellent voices whose duets on the violin and organ are highly spoken of wherever they have appeared. Worden and Taylor will speed merriment in a comedy singing and dancing skit. A clay modeler of great rapidity, Frank Vinton, is also booked, as is John Rucker, a clever black face singer and dancer. Other acts of like calibre and new animated pictures will be added to complete the bill.

With the idea of further stimulating the interest in cycle racing, and in order to show its appreciation for the public support accorded its meets since the opening three weeks ago, the management of the Newark Velodrome has framed up a two-day race arnival for Decoration Day afternoon, next Saturday, May 30, and Sunday, May 31, which will surpass anything that has been attempted in the game for several years. The card for the two days carries twelve big events, including the usual sprints for amateurs and professionals, competition among sprinters paced by lightning-fast motor cycles, and a two-mile amateur handicap. An idea of the extent of the meets is given by the fact that $1,400 will be expended in purses and prizes for the two days, outside the expense of getting the men and machines to the track. This outlay is greater than was customary even a few years ago when the cycle game was at its highest, but as the meets have been largely attended the track management has adopted a liberal policy.

Miss Ethel King a Graduate.

Among those to be graduated on Thursday, June 4, from the Women's Art School, of Cooper Union, New York, will be Miss Ethel King, daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. David W. King, of Craig place. This will be the forty-ninth annual commencement. On Tuesday evening, June 2, the forty-ninth annual reception and exhibition of the Women's Art School will be held.

To Address Endeavorers.

"The Strenuous Endeavorer" is the topic of the address to be made at the mass meeting of local Christian Endeavorers by Vice-President A. Harry Moore, of the State Christian Endeavor Union, at Trinity church tonight. Mr. Moore is president of the Hudson County C. E. Union, which will be represented by several delegates at the meeting.

—Dr. H. K. Carroll and James R. Joy, of the borough, who are attending the General Conference of the Methodist church at Baltimore, as delegates, are expected home early next week. The conference will close on Monday, June 1.

Washy had been pretty decent, for him, for the first week after he landed in his new quarters. But his decency didn't last long. He begun to fuss and find fault and groan and growl. Miss Page sent him nice things to eat—and he always ate 'em every speck himself—and medicine, which he took about a spoonful of and then said 'twa'n't helping him none and give it up. He yelled for Eureka every few minutes and she'd have to drop her work and run and wait on him. He was a pesky outrage and everybody hated him, including Van, who said that he was a common nuisance and if 'twa'n't for his promise to Agnes he'd abate him with a shot-gun.

One day Eureka comes out on the porch where the Heavenlies was setting, and says she:

"Mr. Van Brunt, would you and Mr. Hartley be willing for me to cure pa?"

"Cure him?" asks Van, surprised. "Cure him? Yes, indeed. Or kill him, either," he adds, under his breath.

Hartley didn't say nothing. He never spoke to old man Sparrow now nor of him, far's that went.

"All right," Eureka says. "Thank you."

"What's the cook got up her sleeve concerning the afflicted parent?" asks Van of me.

"I don't know," says I. And I didn't.

That afternoon Eureka got me to help her lug the haircloth lounge from the front parlor out to the spare shed, the one we didn't use. 'Twas a little ten by six building that Marcellus had for a toolhouse, and the shingles was falling off and the roof and sides full of cracks and knotholes. We set the lounge down in there.

"What on earth?" says I.

"I'm going to tell you," says she. "Mr. Hartley said I could have the lounge."

Then she told what her plan was. 'Twas a mighty good one, and I promised to help along. I laughed over it till supper time.

That evening we was all in the dining room. The weather had changed lately and the nights was chilly and windy. 'Twa'n't pleasant enough for the Twins to be on the porch, and Washy had come down from his room and was all hunched up in front of the stove in the kitchen. Eureka was just finishing the dishes. All of a sudden I heard her say:

"Pa, I don't s'pose you feel well enough to go to work?"

I could hear her dad's feet come down off the stove hearth with a thump. He started to speak, and then, remembering himself, he coughed, as hollow as an empty biler.

"I asked," Eureka goes on, "because I saw Mr. Brown yesterday and he said you could have that job at the hotel any time you wanted it."

"Hotel job!" hollers Washy. "How long do you cal'late I'd last lugging bricks and digging? Ain't you satisfied to see me slipping into the grave day by day, without wanting to shove me under all at once?"

"No, I knew you wa'n't fit to work. But pa, I've been hoping to find a way to cure you some day, and now I've learned the way. And I'm going to try it."

Washy coughed again. I was listening with all my ears, and I see the Twins doing the same.

"Cure? Humph!" sniffs the old man. "I'm past curing, darter. Don't you worry about me. Let me die, that's all; let me die. Only I hope 'twon't be too slow. Cure! The doctors give me up long spell ago."

"Doctors give you up! What doctors? Nobody but Penrose, and you've said more'n a thousand times that he wa'n't no doctor. I've been reading up lately and I know how real doctors cure folks."

"It ain't no use—" begins her dad. She cut him short.

"Your case is kind of mixed-up, pa," says she, "I'm free to say, owing to your consumption being complicated with nervous dyspepsy. But I've made up my mind to start in on your lungs and kind of work 'round to your stomach. You listen to this:"

She come in the dining room and took a magazine out of the chest of drawers. Then she opened to a place where the leaf was turned down, and went back to the kitchen.

"Consumption, pa," she says, "ain't cured by medicine no more. Not by the real doctors, it ain't. You say yourself that all Miss Page's medicine ain't done you no good. Fresh air night and day is what's needed, and you don't get it here by the stove or shut up in your room. You ought to live out door. Yes, and sleep there, too."

"Sleep out door? What kind of talk is that? Be you crazy or—"

"Don't screech so, pa," says Eureka, cold as an ice chest. "Folks over on the main will think this place is on fire. Listen to this. Here's a piece about consumption in this magazine. They call it the 'White Plague.' I'll read some of it."

The Heavenlies was in a broad grin by this time. Washy kept yelling that he didn't want to hear no such foolishness, but his daughter spelt out different parts of the magazine piece. It told about how dangerous shut-up rooms and "confined atmospheres" was, and about what it called "open-air sanitariums" and outdoor bedrooms.

"See, pa," says she; "look at this picture. Here's a tent where two consumptive folks lived and slept for over a year. 'Twas 30 below zero there sometimes, but it cured 'em. And see this one. 'Twas 45 below where that shanty was, but—"

The invalid jumped out of his chair and come bolting into the dining room.

"Take it away!" he yells, frantic. "If you expect me to believe such lies as them you're—"

"They ain't lies," says Eureka, following him up, and speaking calm and easy. "They're true, ain't they, Mr. Van Brunt?"

Van smothered his grins and nodded.

"True as gospel," he says.

"Yes, course they be. And pa, I'm going to cure you or die a-trying. The old toolhouse out back of the barn is just the place for you. It's full of holes and cracks, so there'll be plenty of fresh air. And I took the sofy out there this very day. You can sleep there nights and set in the sun day times. You mustn't come in the house at all. I mean to keep you outdoor all winter and then—"

The Merits of the "W.B.Reduso"

W. B. Reduso puts every stout woman on the same style basis as her slender sisters. It is the last word in corset making, radical in its idea and its results. A scientific, logical, simple corset, which by forcing its wearer to hold herself properly so encourages deep breathing that nature itself reduces the excess flesh out of the abdomen through hardening the soft fatty tissues into hard, muscular fibres. The Reduso will in a few months bring about a natural lessening of the figure. It is not a harness in any sense of the word, but it is as simple, as light and as comfortable as any corset made. It has all the latest style modifications, and will taper off the hips, render the lower back less prominent, and not only improve the appearance but the health of the wearer.

W. B. Corsets have been getting more sensible every year. They've become more scientific, more hygienic, and because they're built along nature's own lines, the W. B. is constantly growing more graceful, because nothing in all art can surpass the exquisite lines of a beautiful woman.

P.H.S. NINE CHAMPIONS

Borough Schoolboys Defeated by Score of 15-4 in Game for Local Title.

BUT ONE HIT OFF VAN ZANDT.

Winning Team Bats Heavily, but Eight Errors Give Its Opponents Four Runs.

The Plainfield High School nine clinched the local interscholastic baseball championship by defeating the borough school team 15-4 in a well-played game at Crescent Oval yesterday afternoon. VanZandt, who was on the slab for the city schoolboys, pitched classy baseball, and allowed but a single hit. He was given poor support in the early part of the game, eight errors being tallied against P. H. S. During the last five innings the winning team played like veterans, making the outs in one-two-three order.

The boroughites were weak in the box, where Day and Smith both showed unsteadiness. The heavy hitting of the city team was a feature of the game, eleven hits telling the story of the North Plainfield twirlers' downfall. On the bases, P. H. S. showed the results of good coaching, the petty larceny total amounting to fourteen bags in the course of the game. The winners' errors responsible for all four runs of the over-the-brook nine, which scored in but two innings.

Plainfield started the run getting in the first, when singles by Giddes, Dey and Murphey and a glaring error at second let all three cross the plate. Their opponents' unsteadiness in the field gave the boroughites a chance to score two in their half, when Pierson Bailey and Smith came home on errors, and Powlison and McClintock scored on more errors in the fourth. The heavy hitting came in the seventh, when P. H. S. got ten men at bat and four clean hits brought in five runs. Russell Conroy made the only hit for the boroughites in the eighth but was neatly nabbed at second. The summaries:

BASEBALL.

Walter Nelson, of New Market, who signed with the Bridgeport, Connecticut State League Club, has returned home, where he is likely to remain this summer. He was engaged by Manager O'Rourke to catch and not giving him the chance Nelson decided to quit. He played the outfield in a number of games and made good. It is said that he intends playing with the New Brunswick team the rest of the season.

Scotch Plains will play Clinton Avenues at Crescent Oval, June 20, and one of the best games of the season may be expected. Last Saturday these clubs played a twelve-inning contest and the 'Plains just nosed out by one run.

Grimshaw, playing first base for Toronto against Baltimore in Monday's fourteen-inning contest, accepted twenty-three chances without an error.

Jack Kelly, the Baltimore centre fielder, has been suspended by Manager Dunn for insubordination. In Montreal last Friday Dunn censured Kelly for making a bad play, and the latter retaliated by attacking Dunn on the players' bench. The argument resulted in a fist fight between manager and player. Chadbourne is now filling Kelly's position.

The winning streak of Walter Manning, the young New York American pitching phenom, was shattered Monday by the Chicago White Sox, who defeated the Yankees by the score of 9 to 3.

Jimmy Barrett has been turned over to Providence by the Boston Americans. Barrett played his first game with the Grays against Buffalo Monday.

GOLF.

A thirty-six-hold medal play, handicap competition, will be one of the chief events at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday, in addition to other events of more or less interest. An extra large field is expected to engage in the play. The golf events will vie with the strong attractions on the club's tennis courts.

In addition to the events on the course and courts at the Plainfield Country Club Saturday, there will be a tea at the clubhouse in the afternoon and a dinner-dance in the evening. It is the intention of the house committee to make the social features prominent this year and an attractive list of functions is being planned.

There will be special golf events at the Middlebrook Country Club, Finderne, Saturday, with prizes for the best net and best gross score returned during the day.

The Park Golf Club will offer many special attractions on Saturday, including golf and tennis events and a social function at the clubhouse. Preparations are being made for a large attendance.

"Marty" O'Loughlin has been doing good work on the course of the Plainfield Country Club of late and there is every assurance that he will return to his old-time form soon and be able to meet the best professionals.

Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, formerly of Plainfield, did not get a place in the first tournament held by the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association this week. However, she is playing a strong game and will be heard from later in the summer.

The fact that Frank O. Rinehart did not win out in the finals for the Metropolitan Golf Association championship at Baltusrol, did not discourage him in the least. He promises to be a factor this season in several golf events and may be expected to lower some records.

The Monitor Field Club, of Dunellen, just organized under the management of John McGovern, would like to schedule games with teams averaging 15-17 years in the vicinity of Plainfield, North Plainfield and other nearby places. Address John McGovern, 325 Grove street, Dunellen.

Baseball at Scotch Plains.

There will be some good baseball at Scotch Plains on Memorial Day. In the morning at 10:30 o'clock the 'Plains team will play the Kenilworths and in the afternoon at 3:30 o'clock they wil tackle the heavy-hitting semi-professional Mohonk A. C., formerly of the Union League, Brooklyn. This will be one of the best games of the season and a large crowd is expected. The Mohonks will have the well-known Jack McCarty, formerly of St. John's C. C., on the slab with Quigley at the receiving end, while the locals will rely on Ortleb and Alberts as a battery. The lineups: Scotch Plains—Flannery, lf; Baldwin, ss; Joe Alberts, 3b; Henry Albert, c; Frents, 2b; Allen, 1b; Eller, cf; Reick, rf; Ortleb, p. Mohonk A. SABBATARIANS' GROWTH

Officers' Reports at Eastern Association Conference are Encouraging.

BELATED DELEGATES ARRIVING.

Standing Committees for the Session Named—Special Services Today and Tomorrow.

Reports from the various officers, including the executive committee, corresponding secretary and treasurer occupied a portion of last night's session of the Eastern Association at the Seventh-Day Baptist church. During the afternoon additional delegates arrived and the number now in attendance is about sixty, representing the fourteen churches in the association.

Prof. W. B. Davis, of Shiloh, the moderator, was delayed and did not arrive yesterday. His place was taken by Asa F. Randolph, of this city, vice-moderator. The first business last night was the report of the executive committee, presented by Miss Eva Rogers. She also gave the report of the corresponding secretary, which office she holds.

This showed that forty-five letters had been written and the fourteen churches reprent a total membership of 2,018. There have been forty-eight baptisms during the year, twenty-two being received by letter and five by testimony. There were forty-two deaths, sixteen dismissed and nine members withdrew.

The report of the treasurer, Arthur J. Spicer, was also presented by Miss Rogers. This showed a balance at last report of $14.71; joint collections, missionary, tract and educational society, $74.40; Sabbath-school Board, $16.86; Women's Board, $15; amount returned by Rev. H. N. Jordan, $4.22; amount returned by Asa F. Randolph, $18.35. The following apportionment was received from the churches named:

Pawcatuck, $32.22; Shiloh, $30.60; First, Hopkinton, $29.34; Plainfield, $21.51; Rockville, $14.49; Berlin, $11.16; Second, Hopkinton, $10.26; Piscataway, $8.91; Marlboro, $6.66; New York, $5.49; First, Westerly, $4.41; Waterford, $3.42; Cumberland, $1.80; Second, Westerly, $1.71; aggregating $186.98, making a total of $325.52. The total disbursements were $252.48, leaving a balance on May 27 of $73.04.

There was some discussion regarding the "Eleven Questions," suggested by the "Committee of Fifteen," and it was decided to appoint a committee to present them for consideration on Sunday. The committee appointed consists of Rev. Dr. Theodore L. Gardiner, Rev. M. G. Stillman and Rev. A. J. C. Bond.

These standing committees were appointed to serve during the conference: Nominating—Rev. W. L. Burdick, Ashaway, R. I.; Miss Maura Babcock, Rockville, R. I.; Rev. D. B. Coon, Shiloh. Petitions—Rev. J. G. Burdick, Berlin, N. Y.; Rev. S. R. Wheeler, Marlboro; Rev. E. B. Saunders, Ashaway, R. I. Finance—Luther S. Davis, Marlboro; A. H. Burdick, New Market; J. D. Spicer, Plainfield. Miss Mildred Greene is the secretary of the conference.

This concluded the business of the evening and the sermon was then delivered by Rev. H. C. Van Horn, delegate from the Southeastern Association. His theme was taken from Philippians 4-27: "All the Saints Salute You, especially those who are of Caesar's Household." He pointed out that it is difficult in these days for a person to live a Christian life, considering the manifold forms of vice, corruption and the tendency to insincerity, but, he added, Christians should be on the lookout for the good things in life, where they would least expect them. He urged all to live pure lives amid the worst environments, and although it is often hard to develop the best in the Christian life, it is possible if three cardinal principles are strictly followed. These he said were faith, prayer and service, all of which he emphasized.

The session was resumed at 10 o'clock this morning, with the Sabbath-school Board hour, conducted by Rev. Walter L. Greene, field secretary, followed by the Education Society hour, conducted by Rev. Dr. Arthur E. Main, dean of Alfred University.

This afternoon's session opened at 2:15 with a praise and devotional service, after which the American Sabbath Tract Society hour was conducted by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, corresponding secretary. This was followed with a sermon by Rev. W. L. Burdick, of Ashaway, R. I. This evening after the praise service at 7:45 there will be a prayer and conference meeting conducted by Rev. Judson G. Burdick. The sessions will continue tomorrow and Sunday.

G.A.R. VETERANS SPEAK AT SCHOOL EXERCISES

Memorial Day was observed by appropriate exercises at the local public schools today, when the pupils sang patriotic songs and heard addresses by local Grand Army men. The exercises at the Plainfield High School were at 8:30 o'clock this morning. After a short talk, in which he emphasized that Memorial Day was becoming more a day for sports and games than patriotic observance, Principal Ira W. Travell introduced S. W. Reese, who spoke briefly, introducing J. N. Bogart, another veteran. Mr. Bogart's talk was commemorative of Civil War times.

S. W. Reese was the speaker at the North Plainfield High School exercises later in the morning, when the exercises were marked by the singing of patriotic sings. The day's exercises of the primary department at the Somerset school came at 2 o'clock, when W. W. Coriell made an address. A program of music and recitations were presented and those who took part were the Misses Ada Long, Bertha Bodine, Veronica Poling, Marguerite Johnson, Ruth Small, Bertha Duerschner, Grace Brewster, Madeline Blair, Millie Weintraub and Franklin Rowley, Jack Harper, Clifford Causebrook, Russel Story and Jack Cannon.

Grand Army veterans spoke at the other schools as follows: Irving School, J. N. Bogart; Stillman School, J. N. Bogart; Whittier School, N. C. Pennington; Bryant School, Captain W. C. Hand; Watchung School, W. W. Coriell; Franklin School, Chief T. O. Doane; Washington School, N. C. Pennington, and St. Mary's Parochial School, Captain W. C. Smith.

SAFETY PIN IN MOUTH ALMOST FATAL TO INFANT

Accidentally getting a large safety pin in its mouth Wednesday morning, while the mother was giving the child a bath, Everett Leivers, the six-months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leivers, of Grove street, had a narrow escape from fatal consequences. That day the child was removed to the hospital and several physicians were summoned to assist in the work of attempting to remove the pin. The operation was finally successful at 11 o'clock last night and it is believed that the child will now recover.

How the child hapened to get the pin in his mouth is a mystery. At the time she was giving the boy a bath her oldest daughter, Marie Leivers, aged two years, had been playing about the bath-room and had picked the safety pin off the floor. Mrs. Leivers took the pin out of her daughter's hands and stuck it in the waist of her dress, not stopping to fasten it securely.

A few minutes later she was startled by the piercing screams of her youngest child. A quick examination showed that the pin had entered the infant's mouth and the mother was just able to see one end of it. It was lodged in the back part of the mouth under the tongue and despite every effort she was unable to remove it. Becoming frightened she at once summoned the family physician, who after repeated efforts also failed to get the pin out. He then advised that the child be removed to the hospital, which was done. It was not until 11 o'clock last night that the physicians succeeded in their efforts, and it was then only after the pin had been closed and twisted that its removal was made possible.

S. Rowland as a trustee and chairman of the committee, the other members being W. Lester Glenney, Frank O. Reinhart and C. B. Morgan. The resignation of Mr. Erickson is deeply regretted, but his time is taken up so much with other business that he felt compelled to take this action.

Central's Editorial Excursion.

The annual excursion of the New Jersey Central to the editors and their wives on the line of the road, will occur during the week of June 22-27 and the place will be Island Park, Easton, Pa., the same place they were taken to last year.

FISK HEADS COMMISSION

Excise Members Elect Him President at Organization This Morning

ALL SERVE WITHOUT PAY.

Plan of Work Discussed but Active Campaign Not Likely Until November.

The new State Excise Commission appointed on Wednesday by Governor J. Franklin Fort, met at the State Capitol this morning and organized by electing Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of this city, president; Peter Backes, of Trenton, corresponding secretary, and John P. Dengler, of East Orange, official secretary and stenographer. The members of the commission, seven in number, are to serve without pay, and Mr. Dengler's salary is to be fixed by the Governor. According to the resolution under which the commission was appointed, it is to report to the Governor not later than December 15, 1908.

After completing its organization, the first thing done was the appointment of a sub-committee, consisting of Peter Backes, J. Kearney Rice, Caleb Van Housen Whitbeck and George Smith, who will prepare a special circular to be sent to all of the county, city, township and court clerks and secretaries of excise boards in the State seeking such information as the State commission will need to complete its work of investigation into excise matters in New Jersey.

There was a preliminary discussion of a plan of campaign, which will be taken up more fully after a report from the sub-committee which will be presented at the next meeting of the commission at Trenton on Tuesday, June 9. It is not believed that the commission will do much work until after the National Republican convention, as that will call a number of persons from the State who will be needed.

The commission is given authority to hold its meetings wherever it is most convenient and it also has the power of a court, being permitted to compell the attendance of witnesses at its sessions for the purpose of obtaining such information as it may desire. The first meetings will probably be held in Jersey City and Newark, and the in Elizabeth, Camden, Atlantic City and in such other places as the members may decide. The meetings will be open to the public for the purpose of obtaining all the evidence on the subject possible and anyone having business of an excise nature to bring before the commission can arrange for a hearing by communicating with the secretary.

The schedule of meetings will be decided upon probably at the adjourned session of the commision on June 9, and until that is fixed little can be done. It is the purpose of the members to make a thorough and exhaustive investigation of excise maters in New Jersey and the report when presented to the Governor in December will be very complete.

TEMPLARS AT HOLY CROSS

Trinity Comandery, K. T. Attends Evening Services in a Body.

A TALK ON CHRISTIANITY.

Rev. G. A. Warner Preaches Against Neutral Christians, Who Are Not Active in Church Work.

Rev. George A. Warner, rector of Holy Cross church, preached a powerful sermon on militant Christianity and Christian neutrality at a special Ascension Day service attended by Trinity Commandery, No. 17, Knights Templar, last night. There were about thirty-five members of the order present, in charge of Eminent Commander Clarence Goss. The Knights were in full uniform and marched to the church in a body, where special seats were reserved for them. Music was a feature of the service. The full vested choir was in attendance and H. Raymond Loder, of New York, was at the organ. The offering was for the rector's poor fund.

The text "He that is not with me is against me," was the keynote of the sermon. "Just how far a man or a nation can be neutral or non-interfering," said Mr. Werner, "is a question which perplexes earnest and thoughtful people today. Perhaps we are coming to realize that our worst sins, especially of the educated and cultured people, are the sins of omission; if we're not for a good cause heart and soul, we are only too frequently against it by our inactivity and inaptitude. Because politics have been dirty, some men have said that they will have nothing to do with them and these men fail to see how much their withdrawal or negligence has been against good government. Neutrality on the part of a nation through desire to avoid war is not always a good policy. It ranges that nation against a cause by its silence and indifference to the struggle going on.

"The Christian church needs workers. It needs thinkers, writers, preachers, the open purse, the life given up to the cause. There may be neutral men, not opposed to Christianity, honoring, perhaps reverencing it, but I tell you these men are against Christ if they do not work for his cause.

"The home life is where Christianity should be taught, the home should have the source of its religious life and its inspiration in the church. As a matter of fact, how is it with the neutral, the man who has never come out openly for Christ? His children watch him. Father or "Dad" isn't much interested in what the church is doing. There are half a dozen or more just like "Dad" in the community. Does Sunday-school or church become a very attractive thing for the youngster? Not much. There is a distaste for Christian church and Christian training, a desinclination to religious instruction or training. 'If father lives without much religion, and all these other men, why should I be different?' 'I see nine-tenths women in church congregations, and I guess majority must be for women.' Do you thing the man who is not for Christ is against him?"

At the conclusion of the service the Knights marched in a body back to their hall in the Babcock building, where a social hour was spent and refreshments were served.

DETROIT MAN OFFERS $300 FOR INFORMATION OF HIS SON.

Edward C. Greene, of 9 Pallister avenue, Detroit, Mich., has asked the Daily Press to assist in finding his eighteen-year-old son, Carlton H. Greene, who has been missing since October 14 last when he started out to go to school.

He offers $300 for information of the missing young man. The boy is five feet nine inches tall; weighs about 118 pounds, has sandy hair, light complexion, blue eyes, slightly dimpled chin and a slight muscular twitch of his eyes and face.

He is of slender build, active studious, of good habits, quet and retiring. He is supposed to be somewhere in the East.

Are You Going to Europe.

Persons desiring further particulars about the European trip, advertised in today's Daily Press, by a well-known Plainfielder, may apply at this office, where the name of the advertiser will be furnished, or may write to him, addressing "European, care Press."

First Visit in Sixteen Years.

Oscar C. Pierson, of East Front street, is entertaining his sister, Mrs. Ellis Olund, of Sweden, who arrived here on Friday on the Lusitania. It is her first visit to this country in sixteen years and she has had the pleasure of meeting many of her old friends.

WOMAN PRISONER GIVES COP NOLAN A TUSSLE

Notified late last night that a man and a woman, both middle-aged, had taken possession of a porch on East Front street to whisper soft nothings, Patrolman Tobias Nolan went to investigate. He found the couple as reported and on making inquiry as to what right they had on the premises was told by the woman to "go chase himself."

Nolan started to place them under arrest but as he did the masculine end of the combination beat a hurried retreat. His lady friend, who proved to be Margaret McArthur and who had been drinking, held her ground and was taken in custody. She objected to going to the station house and gave the cop a tussle before he got her to the street. She then went along quietly, but when Watchung avenue was reached suddenly changed his mind and getting a half-Nelson on her captor attempted to throw him. Instead, she went to the pavement herself but she kicked and fought so hard that Nolan had to hold her down for ten minutes while waiting for some one to chance along and call the patrol wagon for him.

The woman was still in an aggressive mood when arraigned in court this morning and Judge Runyon sent her to jail for sixty days.

LANDLORD-TENANT SUIT LEADS TO COMPLICATIONS

Further complications as a result of the landlord and tenant suit of Mrs. Melissa Reeves, of Palermo, through her husband, Rev. P. J. Reeves, agent, arose yesterday, when William Lindsay, Jr., of 965 West Front street, proceeded to conduct an auction sale of his goods as advertised. Mr. Reeves learned that there was to be a sale and he took the necessary legal steps to stop it. When he arrived at the property he found more than 200 prospective buyers, and promptly gave orders for them to move.

The crowd refused to follow his instructions and he summoned Justice Hezekiah Hand, acting as constable to drive the people away. The claim of $170.70 due the Reeves for rent had never been paid and following the judgment given by Judge Newcorn to the plaintiff, possession of the premises was given, a warrant of removal and a distress warrant were issued.

When Mr. Hand arrived there yesterday he instructed Auctioneer Latourette that he could not sell the goods, as he had restrained them under legal proceedings. The crowd was also warned not to purchase them as they might be involved in the pending trouble. Mr. Hand not being successful in removing the crowd, Mr. Reeves summoned the aid of the police and the feat was accomplished. A bluecoat is still on duty there, Mr. Reeves being determined to retain possession of the premises.

There were further complications when C. W. Squier failed to get a horse, which he had purchased from Mr. Lindsay prior to the auction sale. At Mr. Lindsay's suggestion, Mr. Squier had left the animal in the barn among the other things to be sold, it having been agreed that he was to have it for the original purchase price.

When the goods were restrained, the horse was included among the things held and Mr. Reeves refused to let Mr. Squier have the animal. The latter today engaged S. S. Swackhammer as his counsel and he will contest the matter.

There is still more trouble in sight, for it is said that Henry Nischwitz, of the borough, holds a chattel mortgage on all of Mr. Lindsay's goods and this, it is said, takes precedence over other legal actions. According to the law ten days must intervene before Justice Hand can sell the goods to satisfy the claim of Mrs. Reeves, and that date has been fixed as June 8. It is possible that in the meantime Mr. Nischwitz will assert his rights under the chattel mortgage and it may still further delay the possibility of Mrs. Reeves obtaining money due her as rent. Yesterday Mr. Latourette adjourned the auction sale for forty days.

Men Refused to Work Overtime.

Refusing to accede to the request to work a few hours overtime, Wednesday night, eighteen men in the bras polishing department of the Rushmore Dynamo Works on South avenue, quit work and in consequence 125 men in the other departments were tied up yesterday waiting for material from the idle department. Three men it is said caused the disturbance, but after they were discharged yesterday, the other fifteen employes returned to work. The full force is now employed again and no further trouble is anticipated.

BOY ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Twelve-year-old Petman Robinson Tries to Hang Himself in Police Cell.

IMPROVISED NOOSE GAVE WAY.

Hurled Against Steel Bars, Blow on The Head Renders Him Unconscious.—Restored by Physician.

Though barely more than twelve years old, Petman Robinson, a colored boy who has been giving the local police lots of trouble in the past six months, considered his life a burden, yesterday, and attempted suicide in a cell at Police headquarters, having been locked up for stealing a bicycle. He was discovered shortly after he had tried to hang himself with his own shirt but the attempt would have been a failure anyway as the makeshift noose ripped when he made a jump to pull it taut. Instead of strangling himself he fell against the steel bars with force enough to almost fracture his skull and render himself unconscious for several hours.

Robinson, who lives on East Third street, was recently placed under bonds by Judge Runyon to await the action of the juvenile court for the theft of a bicycle and general bad behavior. Since then he has been arrested in North Plainfield for disturbing a church meeting and yesterday a wheel stolen from the Bryant school and belonging to Albert Wootten was traced to him. He was taken in custody by Patrolman Dubson at 3:45 and the discovery that he had tried to kill himself was made by Patrol Driver O'Gorman at 5:50.

O'Gorman chanced into the cell room and discovered the boy on the floor. The shirt wrapped around his neck warned him of what had transpired and the headquarters officials were quickly summoned. They found Robinson unconscious from a blow on the head and gave temporary treatment pending the arrival of Dr. Lufburrow. The physician worked a long time before the boy was restored. He told of what he had tried to do when questioned and a watch was put over him for the rest of the night.

At this morning's session of the city court, the prisoner was arraigned on the second bicycle theft charge and held in $200 bail for the Grand Jury. When he was returned to his cell, the guard was withdrawn but the court officers were attracted soon afterwards by suspicious noises coming from is direction and a rush was made to investigate. They found that the boy was planning another attempt to hang himself and was affixing his undershirt around a convenient bar. This and his trousers were the only things that had been left him. The guard was immediately restored and will be kept at the cell door until Robinson is removed to the county jail or procures bail.

The parents of the boy are highly respected by their neighbors but the son seems to have gotten beyond all restraint. His name is placed on the police docket every little while for some petty offense credited by complaint. He took his arrest yesterday as a matter of fact occurrence and the attempt at suicide came as a big surprise. When O'Gorman first discovered him on the floor, he believed the boy to be dead and this was the report telephoned to Chief Kiely at his home.

BOROUGHITES ACTIVE TO SECURE HIGHER VALUATIONS

Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield, Former Mayor Smalley, of the Somerset County Board of Equalization of Taxes, and Tax Assessor J. H. Cooley, of the borough, are at Somerville today attending a meeting of the county tax board and assessors in an effort to bring about the increase in tax valuations in the county so that Somerset may receive a larger share of the railroad tax apportionment for the public schools. Major Carl Lentz, of Newark, president of the State Board for the Equalization of Taxes, addressed the session this morning, urging an increase in the ratables, and the tax officials are again in session this afternoon.

Mayor Townsend, with County School Supervisor H. C. Krebs of the borough, is especially active in the tax matter, and is working for an increase of the assessment valuation.

"Reliable Money Brokers"

IF IT'S A QUESTION OF DOLLARS.

We may be able to help you out. At any rate if you'll inform us of your needs, we'll try. The winter months just past have raised the expenses of the average householder to their highest point and many of us have been unable to meet all of our obligations as promptly as we would like to and consequently find ourselves in debt.

SUPPOSE we were to advance you sufficient funds to meet your obligations. Do you not think you would be more satisfied to have only one payment to look after on pay day?

There is no place where money will be advanced you more willingly or where you will receive more courteous treatment than from us. It's worth investigating.

The possession of household goods, horses and wagons is sufficient evidence of your ability to pay. Call, write or 'phone.

DON'T EXPERIMENT.

You Will Make No Mistake if You Follow This Plainfield Citizen's Advice.

Never neglect your kidneys.

If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are all symptoms of kidney trouble, and you should seek a remedy which is known to cure the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has cured many stubborn cases in Plainfield. Follow the advice of a Plainfield citizen and be cured yourself.

A. C. Lazzi, stone-cutter and carver, of 214 East Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "For several years I was troubled by a distressing backache and pains in the region of the kidneys. My head also ached severely and the ecretions from the kidneys were not at all natural. I tried several doctors and some so-called kidney remedies, but none gave me any relief, and as my case became more and more persistent, I became somewhat discouraged because I could find no relief. I saw an advertisement regarding Doan's Kidney Pills and got a supply at Randolph's pharmacy. Soon after taking them my troubles vanished like the mist and since then I have felt stronger and better in every way."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

St. Louis at Cleveland.
Washington at Boston.

The local games of interest tomorrow will be that between Clinton Avenue and Y. M. C. A. at Crescent Oval in the morning and the one between the Plainfield and Trenton Y. M. C. A. teams in the afternoon at the same place. Both games should furnish fine sport for the fans and be well worth seeing. They will be hotly contested and as it will be the first meeting of these teams this year, more than usual interest will be shown.

The visit of the Trenton Y. M. C. A team here tomorrow will surely attract a big crowd. It will be the first game with State capital boys in Plainfield and a fast contest may be looked for as Trenton is out to win the State association championship.

Clinton Avenue will visit Somerville tomorrow afternoon and open the season with the West Ends of that place. The Plainfield boys are prepared to make a determined fight and feel sure that they will win the contest. The locals will be accompanied by many rooters. Later in the season the fans will have the chance of seeing Somerville at Crescent Oval. Tomorrow Randolph and Kraft will be the slab artists.

With Fred Burchell in the box the Boston Americans trounced the Chicago White Sox on Tuesday by a score of 16 to 5. He had perfect control and refused to let his opponents connect with his curves.

Jimmy Cleary, the young twirler, recently released by Buffalo, has signed with Providence, and gives promise of making good.

Dooin, catcher of the Philadelphia Nationals, is leading the batters of that league with an average of .342 for twenty-four games. Tommy Leach, of Pittsburg, who played in the same number of games, is second with a mark of .333.

There will be good baseball at Scotch Plains tomorrow, especially in the afternoon when the 'Plains aggregation will meet the fast Mohonk A. C., of Brooklyn.

James Vaughn, who has been pitching phenomenal ball for the Hot Springs Club, of the Arkansas State League, has been purchased by the New York Americans. Vaughn is a big fellow, weighing 200 pounds.

Those who imagine that "Christy" Mathewson is all in, have several more guesses. The big fellow will be just as good as ever this season and at the end will have a record of as many wins as any other pitcher in the National League.

GOLF.

There will be a number of golf competitions at the Park Golf Club tomorrow, including that for the Golf Club and President's cups, the Hydewood Park Challenge cup, offered by Louis Hyde; the Summer cup, offered by the club; Green committee cup, offered by the Green committee, and in addition play for the Holiday cup and an approaching and putting contest.

The special events at the Plainfield Country Club tomorrow will include a thirty-six hole, medal play, handicap competition, with prizes for the best gross and the best net scores in each class, A and B. There will also be social features at the clubhouse during the afternoon and evening. There will be plenty of tennis on the club courts to entertain all those interested in the game.

There will be several special events at the Westfield Golf Club tomorrow, with prizes for the winners in each event. In the evening there will be a dance at the clubhouse.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS IN BIG UNION MEETING

The Warren Chapel Christian Endeavorers again won the attendance banner at the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union rally held at Trinity Reformed church last night. The Warren chapel society had five more members out than the Trinity organization. The Faith chapel society ranked third. Because of the absence of State President John T. Sproull, who was at a Union meeting in Hudson County, the vote on the place for the State convention to be held in 1909, was postponed until a later meeting. It is probable that the Union convention will be held in this city, as the local societies are anxious to be the hosts.

A. Harry Moore, vice-president of the State C. E. Union and president of the Hudson County Union, was the speaker of the evening. The topic of his address was "The Strenuous Endeavorer," and he said that presistence, nerve, grit, untiring love and devotion for the Master and loyalty to truth were the characteristics of the present day worker for the church. All the officers of the local Union were re-elected to serve for the coming term. These are Clarence B. LaRue, president; Joel D. DeGroff, of Dunellen, vice-president; Charles F. Windham, secretary, Charles Hummer, assistant secretary and chairman of the press committee; William Latourette, treausrer; Miss Cora Brokaw, chairman of the prayer meeting committee; John Kriney, chairman of the missionary commitee, and Frank Stewart, chairman of the lookout committee. Reports were received from the secretary and treasurer, showing gratifying growth of the Union during the past year.

The meeting opened with a song service, led by the Union chorus choir of thorty-five voices, led by Charles L. Lewis. Arthur L. Titsworth was at the organ. The devotional exercises were led by Rev. George H. Gardiner, of the New Market Baptist church.

FORMER APPRENTICE GETS JUDGMENT AGAINST EMPLOYER.

An interesting case on contract engaged the attention of the district court, yesterday afternoon, when Louis Menzenbach sued J. H. Snyder, the mason and builder, for $82 which he claimed was due him as wages while serving his time as an apprentice. Walter L. Hetfield represented the plaintiff and Francis J. Blatz the defendant. The plaintiff was given a verdict for $24.50.

There was a question as to when the plaintiff was hired and the length of time he was to serve as an apprentice. The defendant claimed that the young man entered his employ in August, 1904, and continued until November, 1907, while the papers on file with the Union showed that he began work July 18, 1904, and continued with Snyder until October 18, 1907.

Counsel for the plaintiff claimed that after a certain period he was entitled to receive journeymen's wages, but the court construed that before he could do that there would have to be a new contract between him and his employer. For this reason he gave judgment for $24.50 which represented the amount which in the opinion of the court was due him for the time he served as apprentice.

DECISION RESERVED IN CONCRETE MIXER CASE.

City Engineer A. J. Gavett was the last winess called yesterday afternoon in the district court case of the Ransom Concrete Company against C. M. Meeker, in which the company was seeking to recover $225 for the rental of a concrete mixer. His testimony tended to prove that the machine was of little value to Mr. Meeker, that he was constantly having trouble with it, being unable to keep it in running order.

After both sides had completed their case Judge Newcorn requested the counsel, W. A. Coddington, representing the company, and Walter L. Hetfield, representing Mr. Meeker, to submit briefs bearing on the important points. This will probably be done within the next week, after which Judge Newcorn will render his decision.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

When Miss Grace George comes to the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and night in Sardou's brilliant comedy of "Divorcons," she will have the assistance of the same admirable cast that helped her in her great London triumph in this play last summer, when she effected a run of twelve weeks there in the Duke of York's theatre, and was proclaimed by the English press as the best comedienne ever sent to London from the United States.

Heading the cast will be Mr. Frank Worthing, one of the best of leading-men, and who is to be starred season after next by Mr. William A. Brady. Mr. Max Freeman, for years a popular character-actor in all departments of the drama, will be seen in the role of the head-waiter, which he played with some of the most famous actresses of the last generation. Then there is Mr. Douglas Gerrard, a young English actor whom Miss George brought from London. Two veterans of the American stage, A. H. Stuart and Charles Stanley, will be seen in characteristic parts. Mrs. Reginald Carrington, the best actress we possess for the roles of grande dames in comedy, is on the feminine side of the cast, as are the Misses Laura Lemmers, Angela Ogden, and Justine Cutting.

YOUNG HUSBAND IN JAIL; ELOPING BRIDE IN TEARS.

"I hate him. I knew it was wrong the minute I got on the train with him. I wish I had never seen him," sobbed Mrs. Joseph Frank yesterday at Asbury Park, as she told of her elopement Saturday with Joseph Frank and their marriage in Jersey City. The bride was Miss Sarah Jones, youngest daughter of Councilman and Mrs. Augustus T. Jones, of Bradley Beach. She is fifteen years old.

Her parents allege that Frank persuaded her to elope to escape school. Saturday Miss Jones was sent to New York on an errand, but did not return at the appointed time. Sunday she telephoned her sister, Mrs. Otto Sutts, of Bradley Beach, telling of her marriage and that with her husband she would return Monday. Upon their arrival a constable arrested the bridegroom, who was held in $1,000 bonds for the Grand Jury.

Frank formerly worked in an Asbury Park factory.

WISHED HE'D DIE; HE DID.

As Miss Harris Exclaimed the Words, Brother Fell Lifeless.

Trenton, May 29.—Ellis Harris, of Trenton, and his sister quarrelled last night over the division of $500 left by their mother, who died recently at the age of one hundred years. The sister finally exclaimed: "I wish you'd drop dead."

Harris fell to the floor unconscious and expired in an ambulance called to remove him to a hospital. Heart failure, due to the quarrel, was the cause of his death.

A Comfortable Home Next Winter

A cozy warm house, warm everywhere, is not impossible to obtain. To have one room comfortable and the adjoining room chilly is very trying, especially when you have guests. The will save you from making apologies, and from furnace dust, and cut down your coal bills. It will warm the house thoroughly from end to end with the minimum of dirt, trouble and expense. The Boynton dealer in your town will tell you why.

BOYNTON

The Furnace with the Square Fire Pot

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for steam or hot water. Also ranges.

Keep the Kitchen Cool

Why swelter over a glowing range in a stuffy kitchen, when a new Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove will do the family cooking without raising the temperature enough to be noticeable?

By putting a "New Perfection" in and allowing the range fire to go out, you may make this summer's kitchen work not only bearable, but actually a pleasure. The produces an intense heat under the kettle or in the oven, but does not radiate heat in all directions as a coal range does—hence is used with comfort on the hottest summer day. Made in three sizes, and warranted. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

NEW PERFECTION

The Rayo Lamp comes as near lamp perfection as it's possible to get. Gives a clear, bright light that reaches the farthest corner of a good sized living-room. Well made throughout of nickeled brass; perfectly safe and very ornamental. Warranted in every particular. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

A Tale of the Cape Cod Fisher Folk

The Heavenlies just howled and so did I. Washy Sparrow howled, too, but not from laughing.

"All winter!" he screams. "The gal's gone loony! She wants to kill me and get me out of the way. I sha'n't stir one step. You hear me? Not one step!"

"This piece says that many patients act that way first along. 'In such cases it is often necessary to use force.' Mr. Pratt, will you take pa out to the tool shed? I'll carry the lamp."

Would I? I was aching for the chance to get my hands on the little rat. I stood up and squared my shoulders.

"Mr. Van Brunt," yells Washy, dodging into the corner, "be you going to set by and see me murdered? Didn't you swear your Bible oath to treat me kind?"

"There couldn't be nothing kinder than curing you, pa," says Eureka. "It's all right, ain't it, Mr. Van Brunt?" Van didn't answer for a second. Then he says, like he'd decided: "Yes, it's dead right. Go ahead and cure him, for heaven's sake, if you can! I'll back you up and take my chances."

"My nerves—" begins Washy.

"Nerves," says Eureka, "come from the stomach. I'll 'tend to them later. We'll cure your lungs first. Mr. Pratt, fetch him along."

I got my fingers on the back of that consumptive's neck. He fought and hung back. Then I grabbed him by the waist-band with t'other hand. He moved then, "walking Spanish," like the boy in the schoolyard.

Eureka opened the door. "Nobody can say," says she, emphatic, "that I let my pa die of consumption without trying to cure him. Come along, Mr. Pratt."

"Remember, Mr. Sparrow," says Van, busting with laugh, "it's all for your good."

We went out and across the yard and round back of the barn. The Twins come to the door to see us off. I could hear 'em laughing even after we was out of sight. Eureka shaded the lamp with her apron. When we got to the shed there was a bran-new padlock on the door of it.

"He Moved Then," Walking Spanish.

"I put it on this 'afternoon," says she. "I'm pretty handy at fixing things up."

We went into the shed and she put the lamp on the floor in the corner.

"I guess maybe Mr. Pratt'll stay till you get undressed, pa," she says. "You tell him the rest, Mr. Pratt. Good-night."

She went out and shut the door. The patient set down on the lounge and looked at the cracks in the walls. The wind off the bay was singing through 'em and there was a steady hailstorm of sand coming with it. If fresh air was physic, Sparrow was certain to be a well man.

"Get undressed," says I. "Hurry up."

"I'll freeze to death," says he, shivering.

"No you won't. Not in August. Maybe, later on, in December, 'twill be different. But, anyhow, freezing's a quick death, so they say, and I've heard you hankering to die quick ever since I knew you. Get into bed."

He took off his coat and vest and camped out on the lounge. There was plenty of bed clothes. I took up the lamp. Then I looked at him.

"There's one or two things more," says I. "To-morrow morning you'll be for coming into the house. Well, you can't come. You'll stay outside, same as Eureka says you will. And the skiff and sloop are locked and chained, so you can't run away in them. And Scudder won't take you, nor any letters from 'cause he's in the game, too. ... when Miss Page comes, if she does come, don't you dare tell her one word. If you do—well, you won't die of consumption, anyhow."

I pounded my knee with my fist when I said it. It's a pretty average fist, far's size is concerned, and I see him looking at it.

I said "Good-night" and went out and locked the door and took away the key. The fresh air cure had begun.

Next day was raw and chilly and the invalid put in the hours chasing what few patches of sunshine happened to come along. Eureka brought his meals out to him. He begged and pleaded to be let into the house, but 'twas no go. He spent that night in the toolhouse, same as he had the first.

For a week he stayed outdoor. Then he said he felt so much better that he guessed he could risk a day inside. Eureka was ready for him.

SENIORS BEAT FACULTY

P. H. S. Teachers' Nine Defeated by 1908 Class Team 16-11.

A BURLESQUE BALL GAME.

Pupils Turned Out in Force to See Annual Faculty Game, Where Pedagogic Baseball Proved a Failure.

High class baseball was played at Crescent Oval yesterday afternoon when the nine representing the Plainfield High School faculty went down in defeat before the senior class team of the school, by a score of 16-11. The senior class is the highest class in the school,—that's the only excuse for calling it a high class game. Be it said, summarily, that if the faculty error column had been the run column, the defeat would have been changed to an overwhelming victory for the pedagogues.

It was a gala day for the High School. Everybody turned out to see the game, the seniors supporting their team, and the rest of the student body cheering the lucky plays of the teachers' nine. The ticket office was transformed into a booth, decorated with the senior class colors, and lemonade, candy and cake were served the schoolboys by Miss Elsa Cook, Miss Marjorie Harris and Miss Cornelia Lounsbury. Lemonade for the faculty players was dispensed by Miss M. E. Ferry and Miss Helen Pope, assisted by Miss Sara Sanderson and Miss Esther Crampton.

"Ben" Evans, Professor of Cleanliness at the school, was on the slab for the faculty, and after the schoolboys had scored fourteen runs in six innings off his delivery, the pedagogues came to the mathematical conclusion that he had been batted out of the box in the second inning. He was accordingly transferred to second base, and Lindsey Best, of the science department, worked out the remaining baseball formulae from the box. Best used to go to Hamilton College and still remembers some practical baseball, so the seniors got but three hits off his delivery.

Seeing the teachers change their pitcher, "Mose" Rubenstein, who had been on the slab for the pupils, retired to give Francis Foster a chance. Then things happened. With the score 14-0 in favor of the seniors, Foster gave James D Macnab, of the commercial department, and Superintendent Henry M. Maxson bases on balls. S. B. Howe, Jr., the next batter, made history for his school course by hitting a beautiful single. As a result, Macnab ran home in approved drill manual fiashion and Dr. Maxson cantered around the bags and finally across the rubber 'mid the wildest cheering. Howe afterwards scored on "Otter" Doane's two-bagger, and the danger of a shut-out was passed. In the eighth, "unsteadiness" on the part of the seniors, let in eight faculty runs, and dozen men came to bat before the third out was made. Principal Travell, Hubbard, of Harvard, Macnab and Howe solved the formula of Foster's delivery and made base hits. George Broadhurst, assistant in the dust analysis department of the school, got excited at this stage of the game, and "vowed" it was almost as exciting as cricket, "'pon my honor." After he made his run, he went all around the crease,—no, the diamond,—trying to "place a wager."

In an effort to support Governor Hughes in his campaign against betting, Hubbard, Macnab and Dr. Maxson quit figuring on Foster's delivery and struck out, ending the game. The seniors scored two runs in the seventh. By action of the Board of Education, the box score for the faculty has been suppressed, but it is said that these report cards are so low that all members of the faculty except Principal Travell are ineligible to play next year.

PLAINFIELD WOMEN PLAY STRONG TENNIS

Miss Edna Wildey, Miss Natalie Wildey, and Mrs. S. F. Weaver, of the Plainfield Country Club, won their way into the semi-final round of the women's singles tournament for the club championship trophy of the East Jersey Lawn Tennis Association, and the local club is sure of two points for the trophy, for one of the three is sure of being runner-up in the tournament. In the men's doubles played Saturday, there are also three surviving local teams, and the chances for the trophy, now held by the Elizabeth Town and Country Club, to come to this city are now very bright.

If one of the Plainfield women win the trophy and the men's team are successful in the finals, there will be fourteen points for the local clubs. Eighteen are necessary to bring the trophy to this city, and the men's singles and mixed doubles are still to be played off. Six of the ten contestants in yesterday's play were Plainfielders, but Miss Janet Wildey was deafeated in the opening round by Miss Erra Marcus, of the Danforth Club, the fourth player in the semi-final round. Miss Mildred Wildey lost to Mrs. Weaver in the second round. Miss Barbara Fleming was defeated by Miss Natalie Wildey in the second round, after three hard-fought sets, the closest tennis of the day, and the only match that went to three sets in the afternoons play. The summaries:

First round: Miss Erra Marcus, Danforth Club, beat Miss Janet Wildey, P. C. C., 6-1, 6-1; Miss Barbara Fleming, P. C. C., beat Miss Elizabeth Thomas, Elizabeth Town and Country Club, 6-0, 7-5; Miss Natalie Wildey, P. C. C., won from Miss Caroline Bogert by default; Mrs. S. F. Weaver, P. C. C., won from Mrs. A. H. Church, E. T. C. C., 8-6, 6-3; Miss Mildred Wildey, P. C. C., won from Miss Rachael Robinson, Ilderan Outing Club, by default.

Second round: Miss Marcus won from Mrs. B. C. Edgar, Ilderan Outing Club, by default; Miss Natalie Wildey beat Miss Fleming, 2-6, 6-4, 6-2; Mrs. Weaver beat Miss Mildred Wildey, P. C. C., 7-5, 6-4; Miss Edna Wildey, won from Miss Louise Colton, E. T. C. C., by default.

Miss Marcus wil play Miss Natalie Wildey and Mrs. Weaver wil play Miss Edna Wildey in the semi-final round, to be played off on the country club courts tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock. Aside from winning points for the club, the winner will receive a silver or cut glass prize. The finals in both tournaments will be played at the Country Club courts tomorrow afternoon beginning at 3 o'clock.

In connection with the women's singles tournament, a consolation tournament will be started at the club after the semi-final matches in the morning. Those players defeated in the first round will be eligible to compete, and winner and runner-up prizes will be offered, although the tourney will not count as points for the East Jersey trophy. Miss Janet Wildey is the only Country Club player in this consolation tournament.

BASEBALL.

The Junior baseball club will play the Garwood A. C. at Garwood tomorrow afternoon.

Noted Golfers Here Today.

An event of special interest in golfing circles is a four-ball match which is being played at the Plainfield Country Club today by Fellowes Morgan, president of the Metropolitan Golf Association; Arden M. Robbins, vice-president; Leighton Calkins, secretary, and James L. Taylor, the last named of Dyker Meadow.
